PUBLISHERS' NOTE

FOR the last nine years annual volumes have been issued, one for each calendar year, but in 1947 the legislation affecting local authorities became so great that it has been decided to cover in the present volume the period from the beginning of that year to September 30, 1947. This course has the advantage of enabling readers to have in their hands the legislation of the Parliamentary Session which ended in October, 1947 (comprising the great bulk of the legislation for the calendar year), several months before it would otherwise be available in this series, and has also enabled the subject-matter to be kept within the compass of a single volume. Even so, the present volume will be found to be substantially longer than any of its nine predecessors, and it is hoped that the new arrangement will meet with the approval of the local government service and the legal profession generally.

A similar classification of titles has been followed to that of previous years, emergency legislation being dealt with under the various headings. Among the Statutes of 1947 are five of major importance to local authorities. First, the Town and Country Planning Act, 1947, with its 120 complicated sections and eleven equally complicated Schedules, shifts the emphasis of town and country planning law from the restrictive to the constructive and amends the general law of compensation on the compulsory acquisition of land. Parts of the Agriculture Act, 1947, touch the functions of local government at various points, as, for instance, in regard to smallholdings, county agricultural executive committees, land drainage and pest control, while in a somewhat similar way the Transport Act, 1947, is of importance both as regards passenger road transport undertakings and harbour undertakings. On a more specific basis are the Fire Services Act, 1947, which transfers the fire services back to local authority control on the dissolution of the National Fire Service, and the Electricity Act, 1947, which takes away from local authorities their electricity supply undertakings on the transfer to public ownership of the whole of the supply side of the electricity industry. Other statutes of importance which are printed in this volume are the Civic Restaurants Act, 1947, the Births and Deaths Registration Act, 1947, the Forestry Act, 1947, and the Pensions (Increase) Act, 1947.

In connection with the Town and Country Planning Act, 1947, the editors have to some extent drawn upon the annotation of Mr. H. A. Hill, M.A., and Mr. D. P. Kerrigan, B.L., on that Act, while in the case of the agricultural titles they have had at their disposal the book on the Agriculture Act, 1947, by Mr. Anthony Cripps, D.S.O., T.D., M.A. The Preliminary Note to the Fire Services Act, 1947, is largely the work of Mr. J. M. Hawksworth, LL. B., and the editors gratefully acknowledge their indebtedness to these learned writers.

Important Statutory Rules and Orders included in this volume are the Police Regulations, 1947, which consolidate with amendments thirty-one different groups of regulations made from 1920 onwards, the numerous orders and regulations made under the National Health Service Act, 1946, the Control of Borrowing Order, 1947, the Preserves Order, 1947, and various regulations on the subject of pensions.

CASES

Negligence—Licensee—Infant—Recreation ground—Injuries caused by defective swing—Local authority ignorant of defect—Liability.

The plaintiff, a child of nine, while playing in the playground in one of the defendant corporation's public parks, was boarding a swing when her finger, the top joint of which was later amputated, was caught between the unguarded lug and socket of a checking device designed to prevent the swing going too far. The defect was one which could easily have been remedied. The defendants, who had no knowledge of the danger, had obtained the swing from an old-established firm of manufacturers, and the model was one which had been in use for years without any previous accident of a similar nature :—

Held : the defendants owed the plaintiff the obligation of a licensor to a licensee, and since, as such, they were not bound to do more than warn her of dangers actually known to them, no liability attached to them.—SUTTON v. BOOTLE CORPN., [1947] K. B. 359 ; [1947] 1 All E. R. 92 ; 177 L. T. 168 ; 111 J. P. 81 ; 45 L. G. R. 162, C. A. [1]

Limitation of actions—Public authority—Joinder as third party—Limitation Act, 1939 (c. 39), s. 21—Law Reform (Married Women and Tortfeasors) Act, 1935 (c. 30), s. 6 (1) (c).

Two lorries, one driven by the plaintiffs' servant and the other by the defendant, came into collision, as a result of which passengers in the defendant's lorry were injured. The defendant, who was driving an Army lorry at the time of the collision, as a servant of a public authority was entitled to protection under s. 21 of the Limitation Act, 1939, which provides that no action shall be brought against any person for any act done in execution of a public duty unless it is commenced before the expiration of one year from the date on which the cause of action accrued. The plaintiffs alleged that the accident was due wholly or in part to the defendant's negligence, and they sought a declaration that, in the event of the persons injured succeeding in an action for negligence against them, they would be entitled to claim an indemnity or contribution from the defendant as a third party, even though more than twelve months had then passed since the cause of action had accrued :—

Held : proceedings by a defendant against a third party were independent of and separate from the proceedings by the plaintiff against the defendant, and the Limitation Act, 1939, only started to run in favour of a third party when the defendant had been found to be liable to the plaintiff, and, therefore, the plaintiffs were entitled to the declaration.

Negligence—Railway train—Underground train—Duty of company's servants to shut doors before departure of train—Contributory negligence.

The plaintiff entered the carriage of an underground train belonging to the defendant Board, and the train left the station with the door open. The plaintiff stood with his back to the doorway, holding on to a rail provided for the purpose. He had no experience of underground trains without automatic doors and had no reason to suppose the door was not shut. The train swayed on a curve, the plaintiff lost his balance, and fell out of the train and was injured :—

Held : the defendant Board were negligent in not ensuring that the train door was closed before the train started, and there was no contributory negligence on the part of the plaintiff.—BROOKES v. LONDON PASSENGER TRANSPORT BOARD, [1947] 1 All E. R. 506. [3]

Carriers—Carriage of goods—Implied warranty that goods not dangerous—Disposal of refuse by barge—Warranty negatived by contract—Negligence—Public Health (London) Act, 1936 (c. 50), ss. 92, 304.

Under a contract with the defendants, the plaintiffs provided barges at the defendants' wharf for the reception and removal of refuse. The tipping into the barges was screened to prevent the dispersal of smell and dust, and the plaintiffs' lighterman was unable to see what was tipped in. The defendants' foreman could see, however, and he noticed that one load of "trade refuse" included barrels containing "swarf" or metal shavings. He had no reason to think the swarf dangerous and raised no inquiry, but, in fact, it was mainly magnesium, which, when brought into contact with heat generated by other refuse, caught fire in two barges, started a series of explosions, and caused damage. By cl. 13 of the contract : "the council shall not be held responsible for any damage or mischief caused by or through the refuse after it has been shot for disposal into the contractors' barge or barges," and by cl. 16 : "the contractors shall bear all risk and responsibility of whatever kind which shall attend or result from the execution of this contract" :—

Held : (i) the principle of Rylands v. Fletcher (1868) (L. R. 3 H. L. 330) did not apply to the shooting of the swarf into the barges.

(ii) there being nothing in the appearance of the swarf to indicate to the foreman that it was dangerous, there was no negligence on the part of the defendants in allowing it to be shot into the barges.

(iii) while the balance of authority was in favour of the view that there is an implied warranty that goods delivered for carriage are safe to be carried, irrespective of whether the person delivering the goods for carriage knows of the danger and irrespective of whether the person to whom they are delivered is under a common law or statutory duty to carry them, that doctrine could not be suitably extended to a case of this kind having regard to the terms of the contract.

(iv) even if the warranty were implied in this case, yet the liability for the breach was negatived by the express terms of the contract.—BURLEY, LTD. v. STEPNEY CORPN., [1947] 1 All E. R. 507; 176 L. T. 535; 111 J. P. 258. [4]

Limitation of actions—Amendment of statement of claim—Action against public authority alleging negligence in the conduct of a hospital—Allegation in statement of claim that authority responsible for negligence of house surgeon and surgeon—Amendment to include responsibility for pharmacist—New particular and not new cause of action—Public Authorities Protection Act, 1893 (c. 61), s. 1—Limitation Act, 1939 (c. 21), s. 21.

At the trial of an action against a public authority alleging negligence in the conduct of a hospital, it being alleged that the authority was responsible for the negligence of the house surgeon and the operating surgeon, the plaintiff sought to amend the statement of claim by including a charge that the council was also responsible for the negligence of the pharmacist. The council contended that such an amendment would be stating a new cause of action and could not be allowed, under the Public Authorities Protection Act, 1893, s. 1 (see now Limitation Act, 1939, s. 21) :—

Held : since the cause of action was the negligence of the council in the conduct of a hospital and the allegations that it was vicariously responsible for certain named persons were only by way of particulars, the amendment was not a new cause of action, but only a new particular and could be allowed.

Marshall v. London Passenger Transport Board ([1936] 3 All E. R. 83), and Batting v. London Passenger Transport Board ([1941] 1 All E. R. 228), distinguished.—*COLLINS v. ## STATUTES

AGRICULTURE ACT, 1947

(10 & 11 Geo. 6, c. 48)

PRELIMINARY NOTE

This Act, which comes into operation on varying dates to be specified by Order in Council (see note to s. 111), is a comprehensive measure of 111 sections and thirteen Schedules intended to implement the Government's policy of raising the standard of the agricultural industry in the interests of stability and efficiency, so that the industry, which provides employment for a million and a quarter men and women and covers four-fifths of the acreage of the United Kingdom, may be properly equipped to play the important part allotted to it in the plan for national recovery.

Only a comparatively small number of the provisions of the Act are of direct concern to local authorities and these provisions have been grouped, according to the specific aspects of agriculture with which they deal, under the titles ALLOTMENTS AND SMALLHOLDINGS, DESTRUCTIVE INSECTS AND PESTS, and LAND DRAINAGE, post, while the present title is utilised for the residue.

The principal subjects grouped together under this title are, first, the rules of good estate management and good husbandry (ss. 9-11); next, the establishment of County Agricultural Executive Committees to replace the War Agricultural Executive Committees which played such a leading part in the nation's agricultural economy during the late war (ss. 71, 72, 75, 76); then, as a subsidiary to that, the scheme for providing agricultural goods and services (s. 103); the provisions for the compulsory purchase and hiring of land (ss. 92-94); the destruction of injurious weeds (s. 102); various sections of general application, and the relevant parts of the Schedules to the Act.

The purpose of the rules of good estate management and good husbandry is to secure that owners of agricultural land manage it in accordance with the former and that occupiers of agricultural units farm them consistently with the latter. Though these so-called "rules" are laid down in ss. 10 and 11, those sections do not so much state rules as indicate a standard which is deemed to fulfil the responsibilities of ownership or occupation as viewed by the Act. Before the commencement of the present Act the duties of an owner could be epitomised in the maxim sic utere tuo ut alienum non laedas; that is to say, an owner of land might be liable for nuisance, but in the absence of contractual duty he was under no liability at law to manage his estate in any particular way. By referring to "responsibilities" to manage a farm in accordance with certain rules, the Act assumes the existence of such responsibilities; save by implication it does not impose duties, though it creates means for securing that the required standards are attained and maintained. The means available are the making of supervision orders and consequent power to give directions behind which lie the sanctions of compulsory acquisition and dispossession. Power also exists to issue directions without making supervision orders.

Early in the war War Agricultural Executive Committees were appointed as a purely temporary expedient for all the administrative counties in England and Wales, and the Minister of Agriculture and Fisheries delegated to those Committees wide powers which he possessed under the Defence (General) Regulations, 1939; S. R. & O., 1939, No. 927, as amended (see the Cultivation of Lands Order, 1939; S. R. & O., 1939, No. 1078). In addition, certain statutory functions of county councils exercised by their agricultural committees (see infra) were transferred to the War Agricultural Executive Committees (Defence (Agriculture and Fisheries) Regulations, 1939; S. R. & O., 1939, No. 1303, regulations 28 (2)). As with many other agencies that proved their usefulness during the war, it was decided to make the Committees, with the necessary modifications, a permanent feature of the agricultural organisation of the country; and accordingly s. 71 of the Act formally establishes, in accordance with the provisions of Sched. IX, for each administrative county (except the County of London) a County Agricultural Executive Committee (the word "War" being dropped) charged with the promotion of agricultural development and efficiency as directed by the Minister and with the exercise of ministerial functions by delegation in accordance with regulations under s. 72.

The new County Committees are to consist of not more than five members appointed directly by the Minister and of seven other members appointed by him from panels of persons nominated by representatives of landlords, farmers and workers. Details of the constitution of the Committees and the appointment of members appear in paras. 7-12 of Sched. IX. Provision is made for two or more counties to be treated as one for Committee purposes where this can conveniently be done (s. 71 (2) and Sched. X); for regulating the position where land falls partly in the area of one Committee and partly of another (s. 75); for delegation to subcommittees and for the appointment of district committees within the county areas (s. 71 (3), (4)). The functions of War Agricultural Executive Committees under any enactment are transferred not directly to the new Committees but to the Minister (s. 71 (7)), and are accordingly included in the functions that may be delegated to the former under s. 72. In view of the new set-up the agricultural committees of the various counties and county boroughs appointed under Part III of Ministry of Agriculture and Fisheries Act, 1919 (3 Halsbury's Statutes 453) are felt to be redundant and accordingly are dissolved (s. 76 (1)).

S. 103, in empowering the Minister to make schemes for providing farmers with goods and services for added efficiency and extra production, enables one of the most important functions of the War Agricultural Executive Committees to be continued by the Minister and, on delegation by him, by the new County Agricultural Executive Committees.

The next subject for brief consideration is that of compulsory acquisition. Various powers of acquiring land by compulsory purchase or hiring are conferred on the Minister and smallholdings authorities by the Act, those which concern local authorities being the powers under ss. 48 and 50 to acquire land for smallholdings (see title ALLOTMENTS AND SMALLHOLDINGS, post). In cases of compulsory purchase in pursuance of these powers the procedure of the Acquisition of Land (Authorisation Procedure) Act, 1946 (39 Halsbury's Statutes 52) is to apply, subject to the exclusion of s. 2 of that Act, which allows speedy acquisition in urgent cases. The compensation payable is that applicable to compulsory purchase by public authorities under the existing law, as recently modified by Part V of the Town and Country Planning Act, 1947 (see title LAND, ACQUISITION, SALE, ETC., of, post).

The procedure for compulsory hiring, to be prescribed by regulations under s. 93, is to be based on the procedure for compulsory purchase. In cases of compulsory hiring, however, the term is not to exceed thirty-five years (s. 94 (1)), and provision is made for resumption of possession in proper cases subject to notice and to the adjustment of rent when part only of the land is released from the hiring (s. 94 (3)). Land compulsorily hired may still be the subject of compulsory purchase by the hiring authority (s. 94 (2)).

Lastly, the Act amends the law as to injurious weeds. The Minister could, before the Act came into operation, serve notice upon the occupiers of land requiring the destruction of particular kinds of weed specified in the Schedule to the Corn Production Acts (Repeal) Act, 1921 (1 Halsbury's Statutes 77), with penalties for failure to comply. The Minister could also arrange for the destruction of the weeds, recovering from the occupiers the cost of so doing. S. 102 of the present Act, while retaining these provisions, allows the Minister to specify additional weeds as if they were included in the original Schedule. Powers of the Minister in this connection may be delegated to county councils instead of to the now defunct agricultural committees of those councils as heretofore (s. 76 (1), (2)).

The subsidiary provisions, relating to regulations under the Act, the interpretation of terms used, the enactments to be repealed and the dates of commencement of the various provisions of the Act, are explained in the notes to the sections. [7]

PART II

GOOD ESTATE MANAGEMENT AND GOOD HUSBANDRY

9. Duties of good estate management and good husbandry.—The following provisions of this Part of this Act shall have effect for the purpose of securing that owners of agricultural land fulfil their responsibilities to manage the land in accordance with the rules of good estate management, and that occupiers of agricultural land fulfil their responsibilities to farm the land in accordance with the rules of good husbandry. [9]

General note.—This section declares the aim of Part II of the Act as being to secure, first, that owners of agricultural land fulfil their responsibilities to manage the land in accordance with the rules of good estate management (see s. 10, infra), and secondly, that occupiers of such land fulfil their responsibilities to farm in accordance with the rules of good husbandry (see s. 11, post).

Agricultural land.—See s. 109 (1), post; as to the meaning of “agriculture,” see s. 109 (3), post.

Occupiers.—See s. 109 (5), post. There is a clear contrast between “owners” and “occupiers.” It has been said that the owner of vacant land is not the occupier (Ironmongers' Co. v. Naylor (1876), Poll. 207); for a consideration of the meaning of “occupation” for the purposes of income tax (Scheds. A and B), see Thorley v. Payne, [1943] K. B. 306, 310; [1943] 1 All E. R. 354, 359, 360.

Rules of Good Estate Management and Good Husbandry

10. Good estate management.—(1) For the purposes of this Act, an owner of agricultural land shall be deemed to fulfil his responsibilities to manage it in accordance with the rules of good estate management in so far as his management of the land and (so far as it affects the management of that land) of other land managed by him is such as to be reasonably adequate, having regard to the character and situation of the land and other relevant circumstances, to enable an occupier of the land reasonably skilled in husbandry to maintain efficient production as respects both the kind of produce and the quality and quantity thereof. [10]

(2) In determining whether the management of land is such as aforesaid, regard shall be had, but without prejudice to the generality of the provisions of the last foregoing subsection, to the extent to which the owner is providing, improving, maintaining and repairing fixed equipment on the land in so far as is necessary to enable an occupier of the land reasonably skilled in husbandry to maintain efficient production as aforesaid. [11]

(3) The responsibilities under the rules of good estate management of an owner of land in the occupation of another person shall not in relation to the maintenance and repair of fixed equipment include an obligation to do anything which that other person is under an obligation to do by virtue of any agreement. [12]

General note.—This section specifies the standard of management to be attained and kept to if consequences of non-compliance, such as the making of supervision orders, are to be avoided.

The test is a standard reasonably adequate, having regard to the character and situation of the land and to all other circumstances affecting management other than the personal circumstances of the owner, to enable a reasonably skilled farmer to maintain efficient production both in kind of produce and in the quality and quantity thereof; obligations in relation to the maintenance or repair of fixed equipment incumbent on an occupier, not the owner, under agreement are excluded.

The Agricultural Holdings Act, 1923 (1 Halsbury's Statutes 80), did not lay down any standard of good estate management, nor did the Defence (General) Regulations, 1939, regulation 62 (39 Halsbury's Statutes 1033). Good management before the present Act might have been defined as “getting as much as your property is worth” (Brown v. Mitchell, [1910] S. C. 369).

Whether or not the responsibilities contemplated by this section are fulfilled is a question for the Minister, who may delegate his functions to the County Agricultural Executive Committees (ss. 72 and 109 (3), post).

Other land.—This refers to land the management of which affects the agricultural land first referred to, e.g., land draining into agricultural land.

Relevant circumstances.—See s. 109 (3), post; as to want of capital the Minister stated in Standing Committee that if a person had not got or could not get appropriate credits that was one of the things that should be taken into account (H. of C. Official Report, S.C.A., February 20, 1947, col. 149). The definition of “relevant circumstances” was added at the Report Stage, when the Minister said that the object was to make it clear that all relevant circumstances relating to farming or estate management should be taken into consideration. “It was suggested [in Committee] that financial disability might be due to extraneous circumstances unconnected with the land . . . this amendment interprets the words ‘all relevant circumstances’ to mean matters affecting the farming or management of land and not the personal circumstances of the owner or occupier concerned” (438 H. of C. Official Report 557).

Sanctions.—As to the result of failure to observe the rules of good estate management, see the Preliminary Note, ante. Detailed consideration of ss. 12–21, in which this is set out, is beyond the scope of this volume.

Definitions.—For definition of “agricultural land,” see s. 109 (1), post, and for those of “fixed equipment,” “produce” and “relevant circumstances,” see s. 109 (3), post; as to “occupier,” see s. 109 (5), post.

11. Good husbandry.—(1) For the purposes of this Act, the occupier of an agricultural unit shall be deemed to fulfil his responsibilities to farm it in accordance with the rules of good husbandry in so far as the extent to which and the manner in which the unit is being farmed (as respects both the kind of operations carried out and the way in which they are carried out) is such that, having regard to the character and situation of the unit, the standard of management thereof by the owner and other relevant circumstances, the occupier is maintaining a reasonable standard of efficient production, as respects both the kind of produce and the quality and quantity thereof, while keeping the unit in a condition to enable such a standard to be maintained in the future. [13]

(2) In determining whether the manner in which a unit is being farmed is such as aforesaid, regard shall be had, but without prejudice to the generality of the provisions of the last foregoing subsection, to the extent to which—

- (a) permanent pasture is being properly mown or grazed and maintained in a good state of cultivation and fertility and in good condition;
- (b) the manner in which arable land is being cropped is such as to maintain that land clean and in a good state of cultivation and fertility and in good condition;
- (c) the unit is properly stocked where the system of farming practised requires the keeping of livestock, and an efficient standard of management of livestock is maintained where livestock are kept and of breeding where the breeding of livestock is carried out;
- (d) the necessary steps are being taken to secure and maintain crops and livestock free from disease and from infestation by insects and other pests;
- (e) the necessary steps are being taken for the protection and preservation of crops harvested or lifted, or in course of being harvested or lifted;
- (f) the necessary work of maintenance and repair is being carried out.

(3) The responsibilities under the rules of good husbandry of an occupier of an agricultural unit which is not owned by him shall not include an obligation to carry out any work of maintenance or repair which the owner of the unit or any part thereof is under an obligation to carry out in order to fulfil his responsibilities to manage in accordance with the rules of good estate management. [15]

General note.—This section specifies the standard of management that is to be attained and kept to if the consequences of non-compliance, such as the making of supervision orders, are to be avoided.

The definition of the standard of good husbandry supersedes that in the Agricultural Holdings Act, 1923, s. 57 (1), which is repealed (s. 110 and Sched. XIII, post). The test is that the land should be so farmed that having regard to the character and situation of the unit, to the standard of management thereof by the owner and all other circumstances affecting farming other than the personal circumstances of the occupier, the occupier is maintaining a reasonable standard of efficient production as regards both the kind of produce and the quality and quantity thereof; and that the unit is kept in a condition to enable the standard to be maintained: obligations incumbent on the owner in relation to maintenance or repair under s. 10, ante, are excluded. Whether or not the responsibilities contemplated by this section are fulfilled is a question for the Minister, who may delegate his functions to the County Agricultural Executive Committees (ss. 72 and 109 (3), post).

Sanctions.—As to the result of failure to observe the rules of good husbandry, see the Preliminary Note, ante. Detailed discussion of ss. 12–21, in which this is set out, is beyond the scope of this volume.

Definitions.—For definition of "agricultural unit," see s. 109 (2), post, and for those of "fixed equipment," "produce" and "relevant circumstances," see s. 109 (3), post. As to "farming" and "occupier," see s. 109 (5), post.

PART V

ADMINISTRATIVE AND GENERAL

County Agricultural Executive Committees

71. Establishment and functions of County Agricultural Executive Committees.—(1) For each administrative county, except the County of London, the Minister shall establish a County Agricultural Executive Committee which shall be charged, in relation to the county for which the Committee are established, with the duty of promoting agricultural development and efficiency by such means as the Minister may direct and of exercising such functions as the Minister may delegate to the Committee under the next following section. [16]

(2) The Minister may by order direct that any two or more administrative counties shall be treated for the purposes of this section and the Schedules therein referred to as if those counties taken together were a single administrative county; and the provisions of the Tenth Schedule to this Act shall have effect in relation to any order under this subsection. [17]

(3) A County Agricultural Executive Committee may with the approval of the Minister, and shall if the Minister so requires, appoint one or more sub-committees, and the County Agricultural Executive Committee shall refer to a sub-committee for report and recommendation such matters as may be determined by the Committee with the approval of the Minister or as may be required by the Minister, and shall delegate to a sub-committee such of the functions of the Committee, to such extent and subject to such conditions or restrictions, as may be so determined or required. [18]

(4) A County Agricultural Executive Committee may with the approval of the Minister, and shall if the Minister so requires, appoint one or more district committees for such part or parts of the county as may be determined by the County Agricultural Executive Committee with the approval of the Minister or as may be required by the Minister, and the County Agricultural Executive Committee shall refer to a district committee for report and recommendation such matters relating to the part of the county for which the district committee are appointed as may be so determined or required. [19]

(5) In the exercise of their functions a County Agricultural Executive Committee shall comply with any directions given by the Minister, and a sub-committee or district committee shall comply with any directions given by the Minister or by the County Agricultural Executive Committee by which the sub-committee or district committee were established. [20]

(6) The provisions in that behalf of the Ninth Schedule to this Act shall have effect as to the constitution of County Agricultural Committees, sub-committees and district committees and otherwise in relation thereto. [21]

(7) Without prejudice to the provisions of the next following section, the functions under any enactment of any War Agricultural Executive Committee therein referred to shall in such cases as may be prescribed be transferred to the Minister. [22]

(8) For the purposes of this section and of the Schedules therein referred to—

(a) a county borough which is surrounded by a single administrative county shall be treated as if it were included in that county,

- (b) any other county borough shall be treated as if it were included in such adjoining administrative county as the Minister may direct, or, if the Minister so directs, as if it were included partly in one such county and partly in another,
- (c) the county of London shall be treated as if any such part thereof as the Minister may direct were included in such adjoining administrative county as he may direct, and
- (d) the Isles of Scilly shall be treated as if those Isles were an administrative county. [23]

Effect of section.—There is to be established for each administrative county, except the County of London, a County Agricultural Executive Committee (s. 71 (1)), consisting of not more than five members (one of whom is to be a member of the county council) directly appointed by the Minister, and of seven further members (called "nominated members") appointed by the Minister from panels of persons nominated by representatives of the interests of farmers (three members), of farmworkers (two members) and of landowners (two members) (Sched. IX, para. 7, post).

These Committees, which replace on a permanent basis the War Agricultural Executive Committees, are charged with the duty of promoting agricultural development and efficiency and of exercising any functions of the Minister which are delegated to them by regulations made in pursuance of s. 72, infra. The intention is that they shall act as the agents of the Minister in carrying out the policy of the Act (see 149 H. of L. Official Report 119), and in the exercise of their functions they will act subject to general directions from the Minister. Provision is made for the appointment by the Committees of sub-committees and district committees, who will also be subject to directions from the Minister.

Administrative county.—Exclusive of London, there are sixty-nine administrative counties in England and Wales, the names of which are set out in the Local Government Act, 1933, Sched. I, Part I (21 Halsbury's Statutes 470). Note the provisions of sub-s. (2), supra, and Sched. X, post, for treating two or more administrative counties as one for the purposes of this section, thus having only one County Agricultural Executive Committee for the combined counties: this provision is intended to meet the case of small counties where it might be uneconomic to have individual Committees. Before making an order for the combination of counties for this purpose the Minister must consult representatives of interests of farmers, farm workers, and landowners, and the county councils concerned, and any order is to be subject to annulment by resolution of either House of Parliament (Sched. X, paras. 1 and 2, post).

As to county boroughs and the Isles of Scilly, see sub-s. (8), supra.

County of London.—Note the provisions of sub-s. (8) (c), supra, as to the inclusion of parts of the County of London in adjoining counties. Obviously the County of London contains insufficient agricultural land to justify the establishment of a separate Committee.

The Minister.—The Minister of Agriculture and Fisheries.

Membership of the Committees.—The Minister, who is empowered to make a maximum of five direct appointments to each Committee, stated on the Second Reading that this provision would enable the appointment of men of special qualifications and knowledge. One direct appointment is to be of a member of the county council concerned, the intention being to provide a link between the work of the Committee and of the county council in such matters as agricultural education and the administration of smallholdings. The nominated members will be drawn from panels of persons nominated by the National Farmers Union, the Central Landowners' Association and the farm workers' unions. Under para. 7 (4) of Sched. IX, the Minister may by order (which requires an affirmative resolution of Parliament) modify the number of members of the Committees or add to the classes of nominated members. As to the subject-matter of this note, see, generally, 432 H. of C. Official Report 641.

Functions.—This term includes powers and duties (s. 109 (3), post).

Sub-committees.—The Minister gave an assurance on the Report Stage that there would be an estate management sub-committee of every Committee (see 438 H. of C. Official Report 503). A Committee may add to a sub-committee persons who are not members of the Committee (Sched. IX, para. 10, post).

District Committees.—The number of members of district committees is to be determined by the Committees. They are appointed by the Committees, of which they need not necessarily be members (Sched. IX, para. 11, post).

War Agricultural Executive Committees.—These Committees were authorised to be appointed by the Minister for the administrative counties of England and Wales in pursuance of the Cultivation of Lands Order, 1939 (S. R. & O., 1939, No. 1078), and wide emergency powers as to the taking possession of land, entering upon and inspection of land, control of cultivation, termination of agricultural tenancies and the requisitioning of chattels used in connection with land could be delegated to them by the Minister. Under the Cultivation of Lands (County Boroughs) Order, 1939 (S. R. & O., 1939, No. 1079), War Agricultural Executive Committees were expressly authorised, after consultation with the council of any county borough which was wholly or partly surrounded by the county, to exercise their powers within that county borough. These Committees are now placed on a permanent basis as County Agricultural Executive Committees.

72. Delegation of functions of Minister to County Agricultural Executive Committees.—The Minister may make regulations providing for delegating to a County Agricultural Executive Committee, to such extent and subject to such conditions or restrictions as may be specified by or under the regulations, such of his functions—

(a) under this Act ;

(b) under any other enactment (whether passed before or after the passing of this Act), being functions relating to agriculture, as may be so specified. [24]

The Minister.—The Minister of Agriculture and Fisheries.

Regulations.—As to regulations generally, see s. 108, post. No regulations had been made under this section up to the time of going to press.

Functions.—This term includes powers and duties (s. 109 (3), post).

Delegation.—As to delegation of the emergency powers of the Minister under Defence Regulations to War Agricultural Executive Committees, see the Cultivation of Lands Order, 1939 (S. R. & O., 1939, No. 1078), and note to s. 71, ante.

Supplementary Administrative Provisions

75. Provisions as to land lying partly in one area and partly in another.—

Where any land lies partly in the area of the Welsh Agricultural Land Sub-Commission and partly outside that area, or partly in the area of one County Agricultural Executive Committee and partly in the area of another, or partly in the area of one Agricultural Land Tribunal and partly in the area of another, the Minister may direct that for the purposes of anything required or authorised to be done by or before the Sub-Commission or the Agricultural Land Commission, or by or before such a committee or tribunal, as the case may be, in relation to that land the whole of the land shall be deemed to be comprised in the area comprising such part of the land as may be specified in the direction. [25]

Effect of section.—The Minister may direct that as regards, inter alia, County Agricultural Executive Committees land which lies partly in one area and partly in another is to be deemed to be wholly in one or the other of those areas.

County Agricultural Executive Committee.—See s. 71, ante.

The Minister.—The Minister of Agriculture and Fisheries.

76. Dissolution of Councils of Agriculture, the Agricultural Advisory Committee and county agricultural committees established under 9 & 10 Geo. 5, c. 91.—(1) The Councils of Agriculture and the Agricultural Advisory Committee established under Part II of the Ministry of Agriculture and Fisheries Act, 1919, and the agricultural committees established under Part III of that Act, are hereby dissolved. [26]

(2) In paragraph (6) of the Schedule to the Corn Production Acts (Repeal) Act, 1921 (which empowers the Minister to delegate his functions under that Schedule to the agricultural committee of a county or borough) for the words “the Agricultural Committee of” there shall be substituted the words “the Council”. [27]

(3) In subsection (2) of section fifteen of the Agriculture Act, 1937 (which provides for the payment of grants for land drainage expenses to the councils of county boroughs, except a county borough which has not established an agricultural committee) the words from “and except the council” to the end of the subsection shall cease to have effect. [28]

Ministry of Agriculture and Fisheries Act, 1919.—3 Halsbury's Statutes 451. Part II of this Act provided for the establishment of Councils of Agriculture for England and Wales which were to meet twice a year for discussion of matters of public interest relating to agriculture and other rural industries, and also for the establishment of an Agricultural Advisory Committee for England and Wales to advise and make recommendations to the Minister on agriculture and other rural industries. Part III provided for the establishment of county agricultural committees to act for councils on agricultural matters, the establishment of these committees being compulsory in the case of counties (other than the County of London) and optional in the case of county boroughs and the County of London. All these bodies are now dissolved by sub-s. (1) of the present section and Parts II and III of the Act of 1919 are repealed by s. 110 and Sched. XIII, post.

Speaking of this dissolution, in Committee, the Minister said (H. of C. Official Report, S.C.A., March 26, 1947, cols. 744, 745):

"I am sure that hon. Members in all parts of the Committee will appreciate that once the county agricultural executive committees are made permanent they will take over almost all the functions hitherto performed . . . by the old county council agricultural committees. The only things that will remain to the county council or county borough will be education, smallholdings and drainage. I think the answer to my hon. Friend is that these particular services will be far better dealt with by special committees of the county councils than by a county agricultural committee such as the one we had pre-war and which still exists.

"It is true that the loss of the old committees carries with it the Councils of Agriculture for Wales and for England because a very large proportion of the old Councils was drawn from the county agricultural committees. As the first go out of existence, then the Councils of Agriculture automatically go with them. It seems clear that in the new circumstances there is no further necessity for the old county agricultural committee as such, nor for the Councils of Agriculture for England or Wales. We shall have at our disposal the county agricultural executive committee, the new National Agricultural Advisory Service, the agricultural improvement council, the agricultural research council and the technical development committees working a two-way traffic of scientific advice on the day to day problems of the farm."

Corn Production Acts (Repeal) Act, 1921.—The Schedule to this Act (1 Halsbury's Statutes 79) deals with functions of the Minister of Agriculture and Fisheries in regard to the destruction of injurious weeds. Para. (6), which provides for the delegation by the Minister of these functions to the agricultural committees of counties, is amended consequentially on the dissolution of agricultural committees under sub-s. (1), supra, to provide for delegation to the councils of any counties.

The injurious weeds to which the Schedule applies are specified in para. (8) thereof, and the Minister is empowered by s. 102, post, to make regulations adding to the injurious weeds specified in that paragraph.

Agriculture Act, 1937.—S. 15 (1) of this Act (30 Halsbury's Statutes 799) authorises the payment of Exchequer grants to certain drainage authorities, specified in sub-s. (2) of that section, as being "all drainage authorities as defined by section eighty-one of the Land Drainage Act, 1930, except catchment boards, and except the council of any county borough which has not established an agricultural committee constituted in accordance with a scheme approved by the Minister." The words in italics are now repealed as a consequence of the dissolution of county agricultural committees under sub-s. (1), supra.

Provisions as to Compulsory Acquisition of Land

92. Procedure for compulsory purchase of land.—(1) Subject to the provisions of this section, where under any provision of this Act power is conferred on the Minister or a smallholdings authority to purchase land compulsorily, the power shall be exercisable for the purchase of any particular land on the Minister or the authority, as the case may be, being authorised so to purchase the land in accordance with the provisions of the Acquisition of Land (Authorisation Procedure) Act, 1946, and that Act shall apply accordingly—

- (a) as if paragraph (b) of subsection (1) of section one thereof (which refers to the compulsory purchase of land by the Minister of Transport under certain enactments) included a reference to any compulsory purchase of land by the Minister under this Act, and
- (b) as if this Act had been in force immediately before the commencement of the said Act of 1946 :

Provided that section two of that Act (which confers temporary powers for speedy acquisition of land in urgent cases) shall not apply to any compulsory purchase of land under this Act. [29]

(2) Where under any provision of this Act power is conferred on the Minister to purchase any particular land compulsorily on the giving of a certificate by him, the certificate shall have effect as if it were a compulsory purchase order made under section one of the said Act of 1946, and—

- (a) where the certificate relates to land falling within subsection (2) of the said section one (which applies, to purchases of local authorities' and statutory undertakers' land, commons, open spaces and inalienable National Trust land, and ancient monuments and other objects of archaeological interest, the special procedure set out in Part III of the First Schedule to that Act) the certificate shall be embodied in an order of the Minister and the said Part III shall apply accordingly ;

- (b) subsection (3) of the said section one and the Second Schedule to the said Act of 1946 (which provide for incorporation of the Lands Clauses Acts and other enactments) shall have effect in relation to the purchase, and anything which under that Schedule may be provided by a compulsory purchase order may be provided by the said certificate ;
- (c) in the application to the certificate of Part IV of the First Schedule to the said Act of 1946 (which relates to the validity and coming into operation of compulsory purchase orders) for references to the first publication of notice of the making of an order there shall be substituted references to the service of notice of the giving of the certificate, and for references to the requirements of the said First Schedule and of regulations made thereunder there shall be substituted references to the requirements of this Act as to the proceedings to be taken before the giving of the certificate. [30]
- (3) In relation to a compulsory purchase under section eighty-seven of this Act the said Act of 1946 shall have effect subject to the following modifications :—

- (a) head (a) of sub-paragraph (1) of paragraph 3 of the First Schedule (which provides for advertisement in local newspapers) shall not apply ;
- (b) the Minister may disregard any objection to the compulsory purchase order if he is satisfied that the objection is made on the ground that the purchase is unnecessary or inexpedient. [31]

Effect of section.—The procedure for compulsory purchase of land under the Act by the Minister or by a smallholdings authority (see title ALLOTMENTS AND SMALLHOLDINGS, post), is to be that laid down in the Acquisition of Land (Authorisation Procedure) Act, 1946, infra, except that the power of speedy acquisition in urgent cases provided by s. 2 of that Act is not applicable to a compulsory purchase under the present Act. Where the Minister is empowered to purchase land compulsorily on the giving of a certificate, such certificate is to have effect as if it were a compulsory purchase order made under s. 1 of the Act of 1946.

The section came into force on October 1, 1947 (Agriculture Act, 1947 (Commencement) Order, 1947 ; S. R. & O., 1947, No. 1767, post).

The Minister.—The Minister of Agriculture and Fisheries.

Powers of compulsory purchase.—Powers of compulsory purchase are conferred on the Minister, inter alia, for the provision of smallholdings under s. 56 (1). By s. 48 such powers are conferred on smallholdings authorities for the purpose of smallholdings (see, in each case, title ALLOTMENTS AND SMALLHOLDINGS, post).

Smallholdings authority.—See s. 47, title ALLOTMENTS AND SMALLHOLDINGS, post.

Acquisition of Land (Authorisation Procedure) Act, 1946.—39 Halsbury's Statutes 52. S. 1 (1) (b) of the Act provides that the authorisation of any compulsory purchase of land by the Minister of Transport under certain specified enactments is to be conferred by compulsory purchase order in accordance with the provisions of Sched. 1 to that Act, being provisions which, subject to certain adaptations, modifications and exceptions, correspond to the provisions as to authorisation of compulsory purchase of land in the Local Government Act, 1933 (26 Halsbury's Statutes 392 et seq.). The effect of sub-s. (1) (a) of the present section is to apply the same provisions to the compulsory purchase of land by the Minister of Agriculture and Fisheries under the present Act.

S. 1 (1) (a) of the Act of 1946 similarly applies the uniform procedure of that Act for authorising compulsory purchase to compulsory purchases by local authorities where the power so to purchase is conferred on those authorities by any provision of a public Act in force before the commencement of the Act of 1946 ; and the effect of sub-s. (1) (b) of the present section is to apply that uniform procedure to compulsory purchases by smallholdings authorities under the present Act.

Speedy acquisition in urgent cases.—S. 2 of the Acquisition of Land (Authorisation Procedure) Act, 1946 (39 Halsbury's Statutes 56), provides that for a temporary period authorisation of compulsory purchases of land by local authorities which could be given under s. 1 (1) of that Act or under the Town and Country Planning Act, 1944 (37 Halsbury's Statutes 420) may instead be given in writing where the confirming authority is satisfied that it is urgently necessary in the public interest for possession to be obtained without delay. A similar provision is made in respect of compulsory purchases by the Board of Trade under the Distribution of Industry Act, 1945 (38 Halsbury's Statutes 479) and by the Minister of Transport under certain specified enactments.

The powers of the said s. 2 were primarily intended to be exercised in connection with housing, town planning and the distribution of industry, and have been generally excluded in the application of the Act of 1946 to compulsory purchases under subsequent enactments.

Compensation for acquisition.—Compensation on a compulsory acquisition to which this section applies is payable in accordance with the ordinary law applicable to such acquisition by public authorities, now modified by Part V of the Town and Country Planning Act, 1947 ; see title LAND, ACQUISITION, SALE, ETC., OF, post.

Sub-s. (2).—This sub-section relates to compulsory purchases by the Minister in cases where certificates are given by him under s. 16 (dispossession on grounds of bad estate management), s. 85 (retention of land in the possession of the Minister in the interests of agricultural production), and s. 86 (control of sub-division of agricultural units), which are outside the scope of this volume.

Sub-s. (3).—This sub-section relates to compulsory purchases under s. 87 (experimental schemes for readjustment of farm boundaries), which are similarly outside the scope of this volume.

93. Compulsory hiring of land.—(1) The Minister may with the approval of the Treasury make regulations for giving effect to the provisions of this Act as to the compulsory hiring of land, and regulations under this section may provide—

- (a) for prescribing the procedure for the compulsory hiring of land under this Act, being such procedure as appears to the Minister to correspond as nearly as may be with the procedure for the compulsory purchase of land under this Act ;
- (b) for applying to the compulsory hiring of land, with such adaptations, exceptions or modifications as appear to the Minister requisite, provisions of the Lands Clauses Acts, sections seventy-seven to eighty-five of the Railways Clauses Consolidation Act, 1845, the Acquisition of Land (Assessment of Compensation) Act, 1919, the Acquisition of Land (Authorisation Procedure) Act, 1946, except section two of the last mentioned Act, and any other provision which had effect in relation to the compulsory hiring of land under any enactment repealed by this Act ;
- (c) for determining the terms and conditions of a compulsory hiring other than the rent ;
- (d) for requiring questions arising on the determination of a compulsory hiring to be determined by arbitration. [32]

(2) Regulations under this section may apply generally to all compulsory hirings under this Act or may make different provisions for different classes of such hirings. [33]

Effect of section.—This section and the following section deal with aspects of the compulsory hiring of land by smallholdings authorities under s. 48, and by the Minister, inter alia, under s. 56. Under the present section the procedure for such compulsory hiring, which is to be prescribed by the Minister in regulations made with Treasury approval, is to be based on the procedure laid down in s. 92, ante, for compulsory purchase by the authorities and by the Minister.

The Minister.—The Minister of Agriculture and Fisheries.

Regulations.—As to regulations generally, see s. 108, post. No regulations had been made under the present section up to the time of going to press.

Railways Clauses Consolidation Act, 1845, ss. 77–85.—14 Halsbury's Statutes 61–84.

Acquisition of Land (Authorisation Procedure) Act, 1946.—39 Halsbury's Statutes 52. S. 2 of this Act provides for speedy purchase of land in urgent cases ; see notes to s. 92, ante.

Enactment repealed by this Act.—For repeals, see s. 110 and Sched. XIII, post ; for those taking effect as from October 1, 1947, see the Agriculture Act, 1947 (Commencement) Order, 1947 (S. R. & O., 1947, No. 1767), post. The remaining repeals had not taken effect up to the date of going to press.

Commencement.—This section came into force on October 1, 1947 (see the Agriculture Act, 1947 (Commencement) Order, 1947 ; S. R. & O., 1947, No. 1767, post).

94. Limitation of period of compulsory hiring.—(1) Subject to the provisions of this section, no compulsory hiring of land under this Act shall be for a term longer than thirty-five years. [34]

(2) For the avoidance of doubt it is hereby declared that the fact that the Minister or smallholdings authority is in possession of land by virtue of a compulsory hiring thereof does not prevent the Minister or authority, as the case may be, purchasing the land compulsorily. [35]

(3) Where land has been compulsorily hired under this Act or any enactment thereby repealed and the person who but for the hiring would be entitled to possession of the land requires the land or part thereof for any purpose for which it appears to the Minister expedient that the said person should resume possession thereof, the said person may with the consent of the Minister resume possession of the land or part thereof in question—

- (a) in the case of land hired by the Minister, within such period after the granting of the Minister's consent as the Minister may specify ;
- (b) in the case of land hired by a smallholdings authority, upon giving to the authority twelve months' previous notice in writing of his intention so to do or such shorter notice as may have been specified for the purposes of this subsection in the order authorising the compulsory hiring of the land ; and if possession is resumed by the said person of part only of the land, the rent payable as from the date of resumption in respect of the hiring of the remainder of the land shall be reduced in such proportion as in default of agreement may be determined in the like manner as under the last foregoing section rent is determined for the compulsory hiring of land under this Act.

[36]

Effect of section.—No compulsory hiring, either by the Minister or by smallholdings authorities, is to be for a longer period than thirty-five years, and provision is made for the owner, etc., to resume possession with the Minister's consent before the expiration of the term, though in the case of land hired to a smallholdings authority a maximum of twelve months' notice of intention to resume possession is required (s. 94 (1), (3)). The Minister or a smallholdings authority may compulsorily purchase land hired to them (s. 94 (2)).

The Minister.—The Minister of Agriculture and Fisheries.

Smallholdings authority.—See s. 47, title ALLOTMENTS AND SMALLHOLDINGS, post. The powers of such authorities to hire land compulsorily are conferred by s. 48.

Purchasing.—For compulsory purchase procedure, see s. 92, ante.

Any enactment thereby repealed.—For repeals, see s. 110 and Sched. XIII, post : for those taking effect as from October 1, 1947, see the Agriculture Act, 1947 (Commencement) Order, 1947 (S. R. & O., 1947, No. 1767), post. The remaining repeals had not taken effect up to the date of going to press.

Determined in like manner.—This refers to determination by regulations under s. 93 (1) (b), ante.

Commencement.—This section came into force on October 1, 1947 (see the Agriculture Act, 1947 (Commencement) Order, 1947 ; S. R. & O., 1947, No. 1767, post).

Pest and Weed Control

102. Destruction of injurious weeds.—The Schedule to the Corn Production Acts (Repeal) Act, 1921 (which contains provisions for securing the destruction of injurious weeds specified in paragraph (8) thereof) shall have effect, in its application to England and Wales, as if there were specified in the said paragraph (8) such additional injurious weeds as the Minister may by regulations under this section prescribe, and such regulations may make different provisions in different cases specified in the regulations. [37]

General note.—The Corn Production Acts, 1917 and 1920, were repealed as from October 1, 1921, by the Corn Production Acts (Repeal) Act, 1921 (1 Halsbury's Statutes 77), but the provisions of the repealed Acts relating to the destruction of injurious weeds were continued in force as set out in the Schedule to the Act of 1921 (1 Halsbury's Statutes 79). These provisions empower the Minister to serve notice upon occupiers of land requiring the destruction of injurious weeds thereon, with penalties in default. In addition, the Minister may arrange for the destruction of the weeds and recover the cost of such destruction from the occupiers. The Minister could formerly delegate his powers under the Schedule to agricultural committees, but with the dissolution of those committees such delegation is now to county councils (see s. 76 (1), (2), ante).

The injurious weeds to which the Schedule applies are specified in para. (8) thereof, and are as follows : Spear Thistle (Carduus lanceolatus L.), Creeping or Field Thistle (Carduus Arvensis Curt.), Curled Dock (Rumex crispus L.), Broadleaved Dock (Rumex obtusifolius L.) and Ragwort (Senecio Jacobaea L.). The present section empowers the Minister by regulations to add further injurious weeds to the Schedule.

Common law position as to destruction of injurious weeds.—At common law an occupier of land is under no duty to an adjoining occupier to cut thistles naturally growing on his land, so as to prevent their seeding on the adjoining land (Giles v. Walker (1890), 24 Q. B. D. 656).

The Minister.—The Minister of Agriculture and Fisheries.

Regulations.—As to regulations generally, see s. 108, post. No regulations had been made under this section up to the time of going to press.

Commencement.—This section came into force on October 1, 1947 (see the Agriculture Act, 1947 (Commencement) Order, 1947 ; S. R. & O., 1947, No. 1767, post).

Supplementary

103. Schemes for provision of agricultural goods and services.—(1) For the purpose of promoting efficiency in agriculture or facilitating food production the Minister may with the approval of the Treasury make schemes for providing goods and services to persons managing or farming agricultural land.

Any scheme under this section shall be embodied in an order which shall be laid before Parliament forthwith after being made. [38]

(2) A scheme under this section shall not authorise the provision of goods after the expiration of five years from the coming into operation of this section or such longer period as may be prescribed. [39]

(3) The Minister may make such reasonable charges, if any, as he thinks fit in respect of goods and services provided in pursuance of a scheme under this section. [40]

(4) The Minister may acquire by agreement any land which he requires for the purposes of a scheme under this section. [41]

(5) This section shall extend to Scotland, with the substitution for references to the Minister of references to the Secretary of State. [42]

General note.—For the purposes of promoting agricultural efficiency and for increasing food production, the Minister is empowered to make schemes, with Treasury approval, for providing agricultural goods and services to farmers, either free or on payment of reasonable charges. Whilst the provision of goods is limited to a period of five years from October 1, 1947 (see the Agriculture Act, 1947 (Commencement) Order, 1947; S. R. & O., 1947, No. 1767, post), or to such further period as may be prescribed by regulations, no limit is placed upon the period for which services may be provided. Any land needed in connection with such schemes may be acquired by agreement.

Under s. 25 of the Agriculture (Miscellaneous War Provisions) Act, 1940 (33 Halsbury's Statutes 20), authority was given for the payment out of public funds of any expenses of the Minister in connection with arrangements made by him, with Treasury approval, for providing agricultural goods and services for the purpose of increasing food production. That Act expired on December 31, 1947 (see the Emergency Laws (Transitional Provisions) Act, 1946, s. 3; 39 Halsbury's Statutes 882), and the said s. 25 is now replaced by the present section.

In the past agricultural goods and services have been provided by the War Agricultural Executive Committees, and it was stated in the Financial Memorandum accompanying the Agriculture Bill that the combined total of goods and services has been running at the rate of £14,000,000 a year, with bad debts accounting for £1 in every £3,000 lent, but that it was expected that this total would decline.

The Minister.—The Minister of Agriculture and Fisheries.

Goods and services.—According to para. 110 of the Explanatory Memorandum on the Agriculture Bill (Cmd. 6996), the chief intention of the present section is that County Agricultural Executive Committees should continue to be able to make available contract services, such as machinery services and labour gangs, for the benefit, in particular, of small farmers.

Order.—No schemes had been made under this section up to the time of going to press.

Charges.—These are in the discretion of the Minister.

Definition.—For definition of "agriculture," see s. 109 (3), post, and for that of "agricultural land," see s. 109 (1), post. "Prescribed" means prescribed by regulations made by the Minister (see s. 108 (2), 109 (3), post).

108. Regulations and orders.—(1) Any regulations made by the Minister under this Act, and any Order made by the Minister under section seventy-three thereof, shall be laid before Parliament forthwith after being made, and if either House of Parliament, within the period of forty days beginning with the day on which the regulations or order are or is laid before it, resolves that an Address be presented to His Majesty praying that the regulations or order be annulled, no further proceedings shall be taken thereunder after the date of the resolution, and His Majesty may by Order in Council revoke the regulations or order so, however, that any such resolution and revocation shall be without prejudice to the validity of anything previously done under the regulations or order or to the making of new regulations or a new order.

In reckoning any such period of forty days as aforesaid, no account shall be taken of any time during which Parliament is dissolved or prorogued or during which both Houses are adjourned for more than four days. [48]

(2) In this Act the expression "prescribed" means prescribed by regulations made by the Minister. [44]

(3) Any power conferred by this Act to make an order shall include a power, exercisable in the like manner and subject to the like conditions, to revoke or vary the order. [45]

General note.—By this section the so-called "negative resolution procedure" is applied to all regulations of the Minister under the Act and to orders under s. 73 thereof. In the circumstances of the present section this means that such documents are valid and binding as soon as they are made and will continue to be so unless and until, within forty days (as defined in the section) of their being laid before Parliament, a resolution of either House is passed praying that they be annulled. This negative procedure should be carefully distinguished from the so-called "affirmative resolution procedure" under which documents affected are of no effect until brought into operation by parliamentary resolution.

Orders under s. 73.—This section relates to the establishment, constitution and procedure of Agricultural Land Tribunals, and is outside the scope of this volume.

Effect of the Statutory Instruments Act, 1946 (39 Halsbury's Statutes 783).—This Act came into full operation on January 1, 1948 (see S.I. 1948 No. 3).

The effect of the Act is that documents made after its commencement in exercise of certain statutory powers conferred by Acts passed before its commencement (such as the present Act) will be "statutory instruments"; accordingly such documents require to be laid before Parliament in accordance with the provisions of s. 4 of that Act in substitution for the corresponding provisions of the present section, and the provisions of s. 5 of that Act for annulment in pursuance of resolution of either House of Parliament are substituted for the corresponding provisions of this section. Only such documents, however, as are made in exercise of certain statutory powers are to be "statutory instruments," the powers being identified by reference to the Rules Publication Act, 1893 (18 Halsbury's Statutes 1016), and the powers conferred on a "rule-making authority" to make "statutory rules," both of which terms are defined in the Rules Publication Act, 1893, s. 4 (18 Halsbury's Statutes 1018). A statutory rule means a "rule, regulation or byelaw made under any Act," and the term includes the regulations referred to in the present section.

109. Interpretation.—(1) In this Act the expression "agricultural land" means land used for agriculture which is so used for the purposes of a trade or business, or which is designated by the Minister for the purposes of this subsection, and includes any land so designated as land which in the opinion of the Minister ought to be brought into use for agriculture:

Provided that no designation under this subsection shall extend—

(a) to land used as pleasure grounds, private gardens or allotment gardens, or

(b) to land kept or preserved mainly or exclusively for the purposes of sport or recreation, except where the Minister is satisfied that its use for agriculture would not be inconsistent with its use for the said purposes and it is so stated in the designation. [46]

(2) In this Act the expression "agricultural unit" means land which is occupied as a unit for agricultural purposes, including—

(a) any dwelling-house or other building occupied by the same person for the purpose of farming the land, and

(b) any other land falling within the definition in this Act of the expression "agricultural land" which is in the occupation of the same person, being land as to which the Minister is satisfied that having regard to the character and situation thereof and other relevant circumstances it ought in the interests of full and efficient production to be farmed in conjunction with the agricultural unit, and directs accordingly:

Provided that the Minister shall not give a direction under this subsection as respects any land unless it is for the time being not in use for any purpose which appears to him to be substantial having regard to the use to which it might be put for agriculture. [47]

(3) In this Act the following expressions have the meanings hereby respectively assigned to them, that is to say:—

"agriculture" includes horticulture, fruit growing, seed growing, dairy farming and livestock breeding and keeping, the use of land as grazing land, meadow land, osier land, market gardens and nursery grounds, and the use of land for woodlands where that use is ancillary to the farming of land for other agricultural purposes, and "agricultural" shall be construed accordingly ;

"allotment garden" means an allotment not exceeding forty poles in extent which is wholly or mainly cultivated by the occupier for the production of vegetables or fruit for consumption by himself or his family ;

"fixed equipment" includes any building or structure affixed to land and any works on, in, over or under land, and also includes anything grown on land for a purpose other than use after severance from the land, consumption of the thing grown or of produce thereof, or amenity, and references to fixed equipment on land shall be construed accordingly ;

"functions" includes powers and duties ;

"livestock" includes any creature kept for the production of food, wool, skins or fur, or for the purpose of its use in the farming of land ;

"pasture" includes meadow ;

"prescribed" has the meaning assigned to it by the last foregoing section ;

"produce" includes anything (whether live or dead) produced in the course of agriculture ;

"relevant circumstances", in relation to an owner or occupier, includes all circumstances affecting management or farming other than the personal circumstances of the owner or occupier. [48]

(4) References in this Act to any enactment shall be construed, except where the context otherwise requires, as references to that enactment as amended by or under any other enactment, including this Act. [49]

(5) References in this Act to the farming of land include references to the carrying on in relation to the land of any agricultural activity ; and in relation to any agricultural activity the person having the right to carry it on shall be deemed to be the occupier of the land. [50]

(6) References in this Act to the use of land for agriculture include, in relation to land forming part of an agricultural unit, references to any use of the land in connection with the farming of the unit. [51]

110. Repeals.—The enactments specified in the Thirteenth Schedule to this Act are, save as provided in Part III of this Act, hereby repealed to the extent specified in the third column of that Schedule. [52]

Part III of this Act.—This Part of the Act, which deals with agricultural holdings in general, is outside the scope of this volume.

111. Short title, commencement and extent.—(1) This Act may be cited as the Agriculture Act, 1947. [53]

(2) This Act shall come into operation on such date as His Majesty may by Order in Council appoint ; and an Order under this subsection may appoint different dates in relation to different provisions of this Act. [54]

(3) This Act, except in so far as is expressly provided therein, shall not extend to Scotland or Northern Ireland. [55]

Dates of operation.—The Act is to come into operation on a date or dates to be appointed by Order in Council.

Up to the time of going to press only the provisions referred to in the Agriculture Act, 1947 (Commencement) Order, 1947 (S. R. & O., 1947, No. 1767), post, have been brought into operation : with one exception, these provisions came into force on October 1, 1947.

NINTH SCHEDULE

CONSTITUTION ETC. OF COMMISSION, SUB-COMMISSION, COMMITTEES AND TRIBUNALS

County Agricultural Executive Committees, Sub-Committees and District Committees

7.—(1) A County Agricultural Executive Committee shall consist of not more than five members appointed by the Minister, and of seven other members (hereinafter referred to as "nominated members") appointed by the Minister from among persons nominated in accordance with the following provisions of this Schedule.

(2) One of the said five members shall be a member of the council of the county for which the Committee is established, and shall be appointed by the Minister after consultation with that council.

In the application of this sub-paragraph—

- (a) to the Isles of Scilly for the references to the council of a county there shall be substituted references to the council of those Isles,
- (b) to a combination of counties which under subsection (2) of section seventy-one of this Act is treated as a single county for the reference to a member of the council of the county there shall be substituted a reference to a member of one of the councils, and for the reference to consultation with the council of a county there shall be substituted a reference to consultation with all of the councils.

(3) The nominated members shall be appointed from persons nominated—

- (a) in the case of three members, by persons appearing to the Minister to represent the interests of farmers ;
- (b) in the case of two members, by persons appearing to him to represent the interests of workers employed in agriculture ;
- (c) in the case of two members, by persons appearing to him to represent the interests of owners of agricultural land.

(4) The Minister may by order direct that the foregoing provisions of this paragraph shall have effect subject to such modifications of the numbers therein specified, or such additions to the classes of nominated members and such consequential additions to the persons required to be consulted under paragraph 1 of the Tenth Schedule to this Act, as may be provided by the order.

(5) Any order under this paragraph shall be of no effect unless approved by resolution of each House of Parliament.

8. The Minister shall designate a member of each County Agricultural Executive Committee to act as chairman of the Committee and another member to act as deputy chairman in the absence of the chairman.

9.—(1) Subject to the provisions of this paragraph, the term of office of any member of a County Agricultural Executive Committee shall be three years, but a member who ceases to hold office shall, subject to the provisions of this Schedule as to nomination, be eligible for reappointment.

(2) The following provisions shall regulate the tenure of office of the first members of a County Agricultural Executive Committee other than the chairman :—

- (a) at the end of the first year from the establishment of the Committee one-third (or, if one-third is not an integral number, the nearest integral number not exceeding one-third) of the said members, to be chosen by the Committee, shall retire from the Committee ;
- (b) at the end of two years from the establishment of the Committee one-half (or, if one-half is not an integral number, the nearest integral number not exceeding one-half) of the remaining first members of the Committee, to be chosen by the Committee, shall retire from the Committee.

(3) Any member of the Committee may resign his membership by notice in writing served on the Minister.

(4) If the Minister is satisfied that any member of the Committee is incapacitated by infirmity of mind or body from discharging the duties of his office, or is otherwise unsuited to continue to discharge those duties, or if any member of the Committee is adjudged bankrupt or makes a composition or arrangement with his creditors, the Minister may revoke his appointment as a member of the Committee.

(5) Where the Minister appoints a person in the place of a member whose office is vacated otherwise than in accordance with sub-paragraph (1) or (2) of this paragraph, the said sub-paragraphs (1) and (2) shall apply to the person so appointed as if he had become a member of the Committee at the same time as the member in whose place he was appointed, or, where two or more persons are appointed as aforesaid in succession, as if he had become a member of the Committee at the same time as the first member whose office was vacated as aforesaid.

10. A County Agricultural Executive Committee may add to any sub-committee established by them persons not being members of the Committee, who shall continue as members of the sub-committee for such period as the Committee may determine.

11. A district committee shall consist of such number of members, whether or not members of the County Agricultural Executive Committee by which the district committee are established, as the County Agricultural Executive Committee may determine, and the members of a district committee shall be appointed by the County Agricultural Executive Committee and hold office for such period, determinable in such circumstances, as may be fixed by the County Agricultural Executive Committee.

12. A County Agricultural Executive Committee, sub-committee or district committee shall have power to fix and regulate their own procedure, including power to determine the number of members necessary to form a quorum.

Disqualifications for Appointment

19.—(1) A person shall be disqualified for being appointed or being a member of the Commission or Sub-Commission or of a County Agricultural Executive Committee, sub-committee or district committee, or a member of or assessor to an Agricultural Land Tribunal, so long as he is a member of the Commons House of Parliament.

(2) A person shall be disqualified for being appointed or being a member of, or assessor to, an Agricultural Land Tribunal so long as he is a member of any other body mentioned in the last foregoing sub-paragraph.

Validity of Acts

20.—(1) Any body mentioned in the last foregoing paragraph shall have power to act notwithstanding any vacancy among its members.

(2) All acts done at any meeting of any such body shall, notwithstanding that it is afterwards discovered that there was a defect in the appointment or disqualification of a person purporting to be a member thereof, be as valid as if that defect had not existed.

(3) Nothing in sub-paragraph (1) of this paragraph shall affect any requirement as to the number of members necessary to constitute a meeting of any such body as aforesaid.

Nomination of Persons for Appointment as Nominated Members

21.—(1) Where for the purpose of appointing nominated members for any county or area provision is made under the foregoing paragraphs of this Schedule for nomination by persons appearing to the Minister to be representative of the interests of farmers, workers or owners of land or by any other persons specified by order of the Minister under sub-paragraph (4) of paragraph 7 or sub-paragraph (1) of paragraph 17 of this Schedule, the said persons shall, on a requirement in that behalf being made by the Minister, submit to the Minister such number of names for the county or area in question as the Minister may require.

(2) If in relation to any appointment of a nominated member it appears to the Minister that any such persons have failed within a reasonable time to comply with any requirement under the last foregoing sub-paragraph, the Minister may notwithstanding anything in the foregoing provisions of this Schedule appoint as the nominated member in question such person as he thinks fit, being a person who appears to him to represent the interests of farmers, workers or owners, or being a person of such class as may be specified by such an order as aforesaid, as the case may be.

Officers and Servants

22.—(1) The Minister shall appoint a secretary and a chief technical officer to the Agricultural Land Commission and to the Welsh Agricultural Land Sub-Commission respectively, and the Commission and the Sub-Commission may appoint such other officers and servants as they may, with the approval of the Minister and the Treasury, determine; and the Minister may pay to the officers and servants of the Commission and the Sub-Commission such salaries, wages and allowances as he may with the approval of the Treasury determine.

(2) The Minister shall attach to County Agricultural Executive Committees and sub-committees thereof and to district committees and Agricultural Land Tribunals such officers and servants of the Ministry as he may with the approval of the Treasury determine to be required for providing the committees and tribunals with the necessary officers and servants.

(3) The Commission or the Sub-Commission may employ such agents as they consider desirable for the discharge of their functions, and may pay to agents employed by them such remuneration as they may, with the approval of the Minister and the Treasury, determine.

Remuneration and Expenses

23.—(1) The Minister may pay to members of the Commission, the Sub-Commission and Agricultural Land Tribunals such remuneration (whether by way of salaries or of fees) as he may with the approval of the Treasury determine.

(2) The Minister may pay to the members of any body mentioned in paragraph 19 of this Schedule and to the assessors to Agricultural Land Tribunals such allowances as he may with the approval of the Treasury determine.

(3) The expenses of any body mentioned in paragraph 19 of this Schedule shall be defrayed by the Minister.

Proof of Instruments

24. Any document purporting to be a document duly executed or issued under the seal of the Commission or on behalf of any such body as aforesaid shall, until the contrary is proved, be deemed to be a document so executed or issued, as the case may be. [56]

TENTH SCHEDULE

Section 71

COMBINATION OF COUNTIES FOR PURPOSES OF AGRICULTURAL EXECUTIVE COMMITTEES

1. Before making an order under subsection (2) of section seventy-one of the Act the Minister shall consult with such persons as appear to him to represent the interests of farmers, workers employed in agriculture, and owners of agricultural land, and with the councils of the counties concerned.

2.—(1) Any order under the said subsection (2) shall be laid before Parliament forthwith after being made, and if either House of Parliament within a period of forty days beginning with the day on which any such order is laid before it resolves that an Address be presented to His Majesty praying that the order be annulled, no further proceedings shall be taken thereunder after the date of the resolution, and His Majesty may by Order in Council revoke the order, so, however, that any such resolution and revocation shall be without prejudice to the validity of anything previously done under the order or to the making of a new order.

(2) In reckoning any such period of forty days as aforesaid, no account shall be taken of any time during which Parliament is dissolved or prorogued, or during which both Houses are adjourned for more than four days.

3. An order under the said subsection (2) may contain such incidental and supplemental provisions as appear to the Minister expedient for the purposes of the order, and in particular may provide for the transfer to any County Agricultural Executive Committee established in pursuance of the order of any property, rights or liabilities of any such Committee superseded by the Committee so established, and for the carrying on and completion by any such Committee so established of anything begun by any such Committee so superseded. [57]

CASES

Agriculture—Agricultural holding—Compensation for disturbance—Tenant quitting holding "in consequence of" notice to quit—Notice to quit—Tenant refusing to leave—Judgment for possession—Jurisdiction of High Court to hear special case—Agricultural Holdings Act, 1923 (c. 9), s. 12 (1), Sched. II, r. 10.

By s. 12 (1) of the Agricultural Holdings Act, 1923: "Where the tenancy of a holding terminates by reason of a notice to quit given by the landlord, and in consequence of such notice the tenant quits the holding, then . . . compensation for the disturbance shall be payable by the landlord to the tenant in accordance with the provisions of this section . . ."

The landlords served on the tenants a notice to quit their holding which expired on October 11, 1942. The tenants disputed the validity of the notice and failed to give up possession. On October 13, 1942, the landlords issued a writ in the High Court, and, by a judgment of OLIVER, J., dated June 7, 1943, the tenants were ordered to give up possession. The judgment directed that, in default of settlement by valuers, the tenants' claim for compensation for disturbance under s. 12 of the Act of 1923 should be submitted to arbitration. The matter went to arbitration, and, by what purported to be an award in the form of a Special Case, there was submitted for the opinion of the High Court the question whether the tenants were entitled to compensation for disturbance. If they were, the arbitrator awarded them an agreed sum:—

Held: (i) the arbitrator had jurisdiction to act and the court had jurisdiction to deal with the Special Case.

Lowther v. Clifford, [1927] 1 K. B. 130, followed.

(ii) the question whether or not a tenant, who held over for any period after the expiration of a notice to quit and subsequently quitted the holding, could be said to have quitted the holding "in consequence of" the notice within the meaning of s. 12 (1) of the Act was a question of fact on which the finding of an arbitrator under the Act was conclusive, provided there was evidence to support it; where, as in the present case, the tenant disputed the validity of the notice and the court decided against him and he thereupon quitted the holding, the inevitable inference would be that he had done so in consequence of the notice, and a tenant who quitted in consequence of the notice, even though he did so after an interval of time, must be regarded as a "tenant" within s. 12 (1) of a "holding" within the sub-section; and, therefore, the tenants were entitled to compensation.

NATIONAL SERVICE ACT, 1947

PRELIMINARY NOTE

The principal object of the National Service Acts, 1939 to 1946 (see note to s. 1, infra), was to apply a system of compulsory recruitment to the Armed Forces. However, in April, 1941, at a time when the nation was in extreme need of whole-time Civil Defence personnel, particularly in the Fire Service, Parliament extended the provisions of the National Service (Armed Forces) Act, 1939 (32 Halsbury's Statutes 1041), to cover compulsory enrolment for Civil Defence Forces declared to be such by or under the National Service Act, 1941, ss. 1–3 (34 Halsbury's Statutes 270 et seq.).

Fairly wide use of this power was made, chiefly in relation to men of military age who expressed a desire to “opt” for Civil Defence, but when the need for whole-time Civil Defence personnel diminished in the closing stages of the war these provisions of the National Service Act, 1941, were no longer utilised. On the general tidying-up effected by the present Act compulsory enrolment for Civil Defence is formally to be brought to an end as from January 1, 1949.

For other relevant sections of the Act, see the titles EDUCATION and OFFICERS OF LOCAL AUTHORITIES, post. [64]

An Act to confine the operation of the National Service Acts to male British subjects and to service in the armed forces of the Crown; to make provision as to the terms and conditions of such service and as to the period for which those Acts shall continue in operation; and for purposes connected with the matters aforesaid. [65] [18th July, 1947.]

1. Liability to be called up for service.—(1) Subject to the provisions of the National Service Acts, 1939 to 1946, and this Act (which Acts are hereinafter collectively referred to as the National Service Acts), every male British subject who has attained the age of eighteen years and has not attained the age of twenty-six years and is ordinarily resident in Great Britain shall, by virtue of this Act, be liable to be called upon to serve in the armed forces of the Crown for two terms of service that is to say—

(a) a term of whole-time service, that is to say, service in the regular forces for a period of twelve months or such shorter period as His Majesty may by Order in Council appoint; and

(b) a term of part-time service as defined by this Act;

and save as aforesaid no person shall be liable to be called up for service under the National Service Acts. [66]

(2) The provisions of the National Service Acts, 1939 to 1946, as amended by this Act shall apply with respect to a person liable to be called up for service by virtue of this Act and to a person called up thereunder; and references in those Acts to a person liable to be called up for service under the National Service (Armed Forces) Act, 1939 (in this Act referred to as "the principal Act") and to a person called up therefor shall be construed accordingly. [67]

National Service Acts.—The National Service Acts, 1939 to 1946, are the National Service (Armed Forces) Act, 1939 (32 Halsbury's Statutes 1041), referred to in the present Act as "the principal Act," the National Service (Armed Forces) Act, 1940 (33 Halsbury's Statutes 465), the National Service Act, 1941 (34 Halsbury's Statutes 270), the National Service (No. 2) Act, 1941 (34 Halsbury's Statutes 286), the National Service Act, 1942 (35 Halsbury's Statutes 231) and the National Service (Release of Conscientious Objectors) Act, 1946 (39 Halsbury's Statutes 775).

Liability to call-up.—This section, which takes effect from January 1, 1949, makes provision for compulsory call-up to the Forces to continue after 1948. Note, however, the phrase "save as aforesaid no person shall be liable to be called up for service under the National Service Acts." This means that, as from the beginning of 1949, persons may not be compulsorily enrolled for Civil Defence nor may women be conscripted for the Women's Services.

28. Commencement, citation and repeal.—(1) This Act shall, except as otherwise expressly provided therein, come into force on the first day of January, nineteen hundred and forty-nine. [68]

(2) This Act may be cited as the National Service Act, 1947; and the National Service Acts, 1939 to 1946, and this Act may be cited together as the National Service Acts, 1939 to 1947. [69]

(3) The Acts specified in the Fifth Schedule to this Act are hereby repealed to the extent specified in the third column of that Schedule. [70]

National Service Acts, 1939 to 1946.—See note to s. 1, supra.

Acts specified in the Fifth Schedule.—See infra. These include the sections of the National Service Act, 1941 (34 Halsbury's Statutes 270), relating to compulsory enrolment for Civil Defence, which, as from January 1, 1949, is brought to an end.

ORDERS, CIRCULARS AND MEMORANDA

WAR DAMAGE (INCREASE OF VALUE PAYMENTS) ORDER, 1947

S. R. & O., 1947, No. 390

March 4, 1947

The Treasury, in exercise of the power conferred upon them by sub-section (1) of Section 11 of the War Damage Act, 1943, hereby make the following Order :—

1.—(1) This Order may be cited as the War Damage (Increase of Value Payments) Order, 1947.

(2) The Interpretation Act, 1889, applies to the interpretation of this Order as it applies to the interpretation of an Act of Parliament. [72]

2. In this Order

(a) " the Act " means the War Damage Act, 1943 ;

(b) " the Commission " means the War Damage Commission. [73]

3. In any case in which a value payment is payable under the following provisions of the Act, that is to say—

(a) sub-section (1) of Section 7 (which makes general provision as to the cases in which payments of cost of works and value payments respectively are to be made) ;

(b) paragraph (b) of Section 15 (which provides for the payments to be made where making good total loss is expedient for the benefit of other land) ; and the amount thereof shall be increased by a sum equal to forty-five per cent. of the amount computed as provided by the Act. [74]

(c) paragraph (b) of sub-section (3) of Section 20 (which provides for the payments to be made for the purpose of giving effect to the provisions for securing conformity with planning requirements, etc.)

4. In any case in which a value payment is payable under the following provisions of the Act, that is to say :—

(a) Section 14 (which provides for the payments to be made when partially damaged land is compulsorily acquired) ;

(b) paragraph (b) of sub-section (2) of the said Section 20.

the amount thereof shall be increased by a sum equal to sixty per cent. of the amount computed as provided by the Act. [75]

5. In any case in which a value payment is payable under the provisions of Section 13 of the Act (which provides for the payments to be made where partial damage to land is not made good) the amount mentioned in paragraph (b) of sub-section (1) as the maximum amount which the Commission may pay in respect of the damage so far as not made good shall be increased by a sum equal to sixty per cent. thereof. [76]

EXPLANATORY NOTE

(This Note is not part of the Order, but is intended to indicate its general purport)

The purpose of the Order is to provide for the increase of the amount of value payments to be paid under the War Damage Act, 1943. In cases where the payment is converted from a cost of works payment to a value payment by reason of the land being compulsorily purchased or of a requirement that the damage should not be made good, the increase is 60 per cent. In cases in which partial damage is not made good and the Commission have a discretion within a defined maximum as to the amount to be paid in respect of the value payment, the maximum is increased to 60 per cent. In all other cases the increase is 45 per cent.

ESSENTIAL WORK (RECALL TO CIVIL DEFENCE)
(REVOCATION) ORDER, 1947

May 6, 1947

The Minister of Labour and National Service by virtue of the powers conferred on him by Regulation 58A of the Defence (General) Regulations, 1939, as extended by the Supplies and Services (Transitional Powers) Act, 1945, and the Orders in Council made thereunder, hereby makes the following Order:—

1. This Order may be cited as the Essential Work (Recall to Civil Defence) (Revocation) Order, 1947, and shall come into force on the 14th May, 1947. [77]

2. The Essential Work (Recall to Civil Defence) Order, 1942 (which makes provision for persons to leave employment in essential work without permission and without giving notice when required to return to employment in Civil Defence) is hereby revoked. [78]

* * * * *

WAR DAMAGE (VALUE PAYMENT) (TIME OF PAYMENT) REGULATIONS, 1947

July 23, 1947

The Treasury, in exercise of the power conferred upon them by paragraph (b) of sub-section (1) of Section 22 of the War Damage Act, 1943, hereby make the following Regulations:—

1.—(1) These Regulations may be cited as the War Damage (Value Payment) (Time of Payment) Regulations, 1947.

(2) The Interpretation Act, 1889, applies to the interpretation of these Regulations as it applies to the interpretation of an Act of Parliament. [79]

2. The time when payments may be made under Part I of the War Damage Act, 1943, in the case of value payments and of payments under Section Eighteen of the said Act shall commence on the 10th day of November, 1947. [80]

EXPLANATORY NOTE

(This Note is not part of the Regulations, but is intended to indicate their general purport)

The purpose of these Regulations is to fix the 10th November 1947 as the date on which payment of value payments under Part I of the War Damage Act, 1943, can begin.

SALE OF FOOD (LOCAL AUTHORITIES AND PUBLIC AIR RAID SHELTERS) REVOCATION ORDER, 1947

August 5, 1947

In exercise of the powers conferred upon him by Regulations 54B and 55 of the Defence (General) Regulations, 1939, as having effect by virtue of the Supplies and Services (Transitional Powers) Act, 1945, and of all other powers him enabling, the Minister of Food hereby makes the following Order :—

1. The Orders and Directions specified in the Schedule to this Order are hereby revoked, but without prejudice to any proceedings in respect of any contravention thereof. [81]

2. This Order shall come into force on the 11th day of August, 1947, and may be cited as the Sale of Food (Local Authorities and Public Air Raid Shelters) Revocation Order, 1947. [82]

STATUTES

AGRICULTURE ACT, 1947

(10 &amp; 11 Geo. 6, c. 48)

PRELIMINARY NOTE

Part IV of the Agriculture Act, 1947, with which this Preliminary Note is concerned, deals with the subject of smallholdings. It repeals, with some small exceptions, the whole of the Small Holdings and Allotments Acts, 1908 to 1931 (see note to s. 49), so far as they relate to smallholdings, and substitutes therefor a new legislative code embodying a change of policy in the general approach to the subject of the provision of smallholdings.

This Part of the Act, which applies only to England and Wales (see s. 111 (3)), does not come into immediate operation but is to be brought into operation by Order in Council under s. 111 (2). Up to the time of going to press no such Order in Council had been made for that purpose.

In the past, smallholdings have been provided for a variety of reasons which have been based on social rather than on agricultural considerations, a typical example being the settlement of unemployed persons on the land. Experience has shown, however, that a person without agricultural experience or training seldom makes a success of a smallholding, and, accordingly, the policy of the present legislation is that smallholdings are to be let only to people with agricultural experience for the purpose of giving them an opportunity to become farmers on their own account. Thus, the opportunity to obtain smallholdings will, generally speaking, be limited to farm workers, who could otherwise have little prospect of advancement beyond the status of farm labourer, a state of affairs which has long meant a small intake of man-power into the agricultural industry and a consequent loss of production.

Under Part IV of the Act it is the duty of every county council (other than the London County Council) to provide at a full fair rent land for smallholdings, but only to the extent to which (1) a demand for such smallholdings exists in the county; (2) suitable land is obtainable; and (3) the smallholdings can be provided without detriment to the general interests of agriculture, that is to say, the provision of smallholdings must be subordinated to general agricultural policy.

Though as a general rule county councils alone are to be smallholdings authorities under the Act (s. 47), provision is made whereby the Minister, on application by a county borough council, may by direction constitute it a smallholdings authority (s. 65), but there is no obligation on county borough councils to apply.

Normally there will be little difficulty in making land available for smallholdings, as wide powers of acquisition, by compulsory purchase or hiring if need be (ss. 48 (1), 64 (1)), are given to smallholdings authorities, but the consent of the Minister is necessary to the exercise of these powers.

Smallholdings, which are redefined by s. 66 of the Act, can now only be let, and not sold to smallholders by means of terminable annuities as was previously possible; so that new smallholders, while they remain such, will in future always be tenant-farmers. Up to 75 per cent. of the capital required for working smallholdings may be advanced by the Minister by way of loan (s. 54 (1)).

Smallholdings authorities are empowered to provide and maintain fixed equipment on their smallholdings and to carry out improvements thereon (s. 49), with wide general powers of management (s. 51). Smallholdings are to be managed in accordance with rules of good estate management (see title AGRICULTURE, ante), with powers of enforcement vested in the Minister in default (s. 53). Great importance is attached to the encouragement of co-operative farming, for which special provision is made by ss. 51 (3), 52 (4), (5) and 54 (2). Where a smallholdings authority have purchased land for smallholdings they are, by s. 67 and Sched. VIII, to apply to be registered as proprietors under the Land Registration Act, 1925 (15 Halsbury's Statutes 434).

Unless covered by a general direction, smallholdings authorities must prepare schemes for submission to the Minister and, when approved by him, must develop their land for use as smallholdings in accordance therewith (s. 50).

Smallholdings committees are to be set up by smallholdings authorities holding or proposing to acquire land for smallholdings, and much of the detailed work of the authorities will be done by such committees to whom the authorities' powers and duties (other than those for raising rates and borrowing money) may be delegated (s. 61). Full records of smallholdings are to be kept (s. 62) and annual reports submitted (s. 63).

Land may be acquired or designated by the Minister himself for use as smallholdings, subject to the conditions of s. 56 or s. 57, and in general wide powers of control are exercisable by the central administration.

Subsidiary sections include provisions (ss. 58 and 59) for the Small Holdings and Allotments Account maintained under s. 51 of the Small Holdings and Allotments Act, 1908 (1 Halsbury's Statutes 274) to be wound up, and for financial assistance to be given by the Government to smallholdings authorities towards estimated loss. ## PART IV

SMALLHOLDINGS

Provision of Smallholdings

47. Duty of county councils to provide smallholdings.—(1) For the purpose of affording to persons with agricultural experience an opportunity of becoming farmers on their own account, it shall be the duty of every county council, other than the London County Council, to provide smallholdings, for letting to such persons as aforesaid, to the extent to which a demand therefor is indicated by applications received by the council, suitable land can be obtained for the purpose and the smallholdings can be provided without detriment to the general interests of agriculture. [86]

(2) Any council on whom the said duty is imposed is in this Act referred to as a "smallholdings authority". [87]

Effect of section.—This section places on every county council (except the London County Council) a duty to provide smallholdings for letting to persons with agricultural experience who desire to become farmers on their own account. It replaces s. 1 of the Small Holdings and Allotments Act, 1926 (1 Halsbury's Statutes 323), which section placed the duty of providing small holdings on county borough councils as well as on county councils (see s. 61 (1) of the Small Holdings and Allotments Act, 1908; 1 Halsbury's Statutes 278). Now, by s. 65 (1), post, the duty imposed on county councils by this section may, by direction of the Minister on the application of a county borough council, be imposed on such county borough council. When no direction is in force under s. 65, but land is held by a county borough council for the purposes of smallholdings, this section is applied to that council as if it conferred on the council a power and not a duty to provide smallholdings (see s. 65 (3), (4), post).

With agricultural experience.—This qualification indicates a change of policy in the general approach to smallholdings in the interests of agriculture as a whole and also of the smallholder himself in that he can be more certain of making a success of his smallholding. No such experience was necessarily required under the Small Holdings and Allotments Act, 1926, s. 1 (1 Halsbury's Statutes 323), or the Agricultural Land (Utilisation) Act, 1931, s. 5 (24 Halsbury's Statutes 53).

County councils.—It was possible, under s. 9 of the Small Holdings and Allotments Act, 1926 (1 Halsbury's Statutes 329), for a county council to delegate the exercise of its powers, or any of them, in respect of the acquisition, adaptation and management of small holdings to the council of a borough or urban or rural district. No such delegation is possible under this Act. As to county borough councils, see supra.

Smallholdings.—A smallholding is defined for the purposes of this Act by s. 66, post.

Letting.—The duty extends only to letting land for smallholdings, unlike the provisions of s. 1 of the Small Holdings and Allotments Act, 1926 (1 Halsbury's Statutes 323), which provided also for sale to the smallholder.

Suitable land.—The duty is limited to the provision of suitable land. The smallholdings authority is not confined within its own boundaries in the acquisition of suitable land (see s. 48 (3), post).

Without detriment to the general interests of agriculture.—Smallholdings policy requires that the provision of smallholdings should be determined by agricultural considerations rather than by considerations of social policy, as in the past. Consequently, this requirement will prevent the provision of smallholdings out of land which is already being worked economically as part of a larger agricultural holding.

Any council.—This will be a county council, or, under s. 65, post, a county borough council.

48. Acquisition by smallholdings authority of land for smallholdings.—

(1) A smallholdings authority shall have power, if so authorised by the Minister, to acquire land for the purposes of smallholdings by agreement, or by compulsory purchase or hiring in accordance with the provisions of this Act in that behalf. [88]

(2) In deciding whether to authorise any acquisition of land under this section, the Minister shall have regard, among other things, to the suitability of the land for the purpose for which it is proposed to be acquired, the probable cost of the acquisition thereof and the general interests of agriculture. [89]

(3) Before a smallholdings authority proceed to acquire under this section land outside their area, they shall consult with the council of the county or county borough in whose area the land is situated. [90]

(4) Where a smallholdings authority have been authorised to acquire land for the purposes of smallholdings they shall not, except where in special circumstances it appears to them requisite so to do, exercise their powers of acquisition so as to require any person farming the land to give up his occupation of the land before such time as the authority are satisfied that the land is required, and can be adapted, for the purposes of smallholdings. [91]

(5) Any person authorised by a smallholdings authority in that behalf shall have power at all reasonable times to enter on and inspect any land for the purpose of ascertaining whether the land is suitable for acquisition by the authority under this section. [92]

Effect of section.—This section empowers a smallholdings authority to acquire land for smallholdings by agreement, or by compulsory purchase or hiring, subject to the Minister's approval. Land may also be acquired outside the authority's own area, but only after consultation with the council of the county or county borough in whose area the land is situated. When land authorised to be acquired is being farmed by the occupier, the authority must not require him to give up his occupation until the land is actually required and can be adapted for the purposes of smallholdings. The section gives a power of entry on land to persons authorised by the smallholdings authority.

The Minister.—The Minister of Agriculture and Fisheries.

In accordance with the provisions of this Act.—The provisions relating to the compulsory purchase of land are contained in s. 92, and those relating to compulsory hiring in ss. 93 and 94; see title AGRICULTURE, ante. Acquisition of land by a council for the provision of smallholdings was previously regulated by s. 4 of the Small Holdings and Allotments Act, 1926 (1 Halsbury's Statutes 324), and ss. 38–43 of the Small Holdings and Allotments Act, 1908 (1 Halsbury's Statutes 265), as amended by the Acquisition of Land (Authorisation Procedure) Act, 1946, s. 6 and Sched. IV (39 Halsbury's Statutes 60).

Cost of acquisition.—Provision is made by s. 58, post, for contributions to be made by the Minister to losses incurred by smallholdings authorities in carrying out their duties under this Part of the Act.

General interests of agriculture.—See note to s. 47, ante.

Farming.—This expression includes the carrying on in relation to the land of any agricultural activity (s. 109 (5)).

Definitions.—For definition of "smallholdings authority," see s. 47, ante; and for that of "smallholdings," see s. 66, post.

49. Power of smallholdings authority to provide fixed equipment, etc.—

(1) A smallholdings authority shall have power to provide, improve, maintain and repair fixed equipment on land held by the authority for the purposes of smallholdings and to carry out any other improvements on or for the benefit of any such land, and to enter into an agreement with a tenant of any such land for the provision, improvement, maintenance, repair or carrying out thereof by the tenant on such terms as may be specified in the agreement. [93]

(2) References in this Part of this Act to land held by an authority for the purposes of smallholdings shall be construed as including references to land any interest in which is so held, other than a right to take possession arising under the provisions of the Small Holdings and Allotments Acts, 1908 to 1931. [94]

Effect of section.—This section gives smallholdings authorities power to provide, improve, maintain and repair fixed equipment on land held for smallholdings, to carry out improvements on or for the benefit of such land and to enter into agreements with tenants for the undertaking or carrying out of such matters by the tenants themselves.

Fixed equipment.—For the definition of this expression for the purposes of this Act, see s. 109 (3), post. By s. 14 of the Small Holdings and Allotments Act, 1926 (1 Halsbury's Statutes 330), councils had power to make advances for the purposes of constructing, altering or adapting houses and farm buildings on smallholdings, but no power to carry out such improvements themselves.

Right to take possession.—By s. 6 of the Small Holdings and Allotments Act, 1926 (1 Halsbury's Statutes 325), councils have the right to take possession of smallholdings sold under that Act, so long as the holdings remain charged with terminable annuities should a breach of the conditions of holding occur. This s. 6 is continued in operation with modifications in relation to smallholdings sold or let before the commencement of this Part of this Act, by s. 67 (2) and Sched. VIII, post.

Small Holdings and Allotments Acts, 1908 to 1931.—This collective title was given by the Agricultural Land (Utilisation) Act, 1931, s. 25 (1) (24 Halsbury's Statutes 66), to the following Acts:—Small Holdings and Allotments Act, 1908 (1 Halsbury's Statutes 257); Small Holdings Act, 1910 (10 Edw. 7 & 1 Geo. 5, c. 34) (repealed); Land Settlement (Facilities) Act, 1919 (1 Halsbury's Statutes 288) (so much of this Act as amends the 1908 and 1910 Acts); Small Holdings and Allotments Act, 1926 (1 Halsbury's Statutes 322), and Agricultural Land (Utilisation) Act, 1931, Part II (24 Halsbury's Statutes 53 et seq.).

Definitions.—For definition of "smallholdings authority," see s. 47, ante; and for that of "smallholdings," see s. 66, post.

50. Lay-out and equipment of smallholdings to be carried out in accordance with scheme approved by Minister.—(1) Except in so far as may be allowed by general directions of the Minister under this subsection, a smallholdings authority shall not proceed with the creation and equipment of smallholdings, with the alteration of the size or lay-out of existing smallholdings or the provision or improvement of fixed equipment thereon, or otherwise with the erection of buildings or the carrying out of work on land held by the authority for the purposes of smallholdings, except in accordance with the provisions of a scheme made by the authority and submitted to the Minister and approved by him. [95]

(2) Any such scheme shall contain such particulars as to—

- (a) nature, size and lay-out of smallholdings,
- (b) provision or improvement of fixed equipment,
- (c) total estimated cost of the proposals, and
- (d) such other matters as the Minister may either generally or in any particular case direct, as may be reasonably necessary for informing the Minister as to the proposals to which the scheme relates, and shall be in such form as the Minister may so direct. [96]

(3) Any scheme made and approved under this section may be varied by a subsequent scheme so made and approved. [97]

(4) Where it appears to the Minister that any existing smallholdings provided by a smallholdings authority are of less or greater extent than is likely to be required for the provision of a reasonable livelihood or that in the case of any such smallholdings as aforesaid it is expedient so to do in the interests of efficient farming, he may direct that the authority shall alter the size or lay-out of the smallholdings in such manner as may be specified in the direction. [98]

Effect of section.—This section provides for ministerial control over the lay-out and equipment of smallholdings by the smallholdings authority. Except in so far as may be allowed by general directions of the Minister under sub-s. (1), no action may be taken by a smallholdings authority on the matters laid down in that sub-section unless incorporated in a scheme approved by the Minister. Sub-s. (2) details the particulars to be included in any scheme submitted to the Minister. By sub-s. (4) the Minister may require alterations in the lay-out or size of existing smallholdings in the interests of efficient farming.

General directions.—The provision for the making of general directions is intended to obviate the necessity of smallholdings authorities having to seek the formal approval of the Minister for minor improvements and adjustments in lay-out.

The Minister.—The Minister of Agriculture and Fisheries.

Definitions.—For definition of "smallholdings authority," see s. 47, ante; and for that of "smallholdings," see s. 66, post. As to "fixed equipment," see s. 109 (3), post.

Management of Authorities' Smallholdings

51. General powers of smallholdings authority.—(1) The powers of a smallholdings authority shall, subject to the provisions of this Part of this Act, include all powers required by the authority for the management of land for the time being held by the authority for the purposes of smallholdings. [99]

(2) A smallholdings authority shall have power, for the benefit of the occupiers of smallholdings provided by the authority, to further the formation of bodies of persons, whether corporate or unincorporated, having for their object or one of their objects the promotion through co-operative methods of efficiency in the conduct of smallholdings, and to assist the carrying on and extension of the activities of such bodies. [100]

(3) A smallholdings authority shall have power—

(a) to such extent as appears to the authority expedient for the purpose of assisting the conduct of smallholdings provided by the authority or of promoting co-operative schemes for the conduct thereof, to acquire by purchase or hiring, and to sell or let on such terms as may be decided by the authority, machinery and other equipment, live or dead stock, seeds, fertilisers and any other requisites, and to provide on such terms as aforesaid services; and

(b) to carry out arrangements made by the authority, for the purposes of such schemes as aforesaid, for the disposal by the authority of the produce of smallholdings provided by them. [101]

(4) It is hereby declared that the provisions of section forty-nine of this Act and the foregoing provisions of this section with respect to the powers of smallholdings authorities relate only to their capacity as corporations; and nothing in those provisions shall be construed as authorising any act or omission on the part of a smallholdings authority which is actionable at the suit of any person on any ground other than the limitation of their said capacity. [102]

Effect of section.—This section gives to smallholdings authorities, as corporations, general powers of management of the land they hold for the purposes of smallholdings. It also gives special powers of furthering the formation of co-operative bodies for the efficient conduct of smallholdings, of assisting the conduct of smallholdings by providing equipment and other requisites, and of carrying out schemes for the disposal of produce. Sub-s. (4) declares that smallholdings authorities are in no specially privileged position in carrying out their powers under s. 49 and this section. The powers given by these sections extend the authorities' capacity as corporations, but in other respects, in the exercise of those powers, the authorities are in the same position as ordinary individuals.

Bodies of persons.—By s. 49 of the Small Holdings and Allotments Act, 1908 (1 Halsbury's Statutes 272), local authorities had similar power to that given by this section in promoting the formation of societies working on a co-operative basis, except that the power to make grants or loans is now possessed by the Minister alone (see s. 54 (2), post).

Definitions.—For definition of "smallholdings authority," see s. 47, ante; and for that of "smallholdings," see s. 66, post. As to "livestock" and "produce," see s. 109 (3), post.

52. Letting of smallholdings.—(1) Smallholdings provided by a smallholdings authority shall be let to the persons by whom the smallholdings are to be farmed in accordance with the following provisions of this Part of this Act:

Provided that nothing in this section shall affect any letting in force at the commencement of this Part of this Act. [103]

(2) Every letting of a smallholding by the authority shall be at a full fair rent, that is to say, at such rent as a tenant might reasonably be expected to pay for the smallholding if let as such on the terms (other than terms as to rent) on which it is in fact let. [104]

(3) Subject to the provisions of the next following subsection,—

(a) a smallholdings authority shall not let a smallholding to any person unless they are satisfied that the said person has had sufficient agricultural experience to render it likely that he is or will become qualified to be a farmer on his own account; and

(b) in selecting persons to whom smallholdings are to be let preference shall be given, as between persons otherwise equally suitable, to applicants who at the time of the application are employed under a contract of service as agricultural workers or who under regulations made by the Minister are to be treated as if they were then so employed. [105]

(4) A smallholdings authority may with the approval of the Minister let a smallholding, or two or more smallholdings together, to persons proposing to farm the smallholding or smallholdings on a co-operative system, notwithstanding that all of the said persons have not had such experience as aforesaid, but before approving any letting under this subsection the Minister shall satisfy himself that the aggregate agricultural experience of the said persons is such as to render it likely that in co-operation they are or will become qualified to farm on their own account. [106]

(5) Where any of the persons applying for the letting to them of a smallholding under the last foregoing subsection is at the time of the application employed, or under paragraph (b) of subsection (3) of this section to be treated as employed, under a contract of service as an agricultural worker, the Minister may direct that all the said persons shall be treated for the purposes of the said paragraph (b) as if they were then so employed. [107]

(6) Where it appears to the Minister that a smallholdings authority is not complying with any requirement imposed by or under this Part of this Act as to the selection of tenants of smallholdings, the Minister may direct that until the direction is revoked no letting of a smallholding provided by the authority shall be made except to a person approved by the Minister, but the giving of such a direction shall not prejudice any right of the tenant under a letting made in contravention of the direction. [108]

(7) Notwithstanding anything in the foregoing provisions of this section or in section forty-seven of this Act, where land held by a smallholdings authority for the purposes of smallholdings is not for the time being required or adapted for use for those purposes, the authority may with the consent of the Minister let the land for such period and for such purpose as appears to them expedient, at the best rent which appears to the authority to be obtainable therefor for that purpose and on such other terms as they may determine. [109]

Effect of section.—This section lays down the rules governing the letting of smallholdings under this Part of the Act. Every letting is to be at a full fair rent, and tenants are to have sufficient agricultural experience to make it likely that the smallholdings will be successfully run. Lettings may, with the approval of the Minister, be made to two or more persons to work a smallholding, or two or more smallholdings together, on a co-operative system. In such a case it is the aggregate of the prospective tenants' agricultural experience to which regard is to be had in determining whether the letting should be made. In the selection of tenants preference is to be given to those already employed as agricultural workers, or such other persons as the Minister may by regulation direct are to be treated as if so employed. The Minister has power under sub-s. (6) to control lettings where it appears to him that the smallholdings authorities are not complying with the requirements of this Part of the Act. Sub-s. (7) authorises the temporary letting of surplus land.

Letting in force.—By s. 67 (2) and Sched. VIII, Part II, post, the provisions as to the sale and letting of smallholdings contained in ss. 5-7 of the Small Holdings and Allotments Act, 1926 (1 Halsbury's Statutes 325 et seq.), are continued in operation, with modifications, in relation to smallholdings sold or let before the commencement of this Part of the Act. The modifications in question prevent any further sale or letting, contrary to the provisions of this Part of the Act, from taking place under the continued provisions of the said ss. 5-7.

Commencement of this Part.—By s. 111 (2), this Part of the Act is to be brought into operation on a date to be appointed by Order in Council. Up to the time of going to press no such date had been appointed.

Full fair rent.—For the purposes of smallholdings under the Small Holdings and Allotments Acts, 1908 to 1931, the expression "full fair rent," in relation to smallholdings, is defined as "the rent which a tenant might reasonably be expected to pay for the holding if let as such and the landlord undertook to bear the cost of structural repairs" (see s. 2 (6) of the Small Holdings and Allotments Act, 1926; 1 Halsbury's Statutes 324). By s. 49 of the present Act, ante, smallholdings authorities are empowered to carry out such repairs or arrange for them to be carried out by the tenants. The rent, by sub-s. (2) of this section, is related to the terms of the actual letting of the smallholdings.

Agricultural experience.—See note to s. 47, ante.

Regulations.—S. 55 (1) (b), post, empowers the Minister to make regulations as to the selection of tenants. This power permits the Minister to direct that preference shall be given, equally with others, to persons, such as the sons of small farmers, who are to all intents and purposes in the same position as agricultural workers.

The Minister.—The Minister of Agriculture and Fisheries.

Co-operative system.—Smallholdings authorities have power under s. 51, ante, to promote and further co-operative schemes for the conduct of smallholdings, and by s. 54 (2), post, the Minister has power to make grants or loans to any co-operative societies having as one of their objects the promotion of efficiency in the conduct of smallholdings.

Definitions.—For definition of "smallholdings," see s. 60, post; and for that of "smallholdings authority," see s. 47, ante.

53. Duty of smallholdings authority to manage in accordance with rules of good estate management.—(1) Where it appears to the Minister that a smallholdings authority have in any respect failed to fulfil their responsibilities to manage in accordance with the rules of good estate management land held by them for the purposes of smallholdings, the Minister may direct that the authority shall within such time as may be specified in the direction carry out such work on the land as may be so specified, being work which in the opinion of the Minister is necessary to remedy the non-fulfilment of their said responsibilities. [110]

(2) If a smallholdings authority fail to comply with a direction under this section, any person authorised by the Minister in that behalf may enter on the land in question and carry out the work, and the reasonable cost of the carrying out thereof shall be recoverable by the Minister from the smallholdings authority. [111]

(3) Any dispute arising under the last foregoing subsection as to what is the reasonable cost of any work shall be determined by the arbitration of an arbitrator appointed in default of agreement by the President of the Royal Institution of Chartered Surveyors. [112]

(4) The provisions of Part II of this Act as to supervision orders and directions to secure good estate management shall not apply to the management by smallholdings authorities of land held by them for the purposes of smallholdings. [113]

Effect of section.—This section gives the Minister control over smallholdings authorities who fail to manage their smallholdings in accordance with the rules of good estate management. The Minister can give directions to such authorities without the necessity of a supervision order under s. 12 of the Act. If smallholdings authorities fail to comply with directions of the Minister under this section the Minister himself may cause the work to be carried out and may recover the cost from the authorities concerned. The default power given to the Minister by this section relates specifically to breach of duty on the part of the authorities in respect of their management of smallholdings; a general residuary power to act in default of smallholdings authorities is also given by s. 57, post.

The Minister.—The Minister of Agriculture and Fisheries.

Definitions.—For definition of "smallholdings authority," see s. 47, ante; and for that of "smallholdings," see s. 60, post.

54. Loans for smallholdings purposes.—(1) The Minister may make loans to provide working capital for a tenant or prospective tenant of a smallholding provided by a smallholdings authority, of an amount not exceeding three-quarters of the estimated aggregate working capital required for the proper working of the smallholding.

In this subsection the expression "working capital" includes sums payable by an incoming tenant in respect of compensation to an outgoing tenant. [114]

(2) The Minister may make grants or loans to any body of persons, whether corporate or unincorporated, having for its object or one of its objects the promotion through co-operative methods of efficiency in the conduct of smallholdings. [115]

(3) The powers of the Minister under this section shall be exercised in accordance with arrangements made by him with the approval of the Treasury. [116]

Effect of section.—This section empowers the Minister to make loans to tenants or prospective tenants up to a maximum of 75 per cent. of the working capital required for the proper working of their smallholdings, and also to make grants or loans to bodies of persons working on a co-operative basis. The arrangements made by the Minister for the exercise of his powers under this section are subject to Treasury approval.

Under this Act only the Minister has power to make loans for smallholdings purposes. Under the previously existing legislation, the local authority concerned had powers of making advances and grants to co-operative societies and of advancing money for the purchase and equipment of smallholdings (see s. 49 of the Small Holdings and Allotments Act, 1908 (1 Halsbury's Statutes 272), and ss. 13 and 14 of the Small Holdings and Allotments Act, 1926 (1 Halsbury's Statutes 329)). The said ss. 13 and 14 are continued in operation in relation to loans made before the commencement of Part IV of this Act (s. 67 (2) and Sched. VIII, Part II, post).

The Minister.—The Minister of Agriculture and Fisheries.

Definitions.—For definition of "smallholding," see s. 66, post; and for that of "smallholdings authority," see s. 47, ante. As to "body of persons," see s. 51, ante.

55. Supplementary provisions as to management of authorities' smallholdings.—(1) The Minister may make regulations as to—

- (a) the management of land held by smallholdings authorities for the purposes of smallholdings, including in particular the matters to be dealt with in agreements for the letting of smallholdings; and
- (b) the selection of tenants to whom smallholdings are to be let by a smallholdings authority. [117]

(2) In considering for the purposes of sections thirty and thirty-one of this Act whether the interest of a smallholdings authority has been prejudiced as mentioned in paragraph (c) of subsection (1) of the said section thirty, regard shall be had to the effect of the breach of a term or condition in question not only on the smallholding but also on the carrying out by the authority of its arrangements for the provision and conduct of smallholdings. [118]

Effect of section.—Sub-s. (1) of this section empowers the Minister to make regulations as to the management of smallholdings and the selection of tenants. Sub-s. (2) lays down that any breach of a tenancy agreement, on the part of a tenant, which prejudices the interest of a smallholdings authority shall be liable to give rise to loss of compensation for disturbance not only if individual damage is caused to the smallholding in question but also if irremediable damage is caused to the authority's arrangements for smallholdings.

Any such regulations are to be laid before Parliament, where they are to be subject to annulment by either House within forty days of being so laid (see s. 108 (1), title AGRICULTURE, ante).

The Minister.—The Minister of Agriculture and Fisheries.

Management.—For the powers and duties of management of smallholdings authorities, see ss. 51–53, ante.

Selection of tenants.—One of the subjects to be covered by regulations is the determination of persons to be treated as if employed under a contract of service as agricultural workers for receiving preferential treatment in the letting of smallholdings under s. 52 (3), (5), ante. Failure to comply with regulations as to the selection of tenants may give rise to a direction under sub-s. (6) of that section, ante.

S. 30.—This section lays down conditions for the payment to a tenant of compensation for disturbance. By sub-s. (1) thereof compensation is declared not to be payable where notice is given as the result of certain conditions arising. Sub-s. (1) (c) of the said s. 30 makes compensation for disturbance not payable if the holding has been materially and irremediably prejudiced by the breach by the tenant of any term or condition of the tenancy. To this is added, by sub-s. (2) of the present section, the additional necessity of considering whether the smallholdings authority's arrangements for the provision and conduct of its smallholdings have been materially and irremediably prejudiced by the breach.

S. 31.—This section places restrictions on the termination by notice of tenancies of holdings.

Definitions.—For definition of "smallholdings authority," see s. 47, ante; and for that of "smallholding," see s. 66, post.

Provision of Smallholdings by the Minister

56. Power of Minister to provide smallholdings.—(1) The Minister may provide smallholdings for letting to persons with previous agricultural experience with a view to affording such persons an opportunity of becoming farmers on their own account, and may acquire land for the purposes of smallholdings by compulsory purchase or hiring in accordance with the provisions of this Act in that behalf. [119]

(2) In relation to any land acquired under the last foregoing subsection, and to any other land designated by the Minister as being held by him for the purposes of smallholdings, the Minister may exercise the like powers, and shall be subject to the like obligations, as under sections forty-nine, fifty-one and fifty-two of this Act are exercisable by or incumbent on a smallholdings authority. [120]

(3) Subject to the provisions of section fifty-two of this Act and the last foregoing subsection, nothing in this Part of this Act shall affect the operation, in relation to land designated as aforesaid, of the provisions of any enactment or instrument requiring preference to be given to persons who have served in the armed forces of the Crown during any war to which the Termination of the Present War (Definition) Act, 1918, applied. [121]

(4) Section fifty-four of this Act shall apply in relation to smallholdings provided by the Minister as it applies in relation to smallholdings provided by a smallholdings authority, and subsection (2) of section fifty-five of this Act shall so apply with the substitution for references to a smallholdings authority of references to the Minister. [122]

Effect of section.—This section empowers the Minister to provide smallholdings. In relation to any land which he acquires either by agreement or compulsorily under this section or which he designates as being held by him for the purposes of smallholdings the Minister has the same powers as are granted to a smallholdings authority by ss. 49, 51, 52, ante. Letting of land acquired for the purposes of this section will be in accordance with s. 52, ante, but when land is designated under sub-s. (2) and is land acquired for providing holdings for ex-servicemen of the First World War, the existing provisions as to preferential rights for such ex-servicemen are not affected, subject, however, to the powers of the Minister to make regulations as to the selection of tenants.

The Minister.—The Minister of Agriculture and Fisheries.

Previous agricultural experience.—See note to s. 47, ante.

Provisions of this Act.—For provisions as to compulsory purchase and hiring, see ss. 92-97, title AGRICULTURE, ante.

Provisions of any enactment.—Preference in the selection of persons to be settled on land acquired by the Minister under the Small Holding Colonies Act, 1916 (1 Halsbury's Statutes 284) is, by that Act, s. 1 (3), to be given to persons who have served in the Armed Forces in the First World War.

57. Default powers of Minister.—(1) Without prejudice to the provisions of the last foregoing section, where the Minister is satisfied that the functions of a smallholdings authority are not being satisfactorily exercised by the authority, the Minister may in any case where no power to give directions in that behalf is otherwise conferred on him by this Part of this Act direct that the authority shall exercise any of their functions in such manner as may be specified in the direction, or may by order transfer to himself such of the functions of the authority (including the expenditure of money whether on revenue or on capital account) as may be specified in the order. [123]

(2) Before—

- (a) making an order under the last foregoing subsection, or
- (b) coming to a decision on any application made by a smallholdings authority for the revocation of such an order relating to them, being an application made not earlier than twelve months after the making of the order or of any previous application for the revocation thereof, the Minister shall give to the smallholdings authority in question an opportunity of making representations to him and shall take into consideration any representations made and, if the authority so requires, afford to the authority an opportunity of being heard by a person appointed by the Minister for the purpose. [124]

(3) Where the Minister makes an order under subsection (1) of this section, any exercise of the functions conferred on him by the order shall have effect as if he were an agent of the authority duly authorised in that behalf, but—

- (a) any expenses incurred by the Minister in the exercise of the said functions shall be defrayed in the first instance by the Minister ;
- (b) the Minister shall certify, as respects such successive periods as he may determine, the amount of the expenses so incurred in each such period and the amount of any receipts of the Minister in each such period from the exercise of the said functions, and the difference between the said amounts, as certified by the Minister, shall be recoverable by him from the authority or payable by him to the authority, as the case may require. [125]

(4) An order varying or revoking an order under subsection (1) of this section may contain such provision with respect to the transfer, vesting and discharge of any property or liabilities acquired or incurred by the Minister in the exercise of any of the functions to which the order varied or revoked relates as appears to the Minister expedient for the purposes of the varying or revoking order. [126]

Effect of section.—This section gives the Minister power, when he is satisfied that smallholdings authorities are not exercising their functions and he has no power other than relevant powers of direction under this Part of the Act, to direct the authorities to exercise their functions in a specified way ; or he may by order transfer all or any of their functions to himself. Smallholdings authorities have the right to make representations to the Minister before any such orders are made. They have a similar right of representation before the Minister decides upon applications by authorities for revocation of previous orders. If the Minister exercises any functions so taken over by him, he will do so as agent of the authority. Expenses incurred are, in the first instance, to be defrayed by the Minister, but the difference between expenditure and receipts over a period of time are recoverable from or payable to the smallholdings authority as the case may be.

The previously existing power of the Minister to act in default of local authorities arose under s. 9 of the Agricultural Land (Utilisation) Act, 1931 (24 Halsbury's Statutes 57), and was confined to cases where the authorities had, in the Minister's opinion, failed to provide sufficient smallholdings. On representations by the authorities that such was not the case, the Minister was obliged to hold a local inquiry.

The Minister.—The Minister of Agriculture and Fisheries.

Otherwise conferred.—See s. 50 (4) for directions affecting schemes ; s. 52 (6) for directions as to selection of tenants, and s. 53 (1) for directions as to good estate management.

Person appointed.—No officer or servant of a County Agricultural Executive Committee or district committee thereof is to be appointed to receive representations relating to land in the area of the committee (s. 104 (5)).

Definitions.—"Functions" includes powers and duties (s. 109 (3), post). For definition of "smallholdings authority," see s. 47, ante.

Financial Provisions

58. Contributions by Minister to losses incurred by smallholdings authorities.—(1) Where a smallholdings authority have after the commencement of this Part of this Act formulated proposals for the provision of smallholdings or for the laying out, alteration or equipment of smallholdings provided by the authority, and it appears to the authority that the proposals are likely to involve them in a loss, they may submit to the Minister estimates, in such form and containing such particulars as the Minister may prescribe, of the expenditure which the proposals will involve, whether on capital or revenue account, and of the receipts which will accrue from the proposals, whether by way of rent or otherwise. [127]

(2) Where estimates are submitted to the Minister under the last foregoing subsection, the Minister may approve the proposals and estimates either with or without modifications, and if the proposals are carried out as approved by the Minister, the Minister may, subject to such conditions as to records, certificates, audit and otherwise as he may with the approval of the Treasury prescribe, make or undertake to make contributions towards losses incurred by the smallholdings authority in the carrying out of the proposals. [128]

(3) Subject to the provisions of the next following subsection, contributions made by the Minister under this section to any authority shall be annual contributions not exceeding three-quarters of the amount by which in carrying out the proposals in question the authority's receipts in respect of the year for which each contribution is made, as estimated in the estimates approved under subsection (2) of this section, fall short of their expenditure in respect of the said year, as estimated as aforesaid :

Provided that in so far as the said expenditure consists of the payment of interest or sinking fund charges on moneys borrowed for the purpose of carrying out the proposals, the amount thereof shall be calculated for the purposes of this subsection by reference to the actual amount of the moneys so borrowed. [129]

(4) The Minister shall not make an annual contribution under this section for any year earlier than the first year in which in his opinion the proposals of the smallholdings authority have been brought into full operation ; but in respect of all such earlier years taken together the Minister may make to the authority a contribution not exceeding three-quarters of the amount by which the actual receipts of the authority in respect of those years in carrying out the proposals fall short of their actual expenditure in respect of those years in the carrying out thereof, the said expenditure being calculated, in so far as it consists of expenses of management, in such manner as the authority may with the approval of the Minister determine. [130]

(5) Where a smallholdings authority have submitted estimates under subsection (1) of this section in connection with any proposals, and the authority subsequently vary their proposals, the authority shall submit to the Minister such estimates in relation to the proposals as varied as are specified in subsection (1) of this section ; and—

(a) the foregoing provisions of this section shall apply, in relation to the making of contributions in respect of any period after the submission of the last-mentioned estimates, as if those estimates and the proposals as varied had been the original estimates and proposals of the authority ;

(b) the Minister may vary any agreement to make contributions made by him under this section accordingly. [131]

(6) Where the Minister is satisfied that a smallholdings authority has reasonably incurred expenses in connection with the preparation of such proposals and estimates as aforesaid, or in connection with preparations for the acquisition of land for the purposes of any such proposals, and the proposals are not carried out, the Minister may make to the authority a contribution towards the expenses of an amount not exceeding three-quarters thereof. [132]

(7) The Minister may with the approval of the Treasury make regulations for the purposes of the foregoing provisions of this section, and in particular such regulations—

(a) may make provision for treating the submission of a scheme which is approved under section fifty of this Act as if it were the submission of estimates under subsection (1) or subsection (5) of this section, and for withholding or reducing contributions where the approval of the Minister is not obtained under the said section fifty or where in any other respect a smallholdings authority do not comply with any requirement imposed on them by or under this Part of this Act in relation to smallholdings provided by them ;

(b) may empower the Minister, as a condition of consenting to the sale, letting or appropriation of any of the land to which estimates submitted under this section relate, to require the submission to him of revised estimates, and may provide for the adjustment of any contributions in accordance with revised estimates so submitted ;

- (c) may make provision as to the making of applications for the payment of contributions agreed to be made by the Minister under this section and as to the time at which payments of contributions under this section may be made. [133]

Effect of section.—This section enables smallholdings authorities expecting their proposals for the provision, laying out, alteration or equipment of smallholdings to result in loss to ask for contributions from the Minister, who may contribute not more than 75 per cent. of the estimated loss on the carrying out of the proposals. Contributions may also be made to expenses incurred in the preparation of proposals which are not, in fact, carried out (sub-s. (6)).

Commencement of this Part of this Act.—See note to s. 52, ante.

Proposals.—See s. 50, ante.

The Minister.—The Minister of Agriculture and Fisheries.

Payment of interest or sinking fund charges.—The amount of expenditure on account of such payments is to be calculated by reference to the actual amount of moneys borrowed, and not on the amount estimated to be borrowed.

Annual contribution.—Such contribution by the Minister commences in the first year in which, in the Minister's opinion, the authority's proposals have been brought into full operation.

Earlier years.—Years prior to the first year of full operation are treated as one accounting period for the purpose of contribution, the amount being based on actual loss.

Definition.—For definition of "smallholdings authority," see s. 47, ante.

59. Winding-up of Small Holdings and Allotments Account.—The Small Holdings and Allotments Account shall, in accordance with directions of the Treasury, be wound up as at such date as the Treasury may direct, being a date not later than the end of the financial year next after that in which this Part of this Act comes into operation, and—

- (a) any payments which apart from this section would be authorised to be paid out of that Account shall, if falling due after that date, be defrayed out of moneys provided by Parliament;
- (b) any balance in the said Account at that date, and any receipts of the Minister after that date, being receipts which apart from this section would be authorised to be paid into that Account, shall be paid into the Exchequer. [134]

Effect of section.—This section provides for the winding up of the Small Holdings and Allotments Account in accordance with Treasury directions, and the payment of any balance to the Exchequer. In future, payments are to be defrayed out of moneys provided by Parliament.

Small Holdings and Allotments Account.—By s. 51 of the Small Holdings and Allotments Act, 1908 (1 Halsbury's Statutes 274), the "Small Holdings Account" opened at the Bank of England under the Small Holdings and Allotments Act, 1907, was continued for the purposes of that Act. The "Small Holdings Account" was renamed the "Small Holdings and Allotments Account" by s. 17 (2) of the Agricultural Land (Utilisation) Act, 1931 (24 Halsbury's Statutes 62).

Comes into operation.—See note to s. 52, ante.

The Minister.—The Minister of Agriculture and Fisheries.

60. Accounts, etc., of smallholdings authorities.—(1) A smallholdings authority shall keep a separate account of its receipts and expenses with respect to smallholdings and any such receipt shall be applicable only for smallholdings purposes, unless the consent of the Minister of Health is obtained to its application for other purposes. [135]

(2) Where the receipt or payment of money is under this Part of this Act entrusted by a smallholdings authority to any committee or sub-committee of the authority, the accounts thereof shall be accounts of the authority, and made up and audited accordingly. [136]

Effect of section.—This section makes provision, similar to that contained in s. 54 of the Small Holdings and Allotments Act, 1908 (1 Halsbury's Statutes 277), for the keeping of separate accounts by smallholdings authorities of their receipts and expenditure. It provides also that receipts in respect of smallholdings are not to be applied for any purposes other than smallholdings, except with the consent of the Minister of Health.

Committee or sub-committee.—See s. 61, post, as to the constitution of smallholdings committees.

Definitions.—For definition of "smallholdings authority," see s. 47, ante; and for that of "smallholdings," see s. 66, post.

Supplementary Provisions

61. Constitution and functions of smallholdings committees.—(1) For every smallholdings authority for the time being holding, or proposing to acquire, land for the purposes of smallholdings, there shall be constituted a smallholdings committee. [137]

(2) There shall be referred to the smallholdings committee for report and recommendation all matters relating to the exercise by the smallholdings authority of their functions in relation to smallholdings; and the committee shall have power to refer as aforesaid to a sub-committee all or any of the matters referred to the committee under this subsection. [138]

(3) The council of a county may refer as aforesaid to the smallholdings committee constituted by them under this section any other matters relating to the exercise of the council's functions in connection with agriculture, except matters which under any enactment other than an enactment contained in this Part of this Act are required to be so referred to some other body, and where any such other matters are so referred to the smallholdings committee that committee shall have power so to refer to a sub-committee all or any of the matters referred to the committee. [139]

(4) Where under the foregoing provisions of this section any matter is authorised or required to be referred to a committee or sub-committee, there may be delegated to them, either with or without conditions or restrictions, any functions relating to the matters referred, other than powers of raising a rate or borrowing money. [140]

(5) Where, without functions of an authority or committee being delegated under this section, matters to which the functions relate are referred thereunder to a committee or sub-committee, the authority or committee shall unless in their opinion the case is urgent receive and consider the report of the committee or sub-committee with respect to the matters referred to them. [141]

(6) Any committee or sub-committee constituted under this section shall consist of members of the constituting authority or committee together with such less number of other persons, if any, as may be determined under the next following subsection. [142]

(7) Subject to the provisions of the last foregoing subsection, the constitution of such committees and sub-committees shall be determined in accordance with arrangements made by the smallholdings authority and approved by the Minister, and such arrangements shall provide for the attendance on the smallholdings committee, and any sub-committee thereof to which matters relating to smallholdings are referred, of an officer of the Minister appointed for the purpose and for the notification to the officer of meetings of the smallholdings committee and any such sub-committee. [143]

(8) Section fifty of the Small Holdings and Allotments Act, 1908 (which provides for the constitution by the council of a county or county borough of a smallholdings and allotments committee) shall cease to have effect. [144]

Effect of section.—This section requires the setting up of smallholdings committees, constituted by the authorities concerned in accordance with sub-ss. (6) and (7) hereof, to which committees all matters relating to the exercise of the authorities' functions as to smallholdings shall stand referred for report and recommendation. Smallholdings committees may themselves in turn constitute sub-committees for the carrying out of their various duties. Smallholdings authorities may delegate their functions as to smallholdings (other than their powers of raising a rate or of borrowing money) to their smallholdings committees or sub-committees. When reference has been made to such committees or sub-committees by authorities which have not so delegated their functions, they shall, unless the case is urgent, receive and consider the report of the committees or sub-committees.

Council of a county.—It should be noted that sub-s. (3) applies to county councils and not to smallholdings authorities generally. In the application of the subsection to county borough councils it is subject to the provisions of s. 65 (5), post.

There may be delegated . . . any functions.—Although authorities may delegate their functions, the accounts of receipts or payments of money are the accounts of the smallholdings authorities and must be made up and audited accordingly (see s. 60 (2), ante).

An officer of the Minister.—The provisions as to the attendance of an officer of the Minister at all meetings of the smallholdings committees or sub-committees are intended to facilitate close co-operation between the smallholdings authorities and the Minister.

Definitions.—For definition of "smallholdings authority," see s. 47, ante. For definition of "smallholdings," see s. 66, post. As to "agriculture," see s. 109 (3), post.

62. Keeping of lists of smallholdings.—Every smallholdings authority shall compile and keep, and, if so required at any time by a person authorised by the Minister in that behalf, produce to him,—

- (a) a record of the smallholdings provided by the authority and of the persons in occupation of such of the smallholdings as are let by the authority and the rents at which those smallholdings are let, and of the purchasers of such of the smallholdings as have been sold by the authority; and
- (b) a map or plan showing the size, boundaries and situation of each smallholding provided by the authority. [145]

Effect of section.—This section requires a record of smallholdings and a map or plan thereof to be compiled and kept by all smallholdings authorities.

The Minister.—The Minister of Agriculture and Fisheries.

Record.—Smallholdings authorities are also required, by s. 11 of the Small Holdings and Allotments Act, 1926 (1 Halsbury's Statutes 328), to register their title under the Land Registration Act, 1925, to land purchased for smallholdings. The said s. 11 is applied for the purposes of this Act by s. 67 (1) and Sched. VIII, post. The Acts governing the registration of title are now the Land Registration Acts, 1925 and 1936 (15 Halsbury's Statutes 434; 29 Halsbury's Statutes 725).

Persons in occupation.—See s. 109 (5), post.

As have been sold.—Smallholdings authorities may not sell land held for purposes of smallholdings except with the consent of the Minister (see s. 64 (2), post). The names of purchasers of smallholdings by way of terminable annuities under the provisions of ss. 5-7 of the Small Holdings and Allotments Act, 1926 (1 Halsbury's Statutes 325), should be included in the record. As to the continuance of the said ss. 5-7, see note to s. 52, ante.

Definitions.—For definitions of "smallholdings authority," see s. 47, ante; and for that of "smallholdings," see s. 66, post.

63. Annual reports of smallholdings authorities and of Minister.—(1) Every smallholdings authority shall, before such date in each year as the Minister may direct, send to the Minister a report, relating to such matters as the Minister may direct, of the proceedings of the authority during the foregoing financial year. [146]

(2) The Minister shall lay before Parliament a report in respect of each financial year summarizing his proceedings in relation to smallholdings, and the proceedings of smallholdings authorities, for that year, and—

- (a) every report of the Minister under this subsection shall include in particular a statement of the number of smallholdings provided (whether by the Minister or by smallholdings authorities) during the year to which the report relates and the amount of the contributions payable to smallholdings authorities by the Minister in respect of that year and of other expenses incurred by him in respect thereof in connection with smallholdings;
- (b) every third report of the Minister under this subsection shall include an estimate of the liabilities likely to be incurred by him in respect of the payment of contributions to smallholdings authorities. [147]

(3) Section ten of the Small Holding Colonies Act, 1916 (which provides for the presentation to Parliament of an annual report of the proceedings of the Minister under that Act) shall cease to have effect. [148]

Effect of section.—Smallholdings authorities are to make annual reports to the Minister, who, in turn, is to report to Parliament.

The Minister.—The Minister of Agriculture and Fisheries.

Payment of contributions.—For the provisions as to contributions by the Minister to losses incurred by smallholdings authorities, see s. 53, ante.

Small Holding Colonies Act, 1916.—1 Halsbury's Statutes 283. This Act empowers the Minister to acquire land for the primary purpose of settling ex-servicemen thereon. Land so acquired and held by the Minister may, presumably, be designated by him as being held for the purposes of smallholdings (see s. 56 (2), ante), in which event it will be included in the subject-matter of the annual report made under this section in lieu of s. 10 of the Small Holdings Colonies Act, 1916, which is to cease to have effect. Note that that section is also repealed by s. 110 and Sched. XIII, post.

Definitions.—For definition of "smallholdings authority," see s. 47, ante; and for that of "smallholdings," see s. 66, post.

64. Exercise, in relation to smallholdings, of powers of smallholdings authority to purchase, sell, let, exchange and appropriate land.—(1) The foregoing provisions of this Part of this Act shall have effect, in relation to the acquisition of land by a smallholdings authority for the purposes of this Part of this Act, in substitution for the provisions of the Local Government Act, 1933 as to the acquisition of land by local authorities. [149]

(2) Except with the approval of the Minister, a smallholdings authority shall not sell, or let otherwise than in accordance with the foregoing provisions of this Part of this Act, any land held by them for the purposes of smallholdings. [150]

(3) Section one hundred and sixty-three of the said Act of 1933 (which confers power on a local authority with the approval of the Minister of Health to appropriate land for any purpose for which the authority are authorised to acquire land), section one hundred and sixty-four of the said Act (which confers on local authorities power to let land, subject to the consent of the Minister of Health in certain cases) and section one hundred and sixty-five thereof (which empowers a local authority with the consent of the Minister of Health to sell any land not required for the purpose for which it was acquired or is being used, and to exchange land for other land) shall, in relation to land held by a smallholdings authority for the purposes of smallholdings, have effect subject to the foregoing provisions of this section, and with the substitution for references to the Minister of Health of references to the Minister. [151]

Effect of section.—This section provides that the powers of smallholdings authorities to acquire land for the purposes of this Part of the Act are to be those of s. 48, ante, in substitution for the relevant provisions of the Local Government Act, 1933 (26 Halsbury's Statutes 295). Smallholdings authorities may only sell or let land (which is held by them for the purposes of smallholdings) in accordance with the provisions of this Part of the Act, except with the approval of the Minister.

Ss. 163–165 of the Local Government Act, 1933 (26 Halsbury's Statutes 396 et seq.), are applied with modifications to land held by smallholdings authorities for the purposes of smallholdings.

Local Government Act, 1933.—The general provisions relating to the acquisition of land and dealings with land by local authorities are contained in Part VII of the Local Government Act, 1933 (26 Halsbury's Statutes 391 et seq.). By s. 179 of, and Sched. VII to, that Act, however, the Small Holdings and Allotments Acts, 1908 to 1931, were excluded from the application of the said Part VII. Note, however, the provisions of the Acquisition of Land (Authorisation Procedure) Act, 1946, s. 6 and Sched. IV (39 Halsbury's Statutes 60, 69 et seq.), in relation to the compulsory purchase of land in cases falling within s. 1 (1) of that Act.

The Minister.—The Minister of Agriculture and Fisheries.

65. Application of Part IV to councils of county boroughs.—(1) The Minister may, on the application of the council of a county borough, direct that the provisions of this Part of this Act, other than this section, shall apply in relation to the council as they apply in relation to the council of a county, being a smallholdings authority. [152]

(2) The Minister may, whether on the application of the council of the county borough concerned or otherwise, revoke any direction for the time being in force under this section. [153]

(3) Where no direction under this section is in force in relation to the council of any county borough, but land is held by the council for the purposes of smallholdings (whether in consequence of a previous direction under this section or of the exercise of powers conferred by the Small Holdings and Allotments Acts, 1908 to 1931), then subject to the provisions of the next following subsection the provisions of this Part of this Act, other than this section, shall as respects that land apply in relation to the council as they apply in relation to the council of a county, being a smallholdings authority.

(4) Where the said provisions of this Part of this Act apply by virtue of the last foregoing subsection, then—

- (a) so much of the said provisions as imposes a duty to provide smallholdings shall apply as if it conferred a power so to do;
- (b) the council shall not have power to acquire or appropriate land for the purposes of smallholdings, whether by virtue of the said provisions or otherwise :

Provided that as respects land held by the council for smallholdings purposes by virtue of the grant of a tenancy or the compulsory hiring of the land, nothing in paragraph (b) of this subsection shall prevent the extension or renewal of the tenancy or the compulsory purchase of the land. [155]

(5) Where by virtue of this section the provisions of section sixty-one of this Act apply to the council of a county borough—

- (a) nothing in subsection (3) of that section shall prevent the council referring thereunder to the smallholdings committee any matters relating to the exercise of the council's functions in connection with allotments, so however that those matters shall not be referred to the smallholdings committee unless a sub-committee of the smallholdings committee is constituted in accordance with the provisions of section fourteen of the Allotments Act, 1922, and the matters are referred by the smallholdings committee to that sub-committee ;
- (b) reference of the said matters to the smallholdings committee under the said section sixty-one shall be sufficient compliance with the requirements of the said section fourteen as to reference to an allotments committee. [156]

Effect of section.—This section enables county borough councils to apply to the Minister to become smallholdings authorities, and on such application the Minister may direct accordingly. When such councils hold land for the purposes of smallholdings and no directions are in force under this section, the councils have all the powers and duties of smallholdings authorities under this Part of the Act except (a) the duty to provide smallholdings under s. 47, ante, and (b) the power to acquire or appropriate land under ss. 48, 64, ante. In such a case s. 47 applies as if it contained a power and not a duty to provide smallholdings.

The Minister.—The Minister of Agriculture and Fisheries.

Allotments Act, 1922, s. 14.—This section requires borough councils which have a population of 10,000 or upwards, or which provide more than 400 allotments, to establish allotments committees (1 Halsbury's Statutes 312).

Definitions.—For definition of "smallholdings authority," see s. 47, ante; and for that of "smallholdings," see s. 66, post.

66. Definition of "smallholding."—(1) The expression "smallholding" in this Part of this Act means a holding (other than a holding provided, or such as apart from this Act could be provided, under any enactment relating to the provision of cottage holdings) used or intended to be used for agriculture, being either a holding of which the area exceeds one acre and does not exceed fifty acres or a holding of which the area exceeds fifty acres but does not exceed seventy-five acres and the annual full fair rent (as defined in subsection (2) of section fifty-two of this Act) does not exceed one hundred and fifty pounds. [157]

(2) In relation to holdings provided otherwise than under this Part of this Act the said expression includes any holding (other than as aforesaid) falling within the meaning assigned to the said expression by the Small Holdings and Allotments Acts, 1908 to 1931. [158]

Effect of section.—This section gives a new definition of smallholdings, as provided under this Part of the Act. A "small holding" under the Small Holdings and Allotments Acts, 1908 to 1931 (see note to s. 49), was defined as "an agricultural holding which exceeds one acre and either does not exceed fifty acres, or, if exceeding fifty acres, is at the date of sale or letting of an annual value for the purposes of income tax not exceeding one hundred pounds" (see s. 61 of the Small Holdings and Allotments Act, 1908, as amended by the Small Holdings and Allotments Act, 1926, s. 16; 1 Halsbury's Statutes 278). The main differences between this definition and the new definition are, first, that there is now a fixed upper limit to the size of a smallholding, i.e., 75 acres, whereas previously the size was governed by the value of the land; and, secondly, that the fixed upper limit in value is raised from £100 to £150 a year. Both alterations are designed to prevent the creation of smallholdings consisting of large areas of unsuitable land.

Definition.—For definition of "agriculture," see s. 109 (3), post.

67. Application and repeal of provisions of Small Holdings and Allotments Acts, 1908 to 1931.—(1) The provisions of the Small Holdings and Allotments Acts, 1908 to 1931, specified in the first column of Part I of the Eighth Schedule to this Act (which relate to the matters specified in the second column of the said Part I) shall with the necessary modifications apply for the purposes of this Part of this Act. [159]

(2) Subject to the foregoing provisions of this Part of this Act, the said Acts, other than the provisions thereof specified in the said Part I, are hereby repealed in so far as they relate to smallholdings:

Provided that—

(a) without prejudice to subsection (2) of section thirty-eight of the Interpretation Act, 1889 (which relates to the effect of repeals), the provisions of the said Acts specified in the first column of Part II of the Eighth Schedule to this Act, which relate to the matters specified in that column, shall continue in operation to the extent specified in the second column of the said Part II, but subject to any modification so specified;

(b) nothing in this subsection shall affect the provisions of the said Acts relating to the acquisition, and to proceedings in relation to the acquisition, of land for the purposes of small holdings as those provisions apply, by virtue of section seventeen of the Land Settlement (Facilities) Act, 1919, to the acquisition of land by county councils for allotments. [160]

Effect of section.—The effect of this section is to render it unnecessary, after this Part of the Act comes into operation, when dealing with smallholdings to make reference to any previous enactment relating to smallholdings with the exception of such sections of the previous Acts specified in Sched. VIII, Part I, post, as being applied for the purposes of this Act, or, in Part II thereof, as being saved, in modified form, from repeal.

Note that the definition of "smallholding" in s. 66, ante, excludes a "cottage holding." Consequently, the provisions of the Small Holdings and Allotments Acts, 1908 to 1931, as applied to cottage holdings by s. 12 of the Agricultural Land (Utilisation) Act, 1931 (24 Halsbury's Statutes 58), are unaffected.

Interpretation Act, 1889, s. 38 (2).—18 Halsbury's Statutes 1005.

Land Settlement (Facilities) Act, 1919, s. 17.—1 Halsbury's Statutes 293. This section empowers county councils to acquire land for leasing to parish councils for the provision of allotments and applies to such acquisition the provisions of the Small Holdings and Allotments Act, 1908, as to the acquisition of land by county councils for the provision of small holdings.

109. Interpretation.—(1) In this Act the expression "agricultural land" means land used for agriculture which is so used for the purposes of a trade or business, or which is designated by the Minister for the purposes of this subsection, and includes any land so designated as land which in the opinion of the Minister ought to be brought into use for agriculture:

Provided that no designation under this subsection shall extend—

- (a) to land used as pleasure grounds, private gardens or allotment gardens, or
- (b) to land kept or preserved mainly or exclusively for the purposes of sport or recreation, except where the Minister is satisfied that its use for agriculture would not be inconsistent with its use for the said purposes and it is so stated in the designation. [161]

(2) In this Act the expression “agricultural unit” means land which is occupied as a unit for agricultural purposes, including—

- (a) any dwelling-house or other building occupied by the same person for the purpose of farming the land, and
- (b) any other land falling within the definition in this Act of the expression “agricultural land” which is in the occupation of the same person, being land as to which the Minister is satisfied that having regard to the character and situation thereof and other relevant circumstances it ought in the interests of full and efficient production to be farmed in conjunction with the agricultural unit, and directs accordingly :

Provided that the Minister shall not give a direction under this subsection as respects any land unless it is for the time being not in use for any purpose which appears to him to be substantial having regard to the use to which it might be put for agriculture. [162]

(3) In this Act the following expressions have the meanings hereby respectively assigned to them, that is to say :—

“agriculture” includes horticulture, fruit growing, seed growing, dairy farming and livestock breeding and keeping, the use of land as grazing land, meadow land, osier land, market gardens and nursery grounds, and the use of land for woodlands where that use is ancillary to the farming of land for other agricultural purposes, and “agricultural” shall be construed accordingly ;

“allotment garden” means an allotment not exceeding forty poles in extent which is wholly or mainly cultivated by the occupier for the production of vegetables or fruit for consumption by himself or his family ;

“fixed equipment” includes any building or structure affixed to land and any works on, in, over or under land, and also includes anything grown on land for a purpose other than use after severance from the land, consumption of the thing grown or of produce thereof, or amenity, and references to fixed equipment on land shall be construed accordingly ;

“functions” includes powers and duties ;

“livestock” includes any creature kept for the production of food, wool, skins or fur, or for the purpose of its use in the farming of land ;

“pasture” includes meadow ;

“prescribed” has the meaning assigned to it by the last foregoing section ;

“produce” includes anything (whether live or dead) produced in the course of agriculture ;

“relevant circumstances”, in relation to an owner or occupier, includes all circumstances affecting management or farming other than the personal circumstances of the owner or occupier. [163]

(4) References in this Act to any enactment shall be construed, except where the context otherwise requires, as references to that enactment as amended by or under any other enactment, including this Act. [164]

(5) References in this Act to the farming of land include references to the carrying on in relation to the land of any agricultural activity; and in relation to any agricultural activity the person having the right to carry it on shall be deemed to be the occupier of the land. [165]

(6) References in this Act to the use of land for agriculture include, in relation to land forming part of an agricultural unit, references to any use of the land in connection with the farming of the unit. [166]

General note.—For present purposes the most important definitions in this section are those of "agriculture," "agricultural" (as in "agricultural experience") and "fixed equipment."

110. Repeals.—The enactments specified in the Thirteenth Schedule to this Act are, save as provided in Part III of this Act, hereby repealed to the extent specified in the third column of that Schedule. [167]

Part III of this Act.—This Part of the Act, which deals with agricultural holdings in general, is outside the scope of this volume.

111. Short title, commencement and extent.—(1) This Act may be cited as the Agriculture Act, 1947. [168]

(2) This Act shall come into operation on such date as His Majesty may by Order in Council appoint; and an Order under this subsection may appoint different dates in relation to different provisions of this Act. [169]

(3) This Act, except in so far as is expressly provided therein, shall not extend to Scotland or Northern Ireland. [170]

Dates of operation.—The Act is to come into operation on a date or dates to be appointed by Order in Council.

Up to the time of going to press only the provisions referred to in the Agriculture Act, 1947 (Commencement) Order, 1947 (S. R. & O., 1947, No. 1767; see title AGRICULTURE, ante), had been brought into operation.

AREAS OF LOCAL GOVERNMENT

CASES:—

Newport Borough Council v. Monmouthshire County Council, Monmouthshire County Council v. Newport Borough Council, [1947] 1 All E. R. 900	PAGE 50

CASES

Local government—Alteration of area—Extension of county borough to include part of county area—Financial adjustments—Increased burden on county ratepayers—Method of assessing compensation—Arbitrator's duty—Interest on amount payable—Local Government Act, 1933 (c. 51), s. 152 (1) (b), Sched. V, r. 1—Newport Extension Act, 1934 (c. lvii), s. 58.

By the Newport Extension Act, 1934, the boundary between the borough of Newport and the administrative county of Monmouth was altered by transferring to the former a piece of adjoining territory formerly included within the area of the latter. This necessitated certain adjustments between the two authorities, which, so far as not agreed, were to be determined by an arbitrator. One of the matters not agreed was that mentioned in s. 152 (1) (b) of the Local Government Act, 1933, viz., provision for payment to the county council of such sum as seemed equitable in accordance with the rules contained in Sched. V to the Act of 1933 in respect of any increase of burden which would properly be thrown on the ratepayers of that council in meeting the cost incurred in discharge of any of its functions. Rule 1 provides: "Regard shall be had to—(a) the difference between the burden on the ratepayers which will properly be incurred by the local authority in meeting the cost of executing any of their functions and the burden on the ratepayers which would properly have been incurred by the local authority in meeting such cost had no alteration of boundaries or other change taken place; (b) the length of time during which the increase of burden may be expected to continue: Provided that no alteration of income in consequence of an apportionment under the regulations made under s. 108 (1) (b) of the Local Government Act, 1929, shall be taken into account." The question for determination in the first appeal was: whether the cost incurred by the county council in the discharge of its functions was to be arrived at by taking into account the whole amount of the General Exchequer Grant to the unreduced county as it existed immediately before the transfer (as the borough council contended), or by taking the proportion of such General Exchequer Grant as bore the same relation to the whole as the rateable value of the reduced county bore to the rateable value of the unreduced county in the year preceding the change (as the county council contended), or such other proportion as the arbitrator, having regard to all the circumstances of the case and in his discretion, thought equitable. The question in the second appeal was whether the arbitrator had power to award interest on any sum awarded to the county council in respect of the whole or part of the period between the appointed day on which the transfer was to take effect and the date of his award:—

Held: (i) (Lord WRIGHT and Lord SIMONDS dissenting): the arbitrator's duty was to fix such sum as seemed to him equitable having regard to the circumstances and the considerations indicated in the rules, but disregarding any alteration of income due to an apportionment referred to in the proviso to r. 1.

(ii) as regards the adjustment for increase of burden the arbitrator's mandate in s. 152 (1) (b) of the Act of 1933 did not extend to authorise him to measure and award what it would be equitable to add for delay in payment, nor was he authorised to add interest for delay in respect of other items in the claim.

STATUTES

DOG RACECOURSE BETTING (TEMPORARY PROVISIONS) ACT, 1947

(10 & 11 Geo. 6, c. 20)

PRELIMINARY NOTE

This Act, which received the Royal Assent and came into force on March 27, 1947, is designed temporarily to confine the holding of dog racecourse betting to Saturdays and Bank Holidays.

A prime essential at the present time is to increase industrial production, and in this connection it is important to reduce absenteeism as far as possible. It has been recognised that the holding of weekday sporting events during normal working hours is conducive to absenteeism, and the Government accordingly approached the national bodies controlling the various sports and recreations of the country—horse racing, football, greyhound racing, etc.—and requested them to secure the required curtailment of midweek sporting events. In the case of all sports other than greyhound racing, the national controlling body was able to comply with the Government's wish, but the greyhound racing authorities, though willing to do so, were unable to comply since they were bound by the restrictions placed on betting at dog racecourses by the Betting and Lotteries Act, 1934 (27 Halsbury's Statutes 273). The purpose of the present Act is temporarily to amend the Act of 1934 in order to enable dog racing authorities to comply with the Government's wish.

S. 1 of that Act restricts betting either by way of bookmaking or by means of a totalisator on any track to 104 days in any year, which may not include Good Friday, Christmas Day or Sundays. S. 4 (1) provides further that such betting may not take place on any day on a track being a dog racecourse in connection with more than eight dog races and on any day on such a track except during one continuous period not exceeding four hours. By a proviso to s. 4 (1), however, it is laid down that in relation to the four special appointed days fixed in any year by the licensing authority (see infra) these provisions are to have effect with the substitution for the word "eight" of the word "sixteen" and for the words "one continuous period not exceeding four hours," the words "a period or periods not exceeding eight hours in the aggregate." If, therefore, each four-hour betting period is regarded as a single race-meeting, there are 108 race meetings a year, 100 of them being single meetings and four being double meetings. The licensing authorities are the county councils and the county borough councils (s. 5). They have the duty of fixing the 104 appointed days on which betting facilities may be provided on licensed tracks within their area (s. 10), four of which days they are to fix as the special appointed days (s. 4 (3)), and all of which days are to be the same days for the whole of the licensing area. In England and Wales the four special appointed days are normally the Bank Holidays; the 104 days usually appointed in any year are the 52 Saturdays, the 4 Bank Holidays, and 48 mid-week days. Since under the 1934 Act there have to be 104 appointed days, it follows that at least 48 of these days have to be mid-week days which are not also Bank Holidays but are ordinary working days.

S. 1 of the present Act temporarily restricts betting at dog racecourse meetings to Saturdays and Bank Holidays, thus giving a total of 56 days in a year on which betting may take place, as against 104 days under the 1934 Act. There are still, however, to be 108 meetings in a year, and this is made possible by allowing double meetings, namely, meetings of 16 races and for periods not exceeding 8 hours, to be held on these days, with a proviso that in a Bank Holiday week there is to be only one double meeting, which may be held either on the Bank Holiday, or on the following Saturday, at the option of the track proprietors. For the purpose of arriving at the total of 104 days allowed by s. 1 (1) of the Act of 1934 (27 Halsbury's Statutes 273) for betting, a day on which extended betting is allowed is to count as two days, except in the case of a Bank Holiday or of a Saturday following a Bank Holiday where extended betting did not take place on the Bank Holiday.

The net result of these amending provisions is, therefore, that in place of the 100 single meetings (held in the mid-week and on Saturdays) and the 4 double meetings (held on Bank Holidays) allowed by the Act of 1934, there are to be, for the duration of the present Act, 52 double and 4 single meetings, confined to Saturdays and Bank Holidays.

There is a further provision, contained in s. 2 of the Act, that betting is not to take place on Saturdays before 1 p.m., the object being, of course, to prevent either absenteeism from, or early leaving of, work on Saturday mornings. There is naturally no such restriction on betting times on a Bank Holiday.

The Act is to expire on June 30, 1948, though provision may be made by Order in Council for its expiry, or for the expiry of any provisions thereof, before that date; and, in addition, the Secretary of State may relax its operation in particular localities if satisfied that such relaxation is unlikely to lead to any substantial interference with industrial production (s. 4). This latter provision is designed to benefit areas which are chiefly or exclusively holiday areas. [176]

An Act to make temporary provision for limiting betting on licensed dog racecourses to Saturdays and certain other days, for varying for those days the restrictions on the number of races on which and the time during which such betting may take place, and for purposes connected therewith. [177]

1. Temporary limitation of dog racecourse betting to Saturdays and certain other days, and variation of restrictions for those days.—(1) During the continuance in force of this Act the Betting and Lotteries Act, 1934 (in this Act referred to as “the principal Act”), so far as it relates to betting, whether by way of bookmaking or by means of a totalisator, on licensed tracks being dog racecourses, shall have effect as if every Saturday and Bank Holiday, and no other days, had been fixed by every licensing authority as the days on which betting facilities may be provided on licensed tracks within their licensing area, and those days, and no other days, shall accordingly be appointed days for the purposes of the said Act so far as it relates to such betting. [178]

(2) During the continuance in force of this Act subsection (1) of section four of the principal Act (which provides that betting by way of bookmaking or by means of a totalisator shall not take place on any day on a track being a dog racecourse in connection with more than eight dog races, and that betting by way of bookmaking or by means of a totalisator on the results of dog races shall not take place on any day on such a track except during one continuous period not exceeding four hours, but subject to a proviso relaxing those restrictions in relation to the special appointed days therein mentioned) shall have effect as respects licensed tracks subject to the following modifications, that is to say,—

(a) there shall be substituted therein, for the word “eight” where it first occurs, the word “sixteen”, and, for the words “one continuous period not exceeding four hours” where they first occur, the words “a period or periods not exceeding eight hours in the aggregate”; and

(b) the proviso shall not have effect:

Provided that paragraph (a) of this subsection shall not apply as respects such betting as is mentioned in the said subsection (1) on any licensed track on the Saturday next following a Bank Holiday if such betting has taken place thereon on the Bank Holiday in connection with more than eight dog races or during more than one continuous period or during one continuous period exceeding four hours. [179]

(3) For the purposes of the application to any licensed track being a dog racecourse of paragraph (a) of subsection (1) of section one of the principal Act (which provides that betting by way of bookmaking or by means of a totalisator shall not take place on any track on more than one hundred and four days in any year), a day on which such betting on the track takes place in connection with more than eight dog races, or during more than one continuous period or during one continuous period exceeding four hours, shall be reckoned as two days:

Provided that this subsection shall not apply—

(a) to a Bank Holiday ; or

(b) to the Saturday next following a Bank Holiday, in a case in which such betting did not take place as aforesaid on the track on the Bank Holiday. [180]

(4) Licensing authorities shall during the continuance in force of this Act observe the provisions of section ten of the principal Act (which relates to the fixing of appointed days), and of subsection (3) of section four thereof (which relates to the fixing of special appointed days) notwithstanding the preceding provisions of this section. [181]

Continuance in force of this Act.—See s. 4, infra.

Betting and Lotteries Act, 1934.—For ss. 1, 4 and 10 thereof, see 27 Halsbury's Statutes 273, 274, 281.

Sub-s. (4).—The provision made by this subsection is necessary since this Act or provisions thereof may be repealed or rendered inapplicable as respects tracks in a particular area by an Order in Council or an order of the Secretary of State under s. 4, infra.

Bank Holiday.—As to Bank Holidays, see s. 5 (3), post, and note thereto.

Appointed days and special appointed days.—The appointed days are the days, 104 in number, which a licensing authority is to fix, in a year beginning on July 1, as the days on which betting facilities may be provided on licensed tracks in their area. These days are to be the same for the whole of a licensing area, and are not to include Good Friday, Christmas Day or Sunday (Betting and Lotteries Act, 1934, s. 10 ; 27 Halsbury's Statutes 281). The licensing authority, when fixing these days, is also to fix four of them (which four days are to be the same for the whole area) as special appointed days (Betting and Lotteries Act, 1934, s. 4 (3)). See s. 5 (2), post, and note : "Construed as one" ; also the Preliminary Note, ante.

Definitions.—For definitions of "bookmaking," "totalisator," "licensed track," "dog race," "licensing authority," "licensing area" and "track," see note to s. 5 (2), post.

2. Temporary limitation of dog racecourse betting on Saturdays to after 1.0 p.m.—(1) During the continuance in force of this Act betting by way of bookmaking or by means of a totalisator on a licensed track being a dog racecourse shall not take place before the hour of one in the afternoon on any day other than a Bank Holiday. [182]

(2) If bookmaking is carried on or a totalisator is operated by any person on any track in contravention of this section, that person, and, if he is not the occupier of the track, the occupier also, shall be guilty of an offence :

Provided that, where the occupier of a track is charged with an offence by reason of a contravention of this section on the part of another person, it shall be a defence for him to prove that the contravention occurred without his knowledge. [183]

Application of sub-s. (1).—The Secretary of State has power in certain circumstances to make an order directing that this subsection shall not apply to tracks in a particular licensing area or part of an area or that in its application it shall have effect with the substitution of a reference to an earlier hour for the reference to 1 p.m. (see s. 4 (3) (b), post).

Offences.—The present Act is to be construed as one with the Betting and Lotteries Act, 1934, as if included in Part I thereof (see s. 5 (2), post), and, accordingly, the provisions of s. 30 (2) of that Act (27 Halsbury's Statutes 294) relating to penalties for offences under certain sections of that Act are applicable to an offence under sub-s. (2), supra. Under the said s. 30 (2) an offender is liable—(a) on summary conviction, to a fine not exceeding £50, and in the case of a second or any subsequent conviction for an offence under the same section, to a maximum of two months' imprisonment and/or a fine not exceeding £100 ; or (b) on conviction on indictment, to a fine not exceeding £300, and in the case of a second or any subsequent conviction for an offence under the same section, to a maximum of six months' imprisonment and/or a fine not exceeding £500. It is provided by s. 29 of the Act of 1934 that where a body corporate is convicted of an offence under that Act every person who at the date of the commission of the offence was a director or officer of the body corporate is to be deemed to be guilty of the offence unless he proves that it was committed without his knowledge.

Definitions.—For definitions of "bookmaking," "dog racecourse," "totalisator" and "track," see note to s. 5 (2), post.

Bank Holiday.—As to Bank Holidays, see s. 5 (3), post, and note thereto.

3. Application to Scotland. [184]

4. Expiry of this Act, and power to relax its operation in particular localities.—(1) Subject to the provisions of this section, this Act shall continue in force until the thirtieth day of June, nineteen hundred and forty-eight, and shall expire at the end of that day. [185]

(2) His Majesty may by Order in Council declare that it is no longer necessary that this Act, or any provision thereof specified in the Order, should continue in force, and, if an Order under this subsection is made, this Act, or the specified provision, as the case may be, shall expire at the end of such day as may be specified in the Order. [186]

(3) If the Secretary of State is satisfied as respects any particular licensing area or part of such an area that, having regard to its situation or to other local circumstances, the making of an order under this subsection in relation thereto is unlikely to lead to any substantial interference with industrial production, he may by order direct that, on and after such day as may be specified in the order, either—

(a) this Act shall not apply to tracks in that area or part; or

(b) subsection (1) of section two of this Act shall not apply to tracks in that area or part, or shall, in its application to tracks in that area or part, have effect with the substitution of a reference to an earlier hour for the reference to one in the afternoon;

and any order under this subsection may be revoked, and an order thereunder substituting an earlier hour as aforesaid may be varied, by a subsequent order made by the Secretary of State. [187]

(4) The expiry of this Act, or the revocation of an order under the last preceding subsection, shall not affect the operation thereof as respects things previously done or omitted to be done, and, in reckoning the number of days on which betting by way of bookmaking or by means of a totalisator may take place on a track in a part of a year after the expiry of section one of this Act or in a part thereof during which that section does not apply to the track, days in that year on which such betting has taken place during the continuance in force of that section and its application to the track shall be reckoned in accordance with subsection (3) of that section. [188]

Orders under this section.—No Order in Council or order of the Secretary of State had been made under this section at the time of going to press.

Definitions.—For definitions of “bookmaking,” “licensing area,” “totalisator” and “track,” see s. 5 (2), post, and note thereto.

5. Short title, construction and extent.—(1) This Act may be cited as the Dog Racecourse Betting (Temporary Provisions) Act, 1947. [189]

(2) This Act shall be construed as one with the principal Act as if included in Part I thereof. [190]

(3) In this Act the expression “Bank Holiday” means each of the days specified as Bank Holidays in England in the Schedule to the Bank Holidays Act, 1871. [191]

(4) This Act shall not extend to Northern Ireland. [192]

Principal Act.—The Betting and Lotteries Act, 1934 (27 Halsbury's Statutes 273).

Bank Holidays Act, 1871, Sched.—19 Halsbury's Statutes 418. The days specified as Bank Holidays in England in that Schedule are Easter Monday, the Monday in Whitsun week, the first Monday in August and December 26, if a weekday. The Holidays Extension Act, 1875, s. 2 (19 Halsbury's Statutes 419), provides that where December 26 falls on a Sunday, December 27 shall be a holiday under the Act of 1871.

Construed as one.—Accordingly this Act is to be construed as if it were contained in Part I of the Betting and Lotteries Act, 1934 (27 Halsbury's Statutes 273), unless there is any manifest discrepancy showing that this Act has modified something to be found in Part I of the earlier Act: Canada Southern Railway Co. v. International Bridge Co. (1883), 8 App. Cas. 723, at p. 727; Hart v. Hudson Brothers, Ltd., [1928] 2 K. B. 629, at p. 634; Phillips v. Parnaby, [1934] 2 K. B. 299, at p. 302. Thus words defined in Part I of the earlier Act will bear the like meaning in this Act, unless it is clear from the context that their construction in this Act is different. Therefore, the following definitions of words in Part I of the Act of 1934, contained in s. 20 (1) thereof (27 Halsbury's Statutes 287), apply for the purposes of the present Act:—

Bookmaker.—This means any person who, whether on his own account or as servant or agent to any other person, carries on, whether occasionally or regularly, the business of receiving or negotiating bets or conducting pari mutual or pool betting operations, or who in any manner holds himself out, or permits himself to be held out in any manner, as a person who receives or negotiates bets or conducts such operations, and "book-making" is to be construed accordingly. A person is not, however, to be deemed a bookmaker by reason only of the fact that he operates, or is employed in operating, a totalisator, and the operating of a totalisator shall be deemed not to be bookmaking.

Totalisator.—This means the contrivance for betting known as the totalisator or pari mutuel, or any other machine or instrument of betting of a like nature, whether mechanically operated or not.

Licensed track.—This means a track in respect of which a licence is for the time being in force.

Dog race.—This means a race in which an object propelled by mechanical means is pursued by dogs, and "dog racecourse" is to be construed accordingly.

Licensing authority.—This means a council or committee having power to grant licences, namely, as provided by s. 5 (1) of the Act of 1934 (27 Halsbury's Statutes 275), the council of an administrative county and the council of a county borough in relation to their respective areas, and any committee to whom any such council may delegate their functions. In relation to a track or proposed track the expression means the licensing authority having jurisdiction in the licensing area in which the track or proposed track is, or will be, situate.

Licensing area.—This means the area over which a licensing authority has jurisdiction.

Track.—This means premises on which races of any description, athletic sports or other sporting events take place.

ORDERS, CIRCULARS AND MEMORANDA

CONTROL OF BUILDING OPERATIONS (NO. 8) ORDER, 1947

January 15, 1947

This order has been revoked by the Control of Building Operations (No. 9) Order, 1947, post. It specified for the period from February 1, 1947, to July 31, 1947, the same limits of costs for building operations as are specified by the latter order for the period from August 1, 1947, to January 31, 1948. Otherwise the terms of the two orders are identical.

The previous exception in respect of materials used on private dwellings by unpaid labour was discontinued by the present order. [193]

CONTROL OF BUILDING OPERATIONS (PROCEEDINGS BY LOCAL AUTHORITIES) (NO. 1) ORDER, 1947

January 15, 1947

The Minister of Works in exercise of the powers conferred on him by Regulations 56A and 93 of the Defence (General) Regulations, 1939, as having effect by virtue of the Supplies and Services (Transitional Powers) Act, 1945, and of all other powers enabling him in that behalf, hereby orders as follows :—

1. The Common Council of the City of London and the Councils of county boroughs, metropolitan boroughs and county districts in England and Wales, acting by any officer appointed by them either generally or specifically for this purpose, are hereby specified as authorities who may institute proceedings for an offence against Regulation 56A of the Defence (General) Regulations, 1939. [194]

2. This Order may be cited as the Control of Building Operations (Proceedings by Local Authorities) (No. 1) Order, 1947, and shall come into force on the first day of February, 1947. [195]

* * * * *

EXPLANATORY NOTE

(This Note is not part of the Order, but is intended to indicate its general purport.)

The purpose of this Order is to enable certain local authorities in England and Wales to institute proceedings against persons contravening the Civil Building Control.

CONTROL OF BUILDING OPERATIONS (NO. 9) ORDER, 1947

S. R. & O., 1947, No. 1439

July 8, 1947

The Minister of Works in exercise of the powers conferred on him by Regulation 56A of the Defence (General) Regulations, 1939, as having effect by virtue of the Supplies and Services (Transitional Powers) Act, 1945, and of all other powers enabling him in that behalf, hereby orders as follows :—

1. The sum prescribed under paragraph (c) of the proviso to paragraph (1) of Regulation 56A of the Defence (General) Regulations, 1939, is the sum of ten pounds. [196]

2.—(1) Any person may, without a licence from the Minister of Works under paragraph (2) of the said Regulation 56A, carry out on any single property, during any month in the period beginning with the first day of August, nineteen hundred and forty-seven, and ending with the thirty-first day of January, nineteen hundred and forty-eight, any work to which this Article applies, if the cost of the work, together with the cost of any other such work previously carried out on that property during that month without such a licence as aforesaid, does not exceed the sum of two pounds.

(2) In addition to the work authorised by the foregoing paragraph of this Article, any person may, without such a licence as aforesaid, carry out on any single property during the said period any work to which this Article applies, if the cost of the work, together with the cost of any other such work previously carried out on that property during that period without such a licence as aforesaid (not being work authorised by the foregoing paragraph) does not exceed the sum of ten pounds.

(3) In this Article, the expression "month" means the month of August, September, October, November, December or January. [197]

3.—(1) Article 2 of this order applies to any work specified in Part III of the Sixth Schedule to the Defence (General) Regulations, 1939, and any maintenance work on a building or on any such works as are mentioned in Part II of that Schedule, except that it does not apply to any work carried out for a purpose specified in the first column of the Table set out in Part I of the said Schedule.

(2) In this order, the expression " a property " means, in relation to any work carried out at any time—

- (a) any property the full value of which was ascertained for the purposes of an assessment under Schedule A in force at that time ; or
- (b) any property which, not being or forming part of a property to which sub-paragraph (a) of this paragraph applies, was at that time the subject of a valuation shown in the Valuation List for the time being in force under the Rating and Valuation Acts, 1925 to 1940, or the Rating and Valuation (Metropolis) Acts, 1869 to 1940, as the case may be ; or
- (c) in a case where the work is carried out on property which is not and does not form part of a property to which sub-paragraph (a) or sub-paragraph (b) of this paragraph applies, the building or site on which the work is carried out, together with any land or building occupied with that building or site :

Provided that, where any building which would constitute a property for the purposes of this order comprises two or more parts which are occupied or constructed for occupation as separate dwellings, each of those parts shall be deemed to be a separate property for the said purposes and the remainder of the building shall also be deemed for the said purposes to be a separate property. [198]

4. The Control of Building Operations (No. 8) Order, 1946, is hereby revoked. [199]

5.—(1) This order may be cited as the Control of Building Operations (No. 9) Order, 1947.

(2) This order shall come into operation on the first day of August, nineteen hundred and forty-seven. [200]

* * * * *

EXPLANATORY NOTE

The purpose of this Order is to retain for a further period of six months (i.e., from 1st August, 1947 to 31st January, 1948) :—

- A. the limit of £10 which may be incurred on certain building or civil engineering works undertaken by Local Authorities and certain Public Utility Undertakings without authorisation from a Government Department ;*
- B. the " free " allowances within which building or civil engineering work may be carried out without a civil building licence. Work may be done on any single property if its cost together with the cost of any other work done without licence on that property during the period, does not exceed £10. In addition, during any one month work costing not more than £2 may be carried out without a licence. This £2 monthly allowance is non-cumulative.*

ORDER IN COUNCIL AMENDING REGULATION 56AB OF THE DEFENCE (GENERAL) REGULATIONS, 1939

S. R. & O., 1947, No. 1551

July 25, 1947

His Majesty, in pursuance of section three of the Supplies and Services (Transitional Powers) Act, 1945, and of all other powers enabling Him in that behalf, is pleased, by and with the advice of His Privy Council to order, and it is hereby ordered, as follows :—

1. For paragraphs (4) and (5) of Regulation fifty-six AB of the Defence (General) Regulations, 1939, there shall be substituted the following paragraphs:—

“(4) Save as provided by the next succeeding paragraph, where an application in that behalf is duly made the Minister shall grant a certificate of registration under this Regulation to the applicant.

(5) The Minister shall have power, if he thinks fit, to refuse an application made by any person for a certificate of registration under this Regulation, or to revoke, or to suspend for a specified period the operation of, such a certificate in force as respects any person, if that person has been convicted of an offence against Regulation 56A of these Regulations and the court before which he was convicted has recommended that the Minister should exercise the powers conferred on him by this Regulation where such a recommendation is made.

A revocation or suspension under this paragraph may be either general or limited to the doing of work in a specified area or on a specified site.” [201]

2. In accordance with the preceding Article, paragraphs (6) and (9) of the said Regulation fifty-six AB are hereby revoked. [202]

* * * * *

EXPLANATORY NOTE

This Order amends Regulation 56AB of the Defence (General) Regulations, 1939, under which builders and civil engineering contractors are required to be registered. The Regulation empowered the Minister of Works to revoke or suspend a certificate of registration if satisfied as to either of the following grounds :—

- (a) that the person registered was not observing the normal terms as to wages and conditions and hours of employment, or*
- (b) that he had been convicted of a contravention of Regulation 56A (which restricts the carrying out of building without licence) and the court before which he was convicted had recommended that action should be taken under this Regulation.*

The Minister had power to refuse to register any person if a previous certificate of registration held by the applicant had been revoked on either of the above grounds or if the applicant had been convicted of a contravention of Regulation 56A and the court had made a recommendation that action should be taken under this Regulation.

The change made by this Order is that the requirements as to wages and conditions and hours of employment will no longer be enforced under Regulation 56AB, and the only ground for revoking, suspending or refusing to grant a certificate of registration will be conviction for a contravention of Regulation 56A, where the court has made a recommendation that action should be taken under this Regulation. Consequentially on this change there are revoked paragraph (6) of Regulation 56AB (which covered cases coming under the special provisions of the Essential Works (Building and Civil Engineering) Order, 1941, which was withdrawn as from March 31st, 1947), and paragraph (9) of Regulation 56AB (which gave the Minister's officers a power of entry and inspection for the purpose of enforcing the employment provisions of the Regulation).

CONTROL OF BUILDING MATERIALS (NO. 1) ORDER, 1947

August 7, 1947

The Minister of Works, in exercise of the powers conferred on him by Regulations 55 and 55AA of the Defence (General) Regulations, 1939, as having effect by virtue of the Supplies and Services (Transitional Powers) Act, 1945, and of all other powers enabling him in that behalf, hereby orders as follows :—

1. In this Order—

“ The Minister ” means the Minister of Works ;

“ Scheduled goods ” and “ scheduled materials ” mean any goods or materials of any description specified in the Schedule to this Order ;

“ Priority Certificate ” means any document issued by or on behalf of the Minister in whatever form, authorising, as a matter of priority, the acquisition or supply for any specified purpose of any scheduled goods or materials. [203]

2. No person shall, in acquiring any scheduled goods or materials for the acquisition or supply of which a priority certificate has been issued, acquire or seek to acquire a greater quantity of the scheduled goods or materials than is specified therein, and no person shall for any purpose for which a priority certificate has been issued knowingly supply or offer to supply a greater quantity of any such scheduled goods or materials than aforesaid. [204]

3. A person (in this Article called a “ supplier ”) who in the course of a trade or business has available for supply scheduled goods or materials of any description shall not, so long as any order to supply any scheduled goods or materials of the same description for a purpose for which a priority certificate has been issued remains unfulfilled, supply or offer to supply any scheduled goods or materials of the same description as any goods or materials specified in the priority certificate to any person except for a purpose for which a priority certificate has been issued and for which the goods or materials so specified have not been supplied by him. Provided that, when goods or materials specified in a priority certificate are ordered for delivery at a future date, the supplier may nevertheless supply any goods or materials of the same description in his possession to any person if he has reasonable grounds for expecting that on that future date he will have similar goods or materials in his possession and available and sufficient for the purposes of the priority certificate. Provided also that if the Minister is satisfied that it is the custom of a supplier to distribute any scheduled goods or materials from more than one depot or store the Minister may as respects any class of scheduled goods or materials designate any one or more of such depots or stores for the purpose of this Article and the supplier shall as respects scheduled goods or materials of that class available at each depot or store so designated and so long as the designation remains in force be regarded as a separate supplier for the purposes of this Article. [205]

4. It shall be a defence for a person charged with a contravention of Article 3 of this Order to prove that the scheduled goods or materials were supplied or offered in circumstances of emergency which rendered it impracticable first to obtain a priority certificate for the purpose for which they were supplied or offered. [206]

5. A person carrying on any of the following undertakings, that is to say :—

- (a) an undertaking consisting wholly or partly of the carrying on of any of the activities mentioned in sub-paragraphs (a), (b), (i) and (ii) of paragraph (2) of Regulation 56AB of the Defence (General) Regulations, 1939, and,
- (b) an undertaking consisting wholly or partly of the production, manufacture, processing, adaptation, distribution or sale of any scheduled goods or materials shall, whenever requested by or on behalf of the Minister, furnish such information relating to sales and purchases and offers for sale or purchase of scheduled goods and materials made in the course of carrying on the undertaking as may be specified in the request. [207]

6.—(1) This Order may be cited as the Control of Building Materials (No. 1) Order, 1947.

(2) The provisions of this Order other than those in Article 3 shall come into force on the 1st day of September, 1947. The provisions of Article 3 shall come into force on the 1st day of October, 1947. [208]

STATUTES :—

Summer Time Act, 1947	62

STATUTES

SUMMER TIME ACT, 1947

PRELIMINARY NOTE

The Summer Time Act, 1922 (19 Halsbury's Statutes 420), which was originally a temporary Act limited to expire on December 31, 1923, unless extended, provided that the time for general purposes in Great Britain should, during the period of summer time, be one hour in advance of Greenwich mean time. For the purposes of that Act the period of summer time was taken to be the period from 2 a.m. Greenwich mean time in the morning of the day next following the third Saturday in April (or, if that day were Easter Day, the day next following the second Saturday in April) to 2 a.m. Greenwich mean time in the morning of the day next following the third Saturday in September. By the Summer Time Act, 1925 (19 Halsbury's Statutes 421), the Act of 1922 was made permanent and the period of summer time was extended by substituting the first Saturday in October for the third Saturday in September.

During the war years the period of summer time for the purpose of the Summer Time Acts, 1922 and 1925, was fixed by the Defence (Summer Time) Regulations, 1939 (S. R. & O., 1939, No. 1379, as amended by S. R. & O., 1940, No. 1883, S. R. & O., 1941, No. 476, and S. R. & O., 1942, No. 506), double summer time being introduced in 1941. These regulations were revoked by S. R. & O., 1945, No. 1208, and the present legislation became necessary in order to fix a period other than that prescribed by the Acts of 1922 and 1925.

1947 as the period from March 16, 1947, to November 2, 1947, and in addition prescribes a period of double summer time which ran from 1 a.m. Greenwich mean time in the morning of April 13, 1947, to the same time in the morning of August 10, 1947.

In addition, power is taken to fix periods of summer time in future years by Orders in Council (which will require affirmative resolutions of both Houses of Parliament) in order to save the necessity of further legislation.

It is expressly provided that the meaning of "the period of summer time" in s. 1 (4) of the Road Transport Lighting Act, 1927 (19 Halsbury's Statutes 100), which defines "the hours of darkness" as respects the period of summer time and as respects the remainder of the year, in connection with the obligation imposed by that section as to the carrying of lights on vehicles during the hours of darkness, is not to be affected by the above provisions of the present Act or of any Order in Council made thereunder.

The Act is to be construed as one with the Summer Time Acts, 1922 and 1925, and may be cited with those Acts as the Summer Time Acts, 1922 to 1947. [211]

1. Summer time and double summer time for 1947 and subsequent years.—

(1) In relation to the year nineteen hundred and forty-seven, the Summer Time Acts, 1922 and 1925, shall have effect subject to the following modifications :—

(a) the period of summer time for the purposes of those Acts shall begin on the sixteenth day of March instead of the twentieth day of April, and shall end on the second day of November instead of the fifth day of October; and

(b) during the period beginning at one o'clock, Greenwich mean time, in the morning of the thirteenth day of April and ending at one o'clock Greenwich mean time, in the morning of the tenth day of August, the time for general purposes of Great Britain shall be two hours instead of one hour in advance of Greenwich mean time.

(2) In relation to any year after the year nineteen hundred and forty-seven His Majesty may by Order in Council direct—

(a) that the period of summer time for the purposes of the Summer Time Acts, 1922 and 1925, shall be such period as may be specified in the Order instead of the period prescribed by those Acts;

(b) that the time for general purposes in Great Britain shall, during any part of the period of summer time, be two hours instead of one hour in advance of Greenwich mean time, and the said Acts shall have effect subject to the provisions of any such Order in Council. [214]

(3) Nothing in this section or in any Order in Council made thereunder shall affect the meaning of "the period of summer time" in subsection (4) of section one of the Road Transport Lighting Act, 1927 (which defines the hours of darkness for the purposes of that section). [215]

Summer Time Act, 1925.—19 Halsbury's Statutes 421.

April 20, 1947, and October 5, 1947.—These are the dates on which summer time would have begun and ended, respectively, in accordance with the Summer Time Acts, 1922 and 1925, but for the modifications to those Acts effected by the present legislation.

Road Transport Lighting Act, 1927.—19 Halsbury's Statutes 100.

2. Provisions as to Orders in Council under s. 1.—(1) Any power to make an Order in Council conferred by this Act shall include power to revoke or vary any such Order by a subsequent Order in Council. [216]

(2) No Order in Council shall be made under this Act unless, after copies of the draft thereof have been laid before Parliament, each House presents an Address to His Majesty praying that the Order be made. [217]

Each House presents an Address.—Under this, the so-called “affirmative resolution procedure,” no Order in Council can be made without the express authority of Parliament; therefore, though Parliament is delegating some of its authority, a measure of control is retained. The provisions of the Statutory Instruments Act, 1946, ss. 4–7 (39 Halsbury’s Statutes 785 et seq.) do not apply to affirmative resolution procedure.

3. Application to Northern Ireland, Channel Islands and Isle of Man. [218]

4. Citation and construction.—This Act may be cited as the Summer Time Act, 1947, and this Act shall be construed as one with the Summer Time Acts, 1922 and 1925; and those Acts and this Act may be cited together as the Summer Time Acts, 1922 to 1947. [219]

STATUTES

AGRICULTURE ACT, 1947

PRELIMINARY NOTE

Four sections of the Agriculture Act, 1947, come within the scope of the present title, namely, ss. 98–101, which deal with the prevention of damage by animals and birds to crops, pasture, animal or human foodstuffs, livestock, trees, hedges, banks and works on land. These sections had not been brought into operation at the date of going to press (see s. 111 (3)), but when brought into operation they will replace the emergency powers contained in regulation 63 of the Defence (General) Regulations, 1939 (S. R. & O., 1939, No. 927, as amended), and orders made thereunder.

The Minister is empowered, for the prevention of this type of damage, to require the destruction or taking by a person having the right to do so of rabbits, hares and other rodents, deer, foxes and moles and wild birds and their eggs (other than certain protected wild birds) (s. 98 (1), (4)); to require steps to be taken to prevent the escape of captive animals which might cause damage (s. 99); to pay, with Treasury approval, contributions to bodies of persons towards the cost of destruction and taking (s. 98 (5)), and to provide services and equipment, for which reasonable charges may be made, to assist in such destruction and taking (s. 101). Poisonous gas may be used in the destruction of the animals mentioned above (s. 98 (3)).

There are penalties for failure to comply with the Minister’s requirements (s. 100 (1)), and, in addition, the Minister has the default power of arranging for the necessary destruction and taking and of recovering the cost from the defaulter (s. 100 (2)).

In relation to rabbits these provisions are to supersede those of Part I of the Prevention of Damage by Rabbits Act, 1939 (32 Halsbury’s Statutes 82), which is accordingly repealed prospectively by ss. 98 (6), 110 and Sched. XIII, post. [220]

Pest and Weed Control

98. Prevention of damage by pests.—(1) If it appears to the Minister that it is expedient so to do for the purpose of preventing damage to crops, pasture, animal or human foodstuffs, livestock, trees, hedges, banks or any works on land, he may by notice in writing served on any person having the right so to do require that person to take, within such time as may be specified in the notice, such steps (including such steps, if any, as may be so specified) as may be necessary for the killing, taking or destruction on land so specified of such animals or birds to which this section applies as may be so specified or the eggs of such birds. [222]

(2) A requirement shall not be imposed under the last foregoing subsection if apart from this subsection the killing, taking or destruction in question would be prohibited by law :

Provided that a requirement may be so imposed to kill or destroy game within the meaning of the Game Act, 1831, at a time of year at which apart from this proviso the killing or destruction would be prohibited by section three of that Act ; and for the purposes of the last foregoing subsection a person shall not be deemed not to have the right to comply with a requirement falling within this proviso by reason only that apart from this proviso compliance therewith would be prohibited as aforesaid. [223]

(3) Section four of the Prevention of Damage by Rabbits Act, 1939 (which allows the use in rabbit holes of poisonous gas, and the placing in rabbit holes of substances generating poisonous gas by evaporation or in contact with moisture) shall apply to the use of such gas and the placing of such substances in any hole, burrow or earth for the purpose of killing animals to which this section applies. [224]

(4) The animals to which this section applies are rabbits, hares and other rodents, deer, foxes and moles, and the birds to which this section applies are, in relation to any area, wild birds other than those specified in the Schedule to the Wild Birds Protection Act, 1880, as it applies in that area whether by virtue of the terms thereof or of any subsequent enactment or by virtue of an order of the Secretary of State; and this section shall apply to such other animals as may be prescribed:

Provided that regulations under this subsection may provide that for the purposes of subsection (3) of this section any such other animals specified in the regulations shall not be treated as animals to which this section applies. [225]

(5) The Minister may with the approval of the Treasury make contributions towards the expenses incurred by any body of persons in killing, taking or destroying animals or birds to which this section applies or the eggs of such birds. [226]

(6) Part I of the Prevention of Damage by Rabbits Act, 1939, shall cease to have effect. [227]

Effect of section.—See the Preliminary Note, ante.

The Minister.—The Minister of Agriculture and Fisheries.

If it appears to the Minister.—These words are inserted for the purpose of making the Minister the sole judge of the expediency of serving the notices referred to in sub-s. (1), ante. For a consideration of similar words, see E. v. Comptroller General of Patents, Ex parte Bayer Products, Ltd., [1941] 2 K. B. 306; [1941] 2 All E. R. 677.

As may be necessary.—The necessity or otherwise of the actual steps which the Minister may require to be taken will be a matter for the decision of the Court on proceedings for failure to comply with a requirement of the Minister.

Prohibited by law.—There are various existing statutory prohibitions on the destruction or taking of animals and birds, e.g., s. 5 (1) of the Prevention of Damage by Rabbits Act, 1939 (32 Halsbury's Statutes 83), prohibiting the use of spring traps above ground for the purpose of killing hares or rabbits, and s. 1 of the Wild Birds Protection Act, 1908 (1 Halsbury's Statutes 364), prohibiting the taking of a wild bird by means of a hook or other similar instrument; and the Minister is prevented, by sub-s. (2), ante, with one exception, from imposing a requirement under sub-s. (1) which would have the effect of dispensing with such prohibitions. The one exception is that he may require the destruction of game at any time of the year, notwithstanding the prohibition imposed by s. 3 of the Game Act, 1831 (8 Halsbury's Statutes 1066), on the killing or taking of game during the close season.

Game Act, 1831.—8 Halsbury's Statutes 1066. Game for the purpose of this Act is defined by s. 2 thereof as including hares, pheasants, partridges, grouse, heath or moor game, black game and bustards.

Prevention of Damage by Rabbits Act, 1939, s. 4.—32 Halsbury's Statutes 83. This section, which allows the use of poisonous gas in rabbit holes, or the placing in rabbit holes of substances which, by evaporation or in contact with moisture, generate gas, is now extended to cover, subject to the proviso to sub-s. (4), supra, all animals to which the present section applies.

It should be noted that the use of poisonous gas is confined to animals and that it may not in any event be used except in holes. There is no authority to use poison as distinct from such gas, but by the proviso to s. 8 of the Protection of Animals Act, 1911 (1 Halsbury's Statutes 377) (substituted by s. 1 of the Protection of Animals (Amendment) Act, 1927), poison may be placed for destroying rats, mice or other small vermin so long as reasonable precautions are taken to prevent injury to domestic animals and wild birds.

Wild Birds Protection Act, 1880, Sched.—1 Halsbury's Statutes 358. This Schedule protects 86 different varieties of birds.

Prescribed.—This means prescribed by regulations made by the Minister (see ss. 108 (2), 109 (3), title AGRICULTURE, ante). Animals added by regulations may be excluded from the provisions of sub-s. (3), ante, as to destruction by poisonous gas.

Body of persons.—Grants under sub-s. (5), supra, are not payable to individuals.

Use of spring traps.—The Bill, as originally drafted, contained a separate clause similar to para. (5B) of regulation 63 of the Defence (General) Regulations, 1939 (S. R. & O., 1939, No. 927, as amended), modifying the provisions of s. 5 (1) of the Prevention of Damage by Rabbits Act, 1939 (32 Halsbury's Statutes 83), which prohibits the use of spring traps above the ground for the killing of hares or rabbits. The effect of the clause would have been to allow the use of spring traps above the ground in cases where this was authorised by the Minister. Speaking on the clause in Committee, the Minister said that he had sought the views of County Executive Committees and about half of them had been of opinion that open trapping was necessary to the effective control of rabbits, while the other half had held the contrary opinion. He further added that during the years 1941 to 1945 some 1,500 open trapping permits had been granted annually by War Agricultural Executive Committees

(H. of C. Official Report, S.C.A., April 16, 1947, col. 915). On a division the clause was rejected by a substantial majority.

Definitions.—For definitions of “pasture” and “livestock,” see s. 109 (3), title AGRICULTURE, ante.

99. Prevention of escape of captive animals.—If it appears to the Minister that, for the purpose of preventing such damage as is mentioned in the last foregoing section, it is expedient to prevent the escape of any animals from land on which they are kept in captivity, the Minister may by notice in writing served on the occupier of the land require him to take within such time as may be specified in the notice such steps as may be necessary to prevent the escape thereof, including such steps, if any, as may be specified in the notice. [228]

Effect of section.—See the Preliminary Note, ante.

The Minister.—The Minister of Agriculture and Fisheries.

If it appears to the Minister.—See note to s. 98, ante.

100. Supplementary provisions relating to sections ninety-eight and ninety-nine.—(1) If any person fails to comply with a requirement imposed under either of the two last foregoing sections he shall be liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding twenty-five pounds, and to a further fine not exceeding five pounds for each day after conviction on which the failure continues. [229]

(2) Without prejudice to any proceedings under the last foregoing subsection, where a requirement imposed under either of the two last foregoing sections has not been complied with, any person authorised by the Minister to act for the purposes of this subsection may at any time enter on the land to which the requirement relates and take such steps as the Minister may direct to secure compliance with the requirement; and the reasonable cost of taking such steps shall be recoverable by the Minister from the person on whom the requirement was imposed.

Any dispute arising under this subsection as to what is the reasonable cost of taking any such steps as aforesaid shall be determined by the arbitration of an arbitrator appointed in default of agreement by the President of the Royal Institution of Chartered Surveyors. [230]

(3) The Minister may give such directions as appear to him to be expedient authorising the keeping of animals, birds, or eggs killed or taken in pursuance of the provisions of this or the last but one foregoing section and authorising the disposal of such animals, birds or eggs, whether for the purpose of being used as food or otherwise. [231]

(4) Any person authorised or required to kill or take any animal or bird in pursuance of the provisions of this or the last but one foregoing section shall not be required to obtain for that purpose a licence to kill game, and shall have the same power of selling any such animal or bird in pursuance of any such authorisation or requirement as if he had such a licence, but nothing in this section shall exempt any person from the provisions of the Gun Licence Act, 1870. [232]

(5) Where a person incurs any expense reasonably necessary for the purpose of complying with any requirement imposed on him under either of the two last foregoing sections, or where any cost is recovered from a person under subsection (2) of this section, then if he alleges that the expense or cost ought to be borne wholly or in part by some other person having an interest in the land to which the requirement in question relates, he may apply to the county court in accordance with rules of court, and the court, after hearing the parties and any witnesses whom they may desire to call, may make such order for securing that the applicant is wholly or in part indemnified by that other person in respect of the said expense or cost as the court considers just and equitable in the circumstances of the case. [233]

(6) Any notice to be served under either of the two last foregoing sections on the occupier of land used for agriculture shall, where an agent or servant of the occupier is responsible for the control of the farming of the land, be duly served if served on the said agent or servant. [234]

Effect of section.—See the Preliminary Note, ante.

The Minister.—The Minister of Agriculture and Fisheries.

Licence to kill game.—The Game Licence Act, 1860, s. 4 (8 Halsbury's Statutes 1086), requires licences to be obtained for the taking, killing or pursuing, or the aiding or assisting in any manner in the taking, killing or pursuing, of any game, or any woodcock, snipe, quail, landrail, coney or deer. A number of exceptions and exemptions are contained in s. 5 of that Act. S. 14 of the same Act requires the taking out of excise licences to deal in game.

Gun Licence Act, 1870.—S. 7 of this Act (8 Halsbury's Statutes 1094) requires licences to be taken out by persons using or carrying guns elsewhere than in dwelling-houses or the curtilages thereof under penalty of £10. There are exemptions in favour of certain persons, including the holders of licences to kill game, occupiers of land using or carrying guns only for scaring birds or killing vermin on their land, and persons using guns solely for such purposes by order of the occupiers if the latter hold gun or game licences.

101. Provision by Minister of equipment and services for pest control.—

(1) The Minister may, for the purpose of assisting in the killing, taking or destruction of animals or birds to which section ninety-eight of this Act applies, and the eggs of such birds, provide such services and equipment, appliances and other material as appear to the Minister to be requisite for that purpose. [235]

(2) The Minister may make such reasonable charges, if any, as he thinks fit in respect of any assistance rendered under the last foregoing subsection, and may recover the amount of any such charge from the person at whose request the assistance was rendered. [236]

Effect of section.—See the Preliminary Note, ante.

The Minister.—The Minister of Agriculture and Fisheries.

Animals or birds to which s. 98 applies.—These are specified in s. 98 (4), ante. Additions may be made to the list of animals by regulations.

Recovery of charges.—The question what charges are reasonable is in the complete discretion of the Minister.

110. Repeals.—The enactments specified in the Thirteenth Schedule to this Act are, save as provided in Part III of this Act, hereby repealed to the extent specified in the third column of that schedule. [237]

Commencement of section.—Up to the time of going to press this section had been brought into operation as from October 1, 1947, only to the extent specified in the Agriculture Act, 1947 (Commencement) Order, 1947; S. R. & O., 1947, No. 1767 (see title AGRICULTURE, ante). Of the enactments mentioned in Sched. XIII as printed post, only the repeal of s. 5 (4) of the Destructive Imported Animals Act, 1932, was included.

Qualifications on repeal.—Since 1889 savings on a repeal have, by s. 38 of the Interpretation Act, 1889 (18 Halsbury's Statutes 1005), attached automatically without special mention.

111. Short title, commencement and extent.—(1) This Act may be cited as the Agriculture Act, 1947. [238]

(2) This Act shall come into operation on such date as His Majesty may by Order in Council appoint; and an Order under this subsection may appoint different dates in relation to different provisions of this Act. [239]

(3) This Act, except in so far as is expressly provided therein, shall not extend to Scotland or Northern Ireland. [240]

Date of commencement.—Up to the time of going to press, no date for the commencement of ss. 98–101, ante, had been specified. S. 110 and Sched. XIII had been brought into operation only to the extent specified in the note to s. 110, supra.

ACUTE RHEUMATISM REGULATIONS, 1947

August 21, 1947

Whereas the Minister of Health is empowered by section 143 of the Public Health Act, 1936, to make regulations with a view to the treatment of persons affected with any epidemic, endemic or infectious disease and for preventing the spread of such diseases, and by such regulations to apply, with or without modifications, to any disease to which the regulations relate, any enactment (including any enactment in the said Act) relating to the notification of disease or to notifiable diseases ;

And whereas acute rheumatism as herein defined is an endemic disease ;

And whereas the Minister of Health is further empowered by section 283 of the said Act to prescribe the form of any certificate to be used for any of the purposes of the said Act :

Now therefore the Minister of Health in exercise of his powers under the said sections and of all other powers enabling him in that behalf hereby makes the following regulations, that is to say :—

1.—(1) These regulations may be cited as the Acute Rheumatism Regulations, 1947.

(2) These regulations shall come into operation on the first day of October, 1947, and shall continue in operation for a period of three years from that date. [242]

2. These regulations shall apply to the administrative county of Lincoln, Parts of Lindsey, and to the county boroughs of Bristol, Grimsby, Lincoln and Sheffield, and shall be enforced and executed in the said county and in each of the said county boroughs by the council thereof. [243]

3.—(1) In these regulations unless the context otherwise requires—

“acute rheumatism” means the following conditions occurring separately or together in a person under the age of sixteen years :—

- (i) rheumatic pains or arthritis accompanied by a rise of temperature ;
- (ii) rheumatic chorea ;
- (iii) rheumatic carditis ;
- (iv) valvular disease of the heart of rheumatic origin.

“local authority” means as respects the County of Lincoln, Parts of Lindsey, or any of the county boroughs to which these regulations apply, the council of the said county or county borough.

(2) The Interpretation Act, 1889, applies to the interpretation of these regulations as it applies to the interpretation of an Act of Parliament. [244]

4. Every local authority shall give notice of these regulations by advertisement in one or more local newspapers circulating within their county or district and in such other manner as they think sufficient for informing persons interested and shall also send a copy of these regulations to every registered medical practitioner who, after due enquiry, is ascertained to be practising within their county or district. [245]

5. Sections 144 to 146 of the Public Health Act, 1936, being enactments relating to the notification of disease, shall, as modified and set out in the first schedule to these regulations, apply to acute rheumatism. [246]

6.—(1) Upon the receipt of a certificate under these regulations or on becoming aware in any other way of a case or suspected case of acute rheumatism in the county or district of the local authority the medical officer of health or an officer of the authority acting under his instructions shall make such enquiries and take such steps as are necessary or desirable for investigating the source of disease, for removing conditions harmful to the patient and for arranging for the treatment of the patient :

Provided that nothing in this regulation shall be deemed to authorise the medical officer of health or other officer to take any of the steps herein mentioned at any institution other than one belonging to the local authority except with the consent of the managers of that institution.

(2) The duties assigned to the medical officer of health by the Sanitary Officers (Outside London) Regulations, 1935, shall be deemed to extend to and to include all action by a medical officer of health in the execution of these regulations. [247]

7. The form set out in the second schedule to these regulations is hereby prescribed as the form of certificate to be used for the purposes of these regulations. [248]

FIRST SCHEDULE

PUBLIC HEALTH ACT, 1936

Section 144.—(1) When an inmate of any building used for human habitation is suffering from acute rheumatism every medical practitioner attending on, or called in to visit that inmate (in this section referred to as the “patient”) shall, as soon as he becomes aware that the patient is suffering from acute rheumatism send to the medical officer of health of the local authority in whose county or district the building is situate, a certificate in the prescribed form :

Provided that this subsection shall not apply where the medical practitioner has reasonable grounds for supposing that the case has already been notified under these regulations.

(2) Any medical practitioner who fails to send a certificate which he is required by this section to send shall be liable to a fine not exceeding forty shillings.

Section 145.—(1) A local authority shall, upon application, supply forms of certificate for use under the last preceding section free of charge to any medical practitioner practising in their county or district, and shall pay to a medical practitioner for each certificate duly sent by him under that section a fee of two shillings and sixpence if the case occurs in his private practice, and a fee of one shilling if the case occurs in his practice as medical officer of any public body or institution.

(2) Where the medical practitioner attending a patient is himself the medical officer of health of the county or district, he shall be entitled to the fee to which, if he were not the medical officer of health, he would have been entitled in respect of a certificate sent by him to the medical officer.

Section 146.—(1) Where a case of acute rheumatism occurs in a building in the occupation of any of His Majesty's forces, or of any person employed by or under the Admiralty, the Army Council, or the Air Council, it shall be the duty of the medical practitioner attending the patient to certify the case to the medical officer of health of the local authority, if it would have been his duty so to certify it had it occurred in a building in private occupation.

(2) Unless the medical practitioner is a medical officer holding a commission in His Majesty's forces, the local authority shall pay to him for the certificate a fee of one shilling, whether the case occurs in his private practice or not. [249]

POLISH RESETTLEMENT ACT, 1947

(10 & 11 Geo. 6, c. 19)

PRELIMINARY NOTE

The Polish Resettlement Act, 1947, was passed primarily to enable certain Government departments to take over functions previously performed by the Interim Treasury Committee for Polish Questions, which was set up when the "Caretaker" Government withdrew its recognition of the London Polish Government on July 5, 1945. S. 6 of the Act deals with the provision by the Minister of Education of educational services for Polish citizens in Great Britain, the cost of such services being met by the Minister and not by the local authorities.

Among other measures, it is proposed to establish in London a Polish University College which will continue and extend the work of the Polish Board of Technical Studies. This is, however, to be regarded only as a temporary expedient lasting until there are sufficient vacancies at British universities to accommodate all Polish students desiring further education without giving them preference over British students.

The curriculum at the College is to be on British lines so as to qualify students to partake of the British way of life either in this country or in the Dominions. The students, who are expected to number about 1,300, will receive grants varying from £180 to £240 a year exclusive of fees. Primary and secondary schools set up by the London Polish Government and taken over by the Interim Treasury Committee are also to be continued under the present Act.

6. Provision by the Minister of Education of educational services.—

(1) The Minister of Education may, for meeting the educational needs of persons being of any description for whom the Assistance Board have power to provide accommodation under section three of this Act or members of any of the Polish resettlement forces, provide any such services and do any such things as a local education authority or the Minister of Education are or is authorised or required to provide or do, or may be authorised or required to provide or do, by or under the Education Acts, 1944 and 1946. [253]

(2) The Minister of Education may make arrangements with any other government department or other authority or person for the provision of services or the doing of things under this section, on his behalf and at his expense, by that authority or person. [254]

(3) The expenses of the Minister of Education under this section shall be defrayed out of moneys provided by Parliament. [255]

Minister of Education.—S. 1 (1) of the Education Act, 1944 (37 Halsbury's Statutes 127) established the Ministry of Education in place of the Board of Education and provided for the appointment of a Minister of Education.

Assistance Board.—This was formerly the Unemployment Assistance Board, constituted under s. 35 of the Unemployment Act, 1934 (27 Halsbury's Statutes 786). Its name was changed and its functions enlarged by s. 10 of the Old Age and Widows' Pensions Act, 1940 (33 Halsbury's Statutes 517).

S. 3 of this Act.—This section empowers the Assistance Board to accommodate persons in Great Britain "being of any of the categories specified in subsection (2) of the last preceding section, or dependants of persons of any of those categories or of members of any of the Polish resettlement forces serving therewith, or persons formerly dependent on a person who was of any of those categories, or was such a member of any of those forces, at that former time." The categories specified in s. 2 (2) are:—

"(a) Poles whose registration under the Aliens Order, 1920, took place on or after the first day of September, nineteen hundred and thirty-nine, and who have been permitted to enter, or to remain in, the United Kingdom in view of circumstances attributable to war, as to which, in case of doubt, a certificate of the Secretary of State shall be conclusive;

"(b) former members of any of the forces mentioned in subsection (1) of section one of this Act (including the naval detachment therein mentioned), and members of any of those forces relegated from service therewith;

"(c) wives of men of categories (a) and (b), and any woman who, having been the wife of a man of either of those categories, has ceased so to be, and has not remarried;

"(d) persons who have been permitted to enter the United Kingdom on or after the first day of September, nineteen hundred and thirty-nine, as being followers of a body of Polish forces entering the United Kingdom and dependent thereon or on members thereof, as to which, in case of doubt, a certificate of the Secretary of State shall be conclusive."

Polish resettlement forces.—By s. 10 (1) of the present Act this phrase means "the Polish Re-Settlement Corps, the Polish Re-Settlement Corps (Royal Air Force), the Polish Re-Settlement Section of the Auxiliary Territorial Service, and the Polish Re-Settlement Section of the Women's Auxiliary Air Force."

Local education authority.—It is provided by s. 6 (1) of the Education Act, 1944 (37 Halsbury's Statutes 130) that, subject to certain provisions as to the establishment of joint education boards (Sched. I, Part I to that Act), the local education authority for each county shall be the council of the county, and for each county borough shall be the council of the county borough.

Education Act, 1944.—37 Halsbury's Statutes 123. This Act replaced almost the whole of the previous law relating to education. It extended the powers and duties both of local education authorities, which are now under a duty to provide facilities for secondary, technical and adult education, and of the central authority, the Minister being charged with the duty, not merely of superintending education, but of promoting the education of the people of England and Wales and securing the effective execution by local authorities under his control and direction of the national policy for providing a varied and comprehensive educational service in every area.

Education Act, 1946.—39 Halsbury's Statutes 122. Ss. 1-6 of this Act gave local education authorities certain additional powers, for instance, as to payment of the cost of enlarging a controlled school (s. 1), and as to the division of a single school into two or more schools (s. 2).

Sub-s. (2).—This subsection provides for delegation of the Minister's powers. The "other authority or person" to whom powers may be delegated need not necessarily be British (see 433 H. of C. Official Report 1535 et seq.).

Intention of the Minister.—When the present Act, as a Bill, was being considered by the House of Commons at the Committee Stage on February 20, 1947, the Minister of Education said of the present provisions:

"It seems to me that all this Clause as it stands does is to place the Ministry of Education in a position to carry out on behalf of the Minister what hitherto would have been carried out by the local education authority. Because of that fact it has set up a special machine for the purpose. It is my intention . . . to appoint a committee to work out all the points brought to notice by hon. Members, but, in carrying out our duty, we do not intend to imperil the opportunities which are being offered to our own ex-Servicemen."

13. Short title.—This Act may be cited as the Polish Resettlement Act, 1947. [256]

NATIONAL SERVICE ACT, 1947

PRELIMINARY NOTE

When conscription was introduced early in 1939 there was no suggestion that it should be anything but a temporary expedient designed to meet a particular threat to national security. Since then, however, the whole basis of recruitment to the Armed Forces has changed : Britain has to a large extent departed from her tradition of voluntary service and has substituted in its place arrangements based on the continental system of conscription.

In these circumstances it has been thought appropriate to make such provision (s. 10) as is possible for the continuation of the education of young men of eighteen and over while serving their compulsory period (usually twelve months) of whole-time service under the new system which is designed to commence on January 1, 1949. The effect of this provision is summarised in the notes to s. 10, infra.

S. 11 of the present Act substantially reproduces s. 10 of the Military Training Act, 1939 (32 Halsbury's Statutes 605), which, suspended by s. 12 of the National Service (Armed Forces) Act, 1939 (32 Halsbury's Statutes 1053), was allowed to expire on May 26, 1942.

Other relevant sections of the present Act appear under the titles AIR-RAID PRECAUTIONS, ante, and OFFICERS OF LOCAL AUTHORITIES, post. [257]

Education and Education Authorities

10. Further education during whole-time service.—(1) The duty of local education authorities under section forty-one of the Education Act, 1944, to secure the provision for their area of adequate facilities for further education shall not extend to any person during his term of whole-time service ; and a person shall, during his term of whole-time service, be exempt from compulsory attendance for further education under that Act. [259]

(2) It shall be the duty of the Service Authorities to provide, so far as may be practicable, further education within the meaning of the said section forty-one for persons during their terms of whole-time service ; and, notwithstanding the provisions of the last foregoing subsection, every local education authority shall have power to provide, or secure the provision of, such facilities for further education for such persons as aforesaid as may be agreed between them and any Service Authority, upon such terms, if any, as may be so agreed. [260]

(3) In making arrangements for such further education as aforesaid the Service Authorities shall have regard to any representations made to them by or on behalf of bodies of persons concerned with education. [261]

Effect of section.—S. 41 of the Education Act, 1944 (37 Halsbury's Statutes 170), obliges local education authorities to secure the provision of facilities for (a) full-time and part-time education for persons over compulsory school age, and (b) leisure-time occupation in training and recreation, when desired, and the object of the present section is to transfer, as from January 1, 1949, the obligation to the Service Authorities as regards national service men during their whole-time service. Local education authorities may, however, make educational arrangements with the Service Authorities. The obligation of local education authorities under s. 41 remains unchanged during the subsequent part-time service under s. 2 (2) of the present Act.

Local education authority.—This term is defined in s. 114 (1) of the Education Act, 1944 (37 Halsbury's Statutes 217).

11. Information to be furnished by education authorities.—It shall be the duty of every local education authority, and of the governing body or other persons having the management of any university, school or other educational institution, to give to the Minister, on his request, such information in their possession, or reasonably available to them, about male persons receiving, or who have received, education for which the local education authority are responsible, or, as the case may be, education at the university, school or other institution, as the Minister may from time to time require for the purpose of assisting his consideration of questions connected with their being called up for service under this Act. [262]

Effect of section.—As from January 1, 1949, persons and bodies responsible for educational establishments are required to give to the Minister on request available information as to male pupils and ex-pupils in order to assist the Minister in considering questions connected with their call-up.

The Minister.—The Minister of Labour and National Service; see s. 21 of the National Service (Armed Forces) Act, 1939 (32 Halsbury's Statutes 1059), and the Minister of National Service Order, 1939, S. R. & O., 1939, No. 1118.

Questions connected with their being called up.—The Minister might, for instance, wish to check a man's registration particulars; the authorities might be in process of calling up someone and might find that there were two people of the same name, or of similar names and registration numbers, and they might not be sure which was which. It was therefore desired to be able to ask educational authorities for men's names, registration numbers, home addresses etc. (see 437 H. of C. Official Report 737).

Supplemental

28. Commencement, citation and repeal.—(1) This Act shall, except as otherwise expressly provided therein, come into force on the first day of January, nineteen hundred and forty-nine. [263]

(2) This Act may be cited as the National Service Act, 1947; and the National Service Acts, 1939 to 1946, and this Act may be cited together as the National Service Acts, 1939 to 1947. [264]

SCHEMES OF DIVISIONAL ADMINISTRATION (NOTICES) REGULATIONS, 1947

January 27, 1947

1. The Minister of Education in pursuance of sub-paragraph (3) of paragraph 7 of Part III of the First Schedule to the Education Act, 1944, as amended by the Education Act, 1946, hereby prescribes as follows:—

(a) Notices in the form set out in the First Schedule to these Regulations shall be published in respect of every Scheme of Divisional Administration made by a Local Education Authority, other than a Scheme of Divisional Administration varying, revoking or supplementing an existing Scheme of Divisional Administration.

- (b) Notices in the form set out in the Second Schedule to these Regulations shall be published in respect of every Scheme of Divisional Administration made by the Council of a Borough or Urban District, which is an Excepted District, other than a Scheme of Divisional Administration varying, revoking or supplementing an existing Scheme of Divisional Administration.
- (c) Notices in the form set out in the Third Schedule to these Regulations shall be published in respect of every Scheme of Divisional Administration made by a Local Education Authority or a Council of a Borough or Urban District, which is an Excepted District, for varying, revoking or supplementing an existing Scheme of Divisional Administration :

Provided that the requirements of this Regulation may be deemed to have been fulfilled in any case if a form is used which is as near to the appropriate form hereinbefore prescribed as circumstances may permit. [265]

2. These Regulations shall have effect, as from the date on which they are sealed, in substitution for the Schemes of Divisional Administration (Notices) Provisional Regulations, 1946, but without prejudice to the previous operation of, or anything done under, those Regulations. [266]

3. The Interpretation Act, 1889, shall apply to the interpretation of these Regulations as it applies to the interpretation of an Act of Parliament. [267]

4. These Regulations may be cited as the Schemes of Divisional Administration (Notices) Regulations, 1947. [268]

STATUTES

HOUSE OF COMMONS (REDISTRIBUTION OF SEATS)

PRELIMINARY NOTE

This Act, which received the Royal Assent on February 18, 1947, amends the rules as to the redistribution of parliamentary constituencies set out in the Third Schedule to the House of Commons (Redistribution of Seats) Act, 1944 (87 Halsbury's Statutes 389), so far as they relate to the application of the electoral quota. The rules as amended are set out in the Schedule to the present Act.

The principal changes are threefold. The first concerns the numerical relation of constituencies one with another. Rule 4 of the original rules provided that the electorate of a constituency returning a single member should not be greater or less than the electoral quota by more than approximately one-quarter of the quota, and it was only subject to the observance of this formula that Commissions were required to have regard to the conformity of parliamentary constituencies with local government boundaries (r. 5). In some cases, however, the provisional recommendations of the Commissions have shown that adherence to the formula would result in the dismemberment of local government areas and a severing of historic local ties. To avoid this, s. 1 of the present Act accordingly amends the rules in such a way that Commissions will no longer be tied to a mathematical formula in framing constituencies but, while still aiming at an approximate numerical equality, will be able to give prime consideration to the preservation, for parliamentary purposes, of local government areas unless adherence to that principle would result in such an excessive disparity between the electorate of a constituency and the electoral quota or between such electorate and those of neighbouring constituencies that a departure therefrom is desirable.

The second change concerns two-member constituencies. Rule 3 (1) of the original rules required such constituencies either to be divided or to return only one member if the electorate varied too greatly from the electoral quota. Here, again, the prescribed formula is abolished and Commissions are given a discretion, so that, if thought proper after local inquiry, constituencies of this kind may in certain cases remain undivided and yet continue to return two members.

The third change is consequential. As fresh reviews based on the amended rules will be necessary, a new enumeration date has been fixed for the purposes of the initial report of the Boundary Commissions under s. 3 of the Act of 1944 (87 Halsbury's Statutes 392). This is to be October 15, 1946, the date of publication of the annual register for that year (Representation of the People Act, 1945, s. 15; 88 Halsbury's Statutes 80). [272]

An Act to relax the rules set out in the Third Schedule to the House of Commons (Redistribution of Seats) Act, 1944, so far as they relate to the application of the electoral quota and, in consequence thereof, to postpone the enumeration date for the purposes of the initial report under section three of that Act.

1. Amendment of 7 & 8 Geo. 6, c. 41.—(1) In the rules set out in the Third Schedule to the House of Commons (Redistribution of Seats) Act,

1944 (hereafter in this Act referred to as "the principal Act"), the following provisions shall cease to have effect, that is to say—

- (a) rule 4 (which limits the electorate of a constituency to not more than a quarter above or below the electoral quota and to which rule 5 as to conformity with local government boundaries is subject); and
- (b) in rule 3, paragraph (1) (which requires a two-member constituency to be divided or return a single member, if its electorate is not within the limits laid down by that paragraph for such a constituency) and sub-paragraph (i) of paragraph (3) (which is supplemental to the said paragraph (1)). [274]

(2) In lieu thereof, the following rule shall be inserted immediately after rule 5 of the said rules, that is to say,—

"5A.—(1) The electorate of any constituency shall be as near the electoral quota as is practicable having regard to the foregoing rules; and a Boundary Commission may depart from the strict application of the last foregoing rule if it appears to them that a departure is desirable to avoid an excessive disparity between the electorate of any constituency and the electoral quota, or between the electorate thereof and that of neighbouring constituencies in the part of the United Kingdom with which they are concerned.

(2) For the purposes of this rule a constituency returning two members shall be treated as two constituencies"; and paragraph (2) of the said rule 3 shall have effect with the substitution for the words "Any other two-member constituency shall be divided as aforesaid" of the words "Any two-member constituency shall be divided into or among two or more other constituencies, or shall be required to return a single member," and with the addition at the end thereof of the words "and, having regard to the two next following rules, that it is undesirable to require it to return a single member". [275]

(3) Accordingly the rules set out in the said Third Schedule shall have effect, with the amendments made by section thirty-three of the Representation of the People Act, 1945, and by this Act, as set out in the Schedule to this Act. [276]

(4) The amendments made by this section shall apply for the purposes of the initial report of the Boundary Commissions under section three of the principal Act, as well as to their subsequent reports under section four thereof; and accordingly the enumeration date for the purposes of the initial report shall be the fifteenth day of October, nineteen hundred and forty-six, instead of the fifteenth day of October, nineteen hundred and forty-five (being the day appointed by the Secretary of State under subsection (2) of section thirty-three of the Representation of the People Act, 1945). [277]

(5) Any increase occasioned by the passing of the last foregoing subsection in the expenses of the Commissions which, under paragraph 3 of Part II of the First Schedule to the principal Act, are to be defrayed out of moneys provided by Parliament shall also be so defrayed. [278]

House of Commons (Redistribution of Seats) Act, 1944, ss. 3, 4 and Sched. III.—37 Halsbury's Statutes 392, 396 et seq.

Representation of the People Act, 1945, s. 33.—38 Halsbury's Statutes 92.

Enumeration date.—This was fixed as October 15, 1945, by the House of Commons (Boundary Commissions) (Appointed Day) Order, 1945, S. R. & O., 1945, No. 1289, made under s. 33 (2) of the Representation of the People Act, 1945 (38 Halsbury's Statutes 92). Since Boundary Commissions will have to make fresh reviews based on the amended rules, a new date is now fixed.

Expenses of Commission.—For paragraph 3 of Sched. I, Part II, to the 1944 Act, see 37 Halsbury's Statutes 395; under this provision the travelling and other expenses of the members of Boundary Commissions and the remuneration and expenses of the Assistant Commissioners, secretaries and other officers are to be defrayed out of moneys provided by Parliament.

2. Short title and citation.—This Act may be cited as the House of Commons (Redistribution of Seats) Act, 1947, and this Act and the principal Act as amended by the Representation of the People Act, 1945, may be cited together as the House of Commons (Redistribution of Seats) Acts, 1944 and 1947. [279]

Principal Act.—The House of Commons (Redistribution of Seats) Act, 1944 (37 Halsbury's Statutes 389) (see s. 1 (1), ante). The Act is amended by s. 33 of the Representation of the People Act, 1945 (38 Halsbury's Statutes 92).

SCHEDULE

Section 1

THE THIRD SCHEDULE TO THE PRINCIPAL ACT, AS AMENDED

RULES FOR DISTRIBUTION OF SEATS

1. The number of constituencies in the several parts of the United Kingdom set out in the first column of the following table shall be as stated respectively in the second column of that table—

Part of the United Kingdom	No. of Constituencies
Great Britain .. .. .	Not substantially greater or less than 591.
Scotland .. .. .	Not less than 71.
Wales .. .. .	Not less than 35.
Northern Ireland .. .. .	12.

2.—(1) A two-member constituency within the meaning of the next following rule which is not divided or required to return a single member as therein provided shall, subject to any adjustment of its boundaries made in accordance with that rule, continue to return two members.

(2) Every other constituency shall return a single member.

3.—(2) Any two-member constituency shall be divided into or among two or more other constituencies, or shall be required to return a single member, unless the Boundary Commission concerned, after causing a local inquiry to be held, are satisfied, having regard to any particular circumstances affecting the constituency, that it is undesirable so to divide it and, having regard to the two next following rules, that it is undesirable to require it to return a single member.

(3) Where the boundaries of a borough as last defined for the purpose of ascertaining the boundaries of a two-member constituency—

(a) do not include an area which is included within the boundaries of the borough as defined for local government purposes on the enumeration date; or

(b) include an area which is not included within the boundaries of the borough as so defined for local government purposes;

then if it is determined under paragraph (2) of this rule that the constituency shall not be divided as aforesaid, the boundaries of the borough shall be redefined, for the purpose of ascertaining the boundaries of the constituency, so as to include or exclude that area, as the case may be.

(4) In the last foregoing paragraph, for references to a borough there shall be substituted, in its application to Scotland, references to a county of a city and, in its application to Northern Ireland, references to a county.

(5) In this rule the expression "two-member constituency" means a constituency returning two members on the enumeration date.

5.—(1) So far as is practicable having regard to the foregoing rules—

(a) in England and Wales,—

(i) no county or any part thereof shall be included in a constituency which includes the whole or part of any other county or the whole or part of a county borough or metropolitan borough;

(ii) no county borough or any part thereof shall be included in a constituency which includes the whole or part of any other county borough or the whole or part of a metropolitan borough;

(iii) no metropolitan borough or any part thereof shall be included in a constituency which includes the whole or part of any other metropolitan borough ;

(iv) no county district shall be included partly in one constituency and partly in another ;

(b) in Scotland,—

(i) no county or burgh shall be included partly in one parliamentary county and partly in another, or partly in a parliamentary county and partly in a parliamentary borough ;

(ii) no burgh other than a county of a city shall be included partly in one constituency and partly in another ;

(c) in Northern Ireland, no county district shall be included partly in one constituency and partly in another.

(2) In paragraph (1) of this rule the following expressions have the following meanings, that is to say :—

“ county ” means, in sub-paragraph (a), an administrative county other than the county of London, and, in sub-paragraph (b), a county exclusive of any burgh situate therein ;

“ county borough ” has the same meaning as in the Local Government Act, 1933 ;

“ county district ” has, in sub-paragraph (a), the same meaning as in the Local Government Act, 1933, and, in sub-paragraph (c), the same meaning as in the Local Government (Ireland) Act, 1898.

5A.—(1) The electorate of any constituency shall be as near the electoral quota as is practicable having regard to the foregoing rules ; and a Boundary Commission may depart from the strict application of the last foregoing rule if it appears to them that a departure is desirable to avoid an excessive disparity between the electorate of any constituency and the electoral quota, or between the electorate thereof and that of neighbouring constituencies in the part of the United Kingdom with which they are concerned.

(2) For the purposes of this rule a constituency returning two members shall be treated as two constituencies.

6. A Boundary Commission may depart from the strict application of the last two foregoing rules if special geographical considerations, including in particular the size, shape and accessibility of a constituency, appear to them to render a departure desirable.

7. Nothing in rules 2 to 6 of these rules shall apply to the City of London, but that City as constituted at the commencement of this Act shall continue to be a separate constituency, and shall return either two members or a single member as may be provided by the Act giving effect (whether with or without modifications) to the recommendations contained in the reports submitted by the Boundary Commissions under section three of this Act.

8.—(1) For the purpose of these rules—

(a) the expression “ electoral quota ” means—

(i) in the application of these rules to a constituency in Great Britain, a number obtained by dividing the electorate for Great Britain by the number of constituencies in Great Britain existing on the enumeration date, or, in applying these rules for the purpose of section three of this Act, by the number of such constituencies existing at the commencement of this Act, namely five hundred and ninety-one ; and

(ii) in the application of these rules to a constituency in Northern Ireland, a number obtained by dividing the electorate for Northern Ireland by the number of constituencies in Northern Ireland existing on the enumeration date ;

(b) the expression “ electorate ” means—

(i) in relation to a constituency or any part thereof, the number of persons whose names appear on the parliamentary register of electors in force on the enumeration date under the Representation of the People Acts for the constituency or that part thereof, or, if no such register is then so in force, the last such register which was so in force; and

(ii) in relation to Great Britain or Northern Ireland, the aggregate electorate as hereinbefore defined of all the constituencies therein.

(2) In reckoning for the purposes of these rules the number of constituencies in any part of the United Kingdom, a constituency returning two members shall be reckoned as two constituencies. [280]

General note.—This Schedule comprises Sched. III to the House of Commons (Redistribution of Seats) Act, 1944 (37 Halsbury's Statutes 389), as amended by s. 33 (3) of the Representation of the People Act, 1945 (38 Halsbury's Statutes 92), and by s. 1 of the present Act. For the effect of the amendments made by the present Act, see the Preliminary Note, ante.

ELECTORAL REGISTRATION REGULATIONS, 1947 *

July 2, 1947

In pursuance of the powers conferred upon me by the Parliamentary Electors (War-Time Registration) Acts, 1943 and 1944, the Representation of the People Act, 1945, and the Elections and Jurors Act, 1945, I [i.e., the Secretary of State] hereby make the following Regulations:—

1.—(1) These regulations may be cited as the Electoral Registration Regulations, 1947.

(2) These regulations shall come into force on the first day of August, nineteen hundred and forty-seven. [281]

2. For paragraphs (1) and (2) of regulation 22 of the Electoral Registration Regulations, 1946, there shall be substituted the following paragraphs:—

“(1) It shall be the duty of the registration officer, within the time allowed by these regulations, to prepare and publish a civilian residence electors list, a business premises electors list, a ratepayers electors list and a service electors list, and every such list, other than a civilian residence electors list compiled in accordance with sub-paragraph (b) of the next succeeding paragraph of this regulation, shall be in the form to be adopted for the corresponding part of the register for the constituency.

(2) The civilian residence electors list—

(a) shall contain the name and qualifying addresses of all persons who appear to the registration officer, from information furnished to him in accordance with national registration regulations, to be qualified to be registered in the civilian residence register, and

(b) shall, elsewhere than in Scotland, consist of—

List A—a copy of the civilian residence register in force for the unit,

List B—a list of newly qualified electors, that is to say, persons who are qualified for registration in the civilian residence register in respect of qualifying addresses for which they are not registered in the civilian residence register in force, and * These Regulations having lain before both Houses of Parliament in accordance with section 20 of the Parliamentary Electors (War-Time Registration) Act, 1943, section 37 of the Representation of the People Act, 1945, and subsection (1) of section 18 of the Elections and Jurors Act, 1945, were approved by resolution of both Houses of Parliament on July 30, 1947.

List C—a list of persons no longer qualified as electors, that is to say, persons who, being registered in respect of qualifying addresses in the civilian residence register in force, have ceased to be qualified for registration in the civilian residence register in respect of those addresses :

Provided that where since the publication of the register in force the area of a registration unit has been altered, the area of that unit may for the purpose of the publication of the civilian residence electors list be deemed to be the area of the unit as constituted at the date of the publication of the register in force :

Provided also that a person whose name is entered both in List A and in List C shall not, by reason only of those entries, be entitled to object under regulation 26 of these regulations to the registration of any person.” [282]

3. For paragraph (b) of regulation 24 of the said Regulations there shall be substituted the following paragraph :—

“(b) (i) the civilian residence and service electors lists shall be published in England and Wales on the twelfth day of August, in Scotland on the fifteenth day of August and in Northern Ireland on the nineteenth day of August ;

(ii) the business premises and ratepayers electors lists shall be published not later than the twenty-ninth day of August ”. [283]

4. For paragraph (4) of regulation 30 of the said Regulations there shall be substituted the following paragraph :—

“(4) A copy of the register shall, on publication, be furnished by a registration officer—

(a) in England, Wales or Northern Ireland to the Secretary of State and the British Museum ; and

(b) in Scotland to the returning officer, the British Museum and the National Library of Scotland ”. [284]

5. Paragraph (d) of regulation 59 of the said Regulations shall be omitted. [285]

* * * * *

EXPLANATORY NOTE

The purpose of the amendments contained in these regulations is to provide—

(a) for the publication of the civilian residence electors lists in England, Wales and Northern Ireland in the form of Lists A, B and C as under the pre-war procedure ;

(b) for slightly altered dates of publication of the civilian residence and service electors lists in England and Wales and in Northern Ireland ;

(c) for the supply of copies of the register by a registration officer, in England, Wales or Northern Ireland, to the Secretary of State and the British Museum, and, in Scotland, to the returning officer, the British Museum and the National Library of Scotland.

STATUTES

ELECTRICITY ACT, 1947

PRELIMINARY NOTE

This Act, which received the Royal Assent on August 13, 1947, is the first major Act dealing with the structure of the electricity supply industry since the Electric Lighting Act, 1882 (7 Halsbury's Statutes 686).

In view of the fundamental character of the changes both on the generating and supply sides of the industry a short account of the historical background may assist readers in understanding the present reforms.

It was in 1881 that electricity was first employed as a public service in a small urban area in the County of Surrey. At first, attention was paid almost exclusively to lighting and in the closing years of the century a great number of local authorities, under the machinery of the Electric Lighting Acts, 1882 and 1888 (7 Halsbury's Statutes 686, 702), were granted an exclusive right of supply in their own areas. Side by side with this development went the formation of private companies to promote the extension of electricity supply in other areas; but though companies of this kind were given exclusive powers analogous to those of local authorities, provision was made by the Electric Lighting Act, 1888, s. 2 (7 Halsbury's Statutes 702), for a possible later buying-out of the undertakings by the appropriate local authorities.

Early in the present century, however, electricity came to be used to an ever-increasing extent for the large-scale supply of power to industry and in the decade beginning with 1901 a number of private Acts were passed granting in perpetuity the exclusive right of large-scale supply for power purposes to specially formed Power Companies, no provision for compulsory buying-out by local authorities being made, except where domestic retail supply was also involved and the earlier compulsory purchase provisions became applicable.

Soon after the end of the First World War Parliament passed the Electricity (Supply) Act, 1919 (7 Halsbury's Statutes 754), ss. 5-8 of which provided for the establishment of Joint Electricity Authorities (such as the London and Home Counties Joint Electricity Authority) to operate generating stations and main transmission lines and to supply bulk electricity to large-scale distributors. At the same time Electricity Commissioners were constituted with the object of "promoting, regulating and supervising the supply of electricity" and were granted wide powers to carry out those purposes. Many of the powers of the Board of Trade became exercisable by the Commissioners on whom additional powers and duties were later conferred by amending statute. Nevertheless, little success attended their efforts, many of the anomalies that had led to their appointment continuing throughout the inter-war period.

In particular, there was a marked lack of standardisation, not only in voltages and frequencies but in supply systems and prices, and, apart altogether from serious local variations of tariff, it was felt that the general level of charges might well be reduced by reforming the system under which electricity was generated. As a result, the Electricity (Supply) Act, 1926 (7 Halsbury's Statutes 792), established the Central Electricity Board, which, endowed with wide powers, carried through over a period of six years the inauguration of the "grid system" by concentrating generation in a small number of selected stations and distributing energy through a network of main transmission lines. In general, however, the Board did not itself own generating stations but took over the product of the remaining stations and sold it, as it were, to "wholesalers" for retailing to the actual consumers. Through the efforts of the Central Electricity Board charges were reduced and the generating side of the electricity industry was placed on a much more satisfactory footing.

This improvement in the system of generation was not, however, reflected in any marked degree in the matter of distribution, where the lack of co-ordination, local divergences and other defects which historical causes had induced continued in large measure. When the McGowan Committee was appointed in 1935 to investigate the possibility of reorganising distribution, there were as many as 635 electricity undertakings, of which as many as 82 operated in the London area, nearly all with varying tariffs; local authorities and private companies were operating side by side; the old distinction between lighting and power supplies remained; a system of holding and subsidiary companies had grown up and the options of local authorities to purchase lighting undertakings were falling in. Many local authorities were considering purchase, even though their rights applied only to part of the areas of private companies or to part only of their functions, with the possibility of a further increase in the number of supply authorities in consequence.

To remedy these and other defects a Bill was introduced in Parliament in January, 1947, which after twenty-four days' proceedings in Standing Committee, in the course of which over 600 amendments were put down, became the present Act in the following August. The Act provides in a comprehensive manner for the co-ordination under public ownership of the whole of the electricity supply industry. The provisions constituting the Central Electricity Board are repealed (s. 57 and Sched. V), and the Board itself is to come to an end along with other "authorised undertakers" (s. 14 (11)), power is given to dissolve the Electricity Commissioners (s. 58) and a Board to be known as the British Electricity Authority (referred to as "the Central Authority") is set up under the Minister of Fuel and Power (s. 1) to maintain and develop, as from April 1, 1948 (S.I. 1948 No. 217) an efficient, co-ordinated and economical system of supply for the whole of Great Britain except the North of Scotland district where the Hydro-Electric Development (Scotland) Act, 1943 (6 & 7 Geo. 6, c. 32) as modified by the present Act, continues to apply. Lord Citrine is the first chairman of the new Authority.

The extensive powers of the Central Authority as detailed in s. 1 include the actual generating of electricity, the provision of "wholesale" supplies for "retailing," the co-ordinating and general control of supplies from the Area Boards (see post), and in exceptional cases the provision of supplies to the actual consumers. Power is also given to fix tariffs on sales to Area Boards (s. 37); to borrow in accordance with the terms of s. 39; to conduct research in electricity supply; to make provision for increasing the skill of electrical workers and the efficiency of their equipment, with power to manufacture electrical plant and fittings (though not for export) in case difficulty should be experienced in negotiations with existing manufacturers; and to sell, hire or otherwise supply plant and fittings, with a general residuary clause validating other necessary acts (s. 2). The Authority is directly charged with investigating the possibilities of district heating (s. 50).

In addition, the Authority may, by authorisation of the Minister, purchase compulsorily any land required for their purposes including "wayleaves," underground or otherwise. The procedure is to be that applicable to local authorities under the Acquisition of Land (Authorisation Procedure) Act, 1946 (39 Halsbury's Statutes 52), except that the speedy procedure designed to meet cases of great urgency is not to apply (s. 9). The Authority is empowered to promote and oppose Bills in Parliament (s. 10), and the two succeeding sections provide for its operation without exemption from taxation or protection as a public authority in legal proceedings.

The Central Authority is to be a body corporate consisting of a chairman, four to six persons of experience selected by the Minister of Fuel and Power, four chairmen of Area Boards (see post), appointments being made in rotation, and the Chairman of the North of Scotland Board. Detailed provision as to the organisation of the Central Authority may be made by regulations of the Minister (s. 3).

S. 5 of the Act provides for control of the Central Authority by the Minister in the national interest by means of general directions and by general programmes of reorganisation and development agreed between the Authority and the Minister, while provision is made for the latter to be kept fully informed of the Board's activities.

The general lines of the financial policy to be followed by the Central Authority are laid down in Part III of the Act. At the end of each financial year, the Central Authority is to present to the Minister an annual report, a copy of which is to be laid before Parliament (s. 8), and by s. 46 provision is also made for the publication of audited accounts in prescribed form.

Nevertheless, care has been taken to secure the maximum of decentralisation so that consumers may not feel that public control is divorced from local reality. The Act itself provides for the establishment, for the areas indicated in broad terms in Sched. I, of fourteen Area Boards which, with the North of Scotland Board, will be self-governing (subject to general directions (ss. 6 and 36 (2)) on all matters including finance). The principles on which the areas have been laid down are set out in a White Paper (Cmd. 7007) entitled "Electricity Supply Areas," published at the same time as the Bill. The Minister also stated, in introducing the Bill for Second Reading in the House of Commons on February 3, 1947, that the Area Boards would divide their areas into districts and appoint appropriate officers (482 H. of C. Official Report 1415).

The powers of Area Boards in their particular spheres, which are to be exactly limited by order of the Minister by reference to a map, are largely similar to those of the Central Authority, special provision being made by s. 1 (4) for reciprocal arrangements between Area Boards and for supply agreements between such Boards and independent distributors. Detailed provision is made as to staffing and pension rights in the case of all the new authorities (ss. 53 and 54).

Like the Central Authority, Area Boards are to be bodies corporate. Each is to consist of a chairman and five to seven other members of experience (appointed not by the Central Authority but directly by the Minister after consultation with that Authority), and the Chairman for the time being of the Consultative Council for the Area (s. 3 (3)).

These Consultative Councils, to be established under s. 7, represent a further effort to bridge the gap between executive direction of the industry and the actual needs of the consumer. Each Council is to consist of twenty to thirty representative persons, whose appointment again lies directly with the Minister, the Councils' functions being wider than those of consumers' councils. They will be associated with the work of the Area Boards, will be advised of its plans and will examine those plans in the light of their local knowledge and experience. However, as in the case of the Central Fire Brigades Advisory Council, established under the Fire Services Act, 1947, title FIRE PROTECTION, post, the actual power of such bodies is not great.

So much for the comparatively simple structure of the new organisation. The provision for transferring the industry to the new Authorities now falls to be discussed. This is less easy; indeed, it must be so if full provision is to be made for the widely divergent circumstances in which the transfer is to take effect. S. 13 provides for the vesting in the appropriate Authorities, on April 1, 1948 (see S.I. 1948 No. 217), of the assets and liabilities of "authorised undertakers" under the Electricity (Supply) Acts, 1882 to 1936 (see note to s. 8), of power station companies whose business consists wholly or mainly in constructing, owning, or operating a generating station or stations for supplying electricity to authorised undertakers; and certain holding companies by reason of their subsidiaries being either authorised undertakers or power station companies. Special provisions determine the position of non-statutory undertakings to which s. 48 applies.

The "vesting date" to be appointed was to be a date on or after April 1, 1948, not being less than six months after the establishment of the main personnel of the Central Authority nor less than three months after the similar establishment of all the Area Boards and the definition by Order of their areas (s. 14 (1)). In general, the property to be transferred will be all property, rights, liabilities and obligations of the transferring body, but special provisions apply to special circumstances. In the case of local authorities, for example, s. 15 (1) provides that the vesting provisions of the Act are to apply only to property held or used by such authorities wholly or mainly in their capacity as authorised undertakers and to rights, liabilities and obligations acquired or incurred in that capacity. Loans, however, are not to be transferred but are to be serviced by the Central Authority (ss. 15 (5), 22 (2)). S. 16 gives local authorities, on somewhat similar lines to the Lands Clauses Consolidation Act, 1845, ss. 128, 129 (2 Halsbury's Statutes 1159), a right of pre-emption on the disposal of land so transferred in the event of its becoming superfluous. Detailed provision is also made in the case of "composite companies" supplying gas or water in addition to electricity (s. 17). Agreements or leases made or varied on or after November 19, 1945, either "with an unreasonable lack of prudence" (e.g. in anticipation of the Act) or where not reasonably necessary, may, by s. 18, be disclaimed.

The compensation provisions may conveniently be divided into three categories: first, as to private undertakings; secondly, as to local authorities, and thirdly, as to composite companies. In the first case, the holders of securities in private undertakings whose assets and liabilities are transferred by the Act are to be compensated by the issue to them, in accordance with s. 40 of, and Sched. III to, the Act, of stock guaranteed by the Treasury, to be known as British Electricity Stock, of an amount equal to the average market value of the securities on specified dates, special provision being made for unquoted securities and cases where recent issues have been made (s. 20). S. 14 (11) provides that private undertakings affected are to be dissolved on April 1, 1948, and accordingly a device has been adopted of arranging for "stockholders' representatives" to represent the interests of stockholders in matters of compensation (s. 21).

In the second case, local authorities are in a somewhat different position. Only about one in five regarded their electricity undertakings as a means of contributing towards the relief of rates; the transfer is merely from one form of public ownership to another, and the only basis of compensation is therefore the transfer of liabilities to the new Authorities; as stated above this will include servicing the net outstanding debt of local authorities attributable to their electricity supply undertakings (s. 22). Consequential adjustments of accounts are to be made. Nevertheless, by s. 23 a global sum of £5,000,000 has been set aside as compensation for severance in a broad sense, while further compensation may be paid in respect of recent capital works (s. 24).

To meet the third case, that of the composite companies mentioned in Sched. II, Part II, s. 25 makes detailed provision for severing the electricity undertaking from other activities and paying compensation accordingly on the basis applicable to private companies.

Officers and servants of transferring bodies who are detrimentally affected by the transfer are to receive compensation, as are members of the Central Electricity Board and the Electricity Commissioners and their officers in like circumstances (s. 55; see also s. 59).

Ss. 26-30 are designed to secure that the assets of the undertakings to be transferred are adequately protected during the transitional period between "contract" and "completion." Disclaimer of agreements and leases has already been mentioned and transactions after January 10, 1947, the date of publication of the Bill, which have resulted in dissipating the assets of an undertaking may be reopened, subject to safeguards against the improper use of this right (s. 29). To avoid uncertainty, provision is made whereby transactions may be submitted to the Minister and if approved will no longer be subject to challenge (s. 29 (1), proviso (iv)).

In many instances of possible dispute, e.g. as to what is and what is not a power station company or holding company to which the transfer provisions apply (s. 34), resort is to be had to arbitration and a special Electricity Arbitration Tribunal is established for that purpose (ss. 31-33).

There are numerous ancillary and consequential provisions on a variety of subjects. Among the financial sections are provisions for the fixing and variation of tariffs in which neither undue preference nor undue discrimination is to be shown (s. 37), and there is a provision designed to ensure that the Central Authority and the Area Boards, in the aggregate and "taking one year with another," are not run at a loss (s. 36 (1)). Among the miscellaneous matters dealt with are the supply of electricity to railways (s. 49), powers for the Minister to make safety regulations (s. 60), and provision for the holding of public inquiries where necessary (s. 66).

The scheme of nationalisation provided by the Act has also necessitated numerous repeals and amendments of the existing law, for which reference should be made to s. 57 and Schedules IV and V. [286]

PART I

BRITISH ELECTRICITY AUTHORITY AND AREA ELECTRICITY BOARDS

1. Main functions of Electricity Boards.—(1) There shall be established an Authority, to be known as the British Electricity Authority, and it shall be the duty of that Authority as from the vesting date to develop and maintain an efficient, co-ordinated and economical system of electricity supply for all parts of Great Britain except the North of Scotland District, and for that purpose—

- (a) to generate or acquire supplies of electricity;
- (b) to provide bulk supplies of electricity for the Area Boards hereinafter established for distribution by those Boards;
- (c) to co-ordinate the distribution of electricity by Area Boards and to exercise a general control over the policy of those Boards; and
- (d) to provide supplies of electricity for consumers for whom the British Electricity Authority are required by any provision of this Act or may for the time being be authorised by the Minister to provide such supplies. [288]

(2) There shall be established Boards, to be known by the names mentioned in the first column of the First Schedule to this Act, for the areas which are described in general terms in the second column of that Schedule and are to be defined by orders made under this Part of this Act, and it shall be the duty of every such Board as from the vesting date to acquire from the British Electricity Authority bulk supplies of electricity and to plan and carry out an efficient and economical distribution of those supplies to persons in their area who require them. [289]

(3) In this Act and in any amendment made by this Act in any other enactment the British Electricity Authority is referred to as “the Central Authority” and the Boards established under the last foregoing subsection are referred to as “Area Boards” and the Central Authority and the Area

Boards, together with the North of Scotland Board, are referred to as "Electricity Boards." [290]

(4) Any Area Board may—

- (a) by agreement with any other Area Board and with the approval of the Central Authority, give to or acquire from that other Area Board bulk supplies of electricity ;
- (b) by agreement with any person other than an Electricity Board and with the approval of the Central Authority, acquire bulk supplies of electricity from that person ; and
- (c) by agreement with any other Area Board, supply electricity to consumers in the area of that other Area Board.

If any Area Board are unable to obtain the agreement of another Area Board under paragraph (c) of this subsection, they may apply to the Central Authority for an authorisation to supply electricity to consumers in such part of the area of that other Area Board as may be specified in the authorisation, and, if the Central Authority gives such an authorisation, the first-named Area Board shall have power to supply electricity in accordance therewith. [291]

(5) The provisions of the last foregoing subsection shall apply in relation to the North of Scotland Board and the North of Scotland District as if that Board were an Area Board and that District were the area of an Area Board, subject to the modification that any approval of the acquisition of bulk supplies of electricity from any person in the North of Scotland District and any authorisation for the supply of electricity by an Area Board to consumers in the North of Scotland District shall be given by the Secretary of State. [292]

(6) In exercising and performing their functions the Electricity Boards shall, subject to and in accordance with any directions given by the Minister or Secretary of State under this Part of this Act—

- (a) promote the use of all economical methods of generating, transmitting and distributing electricity ;
- (b) secure, so far as practicable, the development, extension to rural areas and cheapening of supplies of electricity ;
- (c) avoid undue preference in the provision of such supplies ;
- (d) promote the simplification and standardisation of methods of charge for such supplies ;
- (e) promote the standardisation of systems of supply and types of electrical fittings ; and shall also promote the welfare, health and safety of persons in the employment of the Boards. [293]

(7) As from the vesting date, the powers and duties of the North of Scotland Board under the Act of 1943, with regard to the generation of electricity by water power shall extend to the generation of electricity by any other means, and the North of Scotland District shall be altered so as to include the county of the city of Dundee, the whole of the counties of Angus and Perth and the county of Kinross, and so as to exclude the parish of Rosneath in the county of Dunbarton. [294]

Vesting date.—Such date on or after April 1, 1948, not being less than six months after the establishment of the British Electricity Authority nor less than three months after the establishment of all the Area Boards and the definition by order of their areas, as the Minister of Fuel and Power may by order appoint. April 1, 1948, has been so appointed (ss. 14 (1) and 67 (1), post, and see the notes thereto).

To generate or acquire supplies of electricity.—The Parliamentary Secretary to the Ministry of Fuel and Power said at the Committee Stage of the Bill : " It is our view that the Central Authority will in general own and operate the generating stations, but there may be cases where they would find it convenient to delegate the power to run these stations to an Area Board. We do not think such cases will be very common, although there are one or two that we have in mind " (H. of C. Official Report, S.C.E., March 11, 1947, col. 207).

Orders.—For the general provisions as to orders, see s. 64, post. All orders made under Part I of the Act, not being orders required to be laid before Parliament in draft or orders subject to special parliamentary procedure, are to be laid before Parliament under s. 64 (3), post; but see note thereto.

Central Authority and Area Boards.—For the constitution of these bodies, see s. 3, post.

Definitions.—For definitions of "bulk supplies," "functions," "electrical fittings," "North of Scotland Board," and "the Act of 1943," see s. 67 (1), post.

2. Additional functions of Electricity Boards.—(1) It shall be the duty of the Central Authority and of any Area Board, in so far as they may be requested by the Central Authority to do so, to conduct research into matters affecting the supply of electricity, and the Central Authority and, in so far as they may be so requested, any Area Board may assist other persons conducting such research. [295]

(2) It shall be the duty of the Central Authority and every Area Board, in consultation with any organisation appearing to them to be appropriate, to make provision for advancing the skill of persons employed by them and for improving the efficiency of their equipment and the manner in which that equipment is to be used, including provision by them and the assistance of the provision by others of facilities for training and education. [296]

(3) The Central Authority shall have power—

- (a) to manufacture electrical plant and electrical fittings;
- (b) to sell, hire or otherwise supply electrical plant and electrical fittings and to instal, repair, maintain or remove any electrical plant and electrical fittings; and
- (c) to carry on all such other activities as it may appear to the Authority to be requisite, advantageous, or convenient for them to carry on for or in connection with the performance of their duties under the foregoing section or with a view to making the best use of any assets vested in them by or under this Act:

Provided that this subsection shall not empower the Central Authority to manufacture electrical plant or electrical fittings for export. [297]

(4) Any Area Board shall have power—

- (a) to sell, hire or otherwise supply electrical fittings and to instal, repair, maintain or remove any electrical fittings; and
- (b) to carry on all such other activities as it may appear to the Board to be requisite, advantageous or convenient for them to carry on for or in connection with the exercise and performance of their functions under the foregoing section or with a view to making the best use of any assets vested in them by or under this Act:

Provided that nothing in this subsection shall empower an Area Board to exercise or perform any of the functions referred to in paragraph (a) of the last foregoing subsection or paragraph (b) of the last foregoing subsection so far as it relates to the sale, hire or supply of electrical plant. [298]

(5) The Central Authority and any Area Board shall have power to do any thing and to enter into any transaction (whether or not involving the expenditure, the borrowing in accordance with the provisions of this Act or the lending of money, the acquisition of any property or rights or the disposal of any property or rights not in their opinion required for the proper exercise or performance of their functions) which in their opinion is calculated to facilitate the proper performance of their duties under the foregoing section or the exercise or performance of any of their functions under the foregoing provisions of this section, or is incidental or conducive thereto, but nothing in this subsection shall be taken as empowering an Area Board to exercise or perform any functions specifically excluded from the last foregoing subsection. [299]

(6) Subject to the approval of the Minister, the Central Authority may authorise any Area Board to exercise or perform on behalf of the Central Authority any of the functions of that Authority which are to be exercised or performed wholly or mainly in the area of the Area Board (not including any functions specifically excluded from subsection (4) of this section) and any such authorisation may be subject to conditions and limitations and may be so framed as to empower the Area Board to exercise or perform any of the functions delegated to them through agents. [300]

(7) Any Electricity Board may, by agreement with any other Electricity Board, use for the purposes of any of their functions any works, plant or other property of that other Board, and, if it appears to the Minister that such use cannot be obtained by agreement and is required for the purpose of securing efficient and economical services, he may by order authorise such use on such terms and conditions (including the payment of money) as he may determine. [301]

(8) Subsections (1), (2), (3) and (5) of this section shall, subject to the provisions of the Act of 1943, apply to the North of Scotland Board in like manner as they apply to the Central Authority, subject to the following modifications :—

- (a) for the reference in subsection (5) to borrowing in accordance with the provisions of this Act there shall be substituted a reference to borrowing in accordance with the Act of 1943 ; and
- (b) other references to this Act and references to the foregoing section shall include references to the Act of 1943 ;

and any order under the last foregoing subsection affecting the North of Scotland Board shall be made by the Minister and the Secretary of State jointly. [302]

(9) For the avoidance of doubt it is hereby declared that the foregoing provisions of this Act relate only to the capacity of Electricity Boards as statutory corporations, and nothing in those provisions shall be construed as authorising the disregard by any such Board of any enactment or rule of law. [303]

Effect of section.—This section details various powers of the Central Authority additional to those covered by the preceding section. For further provisions as to research, see s. 50, post.

Central Authority.—The British Electricity Authority (s. 1 (3), ante). For the constitution of this body, see s. 3, post.

Sub-s. (1).—The Central Authority is directed to conduct research into matters of electricity supply and is empowered, though not directed, to assist other research agencies. Area Boards must themselves conduct research and may assist research agencies, in each case so far as requested by the Central Authority.

Such other activities as may appear requisite.—E.g. holding a publicity campaign in connection with the development of electricity, or selling waste clinker and ashes from generating stations (see H. of C. Official Report, S.C.E., March 8, 1947, cols. 163-164).

Best use of any assets.—Under the terms of the Act there will vest in the Central Authority certain assets which are not strictly connected with their duties as laid down, e.g. on transfer from composite companies. In such cases the intention is to provide that the assets shall be properly utilised pending disposal (see H. of C. Official Report, S.C.E., March 6, 1947, col. 164).

Order of the Minister.—For the general provisions as to orders, see s. 64, post. Orders of the Minister of Fuel and Power under sub-s. (7) of this section are to be laid before Parliament under s. 64 (3), post ; but see note thereto.

Definitions.—As to "Area Board," see s. 1 (3), ante. For definitions of "electrical plant," "electrical fittings," "functions," "Act of 1943," "North of Scotland Board" and "enactment," see s. 67 (1), post.

3. Constitution of Central Authority and Area Boards.—(1) The Central Authority and every Area Board shall be a body corporate with perpetual succession and a common seal and power to hold land without licence in mortmain. [304]

(2) The Central Authority shall be constituted as follows :—

- (a) the chairman and not less than four or more than six other members shall be appointed by the Minister from amongst persons appearing to him to be qualified as having had experience of, and having shown capacity in, the generation and supply of electricity,

- industrial, commercial or financial matters, applied science, administration, or the organisation of workers ;
- (b) four other members shall be appointed by the Minister from amongst the persons for the time being holding the office of chairman of an Area Board, and such appointments shall be made from the Area Boards in rotation ; and
  - (c) there shall be one other member who shall be the person for the time being holding the office of chairman of the North of Scotland Board :

Provided that, until the Area Boards have been established, the Central Authority shall be deemed to be properly constituted notwithstanding that the members to be appointed under paragraph (b) of this subsection have not been appointed or have not all been appointed. [305]

(3) Every Area Board shall be constituted as follows :—

- (a) the chairman and not less than five or more than seven other members shall be appointed by the Minister after consultation with the Central Authority from amongst persons appearing to the Minister to be qualified as having had experience of, and having shown capacity in, electricity supply, local government, industrial, commercial, agricultural or financial matters, applied science, administration, or the organisation of workers ; and
- (b) there shall be one other member who shall be the person for the time being holding the office of chairman of the Consultative Council established under the following provisions of this Part of this Act for the area of the Area Board :

Provided that, until the Consultative Council has been established, an Area Board shall be deemed to be properly constituted notwithstanding that the Board does not include the member referred to in paragraph (b) of this subsection and, during any period before the vesting date, an Area Board shall be deemed to be properly constituted if the chairman and three other members have been appointed. [306]

(4) A person shall be disqualified for being appointed or being a member of the Central Authority or any Area Board so long as he is a member of the Commons House of Parliament. [307]

(5) The Minister shall appoint one or more of the members of the Central Authority to be deputy chairman or deputy chairmen of that Authority, and shall, after consultation with the Central Authority, appoint one of the members of each of the Area Boards to be deputy chairman of that Board. [308]

(6) There shall be paid to the members of the Central Authority and to the members of each of the Area Boards such remuneration (whether by way of salaries or fees) and such allowances as may be determined by the Minister with the approval of the Treasury, and, on the retirement or death of any member in whose case it may be so determined to make such provision, such a pension to or in respect of that member as may be so determined.

Any such remuneration, allowances and pensions as foresaid shall be paid by the Central Authority or, as the case may be, the Area Board concerned. [309]

(7) The Minister may make regulations with respect to—

- (a) the appointment of, and the tenure and vacation of office by, the members of the Central Authority and any Area Board ;
- (b) the quorum, proceedings, meetings and determinations of the Central Authority and any Area Board ;
- (c) the execution of instruments and the mode of entering into contracts by and on behalf of the Central Authority or any Area Board, and the proof of documents purporting to be executed, issued or signed by the Central Authority or any Area Board or a member or officer thereof; and

(d) any other matters supplementary or incidental to the matters aforesaid for which provision appears to the Minister to be necessary or expedient. [310]

(8) Subject to the provisions of any regulations made under the last foregoing subsection, the Central Authority and every Area Board shall have power to regulate their own procedure. [311]

Effect of section.—This section deals with the constitution of the Central Authority and Area Boards as referred to in the Preliminary Note, ante. The majority of the members of the Area Boards are to be appointed by the Minister and not by the Central Authority, thus ensuring a greater measure of ministerial responsibility for acts of the Area Boards. The Rt. Hon. Lord Citrine has been appointed the first chairman of the Central Authority.

Central Authority.—The British Electricity Authority (s. 1 (3), ante).

Licence in mortmain.—The Mortmain and Charitable Uses Acts, 1888 and 1891 (2 Halsbury's Statutes 385, 396), as amended by the Mortmain and Charitable Uses Act Amendment Act, 1892 (2 Halsbury's Statutes 398), prohibit the assurance of land to corporations except under Royal Licence or with statutory authority.

Consultative Council.—For the constitution and functions of these Councils, see s. 7, post.

Vesting date.—Such date on or after April 1, 1948, not being less than six months after the establishment of the British Electricity Authority nor less than three months after the establishment of all the Area Boards and the definition by order of their areas, as the Minister of Fuel and Power may by order appoint. April 1, 1948, has been so appointed (ss. 14 (1) and 67 (1), post, and see the notes thereto).

Regulations under sub-s. (7).—On August 14, 1947, the Minister of Fuel and Power made the Electricity (Central Authority and Area Boards) Regulations, 1947, S. R. & O., 1947, No. 1750, post. Such regulations include provisions as to disclosure of interest and disposal of such interest when required. For the general provisions as to regulations, see s. 64, post. Regulations under the present subsection are to be laid before Parliament under s. 64 (3), post; but see note thereto.

Definitions.—As to "Area Board," see s. 1 (3), ante. For definitions of "North of Scotland Board," "regulations" and "officer," see s. 67 (1), post.

4. Definition of and variation of areas.—(1) The Minister shall before the vesting date by order made after consultation with the Central Authority define the areas for which Area Boards are established under this Act, and each area shall be so defined by reference to a map, and copies of the map of each area shall be available for inspection at such places and at such times as may be specified in a notice published by the Minister in the London Gazette and, in the case of an area in Scotland, the Edinburgh Gazette, and (in all cases) in such newspapers circulating in the area as the Minister thinks fit. [312]

(2) The Minister may, after consultation with the Central Authority and after giving to each Area Board concerned an opportunity to make representations, by order vary the areas for which Area Boards are established under this Act, and such variation may involve not only the variation of the boundaries of existing areas but also the formation of a new area from any part of an existing area or parts of existing areas or the amalgamation of an existing area with any other such area or part thereof.

Any such order shall define by reference to a map the new areas or new boundaries constituted by the order, and copies of any such map shall be available for inspection in like manner as copies of the maps defining the original areas. [313]

(3) If any question arises as to the exact boundary of any area, as defined by any order made under this section, it shall be determined by the Minister, after giving to the Area Boards concerned an opportunity to make representations on such question. [314]

(4) An order made under subsection (2) of this section the effect of which is to increase or reduce the total number of such areas as aforesaid, or to constitute a new area for which a new Area Board is required to be established under the next following subsection, shall not be made unless a draft thereof has been laid before Parliament and has been approved by resolution of each House of Parliament. [315]

(5) An order made under subsection (2) of this section shall state whether the areas affected by the order are to be regarded as the areas of existing Area Boards, or whether any such area is to be regarded as a new area for which a new Area Board is required to be established, and in the latter case a new Board shall be established in accordance with the foregoing provisions of this Act and those provisions shall apply to that Board accordingly, and it shall be known by such name as may be specified in the order. [316]

(6) An order made under subsection (2) of this section shall, so far as it appears to the Minister to be necessary or expedient in consequence of the variation of areas or the establishment of a new Area Board, provide—

- (a) for the transfer of property, rights, liabilities and obligations from one Area Board to another ;
- (b) for the modification of agreements for the purpose of giving effect to the transfer of rights, liabilities and obligations thereunder from one Area Board to another and, in a case where part only of the rights, liabilities and obligations under any agreement are transferred, for substituting for that agreement separate agreements in the requisite terms, and for any apportionments and indemnities consequent thereon ;
- (c) for the purpose of transferring part of the land comprised in any lease vested in any such Board to another such Board, for the severance of that lease, and for apportionments and indemnities consequent thereon ;
- (d) for dissolving any Area Board the whole of whose functions are to be exercised by another Area Board or Boards, and for winding up the affairs of the Board to be dissolved ; and
- (e) for such other financial adjustments between the Boards concerned as may be required in consequence of any such transfer, and for any other matter supplementary to or consequential on the matters aforesaid, including the continuation of legal proceedings. [317]

(7) The foregoing provisions of this section except subsection (1) shall apply to the North of Scotland Board and the North of Scotland District as if that Board were an Area Board and that District were the area of an Area Board, subject to the modification that an order or determination affecting that Board and District shall be made by the Minister and the Secretary of State jointly. [318]

Effect of section.—After consulting the Central Authority the Minister is to make an order or orders defining the exact limits of each area by reference to a map, copies of which must be available for inspection ; and such areas may later be varied and, if thought fit, new areas may be created in like manner. Boundary disputes are to be determined by the Minister. In the creation of new areas and in certain other cases, special formalities must be observed (see infra) and power is given to make the necessary transfers and other arrangements.

Note that the White Paper (Cmd. 7007) entitled “ Electricity Supply Areas,” which was presented with the Bill and sets out the principles on which the areas are delimited, includes a plan amplifying the broad indication of the proposed areas given in Sched. I, post.

Under sub-s. (1), ante, the Minister, on November 18, 1947, made the Electricity (Areas of Area Boards) Order, 1947, S. R. & O., 1947, No. 2465, defining the areas by reference to maps prepared on his authority and certified under his hand.

Vesting date.—Such date on or after April 1, 1948, not being less than six months after the establishment of the British Electricity Authority nor less than three months after the establishment of all the Area Boards and the definition by order of their areas, as the Minister of Fuel and Power may by order appoint. April 1, 1948, has been so appointed (ss. 14 (1) and 67 (1), post, and see the notes thereto).

Orders of the Minister of Fuel and Power.—For the general provisions as to orders, see s. 64, post. If the effect of an order under sub-s. (2) of the present section will be to increase or reduce the total number of areas or to constitute a new area for which a new Area Board is required, the affirmative resolution procedure applies, that is to say, a draft must first be laid before Parliament and approved by resolution of both Houses. In all other cases under the present section orders are to be laid before Parliament by virtue of s. 64 (3), post ; but see note thereto.

Public inquiries.—In connection with this section, note the Minister's power under s. 66 (1), post, in any case where he deems it advisable to hold public inquiries.

Defined by reference to a map.—By s. 64 (6), post, in the case of orders defining or varying the areas for which Area Boards are established under the Act, copies of the relevant maps are to be available, during the period for which the orders or drafts thereof are laid before Parliament, for inspection by members of both Houses.

Definitions.—As to "Area Board," see s. 1 (3), ante. For definitions of "lease," "functions" and "North of Scotland Board," see s. 67 (1), post.

5. Powers of Minister in relation to Central Authority.—(1) The Minister may, after consultation with the Central Authority, give to that Authority such directions of a general character as to the exercise and performance by the Authority of their functions under this Act as appear to the Minister to be requisite in the national interest, and the Authority shall give effect to any such directions. [319]

(2) In carrying out such measures of reorganisation or such works of development as involve substantial outlay on capital account, and in giving directions to any Area Board with respect to such measures or works, the Central Authority shall act in accordance with a general programme settled from time to time in consultation with the Minister. [320]

(3) In the exercise and performance of their functions as to training, education and research, the Central Authority shall act in accordance with a general programme settled as aforesaid. [321]

(4) The Minister may, after consultation with the Central Authority, give to that Authority directions as to the use or disposal of any assets vested in the Authority by or under this Act which are not connected with the generation, transmission or distribution of electricity, and the Authority shall give effect to any such directions. [322]

(5) The Central Authority shall afford to the Minister facilities for obtaining information with respect to the property and activities of the Authority, and furnish him with returns, accounts and other information with respect thereto, and afford to him facilities for the verification of information furnished, in such manner and at such times as he may require. [323]

(6) The Central Authority shall furnish the Minister with returns, accounts and other information with respect to the property and activities of all Area Boards, in such manner and at such times as he may reasonably require. [324]

(7) The foregoing provisions of this section, except subsection (5) and the provisions relating to Area Boards, shall apply to the North of Scotland Board in like manner as they apply to the Central Authority, subject to the modification that references to the Secretary of State shall be substituted for references to the Minister. [325]

General note.—This section describes the method by which the corporation responsible for the supply of electricity, though given a large measure of independence, is subjected in the national interest to public control through the Minister.

The Minister.—The Minister of Fuel and Power (s. 67 (1), post).

Area Board.—As to the meaning of this term, see s. 1 (3), ante.

Directions of a general character.—E.g., in regard to strategical questions involved in the siting of new power stations; in regard to the relation of the electricity industry to the Government's policy of creating employment in development areas; as to the general fields of research to be covered; and generally as required in the national interest.

Sub-s. (1).—The directions referred to here should be distinguished from the general directions contemplated in sub-s. (1). They are specific directions in regard to particular assets, e.g., where the use or disposal of "non-electricity" assets is not sufficiently wide in its implications to warrant the giving of general directions.

6. Powers of Central Authority and Minister in relation to Area Boards.—

(1) The Central Authority may give such directions to Area Boards as appear to the Central Authority to be necessary or expedient for the purpose of co-ordinating the distribution of electricity by Area Boards and exercising a general control over the policy of those Boards, and every Area Board shall give effect to any such directions given to them by the Central Authority. [326]

(2) In the exercise and performance of their functions as to training, education and research, every Area Board shall act in accordance with a general programme settled from time to time in consultation with the Minister. [327]

(3) The Minister may after consultation with the Central Authority give directions to any Area Board as to the use or disposal of any assets vested in the Board by or under this Act which are not connected with the distribution of electricity, and the Board shall give effect to any such directions. [328]

(4) Every Area Board shall afford to the Central Authority and, if the Minister so requires, to the Minister, facilities for obtaining information with respect to the property and activities of the Area Board, and furnish the Central Authority and, if he so requires, the Minister, with returns, accounts, and other information with respect thereto, and afford to the Central Authority and the Minister facilities for the verification of information furnished, in such manner and at such times as the Central Authority or the Minister may require. [329]

General note.—This section provides for the control of Area Boards by two distinct authorities—the Central Authority and the Minister. Sub-s. (1) relates to directions by the Central Authority and sub-s. (3) to directions on specific matters by the Minister. Further control by the Minister is provided by sub-s. (2), while sub-s. (4) relates to the giving of information to both Central Authority and Minister.

The Minister.—The Minister of Fuel and Power (s. 67 (1), post).

Sub-s. (3).—This provision corresponds to s. 5 (4), ante. Note that s. 5 (4) is wider in scope than the present provision, the former referring to generation and transmission in addition to distribution. This arises from the general principle of the Act that the Central Authority shall be responsible for generation and Area Boards for the ultimate distribution.

Definition.—As to "Area Boards," see s. 1 (3), ante.

7. Consultative Councils.—(1) A Consultative Council shall be established for the purposes mentioned in this section for the area of every Area Board. [330]

(2) Each of the said Councils shall consist of not less than twenty nor more than thirty persons to be appointed by the Minister of whom—

- (a) not less than half nor more than three-fifths shall be appointed from a panel of persons nominated from amongst members of local authorities in the area by such associations as appear to the Minister to represent those authorities; and
- (b) the remainder shall be appointed, after consultation with such bodies as the Minister thinks fit, to represent agriculture, commerce, industry, labour and the general interests of consumers of electricity and other persons or organisations interested in the development of electricity in the area.

In making the appointments mentioned in paragraph (b) of this subsection, the Minister shall have particular regard to any nominations made to him by the bodies aforesaid of persons who are recommended by them as having both adequate knowledge of the requirements of the interests to be represented and also the ability to exercise a wide and impartial judgment on the matters to be dealt with by the Council generally. [331]

(3) A person shall be disqualified for being appointed or being the chairman of a Consultative Council so long as he is a member of the Commons House of Parliament, but a member of a Consultative Council other than the chairman shall not by reason of his appointment as such a member be disqualified for being elected to, or for sitting or voting as a member of, the Commons House of Parliament. [332]

(4) Each of the said Councils shall be charged with the duties—

- (a) of considering any matter affecting the distribution of electricity in the area, including the variation of tariffs and the provision of new or improved services and facilities within the area, being a matter which is the subject of a representation made to them by consumers or other persons requiring supplies of electricity in that area, or which appears to them to be a matter to which consideration ought to be given apart from any such representation, and where action appears to them to be requisite as to any such matter, of notifying their conclusions to the Area Board ; and

(b) of considering and reporting to the Area Board on any such matter which may be referred to them by that Board. [333]

(5) Each of the said Councils shall be informed by the Area Board of that Board's general plans and arrangements for exercising and performing their functions under this Act and may make representations thereon to that Board. [334]

(6) The Area Board shall consider any conclusion, reports and representations notified or made to them by the Council for their area under the two last foregoing subsections and the Council may, after consultation with the Area Board, make representations to the Central Authority on matters arising thereout. [335]

(7) Where representations have been so made to the Central Authority and it appears to that Authority, after consultation with the Area Board and with the Council, that a defect is disclosed in that Area Board's general plans and arrangements for the exercise and performance of their functions under this Act, the Central Authority may give to the Area Board such directions as they think fit for remedying the defect and the Area Board shall give effect to any such directions. [336]

(8) A Consultative Council may, after consultation with the Central Authority, make representations to the Minister on any matters arising out of representations made by them to the Central Authority under subsection (6) of this section, and if it appears to the Minister, after consultation with the Area Board and with the Council, that a defect is disclosed in the Area Board's general plans and arrangements for the exercise and performance of their functions under this Act, he may notify the defect to the Central Authority, and thereupon the Central Authority shall give to the Area Board such directions as they think necessary for remedying the defect, and the Area Board shall give effect to any such directions. [337]

(9) Every Consultative Council shall prepare and submit to the Minister a scheme for the appointment by them of committees or individuals to be local representatives of the Council in such localities as may be specified in the scheme, and it shall be the duty of such committees and individuals to consider the particular circumstances and requirements of those localities with respect to the distribution of electricity and to make representations to the Council thereon, and to be available for receiving on behalf of the Council representations from consumers in those localities ; and, if the scheme is approved by the Minister, the Consultative Council shall put it into effect.

A member of a Consultative Council shall be eligible for appointment under such a scheme, either as a member of a committee or as an individual, but membership of the Council shall not be a necessary qualification for such an appointment. [338]

(10) A Consultative Council may, subject to the approval of the Minister as to numbers, appoint such officers as appear to the Council to be requisite for the proper exercise and performance of their functions (including functions of any committee or individual appointed under the last foregoing subsection), and there shall be paid by the Central Authority—

(a) to the members of the said Councils or of any such committee or to any such individuals such allowances in respect of any loss of remunerative time and such travelling allowances and allowances in respect of their out-of-pocket expenses ; and

(b) to the officers of the said Councils such remuneration (whether by way of salary or fees) and such allowances, as the Minister may with the approval of the Treasury determine. [339]

(11) A Consultative Council shall be furnished by the Area Board concerned with such office accommodation as appears to the Board to be requisite for the proper exercise and performance of their functions (including the functions of any such committee or individual as aforesaid) or as may be directed by the Minister. [340]

(12) Where, in consequence of the variation of the areas of Area Boards under the foregoing provisions of this Part of this Act, it is necessary to establish new Consultative Councils under this section, the Minister may by order provide for dissolving and winding up the affairs of any Consultative Council who cease to exercise or perform functions by reason of the variation. [341]

(13) Provision may be made by regulations in relation to Consultative Councils for any matters for which provision may be made by regulations under section three of this Act in relation to the Central Authority and any Area Board, and for the appointment of a chairman of each of the said Councils, with or without provision for another to act in his place, and, subject to the provisions of any such regulations, the said Councils shall have power to regulate their own procedure. [342]

(14) The foregoing provisions of this section other than subsection (8) shall apply to the North of Scotland Board as if that Board were an Area Board and the North of Scotland District were the area of an Area Board, subject to the modifications that—

(a) for references to the Minister there shall be substituted references to the Secretary of State; and

(b) for the references to the Central Authority there shall be substituted—

(i) in subsections (6) and (7) references to the Secretary of State, and

(ii) in subsection (10) references to the North of Scotland Board.

General note.—For the purpose and status of the Consultative Councils to be established under this section, see the Preliminary Note, ante.

The Minister.—The Minister of Fuel and Power (s. 67 (1), post).

Panel of persons nominated.—The Minister is to consult the associations representing local authorities and obtain from them a panel of persons from whom he will make the final selection. The object of adopting this plan rather than ask the local authorities in the areas to nominate direct is to have a preliminary “screening” by which the number on the panel would be very much reduced and the Minister’s task of selection greatly eased.

Associations representing local authorities.—The Lord Chancellor stated at the Committee Stage of the Bill in the House of Lords on July 22, 1947: “It is our intention that the following associations of authorities should be approached as to a panel of nominees: the County Councils Association, the London County Council, the Association of Municipal Corporations, the Metropolitan Boroughs Standing Joint Committee, the Urban District Councils Association and the Rural District Councils Association” (151 H. of L. Official Report 108).

Duties of Consultative Councils.—The duties of Consultative Councils, as set out in sub-s. (4), ante, are wide, including as they do any local matters affecting the distribution of electricity, variations of tariffs and the provision of new or improved services and facilities within the area. These are matters with which the Industrial and Domestic Coal Consumers’ Councils established under the Coal Industry Nationalisation Act, 1946, s. 4 (39 Halsbury’s Statutes 258) are not competent to deal.

Sub-s. (9).—In connection with the appointment of committees or individuals to be local representatives of the Consultative Councils, note the Minister’s intention, referred to in the Preliminary Note, ante, that district offices of the Area Boards shall be set up. Presumably the localities covered by the committees and the districts served by these offices will normally correspond.

Orders and regulations.—For the general provisions as to orders and regulations, see s. 64, post. Orders and Regulations under sub-ss. (12) and (13) respectively of the present section are to be laid before Parliament under s. 64 (3), post; but see note thereto. As to offences against regulations, see s. 61 (2), post.

Definitions.—As to “Area Board,” see s. 1 (3), ante. For definitions of “functions,” “officers” and “North of Scotland Board,” see s. 67 (1), post.

8. Annual reports of Central Authority and Area Boards.—(1) The Central Authority shall, as soon as possible after the end of each financial year, make to the Minister a report on the exercise and performance by them of their functions during that year and on their policy and programmes, and every Area Board shall, as soon as possible after the end of each financial year, make to the Central Authority a report on the exercise and performance by them of their functions during that year and on their policy and programmes.

(2) The report of the Central Authority for any year shall set out any direction given by the Minister to the Authority during that year unless the Minister has notified the Authority his opinion that it is against the interests of national security to do so, and the Central Authority shall submit with their report for any year copies of the reports for that year of the Area Boards.

(3) The Minister may give directions as to the form of the reports to be made under this section, and the Central Authority and Area Boards shall comply with any such directions. [346]

(4) A Consultative Council may, as respects any financial year of the Area Board for their area or, if their area is the North of Scotland District, of the North of Scotland Board, make to the Board a report on the exercise and performance by the Council of their functions during that year, and any such report shall be made to the Board as soon as possible after the end of the said financial year, and the Board shall include that report in the report made by them under this section or, as the case may be, under section twenty-three of the Act of 1943. [347]

(5) The Minister shall lay before each House of Parliament a copy of the report made for each financial year by the Central Authority together with copies of the reports of the Area Boards, and shall at the same time lay before each House of Parliament a report with respect to the exercise of his functions during that year under this Act and the Electricity (Supply) Acts, 1882 to 1936, except as regards matters which in his opinion it is against the interests of national security to disclose. [348]

Effect of section.—The Central Authority is to present an annual report to the Minister and the Area Boards are to present to the Central Authority similar reports, copies of which are to be presented to the Minister with the reports of the Central Authority. Together such reports are to be laid before Parliament. In contradistinction to these provisions, which are obligatory, Consultative Councils are empowered to present reports to the Area Boards if they wish to do so.

The Minister.—The Minister of Fuel and Power (s. 67 (1), post).

Against the interests of national security.—The corresponding phrase in the original Bill was "against the national interest," but this was felt to be too wide and accordingly the Act makes provision for secrecy only in the case of directions given by the Minister where security is concerned.

Consultative Council.—For the constitution and functions of these councils, see s. 7, ante.

Electricity (Supply) Acts, 1882 to 1936.—These are the Electric Lighting Act, 1882 (7 Halsbury's Statutes 686); the Electric Lighting Act, 1888 (7 Halsbury's Statutes 702); the Electric Lighting Act, 1909 (7 Halsbury's Statutes 744); the Electricity (Supply) Act, 1919 (7 Halsbury's Statutes 754); the Electricity (Supply) Act, 1922 (7 Halsbury's Statutes 778); the Electricity (Supply) Act, 1926 (7 Halsbury's Statutes 792); the Electricity (Supply) Act, 1928 (7 Halsbury's Statutes 826); the Electricity (Supply) Act, 1933 (26 Halsbury's Statutes 137); the Electricity (Supply) Act, 1935 (28 Halsbury's Statutes 51); the Electricity Supply (Meters) Act, 1936 (29 Halsbury's Statutes 133); and Acts applying to Scotland only.

Definitions.—As to "Area Board," see s. 1 (3), ante. For definitions of "financial year," "functions," "North of Scotland Board" and "Act of 1943," see s. 67 (1), post.

9. Compulsory purchase of land.—(1) The Minister may authorise any Electricity Board to purchase compulsorily any land which they require for any purpose connected with the discharge of their functions, and the Acquisition of Land (Authorisation Procedure) Act, 1946 (except section two thereof), shall apply, in relation to any such compulsory purchase, as if the Board were a local authority within the meaning of that Act and as if this Act had been in force immediately before the commencement of that Act. [349]

(2) In this section the expression "land" includes easements and other rights over land, and an Electricity Board may be authorised under this section to purchase compulsorily a right to place an electric line across land, whether above or below ground, and to repair and maintain the line, without purchasing any other interest in the land.

In relation to the compulsory purchase of any such right to place an electric line across land, the said Acquisition of Land (Authorisation Procedure) Act, 1946 (except section two thereof), and the enactments incorporated therewith shall have effect as if references (whatever the terms used) to the land comprised in the compulsory purchase order were construed, where the context so requires, as references to the land across which the line is to be placed, and references to the obtaining or taking possession of the first-mentioned land were construed as references to the exercise of the said right. [350]

(3) Section fourteen of the Schedule to the Electric Lighting (Clauses) Act, 1899 (as incorporated with this Act), so far as the said section relates to the Postmaster General, shall apply to the placing of an electric line in pursuance of any right purchased under this section in like manner as it applies to the execution of works involving the placing of lines in, under, along, or across any street or public bridge. [351]

(4) This section shall, in relation to the North of Scotland Board, only apply to the purchase of land or rights other than land or rights required by them for the purposes of a constructional scheme under the Act of 1943, and shall apply with the substitution of a reference to the Secretary of State for the reference to the Minister. [352]

The Minister.—The Minister of Fuel and Power (s. 67 (1), post).

Any Electricity Board.—The British Electricity Authority, any of the Area Boards, or the North of Scotland Board (s. 1 (3), ante).

Acquisition of Land (Authorisation Procedure) Act, 1946.—39 Halsbury's Statutes 52. This Act provides a uniform procedure for authorising the compulsory purchase of land by local authorities where power to authorise such a purchase is conferred by an existing public Act. Sub-s. (1) of the present section makes this procedure applicable to Electricity Boards authorised by the Minister of Fuel and Power to purchase land compulsorily. S. 2, the application of which is negatived by the present section in the case of Electricity Boards, provides temporary powers for the speedy acquisition of land in urgent cases.

Acquisition of wayleaves.—The Electricity (Supply) Act, 1919, s. 22 (7 Halsbury's Statutes 768), authorises joint electricity authorities and authorised undertakers to place lines below ground and above ground subject to specific limitations, particularly in the case of underground wayleaves where, in the absence of consent both by the owner and the occupier, ministerial approval is required. The conditions of the section were felt to be too restrictive and accordingly sub-s. (2) amends the law in this respect. Note that s. 22 of the Electricity (Supply) Act, 1919, supra, has been modified by Sched. IV, Part I, of the present Act, post, to bring its provisions into line with the new supply arrangements.

Protection of gas and water undertakers.—The Electric Lighting Act, 1909, s. 24 (7 Halsbury's Statutes 753), protected gas and water undertakers from the compulsory acquisition under that Act of any land belonging to them or used or authorised to be used by them. Though that section has been repealed by Sched. V of the present Act, post, it was felt that such undertakers were adequately protected by the provisions of the Acquisition of Land (Authorisation Procedure) Act, 1946, supra.

Local authority within the meaning of that Act.—See the Acquisition of Land (Authorisation Procedure) Act, 1946, s. 8 (39 Halsbury's Statutes 61).

Commencement of that Act.—April 18, 1946, the date of passing of the Acquisition of Land (Authorisation Procedure) Act, 1946 (39 Halsbury's Statutes 52).

Enactments incorporated therewith.—See the Acquisition of Land (Authorisation Procedure) Act, 1946, Sched. II (39 Halsbury's Statutes 66).

Electric Lighting (Clauses) Act, 1899, Sched., s. 14.—7 Halsbury's Statutes 713. This section relates to the notice of works, with plan, to be served on the Postmaster General. Note that this Act is not included in the Electricity (Supply) Acts, 1882 to 1936.

Definitions.—For definitions of "functions," "electric line," "North of Scotland Board" and "Act of 1943," see s. 67 (1), post.

10. Power of Electricity Boards to promote and oppose Bills.—The Central Authority and any Area Board may, with the consent of the Minister, and the North of Scotland Board may, with the consent of the Secretary of State, promote Bills in Parliament and any Electricity Board may oppose any Bill in Parliament, and this power shall be in lieu of any power to promote or oppose Bills which an Electricity Board might otherwise possess under any of the provisions of this Act as successors to any authorised undertakers. [353]

The Minister.—The Minister of Fuel and Power (s. 67 (1), post).

Consent of the Minister.—By being able to oppose Bills without consent, but requiring consent for promoting Bills, Electricity Boards are by this section put in the position in which local authorities are put by ss. 253 and 254 (2) of the Local Government Act, 1933 (26 Halsbury's Statutes 443), re-enacting the Borough Funds Act, 1872. No doubt parliamentary Questions could be addressed to the Minister as to his reasons for refusal.

In lieu of any power.—Existing powers to promote and oppose Bills, which were piecemeal and limited to particular areas, are abrogated in favour of the single general power given by the section.

Definitions.—As to "Area Board," see s. 1 (3), ante. For definition of "North of Scotland Board," see s. 67 (1), post.

11. Electricity Boards not to be exempt from taxation, etc.—(1) Subject to the provisions of subsection (2) of this section, nothing in this Act shall be deemed to exempt any Electricity Board from any liability for any tax, duty, rate, levy or other charge whatsoever whether general or local. [354]

(2) For the purposes of section fifty-two of the Finance Act, 1946 (which exempts from stamp duty certain documents connected with nationalisation schemes) any transfers of property from one Electricity Board to another effected by an order made under this Act shall be deemed to be part of the initial putting into force of such a scheme. [355]

Exemption from taxation.—Compare with this section the analogous provisions of the Coal Industry Nationalisation Act, 1946, s. 47 (39 Halsbury's Statutes 293), in the case of the National Coal Board, and the Cotton (Centralised Buying) Act, 1947 (10 & 11 Geo. 6, c. 26), s. 5 (13), in the case of the Raw Cotton Commission.

Any Electricity Board.—The British Electricity Authority, any of the Area Boards, or the North of Scotland Board (s. 1 (3), ante).

Finance Act, 1946, s. 52.—39 Halsbury's Statutes 751.

12. Liability of Electricity Boards in actions, etc.—(1) The Public Authorities Protection Act, 1893, and section twenty-one of the Limitation Act, 1939, shall not apply to any action, prosecution or proceeding against any Electricity Board or in respect of any act, neglect or default done or committed by a servant or agent of any such Board in his capacity as a servant or agent of theirs. [356]

(2) In their application to any such action as aforesaid sections two and three of the Limitation Act, 1939 (which relate to limitation of actions of contract and tort and certain other actions), shall have effect with the substitution therein for references to six years of references to three years. [357]

Public authorities' protection.—S. 1 (a) of the Public Authorities Protection Act, 1893 (13 Halsbury's Statutes 456), as amended and replaced by the Limitation Act, 1939, s. 21 (32 Halsbury's Statutes 235), provides that no civil action shall be brought against any person for any act done in pursuance, or execution, or intended execution of any Act of Parliament, or of any public duty or authority, or in respect of any neglect or default in the execution of any such Act, duty or authority, unless it is commenced before the expiration of one year from the date on which the cause of action accrued, subject to a proviso as to continuing acts, neglects or defaults. In the case of criminal proceedings the original time-limit of six months remains.

The effect of sub-s. (1) of the present section is to withdraw this protection from Electricity Boards, their servants and agents, and to substitute a period of three years for the usual period of six years within which action must be brought. Subject to this modification, ss. 2 and 3 of the Limitation Act, 1939 (32 Halsbury's Statutes 225, 226) apply to the actions and proceedings referred to in sub-s. (1) of the present section.

The period of three years is an admitted compromise arising largely from particular historical causes. Local authorities in respect of their electricity undertakings were entitled to the full protection of the Public Authorities Protection Act, 1893, supra, but private companies were not so entitled and came under the ordinary six-year rule. Inasmuch as the new Boards are replacing both types of undertakers it was felt that an intermediate period provided the fairest solution. Three years is the period provided by the Coal Industry Nationalisation Act, 1946, s. 49 (39 Halsbury's Statutes 294), and by the Transport Act, 1947, s. 11 (2) (see title ROAD TRAFFIC, post). By the Bill for the first of these Acts, as introduced into the House of Commons, the corresponding bodies would have had a more favoured position, but a Government Amendment at an early stage established the precedent followed in the Transport Act and the present section.

Limitation Act, 1939, ss. 2 and 3.—32 Halsbury's Statutes 225, 226.

PART II

ACQUISITION OF ELECTRICITY UNDERTAKINGS

Vesting of Assets

13. Bodies to whom Part II of Act applies.—(1) This Part of this Act applies to—

- (a) the bodies specified in the Second Schedule to this Act (hereafter in this Act referred to as “authorised undertakers”) being the bodies who fall within the class described in the next following subsection;
- (b) every company (hereafter in this Act referred to as a “power station company”) who are not authorised undertakers but whose business wholly or mainly consists in the construction, owning or operating of a generating station or stations for the supply of electricity to authorised undertakers; and
- (c) every company (hereafter in this Act referred to as an “electricity holding company”) who—
  - (i) are not authorised undertakers, or a power station company,
  - (ii) had at the date of the last audited balance sheet of the electricity holding company before the first day of January, nineteen hundred and forty-six, one or more subsidiary companies, being authorised undertakers or power station companies, and
  - (iii) at the said date held securities of, or rights in respect of moneys owed by, the said subsidiary companies, the value of which, as shown in that balance sheet, amounted to not less than three-quarters of the total amount of all the assets of the holding company as so shown:

Provided that any company who are not authorised undertakers, a power station company or an electricity holding company but who hold securities of, or rights in respect of monies owed by, authorised undertakers or power station companies amounting to a substantial proportion of the assets of the first mentioned company, may serve on the Minister, not later than two months after the passing of this Act, a notice stating that they wish to be treated as an electricity holding company, and the Minister may, on the service of such notice, if he thinks fit, by order direct that this Act is to have effect, and be deemed always to have had effect, as if the company were an electricity holding company, and this Act shall have effect accordingly.

(2) The class of bodies referred to in paragraph (a) of the last foregoing subsection are—

- (i) bodies who supply electricity, under the authority of any enactment, in any area of supply in Great Britain; and
- (ii) bodies who supply electricity, under the authority of an enactment, to the bodies mentioned in paragraph (i) hereof or to the Central Electricity Board:

Provided that the said class does not include—

- (a) the North of Scotland Board;
- (b) any body, other than a local authority, whose business as suppliers of electricity consists wholly or mainly in the supply of electricity for consumption by themselves or by a company of whom they are a subsidiary company;
- (c) any local authority who supply electricity for the purposes of a transport undertaking carried on by them and do not supply electricity for other purposes to any substantial extent; or

- (d) any body, other than a local authority, who carry on a transport undertaking and who do not supply electricity under any provisional or special order made under the Electricity (Supply) Acts, 1882 to 1936. [359]

(3) Where a special order made under section twenty-six of the Electricity (Supply) Act, 1919, comes into force between the passing of this Act and the vesting date and provides for the transfer of the undertaking or any part of the undertaking of any authorised undertakers to another body, the order may—

- (a) if the body from whom the undertaking or part thereof is transferred no longer falls within the class described in subsection (2) of this section, provide that this Part of this Act shall not apply to that body ;
- (b) if by reason of the transfer, the body to whom the undertaking or part thereof is transferred falls within the said class, provide that this Part of this Act shall apply to that body ;

and this Act shall have effect in accordance with any such direction. [360]

(4) Any such special order may, for the purpose of giving effect to a transfer of the undertaking or part thereof, revoke or amend any enactment relating to the powers of the body from whom the undertaking or part thereof is transferred. [361]

(5) For the purposes of paragraph (c) of subsection (1) of this section, where the value of any such securities or rights as are therein mentioned is not separately shown in the balance sheet therein mentioned, by reason that they are grouped with other assets of the company and the balance sheet shows the value of the group as a whole, the value placed on the said securities or rights in the books of the company and used in arriving at the value of the group of assets as so shown shall have effect as if it had been shown separately in the balance sheet. [362]

(6) Where an agreement under section eighteen of the Act of 1943 for the transfer to the North of Scotland Board of the whole or any part of the undertaking of any undertakers comes into force between the passing of this Act and the vesting date, and the undertakers thereupon cease to fall within the class described in subsection (2) of this section, this Part of this Act shall not apply to them. [363]

General note.—This section lays down the necessary formula for determining the bodies to be affected by the transfer provisions of the Act. The phrase “body to whom this Part of this Act applies” appears so frequently in the next twenty-one sections that the present section may be regarded almost in the light of an interpretation section to the rest of Part II.

Company.—By s. 67 (1), post, “company” means a company incorporated by any enactment and a company within the meaning of the Companies Act, 1929, by s. 380 (1) of which (2 Halsbury’s Statutes 1006) the term means a company formed and registered under that Act or an existing company, as there defined.

On the other hand both “subsidiary company” and “holding company” are defined by reference to their meaning in the Companies Act, 1947 (10 & 11 Geo. 6, c. 47) ; see s. 18 thereof.

Service of notices.—For the general provisions applicable to notices under the Act, see s. 63, post.

The Minister.—The Minister of Fuel and Power (s. 67 (1), post).

Order of the Minister.—For the general provisions as to orders, see s. 64, post. Orders of the Minister of Fuel and Power under the proviso to sub-s. (1) of the present section are to be laid before Parliament under s. 64 (3), post ; but see note thereto.

Electricity (Supply) Acts, 1882 to 1936.—For these Acts, see note to s. 8, ante.

Electricity (Supply) Act, 1919, s. 26.—7 Halsbury’s Statutes 772. This section deals with the substitution of special for provisional orders.

Electricity holding companies.—By the Electricity (Cornwall Power Co. Ltd.) Order, 1947, S. R. & O., 1947, No. 2814, made by the Minister on December 13, 1947, the present Act is to have effect as if the Cornwall Power Company Limited were an electricity holding company. As to Christy Bros. & Co., Ltd., see S.I. 1948 No. 12.

Definitions.—For definitions of “generating station,” “securities,” “enactment,” “North of Scotland Board,” “local authority” and “Act of 1943,” see s. 67 (1), post.

14. Vesting of assets of electricity undertakings.—(1) Subject to the provisions of this Part of this Act all property, rights, liabilities and obligations which, immediately before such date as may be appointed by order of the Minister (in this Act referred to as "the vesting date") were property, rights, liabilities and obligations of a body to whom this Part of this Act applies, shall on the vesting date vest by virtue of this Act and without further assurance in such Electricity Board or Boards as may be specified in the following provisions of this section or determined thereunder.

The vesting date shall be not less than six months after the establishment of the Central Authority and not less than three months after the establishment of all the Area Boards and the definition by order made under Part I of this Act of all the areas for which those Boards are established and shall not be earlier than the first day of April, nineteen hundred and forty-eight. [364]

(2) Subject to the provisions of this section relating to the North of Scotland District—

- (a) the property, rights, liabilities and obligations mentioned in subsection (1) of this section of the Central Electricity Board, any power station company and any electricity holding company, shall vest in accordance with the said subsection (1) in the Central Authority ;
- (b) the property, rights, liabilities and obligations aforesaid of any authorised undertakers to whom this Part of this Act applies (other than the Central Electricity Board) shall vest as aforesaid in such one of the Area Boards as may be determined by order of the Minister :

(i) all generating stations of any such authorised undertakers and all main transmission lines of such undertakers, being lines connecting a generating station directly with another generating station or with any main transmission lines of the Central Electricity Board, and all property and rights held or used by the undertakers wholly or mainly for the purposes of such stations and transmission lines and all liabilities and obligations wholly or mainly incurred by the undertakers for those purposes ;

(ii) all rights, liabilities and obligations under agreements between any authorised undertakers and any railway undertakers for the supply of electricity to the railway undertakers for the purposes of haulage or traction, and all transmission lines used wholly or mainly for the purpose of giving a supply to any railway undertakers for the purposes of haulage or traction ; and

(iii) all investments and cash of any such undertakers and all rights and liabilities thereof in respect of income tax and excess profits tax ; shall vest in the Central Authority and not in an Area Board. [365]

(3) The last foregoing subsection shall not apply—

- (a) to any authorised undertakers or power station company whose undertaking is wholly or mainly carried on in the North of Scotland District ; or
- (b) to any electricity holding company whose interests in undertakings of authorised undertakers and power station companies consist wholly or mainly of interests in the undertakings of undertakers and companies referred to in paragraph (a) of this subsection ;

and the property, rights, liabilities and obligations referred to in subsection (1) of this section of any such undertakers or company shall vest in accordance with that subsection in the North of Scotland Board instead of the Central Authority or an Area Board, as the case may be. [366]

(4) Any dispute arising under either of the last two foregoing subsections as to the Electricity Board in whom any property, rights, liabilities or obligations are to vest shall be determined by the Minister or, if the North of Scotland Board is a party to the dispute, by the Minister and Secretary of State jointly. [367]

(5) Subject to the provisions of this Part of this Act, every agreement to which any body to whom this Part of this Act applies were a party immediately before the vesting date, whether in writing or not, and whether or not of such a nature that rights, liabilities and obligations thereunder could be assigned by the body, shall, unless its terms or subject matter make it impossible that it should have effect as modified in manner provided by this subsection, have effect as from the vesting date as if—

- (a) the appropriate Board had been a party to the agreement ;
- (b) for any reference (however worded and whether express or implied) to the body there were substituted, as respects anything falling to be done on or after the vesting date, a reference to the appropriate Board ;
- (c) for any reference (however worded, and whether express or implied) to, or to any part of, or to any sum determined by reference to, any profits or receipts of the undertaking of the body or any part of that undertaking there were substituted, as respects profits or receipts arising on or after the vesting date, a reference to, or to the corresponding part of, or to a sum similarly determined by reference to, an estimate of what those profits or receipts would have been but for the vesting of the undertaking or part thereof in the appropriate Board ;
- (d) for any reference (however worded and whether express or implied) to the directors or any director of the body there were substituted, as respects anything falling to be done on or after the vesting date, a reference to such person as the appropriate Board may direct ;
- (e) for any reference (however worded and whether express or implied) to any officer of the body there were substituted, as respects anything falling to be done on or after the vesting date, a reference to such person as the appropriate Board may appoint or, in default of appointment, to the officer of the Board who corresponds as nearly as may be to the first mentioned officer ;
- (f) in the case of an agreement for the rendering of personal services to the body, the services to which the agreement relates were, on and after the vesting date, any services under the appropriate Board to be selected by that Board, which are reasonably equivalent services ; and
- (g) save as provided by the four last foregoing paragraphs, for any reference (however worded and whether express or implied) to the undertaking of the body or any part of that undertaking or to the area of supply of the body or any part of that area there were substituted, as respects anything falling to be done on or after the vesting date, a reference to so much of the business carried on by the appropriate Board as corresponds to the undertaking or part of the undertaking of the body or, as the case may be, a reference to the area constituting the said area of supply or part thereof immediately before the vesting date. [368]

(6) Other documents, not being enactments, which refer, whether specifically or generally, to any such body, shall be construed in accordance with the provisions of the last foregoing subsection, so far as applicable. [369]

(7) Without prejudice to the generality of the foregoing provisions of this section, where, by the operation of any of the said provisions, any right, liability or obligation vests in an Electricity Board, the Board and all other persons shall, as from the vesting date, have the same rights, powers and remedies (and in particular the same rights as to the taking or resisting of legal proceedings or the making or resisting of applications to any authority) for ascertaining, perfecting or enforcing that right, liability or obligation as they would have had if it had at all times been a right, liability or obligation of the Board, and any legal proceedings or applications to any authority pending on the vesting date by or against the body, in so far as they relate to any property, right, liability or obligation vested in an Electricity Board by virtue of this Act, or to any agreement or document which has effect in accordance with subsection (5) or subsection (6) of this section, or to any enactment applied to the Board by or under this Act, shall be continued by or against the Board to the exclusion of the body. [370]

(8) Notwithstanding anything in this section—

- (a) there shall not, by reason of the vesting of property, rights, liabilities or obligations of any body to whom this Part of this Act applies, in any Electricity Board, be transferred to the Board any right, liability or obligation of the body in respect of any securities issued by the body ;
- (b) where any agreement provides for the borrowing of money by any such body or the raising of money by the issue of securities of any such body and the money has not been borrowed or raised before the vesting date, no right, liability or obligation under the agreement shall be transferred to any such Board ;
- (c) no right, liability or obligation under any agreement for the rendering by any person of services to any such body as a director (other than a managing director or a director whose functions are substantially those of an employee) shall be transferred to any such Board, except any liability in respect of fees earned or expenses incurred before the vesting date ; and
- (d) no right, liability or obligation of any such body, being a right exercisable against, or a liability or an obligation to, any other such body shall be transferred to any such Board :

Provided that where, under an agreement subsisting immediately before the vesting date, a body to whom this Part of this Act applies were under an obligation to give a bulk supply of electricity to another such body, and the obligation to give that supply and the right to receive it would, but for this subsection have vested in different Area Boards, the Area Board in whom that obligation would have vested shall continue to give the bulk supply to the other Area Board on such terms and conditions as may be agreed between them or, in default of agreement, as may be determined by the Central Authority. [371]

(9) Regulations may provide for the registration of the title of any Electricity Board to assets vesting in them by virtue of this Act, being assets of a kind subject to provision for the registration of title thereto, and for any other matters for which provision appears to the Minister to be necessary or expedient for the purpose of securing the effective transfer of any assets vesting in any such Board by virtue of this Act. [372]

(10) In this section the expression “ the appropriate Board ” means, in relation to any body all of whose property, rights, liabilities and obligations vest by virtue of this Act in a single Electricity Board, that Board, and in any other case means—

- (a) in relation to an agreement, the Electricity Board in whom rights, liabilities and obligations under the agreement vest by virtue of this Act ; and
- (b) in relation to any document other than an agreement, the Electricity Board appearing from the subject matter of that document to be concerned therewith. [373]

(11) Subject to the next following section and section seventeen of this Act, every body to whom this Part of this Act applies shall be dissolved on the vesting date. [374]

General note.—The preceding section having determined the “bodies to whom this Part of this Act applies,” provision is now made for the transfer of the assets and liabilities of such bodies to the appropriate Authority under the Act. Any question as to which Authority this is will normally fall to be determined by the Minister. The transfer is to take effect as from the vesting date, April 1, 1948 (see infra), from which date all transferring bodies are formally dissolved, subject to ss. 15, infra, and 17, post.

Vesting date.—By the Electricity (Vesting Date) Order, 1948, S.I. 1948 No. 217, dated February 6, 1948, the Minister, pursuant to his powers under the present section, appointed April 1, 1948, to be the vesting date for the purposes of the Act.

Establishment of the Central Authority and of the Area Boards.—Prima facie, it would seem that, by virtue of the opening words of s. 1 (1), ante, the date of establishment of the British Electricity Authority was the date of passing of the Act, and a similar position would appear to obtain in the case of the Area Boards by virtue of the opening words of s. 1 (2), ante. Nevertheless, the term “establishment” as it appears in the present context connotes an appointment of personnel to the relevant Authority; this interpretation is borne out by the phrasing of the provisos to s. 3 (2) and (3), ante. See also 151 H. of L. Official Report 44–45.

Orders and regulations.—For the general provisions applicable thereto, see s. 64, post. Orders and regulation under this section are to be laid before Parliament under s. 64 (3), post; but see note thereto. As to offences against regulations, see s. 61 (2), post.

Sub-s. (4).—In connection with this subsection, note the Minister's power under s. 66 (1), post, to hold a public inquiry in any case where he deems it advisable.

Reasonably equivalent services.—In Standing Committee of the House of Commons the Solicitor-General explained that if the appropriate Boards offered reasonably equivalent employment, but the employee disagreed, and if negotiations between them failed to result in compromise, the employee would be in a position to take the matter to the courts by writ in damages for breach of contract. The effect of the vesting was that a new contract came into being between the employee and the Board and in the possibility of recourse to the courts the employee enjoyed the same rights as other citizens (see H. of C. Official Report, S.C.E., March 27, 1947, cols. 440–441).

Other documents, not being enactments.—Sub-s. (5) of the present section refers to the transfer of agreements to which transferring authorities are parties immediately before the vesting date; sub-s. (6) refers to documents other than (a) such agreements, and (b) enactments. Examples of such documents are notices served under the Electric Lighting (Clauses) Act, 1899, Sched., s. 14 (7 Halsbury's Statutes 713), describing work proposed by authorised undertakers, and notes issued by companies demanding payment for electricity supplied (see H. of C. Official Report, S.C.E., March 27, 1947, col. 450).

Sub-s. (8) (c).—The object of this paragraph is to provide that the services of part-time directors, for whom no reasonably equivalent position under the Boards would be available, should not be transferred to the new Authorities; the same objection did not apply to “working directors” who are excepted from the paragraph and whose contracts accordingly vest in the new Authorities (H. of C. Official Report, S.C.E., March 27, 1947, cols. 458–459).

Registration of title.—E.g., under the Land Registration Acts, 1925 and 1936 (15 Halsbury's Statutes 434; 29 Halsbury's Statutes 725). Registration of title is compulsory in the Administrative Counties of London and Middlesex, the County Borough of Croydon, and Eastbourne and Hastings. An order was in preparation to make the County of Surrey a compulsory area as from January 1, 1940, but the plan was held over on account of the war.

Definitions.—As to “Area Boards,” see s. 1 (3), ante. As to “power station company” and “electricity holding company,” see s. 13 (1), ante. As to “authorised undertakers,” see s. 67 (1) and Sched. II, post. For definitions of “generating station,” “main transmission lines,” “railway undertakers,” “North of Scotland Board,” “officer,” “enactments,” “securities” and “bulk supply,” see s. 67 (1), post.

15. Provisions as to undertakings of local authorities.—(1) In the case of any authorised undertakers being a local authority the provisions of the last foregoing section shall only apply to property held or used by the local authority wholly or mainly in their capacity as authorised undertakers, and rights, liabilities and obligations acquired or incurred by the local authority in the said capacity, and accordingly references in that section to the property, rights, liabilities and obligations of a body to whom this Part of this Act applies, or to any agreement to which any such body was a party, or to documents referring to any such body, or to legal proceedings or applications by or against any such body shall be construed as references to property held or used by the local authority wholly or mainly in their capacity as authorised undertakers and rights, liabilities and obligations acquired or incurred by the local authority in the said capacity or, as the case may be, to agreements, documents, legal proceedings or applications of or relating to the local authority in their capacity as authorised undertakers, and subsection (11) of the last foregoing section shall not apply to any such local authority. [375]

(2) Regulations may provide—

- (a) for excluding from or including in the property, rights, liabilities and obligations which vest in an Electricity Board by virtue of this Act, such property, rights, liabilities or obligations held, used, acquired or incurred by any such local authority partly in their capacity as authorised undertakers and partly in other capacities, on such terms (which may include the payment of money), as may be agreed between the Electricity Board concerned and the local authority or, in default of agreement, determined in accordance with the regulations ;
- (b) for requiring any Electricity Board, as respects property which vests in them by virtue of this Act, being property held or used by any such local authority partly in their capacity aforesaid and partly in other capacities, to grant to the local authority such interests in the property or rights over or attaching to the property or in respect of the user thereof, on such terms (which may include the payment of money), as may be agreed between the Electricity Board and the local authority or, in default of agreement, determined in accordance with the regulations, or for requiring the similar grant of interests or rights by the local authority to the Electricity Board in a case where such property does not vest in the Board ;
- (c) for conferring on any Electricity Board in whom land of any such local authority is vested easements and other rights over or attaching to other land of the local authority, being easements and rights which are required to enable land which is so vested to be used for the purposes of the Board, on such terms (including the payment of money) as may be agreed between the Electricity Board and the local authority or, in default of agreement, determined in accordance with the regulations ;
- (d) for the severance of leases comprising land of which part only was used by the local authority in their capacity as authorised undertakers, and for apportionments and indemnities consequent on such severance ;
- (e) for substituting for any agreement entered into by any such local authority partly in their capacity as authorised undertakers and partly in other capacities separate agreements in the requisite terms, and for any apportionments and indemnities consequent thereon ; and
- (f) for any other matters supplementary to or consequential on the matters aforesaid for which provision appears to the Minister to be necessary or expedient.

For the purposes of this subsection, any property which is held or used by a local authority temporarily in their capacity as authorised undertakers and normally in other capacities, or normally in the said capacity and temporarily in other capacities, shall be deemed to be property held or used by a local authority partly in the said capacity and partly in other capacities.

(3) Any question arising under this section as to whether any property is or was held or used by any such local authority wholly or mainly in their capacity as authorised undertakers, or whether any property is or was (for the purposes of the last foregoing subsection) held or used partly in the said capacity and partly in other capacities, or whether any rights, liabilities or obligations were acquired or incurred by any such local authority in the said capacity or whether any agreements or documents relate or related to any such local authority in their capacity as authorised undertakers, shall in default of agreement, be determined by the Minister of Health, and he shall have regard to whether or not entries relating to any property, rights or liabilities were or ought to have been included in accounts furnished by the local authority to the Electricity Commissioners under section nine of the Electric Lighting Act, 1882. [377]

(4) Where at any time before the expiration of three months beginning with the vesting date a local authority has served on the Minister of Health and on the Electricity Board concerned, or an Electricity Board has served on the said Minister and on the local authority concerned, a notice in the prescribed form stating that a question has arisen under this section or under any regulations made thereunder as to—

- (a) whether any property is or was held or used by the local authority wholly or mainly in their capacity as authorised undertakers and accordingly vests in the Electricity Board by virtue of this Act ;
- (b) whether any property of the local authority ought to be excluded from or included in the property which so vests ;
- (c) whether interests in any property of the local authority, or rights over or attaching to such property or in respect of the user thereof, ought to be granted by the local authority to the Electricity Board or by the Board to the authority ; or
- (d) whether any lease ought to be severed ;

and the question has not been settled by agreement or determined before the vesting date, the property concerned shall not, pending such agreement or determination, vest in the Electricity Board by virtue of this Act and, if the notice is given after the vesting date, shall be deemed not to have so vested, but the property shall, so far as it is so to vest having regard to the agreement or determination, vest on such date as may be agreed or determined, and pending the settlement or determination of the said question and the vesting of property and the granting of interest or rights in accordance therewith, the Electricity Board shall be entitled and shall be deemed to have been entitled as from the vesting date to use the property for the like purposes and to the like extent as it was used, immediately before that date, by the local authority in their capacity as authorised undertakers, on such terms (which may include the payment of money) as may be agreed between the Electricity Board and the local authority or, in default of agreement, determined by the Minister of Health. [378]

(5) Notwithstanding anything in the last foregoing section or this section, there shall not, by reason of the vesting of property, rights, liabilities and obligations of any local authority, in any Electricity Board, be transferred to that Board any liabilities or obligations in respect of any loan raised by the local authority, or be transferred to that Board any property forming part of a sinking fund established for the redemption of any such loan, and any property vesting in the Board, being property subject to a mortgage created for securing the repayment of any such loan, shall vest free of the mortgage. [379]

(6) References in the following provisions of this Act to bodies to whom this Part of this Act applies (not being references which expressly exclude local authorities) shall be construed, in relation to a local authority, as referring to that authority in their capacity as authorised undertakers. [380]

General note.—This section modifies the provisions of the preceding section to meet the special circumstances of local authorities. No matter how carefully the section is drawn points of difficulty in regard to severance are bound to arise and accordingly provision is made for their determination (see infra) in cases of doubt. The vesting of property may in certain circumstances be postponed until after the vesting date.

Body to whom this Part of this Act applies.—See s. 13, ante.

Regulations.—For the general provisions applicable thereto, see s. 64, post. Regulations under this section are to be laid before Parliament under s. 64 (3), post ; but see note thereto.

An Electricity Board.—This term comprises any of the following : the British Electricity Authority, any of the Area Boards and the North of Scotland Board (s. 1 (3), ante).

The Minister.—The Minister of Fuel and Power (s. 67 (1)) ; but note that the term “the said Minister” in sub-s. (4) of the present section refers not to the Minister of Fuel and Power but to the Minister of Health.

Sub-s. (3).—Note that in this case questions in dispute are to be referred for determination not to the Electricity Arbitration Tribunal but to the Minister of Health. This was provided after full consideration of the questions likely to be brought under review, e.g., as to whether property or documents belonged to an Electricity Authority or to a local authority, or whether rights were exercisable by a local authority as such or in their capacity as authorised undertakers. In the great majority of such cases the expense of reference to the Tribunal would not be justified (see H. of C. Official Report, S.C.E., April 1, 1947, cols. 494–495).

The Minister of Health, as being the Minister having general responsibility for local government matters, is preferred to the Minister of Fuel and Power in the present connection.

Electric Lighting Act, 1882, s. 9.—7 Halsbury's Statutes 691. This section provides for the filling up and publication of annual statements of accounts by electricity undertakers, subject to penalty.

Vesting date.—Such date on or after April 1, 1948, not being less than six months after the establishment of the British Electricity Authority nor less than three months after the establishment of all the Area Boards and the definition by order of their areas, as the Minister of Fuel and Power may by order appoint. April 1, 1948, has been so appointed (ss. 14 (1), ante, and 67 (1), post, and see the notes thereto).

Sub-s. (5).—Note that loans and sinking fund arrangements covered by this subsection are excluded from the vesting provisions of the Act. Such loans are to be serviced by the Central Authority under s. 22 (2), post.

Definitions.—As to “authorised undertakers,” see s. 67 (1) and Sched. II, post. For definitions of “local authority,” “prescribed,” “lease” and “loan,” see s. 67 (1), post.

16. Right of pre-emption for local authorities in respect of land vested in an Electricity Board.—(1) Where any land of a local authority vests by virtue of this Act in an Electricity Board, the local authority shall, for a period of ten years from the date of the vesting of the land, have the right of pre-emption conferred by the subsequent provisions of this section. [381]

(2) If the Electricity Board in whom the land vests by virtue of this Act, or any other Electricity Board to whom it is subsequently transferred, desire within the said period of ten years, to dispose to any person other than an Electricity Board, whether absolutely or for a term of years, of any of that land as being land not required by the Board for the discharge of their functions under this Act, they shall before disposing of it give to the local authority at least three months' notice, stating whether they desire to dispose of it absolutely and, if not, stating the term of years for which they desire to dispose of it. [382]

(3) Where the local authority receive a notice under subsection (2) of this section and notify the Board, before the expiration of the period of three months from the date of the Board's notice, that they desire to acquire the land either absolutely or for the term of years specified in the Board's notice, as the case may be, they shall have the right and be under an obligation to acquire that land on such terms as may be agreed between the Board and the authority or, in default of agreement, as may be determined by arbitration to be fair and reasonable having regard to all the circumstances of the case. [383]

(4) The right of pre-emption conferred upon the local authority by this section shall be deemed to be an estate contract within the meaning of section ten of the Land Charges Act, 1925, and that Act and the Land Registration Act, 1925, shall have effect accordingly. [384]

An Electricity Board.—This term comprises any of the following : the British Electricity Authority, any of the Area Boards and the North of Scotland Board (s. 1 (3), ante).

Right of pre-emption.—A right of pre-emption becomes exercisable only where an owner subject to such a right is desirous of selling. Such a right differs from an option to purchase in that, subject to its detailed terms, an option may be exercised by the person entitled thereto whether or not the owner is desirous of selling.

Compare with the present right of pre-emption the right given on the disposal of superfluous land under the Lands Clauses Consolidation Act, 1845, ss. 128–129 (2 Halsbury's Statutes 1159).

Notices.—For the general provisions as to service of notices, see s. 63, post.

Estate contract.—An estate contract is a contract by an estate owner, or by a person entitled at the date of the contract to have a legal estate conveyed to him, to convey or create a legal estate, including a contract conferring, either expressly or by statutory implication, a valid . . . right of pre-emption (Land Charges Act, 1925, s. 10 ; 15 Halsbury's Statutes 534). An estate contract is commonly called "a land charge Class C (iv)," following the classification in that Act. The address of the Land Charges Superintendent is H.M. Land Registry, Lincoln's Inn Fields, London, W.C.2.

Land Charges Act, 1925, s. 10.—15 Halsbury's Statutes 531 et seq. As to the application of this Act to registered land, see s. 23 thereof.

Land Registration Act, 1925.—15 Halsbury's Statutes 434. As to the registration of land charges on registered land by notice, caution or other prescribed entry under the 1925 Act, see s. 59 (2) thereof.

Determined by arbitration.—Arbitrations under this section will be heard and determined by the Electricity Arbitration Tribunal under the provisions of ss. 31-33, post.

Definitions.—For definitions of "local authority" and "functions," see s. 67 (1), post.

17. Composite companies.—(1) This section applies to the companies (in this Act referred to as "composite companies") who are specified in Part II of the Second Schedule to this Act, being companies who, by virtue of any enactment, supply gas, or gas and water, as well as electricity :

Provided that this section shall not apply to any such company who serve on the Minister, not later than two months after the passing of this Act, a notice stating that they do not wish this section to apply to them, and references in this Act, except in the said Schedule, to composite companies shall not be construed as referring to any company who have served such a notice. [385]

(2) The provisions of section fourteen of this Act shall, in the case of composite companies, only apply to property held or used by the company wholly or mainly in their capacity as authorised undertakers, and to rights, liabilities and obligations acquired or incurred by the company in the said capacity, and accordingly references in that section to the property, rights, liabilities and obligations of a body to whom Part II of this Act applies, or to any agreement to which any such body was a party, or to documents referring to any such body, or to legal proceedings or applications by or against any such body shall be construed as references to property held or used by the company wholly or mainly in their capacity as authorised undertakers, and rights, liabilities and obligations acquired or incurred by the company in the said capacity or, as the case may be, to agreements, documents, legal proceedings or applications of or relating to the company in their capacity as authorised undertakers, and subsection (11) of the said section shall not apply to any composite company. [386]

(3) Any question arising under this section as to whether any property is or was held or used by a composite company wholly or mainly in their capacity as authorised undertakers or whether any rights, liabilities or obligations were acquired or incurred by any such company in the said capacity or whether any agreements or documents relate to any such company in the said capacity shall, in default of agreement, be determined by arbitration under this Act, and the arbitration tribunal shall have regard to whether or not entries relating to any property, rights or liabilities were or ought to have been included in the accounts furnished by the company to the Electricity Commissioners under section nine of the Electric Lighting Act, 1882. [387]

(4) Subsections (2) and (4) of section fifteen of this Act shall apply to a composite company in like manner as they apply to a local authority, subject to the modification that for references to the Minister of Health there shall be substituted references to the Minister, and any question whether any property is or was (for the purposes of the said subsection (2) as so applied) held or used partly in the said capacity and partly in other capacities shall, in default of agreement, be determined by arbitration under this Act, and the last foregoing section shall also apply to a composite company in like manner as it applies to a local authority. [388]

(5) No part of the cash and investments of a composite company shall vest in an Electricity Board under section fourteen of this Act, and the last two foregoing subsections shall accordingly not apply thereto, but regulations shall, subject to the provisions of this Part of this Act with respect to the final payment of dividends and interest, provide for the apportionment, as between the Board and the company, of the whole of the cash and investments of the company, together with any income accruing thereon pending such apportionment, in such shares as may be agreed between them or, in default of such agreement, determined in accordance with the regulations.

Any references in the following provisions of this Act to property which vests by virtue of this Act shall include a reference to property apportioned to an Electricity Board under this subsection. [389]

(6) Regulations may make provision for the apportionment of, and the making of financial adjustments with respect to, any liabilities incurred by a composite company partly in their capacity as authorised undertakers and partly in other capacities, and for any necessary variation of mortgages and incumbrances relating to such liabilities. [390]

(7) Where any property of a composite company which vests by virtue of this Act in an Electricity Board is subject to any mortgage or other incumbrance created for the purpose of securing a debt which does not so vest in the Board and is not apportioned as between the Board and the company, the property shall vest free of that mortgage or incumbrance. [391]

(8) The Electricity Board in whom any property, rights, liabilities or obligations of any composite company vest by virtue of this Act shall make available to the company such facilities for the examination of and the making of extracts from or copies of books, accounts and documents relating to the electricity undertaking of the company as the company may reasonably require for the purposes of this Act and for other purposes arising out of the carrying on of the company's business, and such services of officers of the Board as they may reasonably require to enable them to make use of those facilities. [392]

(9) References in the following provisions of this Act, except section twenty-six thereof, to bodies to whom this Part of this Act applies (not being references which expressly exclude composite companies) shall be construed, in relation to a composite company, as referring to that company in their capacity as authorised undertakers. [393]

General note.—In the Bill as originally drafted there was no provision for the separation of the gas or water activities from the electricity activities of composite companies, the intention being that the whole of the undertakings should be taken over, particularly in view of the approaching nationalisation of the gas industry. However, representations to the Government and the problem of gas holding companies caused a revision of plan, and accordingly the present section provides that only the electricity activities are to be taken over, unless the companies themselves elect to be taken over as a whole. Provision is made in the proviso to sub-s. (1), ante, for the mode of election.

The Minister.—The Minister of Fuel and Power (s. 67 (1), post).

Passing of this Act.—August 13, 1947.

Service of notices.—For the general provisions as to service of notices, see s. 63, post.

Bodies to whom Part II of this Act applies.—See s. 13, ante.

Determined by arbitration.—Arbitrations under this section will be heard and determined by the Electricity Arbitration Tribunal under the provisions of ss. 31–33, post.

Arbitration tribunal.—The Electricity Arbitration Tribunal (s. 31 (1), post).

Electric Lighting Act, 1882, s. 9.—7 Halsbury's Statutes 691. This section provides for the filling up and publication of annual statements of accounts by electricity undertakers, subject to penalty.

Electricity Board.—This term comprises any of the following: the British Electricity Authority, any of the Area Boards and the North of Scotland Board (s. 1 (3), ante).

Regulations.—For the general provisions applicable thereto, see s. 64, post. Regulations under this section are to be laid before Parliament under s. 64 (3), post; but see note thereto. As to offences against regulations, see s. 61 (2), post.

Definitions.—As to "authorised undertakers," see s. 67 (1) and Sched. II, post. For definitions of "companies," "enactment," "local authority" and "officers," see s. 67 (1), post.

18. Disclaimer of agreements and leases.—(1) Where any Electricity Board in whom are vested the rights, liabilities and obligations of any body to whom this Part of this Act applies, being rights, liabilities and obligations under an agreement made or varied on or after the nineteenth day of November, nineteen hundred and forty-five, are of opinion that the making or the variation of that agreement was not reasonably necessary for the purposes of the activities of the said body or that the agreement was made or varied with an unreasonable lack of prudence on the part of the said body, the Board may, by notice in writing given to the other parties to the agreement before the expiration of three months from the vesting date, disclaim the agreement :

Provided that any of the said parties may, within the prescribed period from the date on which the notice is served, refer to arbitration under this Act the question whether or not the agreement or variation thereof was reasonably necessary as aforesaid, or was made or varied with unreasonable lack of prudence, and, on such arbitration, the arbitration tribunal shall either confirm or revoke the notice. [394]

(2) Where a notice is so given by an Electricity Board with respect to any agreement and is not revoked by the arbitration tribunal—

- (a) subsection (5) of section fourteen of this Act shall be deemed never to have applied to the agreement ;
- (b) the agreement shall be deemed to have been frustrated on the vesting date and the parties thereto for that reason to have been discharged from the further performance thereof ; and
- (c) the like consequences shall follow as between the Board and any party to the agreement who, before the date on which the notice of disclaimer becomes final, has in pursuance of the agreement, supplied goods or rendered services to the Board which the Board have accepted, or to whom, before the said date, the Board have, in pursuance of the agreement, supplied goods or rendered services which he has accepted, as would have followed if those goods or services had been supplied or rendered at the request of the Board or of that party, as the case may be, apart from the agreement, and any payments by or to the Board before the said date shall be adjusted accordingly.

For the purposes of this subsection, a person who permits another to use or enjoy any property or rights shall be deemed to render a service to him. [395]

(3) Subsection (1) of this section, but not subsection (2), shall apply to leases, and where a notice of disclaimer is given by the Board under subsection (1) with respect to any lease and is not revoked by the arbitration tribunal, the lease shall be deemed to be surrendered on the date on which the notice of disclaimer becomes final. [396]

(4) Where any lease is disclaimed under this section, the arbitration tribunal may, on the application of the Electricity Board who gave the notice or the other party to the lease, make such modifications (if any) of the provisions of the lease relating to repairing obligations or any other provisions taking effect on or within a limited time before the determination of the lease as they think just. [397]

(5) Where any agreement (other than a lease) is disclaimed under this section, then, for the purposes of the Law Reform (Frustrated Contracts) Act, 1943, the Electricity Board in whom any rights, liabilities or obligations under the agreement are or would (but for the frustration) be vested shall be deemed to have been a party to the agreement in lieu of the body from whom those rights, liabilities or obligations were or would have been transferred. [398]

(6) For the purposes of this section, a notice of disclaimer which is not revoked shall be deemed to become final on the following date, that is to say,—

- (a) if no reference to arbitration is made under subsection (1) of this section, the date on which the period for making such a reference expires :

(b) in any other case, the date on which the notice is confirmed by the arbitration tribunal. [399]

(7) This section shall not apply to any agreement or lease made or varied with the previous consent of the Electricity Commissioners given for the purpose of any enactment other than this section nor shall it apply to any agreement or lease the making or variation of which has been approved in writing by the Minister, either generally or specially, and whether before or after the date of the making or variation of the agreement or lease. [400]

General note.—The power of disclaimer given by this section should be read in conjunction with the provisions of s. 29, post, allowing the re-opening of transactions that have resulted in the dissipation of assets. The present section has, but s. 29 has not, application to local authorities.

Any Electricity Board.—This term comprises any of the following: the British Electricity Authority, any of the Area Boards and the North of Scotland Board (s. 1 (3), ante).

Body to whom this Part of this Act applies.—See s. 13, ante.

An agreement made or varied.—Sub-s. (1) of the present section refers only to agreements; it follows that such matters as tariff reduction and hospital subscriptions will not normally be affected as there is no agreement to disclaim (see H. of C. Official Report, S.C.E., April 1, 1947, col. 510). Semble, it might be otherwise if a transferring body had entered into a covenant in 1946 to make specified payments over a period. Note, however, that the term "agreement" is not defined in the Act.

The kind of agreement at which the subsection is directed is an agreement between a subsidiary company which is a transferring body under the Act and a holding company which is not, whereby the latter has been given exceptionally favourable terms before the transfer.

November 19, 1945.—The date when the Government's decision to nationalise the electricity supply industry was first made known.

Notice in writing.—For the general provisions as to service of notices, see s. 63, post.

Vesting date.—Such date on or after April 1, 1948, not being less than six months after the establishment of the British Electricity Authority nor less than three months after the establishment of all the Area Boards and the definition by order of their areas, as the Minister of Fuel and Power may by order appoint. April 1, 1948, has been so appointed (ss. 14 (1), ante, and 67 (1), post, and see the notes thereto).

Arbitration under this Act.—Arbitration under the present Act will be heard and determined by the Electricity Arbitration Tribunal under the provisions of ss. 31–33, post.

Frustration and discharge.—For the law relating to frustration as a ground of discharge of contract, see 7 Halsbury's Laws (2nd Edn.) 215 et seq.

Law Reform (Frustrated Contracts) Act, 1943.—36 Halsbury's Statutes 50. S. 1 (1) of this Act, for instance, refers to the parties to a contract having been discharged from further performance through impossibility or frustration; but for sub-s. (5) of the present section this terminology would not include the Electricity Board concerned.

Sub-s. (7).—The object of excluding from the scope of the section agreements or leases approved by the Minister is to avoid the shelving of projects of development, etc., which might otherwise be subject to disclaimer.

Definitions.—For definitions of "prescribed," "lease" and "enactment," see s. 67 (1), post.

19. Subsequent transfer of property from one Electricity Board to another.—

(1) The Minister may, whether on the application of any of the Electricity Boards concerned or without any such application, provide by order—

(a) for the transfer to any Electricity Board of any property, rights, liabilities and obligations vested by virtue of this Act in another such Board;

(b) for the modification of agreements so far as necessary for giving effect to the transfer of rights, liabilities and obligations thereunder from one such Board to another and, in a case where part only of the rights, liabilities and obligations under any agreement are transferred, for substituting for the agreement separate agreements in the requisite terms, and for any apportionments and indemnities consequent thereon;

(c) for the purpose of transferring part of the land comprised in any lease vested in any such Board to another such Board, for the severance of that lease, and for apportionments and indemnities consequent thereon;

(d) for such other financial adjustments between the Boards concerned as may be required in consequence of any such order, and for any other matters supplementary to or consequential on the matters aforesaid for which provision appears to the Minister to be necessary or expedient :

Provided that the Minister shall consult the Central Authority before making any such order. [401]

(2) An order made under this section which affects the North of Scotland Board shall be made by the Minister and the Secretary of State jointly, and they shall consult that Board before making any such order. [402]

The Minister.—The Minister of Fuel and Power (s. 67 (1), post).

Any of the Electricity Boards.—"Electricity Board" comprises any of the following: the British Electricity Authority, any of the Area Boards and the North of Scotland Board (s. 1 (3), ante).

Order of the Minister.—For the general provisions applicable to orders under this section, see s. 64, post. Any such orders are to be laid before Parliament under s. 64 (3), post; but see note thereto.

Definitions.—For definitions of "lease" and "North of Scotland Board," see s. 67 (1), post.

20. Compensation to holders of securities of bodies other than local authorities.—(1) Every holder of securities of any body to whom this Part of this Act applies, not being securities of a local authority or a composite company, shall be entitled to be compensated by the issue to him by the Central Authority, in accordance with the provisions of the Third Schedule to this Act, of British Electricity Stock of such amount as in the opinion of the Treasury is at the vesting date of a value equal to the value of the said securities held by him, regard being had (in estimating the value of the stock so issued) to the market value of government securities at the vesting date :

Provided that—

- (a) if the whole of the beneficial interest in any such securities was, immediately before the vesting date, vested in any body to whom this Part of this Act applies, no compensation shall be payable in respect of those securities and the securities shall be extinguished on the vesting date ;
- (b) if the holder of any such securities was such a body, but the whole of the beneficial interest was not so vested, the stock issued as aforesaid in respect of those securities shall be held by the Central Authority, and the said Schedule shall have effect as if the Authority were the holder of those securities ; and
- (c) any stock issued as aforesaid in respect of securities guaranteed by the Treasury shall be of the same nominal amount, shall carry interest at the same rates and payable at the same dates, and shall if redeemable be redeemed in the same manner and at the same times and by payment of the same amounts, as in the case of the securities. [403]

(2) For the purposes of this section, the value of any securities of any such body which were quoted in the Stock Exchange Official Daily List on all six of the following dates, that is to say, the first, fourth, fifth, sixth, seventh and eighth days of November, nineteen hundred and forty-six, shall, subject as hereinafter provided, be deemed to be the average of the mean of the quotations therefor appearing in the said list on those dates, such addition, if any, being made to that average as is necessary to make it a complete multiple of one penny :

Provided that where—

- (a) quotations for the securities appeared in the said list on any of the following dates (hereinafter referred to as "the alternative dates"), that is to say, the fifteenth day of February, the fifteenth day of March, the sixteenth day of April, the fifteenth day of May, the fifteenth day of June, and the sixteenth day of July, nineteen hundred and forty-five ; and

- (b) the average mentioned in the foregoing provisions of this subsection is less than the average of the mean of the quotations for the securities appearing in the said list on all the alternative dates on which a quotation therefor so appeared ;

the value of the securities for the purposes of this section shall be deemed to be the average of the mean of the quotations therefor appearing in the said list on the alternative dates. [404]

(3) Where, in the case of any class of securities to which the last foregoing subsection applies, there has been at any time after the eighth day of November, nineteen hundred and forty-six, a fresh issue of securities of that class, the value of every security of that class for the purposes of this section shall, instead of being determined under the last foregoing subsection, be deemed to be the average of the values of all the securities of that class calculated on the basis that—

- (a) the value of each of the securities comprised in that issue is the price at which it was issued, and
(b) the value of the remaining securities is the value which those securities had for the purposes of this section immediately before the issue took place. [405]

(4) Where, at any time after the eighth day of November, nineteen hundred and forty-six, any securities to which subsection (2) or subsection (3) of this section applies have been converted into securities of a different nominal value—

- (a) the value of those securities as so converted shall, for the purposes of this section, be deemed to be a value bearing to the value which the securities had for the purposes of this section immediately before the conversion took place the same proportion as the nominal value of the securities as converted bears to the nominal value of the securities immediately before the conversion took place ; and
(b) the last foregoing subsection shall apply to securities which have been converted as aforesaid, but if a part only of a class of securities has been converted as aforesaid, the converted securities shall, for the purposes of the last foregoing subsection, be treated as securities of a different class from that of the unconverted securities. [406]

(5) Where a new class of securities has been issued at any time after the first day of November, nineteen hundred and forty-six, the value of securities of that class for the purposes of this section shall be deemed to be the price at which they were issued, and the last two foregoing subsections shall apply to any fresh issue or conversion of securities of that class. [407]

(6) If any question arises under any of the last four foregoing subsections as to the value of any securities, it shall be settled by agreement between the Minister and the stockholders' representative appointed under the next following section or, in default of such agreement, determined by arbitration under this Act. [408]

(7) For the purposes of this section, the value of any securities of any such body, not being securities to which subsection (2), (3), (4) or (5) of this section applies, shall be such value as may be agreed between the Minister and the said stockholders' representative or, in default of such agreement, as may be determined by arbitration under this Act, and the arbitration tribunal in determining the value of those securities, shall have regard, as far as may be, to the value of securities to which subsection (2) of this section applies (as determined under that subsection), being securities which, as respects all matters affecting their value, are most nearly comparable to the first named securities, and if, in relation to any class of securities to which this subsection applies, such a fresh issue or conversion of securities as is mentioned in subsection (3) or subsection (4) of this section has occurred, the arbitration tribunal shall also have regard, as far as may be, to the manner in which the value of securities is to be determined in cases to which the said subsection (3) or subsection (4) applies. [409]

(8) In this section—

the expression “the Stock Exchange Official Daily List” means the publication known as the Stock Exchange Daily List of Officially Quoted Securities which is published by and under the authority of the Council of the Stock Exchange, London;

the expression “quotation” has the same meaning as in the said list and, accordingly, does not include the statements of the business that was done;

the expression “the mean of quotations” means the average of the two figures shown in the list on the date in question in respect of the security in question under the heading “Quotations.” [410]

(9) For the purposes of this section and the following provisions of this Part of this Act, the securities of a body to which the same rights attach shall be deemed to constitute a class of securities. [411]

General note.—Compensation is payable in three specific cases: (a) to private concerns; (b) to local authorities; and (c) to composite companies. This section and the next section provide for case (a) which, though first in order, is in a sense residuary.

Body to whom the Part of this Act applies.—See s. 13, ante.

Vesting date.—Such date on or after April 1, 1948, not being less than six months after the establishment of the British Electricity Authority nor less than three months after the establishment of all the Area Boards and the definition by order of their areas, as the Minister of Fuel and Power may by order appoint. April 1, 1948, has been so appointed (ss. 14 (1), ante, and 67 (1), post, and see the notes thereto).

The Minister.—The Minister of Fuel and Power (s. 67 (1), post).

Determined by arbitration.—Arbitrations under this section will be heard and determined by the Electricity Arbitration Tribunal under the provisions of ss. 31–33, post.

Definitions.—As to “composite company,” see s. 17 (1), ante. As to “stockholders’ representative,” see s. 21 (1), post. For definitions of “securities” and “local authority,” see s. 67 (1), post.

21. Appointment of stockholders’ representative.—(1) In the case of any body to whom this Part of this Act applies, being a body in respect of whose securities compensation is payable under the last foregoing section, there shall be appointed, before such date not later than the vesting date as may be prescribed, an individual, in this Act referred to as the “stockholders’ representative,” to represent the interests of all holders of securities of that body in connection with the determination of the amount of compensation payable in respect of those securities, any payment made after the vesting date of interest or dividend in respect of those securities, and any other matters arising under this Part of this Act affecting the interests of the holders of those securities, and it shall be the duty of the stockholders’ representative, in carrying out his functions under this Part of this Act, to represent the interests of the holders of those securities. [412]

(2) The stockholders’ representative shall be appointed, in the prescribed manner, by the holders of the securities of the body in question:

Provided that—

(a) if those holders of securities fail to appoint a stockholders’ representative before the prescribed date, the Minister shall appoint such a representative;

(b) in the case of securities issued by the Central Electricity Board, any joint electricity authority, or any joint board of local authorities, the stockholders’ representative shall be appointed by the Minister. [413]

(3) The Minister shall pay out of moneys provided by Parliament to a stockholders' representative such remuneration (whether by way of salary or fees) and such allowances, and such expenses incurred by him in the exercise of his functions, as may be determined by the Minister with the approval of the Treasury, and any sums paid by the Minister under this subsection shall be repaid to him by the Central Authority on demand :

Provided that, in the case of a body whose property, rights, liabilities and obligations vest by virtue of this Act in the North of Scotland Board, the said sums shall be repaid to the Minister by the North of Scotland Board. [414]

(4) Regulations shall make provision—

- (a) as to the mode of appointment of a stockholders' representative and the notices to be given thereof ;
- (b) as to tenure and vacation of office by a stockholders' representative and the appointment, where the office falls vacant, of a new stockholders' representative ;
- (c) for any other matters relating to the office of stockholders' representative for which provision appears to the Minister to be necessary or expedient, including the exercise of functions through agents.

The regulations made with respect to the matters mentioned in paragraphs (a) and (b) hereof shall be made not less than two months before the date prescribed for the purposes of subsection (1) of this section, but without prejudice to the varying of any such regulations to such extent as may subsequently appear to the Minister to be necessary. [415]

(5) The Electricity Board in whom any property, rights, liabilities or obligations of any body vest by virtue of this Act, and any person to whom any such property, rights, liabilities or obligations which have so vested have been subsequently disposed of, shall make available to the stockholders' representative such facilities for the examination of and the making of extracts from or copies of books, accounts and documents of the body as he may reasonably require for the purposes of his duties, and such services of persons who were officers of the body and are in the employment of the Board or of the said person as the stockholders' representative, may reasonably require for those purposes. [416]

Vesting date.—Such date on or after April 1, 1948, not being less than six months after the establishment of the British Electricity Authority nor less than three months after the establishment of all the Area Boards and the definition by order of their areas, as the Minister of Fuel and Power may by order appoint. April 1, 1948, has been so appointed (ss. 14 (1), ante, and 87 (1) post, and see the notes thereto).

Central Authority.—The British Electricity Authority (s. 1 (3), ante). For the contribution of this body, see s. 3, ante.

Regulations.—On September 24, 1947, the Minister of Fuel and Power made under the present section the Electricity (Stockholders' Representatives) Regulations, 1947, S. R. & O., 1947, No. 2076, amended on October 24, 1947, by the Electricity (Stockholders' Representatives) (No. 2) Regulations, 1947, S. R. & O., 1947, No. 2277.

For the general provisions applicable to regulations under this section, see s. 64, post. Any such regulations are to be laid before Parliament under s. 64 (3), post; but see note thereto. As to offences against regulations, see s. 61 (2), post.

Definitions.—For definitions of "securities," "prescribed," "functions," "local authority" and "North of Scotland Board," see s. 87 (1), post.

Compensation to Local Authorities

22. Compensation to local authorities.—(1) The Central Authority shall, by way of compensation for the vesting in them or in any other Electricity Board of property and rights of any local authority, and in lieu of any other compensation in respect of that vesting, make payments to the authority in accordance with this and the two next following sections. [417]

(2) Where the local authority have raised a loan wholly or partly for the purposes of their functions as authorised undertakers or have advanced money for those purposes out of any consolidated loans fund or mortgage loans pool established by them or out of any other moneys held by them, and, in pursuance of the arrangements in force immediately before the vesting date for the redemption of the loan and the payment of interest thereon or, as the case may be, for the repayment of the advance and the payment of interest thereon, any amounts would, but for this Act, have fallen, on or after the vesting date, to be debited in the accounts of the local authority in their capacity as authorised undertakers, the Central Authority shall, subject to the provisions of this section, pay those amounts to the local authority at the times at which, but for this Act, those amounts would have fallen to be debited in the accounts of the local authority in their capacity aforesaid. [418]

(3) Where the local authority have before the vesting date made arrangements for the making of financial adjustments, as between the accounts of the local authority in their capacity as authorised undertakers and any other account of the local authority, in respect of any other transaction or matter affecting both their functions as authorised undertakers and other functions of the authority, and in pursuance of those arrangements any amounts would, but for this Act, have fallen, on or after the vesting date, to be debited or credited in the accounts of the local authority in their capacity as authorised undertakers and credited, or, as the case may be, debited, in some other account of the local authority, the Central Authority shall, subject to the provisions of this section, pay those amounts to the local authority or be entitled to receive those amounts from the authority, as the case may be, at the times at which, but for this Act, those amounts would have fallen to be debited or credited in the accounts of the local authority in their capacity aforesaid :

Provided that this subsection shall not apply in relation to any apportionment of establishment charges between the accounts of the local authority in their capacity aforesaid and other accounts of the authority. [419]

(4) The Central Authority and the local authority may agree or the Minister of Health may, on the application of either party in default of such agreement, determine that, having regard to the circumstances in which any such arrangements were made and the circumstances arising under this Act, the last foregoing subsection shall not apply to those arrangements or shall apply thereto with such modifications as to the payments to be made by the Central Authority or the local authority as may be so agreed or determined, and the said subsection shall have effect subject to any such agreement or determination.

Any other question arising under either of the two last foregoing subsections as to the payments to be made thereunder shall, in default of agreement, be determined by the Minister of Health. [420]

(5) Any payment made by the Central Authority or the local authority under the foregoing provisions of this section which would, but for this Act, have been debited or credited as a capital payment, or any payment made in respect of the liability for the redemption of a loan or the repayment of an advance, shall be deemed to be a capital payment, and any other such payment shall be deemed to be an annual payment. [421]

General note.—This and the next two succeeding sections set out the three heads under which "compensation" is payable to local authorities. See the Preliminary Note, ante, and the notes to s. 23, post.

Central Authority.—The British Electricity Authority (s. 1 (3), ante).

Electricity Board.—This term comprises any of the following: the British Electricity Authority, any of the Area Boards and the North of Scotland Board (s. 1 (3), ante).

Sub-s. (2).—Note the comprehensive wording of this subsection and the specific reference to mortgage loans pools, inserted in an endeavour to ensure that the appropriate portion of any loans raised partly for electricity and partly for other purposes is to be serviced by the Central Authority.

Vesting date.—Such date on or after April 1, 1948, not being less than six months after the establishment of the British Electricity Authority nor less than three months after the establishment of all the Area Boards and the definition by order of their areas, as the Minister of Fuel and Power may by order appoint. April 1, 1948, has been so appointed (ss. 14 (1), ante, and 67 (1), post, and see the notes thereto).

Definitions.—As to “authorised undertakers,” see s. 67 (1) and Sched. II, post. For definitions of “local authority,” “loan” and “functions,” see s. 67 (1), post.

23. Further compensation to local authorities in respect of severance.—

There shall be paid by the Central Authority to local authorities, by way of compensation in respect of the severance of their electricity undertakings from their other activities, the sum of five million pounds, and the said sum shall be divided among such of the said local authorities as satisfy the prescribed conditions, and the amounts to be paid to the individual authorities shall be determined in such manner and in accordance with such principles as may be prescribed. [422]

General note.—Whilst there was general agreement that local authorities should not be put in a position of making money out of their electricity undertakings, a particular demand for compensation was made, based upon four considerations. First, some local authorities used the profits of their electricity undertakings for relief of rates. Opinion as to the propriety of such a course has long been divided and only some 20 per cent. of authorities took this course. The Government felt unable to make compensation in such cases because, it argued, the money had been taken out of the pockets of the electricity consumers.

Next, local authorities were entitled to a complicated right of set-off in Income Tax matters; they paid interest on loans and deducted Income Tax on the payments, having to pay the tax deductions to the Inland Revenue only if the trading income on which they paid tax fell short of the interest. The amount of tax to be paid over was the difference between the tax paid on the income in question and the tax payable on the interest. However, this set-off which was of recent origin did not apply in all cases and even where it applied might be negligible in its effects (see H. of C. Official Report, S.C.E., April 17, 1947, cols. 646–647).

The third consideration was a minor point relating to superannuation rights, but the fourth was substantial and arose in connection with the contributions of the electricity undertakings towards central establishment charges, which would, of course, be lost after the transfer to the new Authorities. Overhead charges over the diminished sphere of the local authority would then be noticeably higher. Here, then, on the question of severance was a proper case for compensation.

In estimating the extent to which compensation would be required, the Minister of Fuel and Power gave the relevant Standing Committee of the House of Commons his idea of the future practical organisation to be set up.

“We have to use,” he said, “as much of the existing organisation, administrative and technical, as is possible when the change is effected. The local authority electricity undertakings have efficient administrative organisations—their offices, clerical employees, etc. They are familiar with all the proceedings. It would be a mistake if the Central Authority or the Area Boards, when they are created, should proceed to create new organisations if the existing one can be made available, and is adequate for the purpose.

“Therefore, to the extent that a local authority electricity administrative section can be utilised, either by the Area Board or by the Central Authority, and to that extent all its charges are met, a great many of these overhead charges difficulties would be surmountable. Adjustments can be made to meet the difficulty” (H. of C. Official Report, S.C.E., April 17, 1947, cols. 647–648).

A sum of £5,000,000 was therefore decided upon to meet the claim to compensation for severance, but the Minister explained that this was intended as an all-embracing figure:

“It would be on grounds of severance, but we take account of the knowledge we have that severance alone would not justify the payment of £5,000,000. Having regard to these other items which have been referred to, we think that £5,000,000 would meet the bill. . . . In our view, any loss sustained, whether due to Income Tax set-off, superannuation or severance, would be adequately met by this sum; I do not pretend that every little claim that could be presented by a local authority in respect of Income Tax set-off, superannuation, etc., would be met. It might be discovered that those were unreasonable claims. In our view, it would be reasonable to devote this sum of £5,000,000 to meet substantially the claims of the local authorities” (H. of C. Official Report, S.C.E., April 17, 1947, col. 649).

Definitions.—For definitions of “local authority” and “prescribed,” see s. 67 (1), post.

24. Further compensation to local authorities in respect of capital works.—

Where the Minister is satisfied, on the application of a local authority to whom this Part of this Act applies, that the authority incurred at any time after the nineteenth day of November, nineteen hundred and forty-five, in respect of works approved by the Electricity Commissioners expenditure properly chargeable to capital account, being expenditure incurred with the consent of the Electricity Commissioners (if such consent was required) and not defrayed out of moneys borrowed or advanced for the purposes of the electricity undertaking or out of the revenue or reserves of the electricity undertaking, the Minister may direct the payment by the Central Authority to the local authority of such sums by way of compensation, not exceeding the amount of the expenditure aforesaid, as may be determined by him :

Provided that no payment shall be directed to be made under this section in respect of any expenditure in respect of which the Central Authority are liable to make payments under subsection (3) of the last but one foregoing section. [423]

Object of section.—This section is inserted with a view to providing local authorities with additional security against loss on capital expenditure undertaken during the transition period beginning on November 19, 1945, and ending with the vesting date.

The Minister.—The Minister of Fuel and Power (s. 67 (1), post).

Local authority.—For definition, see s. 67 (1), post.

November 19, 1945.—The date when the Government's decision to nationalise the electricity supply industry was first made known.

Compensation to composite companies

25. Compensation to composite companies.—(1) Every composite company shall be entitled to be paid by the Central Authority, by way of compensation for the vesting in that Authority or in any other Electricity Board of property and rights of the company, and in lieu of any other compensation in respect of that vesting, an amount calculated as follows :—

- (a) the aggregate value of all the securities of the company shall be ascertained in accordance with subsections (2) to (9) of section twenty of this Act, subject to the modification that for the references in subsections (6) and (7) to the stockholders' representative there shall be substituted references to the company ;
- (b) there shall be ascertained the proportion which the average net revenue earned by the electricity undertaking in respect of the last three complete financial years before the tenth day of January, nineteen hundred and forty-seven, bears to the average net revenue earned in respect of those years by the company's undertaking as a whole ;
- (c) the amount of the compensation shall be the aggregate of the following amounts—

- (i) an amount bearing to the aggregate value of the said securities the same proportion as the said average net revenue of the electricity undertaking bears to the said average net revenue of the company's undertaking as a whole,

- (ii) an amount, by way of compensation in respect of the severance of the electricity undertaking from the remainder of the company's undertaking, consisting of a sum of five shillings for each complete one thousand of the units of electricity which, in accordance with the figures accepted by the Electricity Commissioners for the purposes of section seven of the Electricity (Supply) Act, 1922, were sold (within the meaning of that section) by the company during the year nineteen hundred and forty-six.

(2) Any question arising under paragraph (b) of the last foregoing subsection shall, in default of agreement between the company and the Minister, be determined by arbitration under this Act. [425]

(3) The right of a composite company to compensation under this section shall be satisfied by the issue to the company of British Electricity Stock of such amount as in the opinion of the Treasury is at the vesting date of a value equal to the amount calculated under subsection (1) of this section, regard being had (in estimating the value of the stock so issued) to the market value of government securities at the vesting date. [426]

(4) If, in the case of any composite company, the amount of compensation payable to the company under this section has been determined before the vesting date, the British Electricity Stock to be issued in respect thereof shall be issued on that date, and in any other case the British Electricity Stock shall be issued as soon as the amount of that compensation has been determined. [427]

(5) Interest on any stock so issued after the vesting date shall begin to accrue as from the vesting date, and the Central Authority shall, on such dates as the Minister may direct, make to the company payments of interest not exceeding the amount which, in the opinion of the Central Authority, will be found to have accrued on the British Electricity Stock ultimately issued in satisfaction of the compensation.

If the amounts paid to any company by the Central Authority under this subsection are equal to or greater than the amount of interest which is found to have accrued on the said stock for the period beginning with the vesting date and ending immediately before the date of the issue of the stock, the interest so found to have accrued shall be treated as discharged, and if the amount paid as aforesaid is less than the amount found to have accrued as aforesaid, the amount so found to have accrued shall be treated as discharged to the extent of the amount so paid, and the balance shall be added to and treated as part of the interest (being interest accruing on and after the issue of the stock) which first falls to be paid after the issue of that stock. [428]

(6) Regulations may make provision—

(a) for entitling the holder of any debentures, debenture stock, preference shares or preference stock of a composite company, by notice given within the prescribed period, to require the company to transfer to him such amount of the British Electricity Stock issued to the company under this section as is attributable to the value of the said securities held by him, and for the cancellation of those securities to a proportionate extent; and

(b) otherwise for the protection of mortgagees and incumbrancers of a composite company. [429]

General note.—This section, dealing with the compensation of composite companies, is a corollary to s. 17, ante, which regulates the vesting provisions in such cases. The present section sets out, by reference to s. 20, ante, the formula for the assessment of compensation in the case of composite companies.

Composite company.—See s. 17 (1), ante, and Sched. II, Part II, post. In the present section the term “the company” is used to refer to “every composite company,” mentioned in the opening words of the section.

Central Authority.—The British Electricity Authority (s. 1 (3), ante). For the constitution of this body, see s. 3, ante.

Electricity Board.—This term comprises any of the following: the British Electricity Authority, any of the Area Boards and the North of Scotland Board (s. 1 (3), ante).

January 10, 1947.—The date of publication of the Bill that led to the present Act.

Electricity (Supply) Act, 1922, s. 7.—7 Halsbury's Statutes 783. By this section “units of electricity sold” means all units generated or purchased by a joint electricity authority or authorised undertaker less (a) those used in the generating station, (b) those lost in transmission or distribution, and (c) those sold in bulk to authorised undertakers.

Determined by arbitration.—Arbitrations under this section will be heard and determined by the Electricity Arbitration Tribunal under the provisions of ss. 31–33, post.

British Electricity Stock.—As to the issue of this stock, see s. 20 (1), ante, and Sched. III, post.

Vesting date.—Such date on or after April 1, 1948, not being less than six months after the establishment of the British Electricity Authority nor less than three months after the establishment of all the Area Boards and the definition by order of their areas, as the Minister of Fuel and Power may by order appoint. April 1, 1948, has been so appointed (ss. 14 (1), ante, and 67 (1), post, and see the notes thereto).

Regulations.—Up to the time of going to press, no regulations under this section had been made.

For the general provisions applicable to regulations under this section, see s. 64, post. Any such regulations are to be laid before Parliament under s. 64 (3), post; but see note thereto. As to offences against regulations, see s. 61 (2), post.

Notice to be given.—For the general provisions of the Act as to notices, see s. 63, post.

Definitions.—As to “stockholders’ representative,” see s. 21, ante. For definitions of “net revenue,” “financial year,” “securities” and “prescribed,” see s. 67 (1), post.

Control of Dividends and Interest and Safeguarding of Assets pending transfer

26. Control of dividends, interest and other payments.—(1) Where any body to whom this Part of this Act applies, being a company, have paid pursuant to a resolution passed after the tenth day of January, nineteen hundred and forty-seven, interest or a dividend on any of their securities in respect of the last complete financial year before the said day or any subsequent period, being payments which, regard being had to any interest or interim dividend paid before the said day in respect of that year or period, are in excess of the payments of interest or dividend permitted under this section, all persons who were directors of the body at the time when the resolution of the directors was passed authorising or recommending the payments shall, subject to the provisions of this section, be liable to pay to the Central Authority an amount equal to the total amount of the excess. [430]

(2) The payments of interest or dividend permitted under this section are as follows :—

- (a) in the case of securities in respect of which rates of interest are fixed, payments at those rates ;
- (b) in the case of securities in respect of which rates of preferential dividend are fixed, but which give no other rights to participate in the profits of the body, payments at those rates ; or
- (c) in the case of any other class of securities, payments of dividend at a rate not exceeding four per cent. per annum or the annual rate paid on that class of securities in respect of the last complete financial year in respect of which a final dividend was paid before the said tenth day of January, nineteen hundred and forty-seven, whichever is the higher :

Provided that :

- (i) such payments shall only be made out of the net revenue of the body for the period in respect of which the payment is made, or out of any funds applicable in accordance with the normal practice for the purpose of maintaining interest payments and equalising rates of dividend, and any payment shall, so far as it is made otherwise than out of that revenue, or out of those funds, not be permitted under this section ; and
- (ii) where a fresh issue has been made after the said date of securities of a class mentioned in paragraph (c) hereof, being a class on which the annual rate of dividend paid in respect of the said last complete financial year exceeded four per cent. per annum, the payments of dividend permitted under this section on the securities so issued shall not, except with the approval of the Minister, exceed a rate of four per cent. per annum. [431]

(3) Where any such body as aforesaid have, without the approval of the Minister, paid after the tenth day of January, nineteen hundred and forty-seven, a dividend in respect of any period prior to the last complete financial year before the said day, all persons who were directors of the body at the time when the resolution of the directors was passed authorising or recommending the payments shall, subject to the provisions of this section, be liable to pay to the Central Authority an amount equal to the total amounts of the payments :

Provided that this subsection shall not apply to payments of dividend on cumulative preference shares or stock, being payments which are required to be made in priority to the payment of any dividend on ordinary capital and are made out of the net revenue of the body for the said last complete financial year or any subsequent period. [432]

(4) Where, at any time after the tenth day of January, nineteen hundred and forty-seven, any such body as aforesaid have, without the approval of the Minister,—

- (a) made any payments to their members for the purpose of reducing the share capital of the body otherwise than by redemption of any redeemable preference shares ;
- (b) made any other payments to their members out of capital moneys ; or
- (c) distributed assets other than money to their members ;

all persons who were directors of the body at the time when the resolution of the directors was passed authorising or recommending the payments or distribution shall, subject to the provisions of this section, be liable to pay to the Central Authority an amount equal to the total amount of the payments or, as the case may be, the total value of the assets distributed :

Provided that this subsection shall not apply to any such payment or distribution to any such member otherwise than in his capacity as a member.

(5) Where, at any time after the said day, any such body as aforesaid have redeemed any securities which the body were not under an obligation to redeem before the vesting date, or made payments in respect of the redemption of any securities which exceed the minimum payments required to satisfy the rights existing on the said day of the holders of the securities, all persons who were directors of the body at the time when the resolution of the directors authorising or recommending the redemption or the payments in respect thereof was passed shall, subject to the provisions of this section, be liable to pay to the Central Authority—

- (a) in the case of securities which the body were not obliged to redeem, the amount (if any) by which the sums paid in respect of the redemption of those securities exceed the compensation which would have been payable under this Part of this Act (but for the redemption) to the holders of those securities ; or
- (b) in the case of securities which the body were obliged to redeem but for which the payments made exceeded the said minimum payments, an amount equal to the total amount of the excess. [434]

(6) For the purposes of this section—

- (a) any payment by a body to its members in their capacity as members out of the net revenue of the body shall be deemed to be a payment of dividend ; and
- (b) any transaction the effect of which is that assets of a body are transferred to any person otherwise than in the capacity of a member of the body, and the consideration for such transfer is given to the members of the body or any class thereof, shall be deemed to be a distribution of those assets to the members of the body or that class thereof. [435]

(7) Any claim under this section by the Central Authority against the directors of any such body as aforesaid shall be made before the expiration of a period of twelve months beginning with the vesting date, and if so made, shall be determined by arbitration under this Act, and, if the arbitration tribunal decides the claim in favour of the Central Authority, it shall make such orders against all or any of the said directors in respect of their liability on the claim as it thinks just, having regard to all the circumstances. [436]

(8) References in this section to any payments of interest or dividend made or permitted to be made by any body shall be construed as references to the gross amounts of those payments, that is to say, to the amounts thereof before any deduction is made therefrom in respect of income tax, and, if any such payment has been made by a body without deduction of income tax, the amount paid shall be deemed for the purposes of this section to be a net amount paid after deduction of income tax, and the gross amount of that payment for the purposes of this section shall be calculated accordingly :

Provided that, in determining the amount recoverable under this section from the directors of any body in respect of payments of interest or dividend made by that body, there shall be deducted from the amount which would, but for this proviso, be so recoverable a sum equal to the income tax chargeable on that amount at the standard rate for the year in which the payments became due. [437]

(9) This section shall, in relation to any body whose property, rights, liabilities and obligations vest by virtue of this Act in the North of Scotland Board, have effect with the substitution for references to the Central Authority of references to the North of Scotland Board. [438]

(10) This section shall, in relation to any composite company, have effect subject to the following modifications :—

- (a) subsections (1), (3), (4) and (5) shall only apply to payments and distributions made, and redemptions carried out, before the vesting date ;
- (b) any liabilities arising under this section shall be liabilities of the company and not of the directors ; and
- (c) any such liability shall be reduced by applying thereto the proportion ascertained under paragraph (b) of subsection (1) of section twenty-five of this Act. [439]

Object of section.—Despite the penal character of sub-s. (1), the underlying object of this section is to give directors and electricity companies some guidance as to the dividends and interest that may properly be paid in the last accounting period.

In Standing Committee of the House of Commons the Parliamentary Secretary to the Ministry of Fuel and Power gave an assurance, when the present section was considered, that there was no intention of treating companies and other bodies differently because of their status in the eyes of the Government, either politically or as an economic factor (see H. of C. Official Report, S.C.E., April 22, 1947, col. 686).

January 10, 1947.—The date of publication of the Bill that led to the present Act.

Central Authority.—The British Electricity Authority (s. 1 (3), ante). For the constitution of this body, see s. 3, ante.

The Minister.—The Minister of Fuel and Power (s. 67 (1), post).

Distributed assets other than money.—Sub-s. (4) (c) would, for instance, prevent the disposal of assets by distribution of bonuses in the form of investments which had been built up.

Vesting date.—Such date on or after April 1, 1948, not being less than six months after the establishment of the British Electricity Authority nor less than three months after the establishment of all the Area Boards and the definition by order of their areas, as the Minister of Fuel and Power may by order appoint. April 1, 1948, has been so appointed (ss. 14 (1), ante, and 67 (1), post, and see the notes thereto).

Determined by arbitration.—Arbitrations under this section will be heard and determined by the Electricity Arbitration Tribunal under the provisions of ss. 31–33, post.

Sub-s. (7).—Liability under sub-s. (1), etc., is upon “all persons who were directors of the body at the time when the resolution of the directors was passed” and this would include absent directors and directors who had no part in passing the resolution. Nevertheless, under the present subsection the Electricity Arbitration Tribunal is empowered to make “such orders against all or any of the said directors . . . as it thinks just, having regard to all the circumstances.” Hence, a director who voted against the passing of the dividend in question might be exonerated altogether by having no order made against him by the Tribunal, or in other circumstances the loss might be apportioned. In addition, the Tribunal may order that part only of the loss shall be recoverable.

Appeal to the Court of Appeal.—An appeal lies to the Court of Appeal on any question of law or fact from any determination or order of the arbitration tribunal on a claim under this section against the directors of a body to whom Part II of the Act applies (s. 32 (3), post). Note also the provisions of the same section for stating special cases for determination by the Court of Appeal.

Definitions.—For definitions of “company,” “financial year,” “net revenue” and “North of Scotland Board,” see s. 67 (1), post.

27. Final payment of dividends and interest.—(1) As soon as possible after the vesting date, there shall, in the case of any body to whom this Part of this Act applies other than a local authority or a composite company, be ascertained and certified by an auditor appointed by the Minister after consultation with the Central Authority and the stockholders' representative—

- (a) the net revenue of the body for the final financial period ;
- (b) the total gross amounts paid by the body by way of interest or interim dividend on any securities in respect of the final financial period ; and
- (c) the amount (if any) by which the said net revenue exceeds the said total amounts ; and the Central Authority shall pay to the stockholders' representative the amount referred to in paragraph (c) hereof.

In appointing an auditor under this subsection in the case of any body, the Minister shall first offer the appointment to one of the auditors who signed the last balance sheet of the body or examined that balance sheet on behalf of the Electricity Commissioners, and there shall be paid to the auditor out of moneys provided by Parliament such remuneration (whether by way of salary or fees) and such allowances as the Minister may, with the approval of the Treasury, determine, and the amount of the remuneration and allowances shall be repaid to the Minister by the Central Authority on demand.

(2) The Central Authority, if they think fit, may, before the auditor's certificate is given, make payments to the stockholders' representative on account. [441]

(3) The stockholders' representative shall apply the sums paid to him under the foregoing provisions of this section (so far as they will go) for the following purposes and in the following order of priority :—

- (a) in making interest payments on any debentures or debenture stock of the body, which have accrued up to the vesting date and have not been paid, at the rates permitted under the last foregoing section ;
- (b) in making such a distribution as is mentioned in the next following subsection to the holders of other securities, if any, of the body ; and
- (c) in repaying the balance, if any, to the Central Authority. [442]

(4) The distribution falling to be made under paragraph (b) of the last foregoing subsection shall be a distribution under which the holders of the securities there referred to become entitled to the same gross amounts as they would have become entitled to if—

- (a) the statutory or other provisions relating to the body had permitted payments of interest or dividend in respect of the final financial period ;
- (b) the body had had available for distribution the sums paid to the stockholders' representative under this section less the amount applied in making the payments mentioned in paragraph (a) of the last foregoing subsection ; and
- (c) the body had applied the amount so available for distribution, or so much thereof as was required for the purpose, in making payments of interest or dividend for the final financial period, at the rates permitted under the last foregoing section, to the holders of the securities in question, in the proper order of priority, and according to their respective rights, due regard being had to any interest or interim dividend already paid in respect of the final financial period and all necessary adjustments being made where the said period is not a period for which interest or dividend would be payable under the statutory or other provisions relating to those securities :

Provided that the amounts to which the holders would have become entitled by way of interest or dividend for the final financial period in the event contemplated by paragraph (c) of this subsection shall be computed as if the amounts deducted in respect of income tax from the payments mentioned in paragraph (a) of the last foregoing subsection and from any payments made under paragraph (b) of that subsection in respect of any securities were not available for paying any other interest or dividend. [443]

(5) Where the sums paid to the stockholders' representative under the foregoing provisions of this section are insufficient to enable him—

- (a) to make the interest payments referred to in paragraph (a) of subsection (3) of this section at the maximum rates permitted under the last foregoing section ; and
- (b) to distribute to the holders of the securities referred to in paragraph (b) of that subsection gross amounts equal to payments of interest or dividend on those securities at the maximum rates so permitted ; and the body possessed immediately before the vesting date funds applicable in accordance with the normal practice for the purpose of maintaining payments of interest and equalising rates of dividend, the Central Authority shall pay to the stockholders' representative an additional amount equal to the total amount of the said funds so possessed or to the total amount of the said deficiency, whichever is the less, and the stockholders' representative shall apply that amount in like manner as the other sums paid to him under this section. [444]

(6) The persons who receive any payment made by a stockholders' representative under the foregoing provisions of this section, shall, subject to the provisions of the next following subsection, hold the payment in the same right and on the same trusts and subject to the same powers, privileges, charges and liabilities as those in, on, or subject to which, any payment of interest or dividend in respect of the securities in question would have been held by them. [445]

(7) Where any body to whom this Part of this Act applies were the holder of, or had any interest in, any securities of another such body the Central Authority shall have the like right to receive and hold, or benefit from, a payment under paragraph (a) or paragraph (b) of subsection (3) of this section as they would have had if they had been the holder of, or had had that interest in, those securities :

Provided that, in the case of any such body other than a local authority, the gross amounts of any such payments or of the benefit therefrom shall be included in the net revenue of the body for the final financial period for the purposes of this section. [446]

(8) Where, before the vesting date, there became due from any body to whom this Part of this Act applies, other than a local authority, any payment by way of interest or dividend or any payment by way of a redemption of any security, and, by reason only that it was not possible to discover the person entitled thereto, or that the title to the payment had not been established, or that a cheque or warrant issued for the purpose of effecting the payment had not been encashed, that payment was not made before the vesting date, the liability in respect of that payment shall pass to the Central Authority. [447]

(9) Where the stockholders' representative is for any reason unable to effect payment of any sum falling to be paid by him under this section, or where a receipt cannot effectively be given for any such sum, the stockholders' representative may pay that sum to the Central Authority and, on the said sum being so paid to the Authority, the liability of the stockholders' representative for the payment of that sum shall pass to the Central Authority. [448]

(10) This section shall, in relation to any body whose property, rights, liabilities and obligations vest by virtue of this Act in the North of Scotland

Board, have effect with the substitution for references to the Central Authority of references to the North of Scotland Board and for the references to the Minister of references to the Secretary of State. [449]

(11) The following provisions shall have effect in the case of a composite company, that is to say :—

- (a) there shall be ascertained and certified as soon as possible after the vesting date by an auditor appointed by the Minister the net revenue of the company for the final financial period ;
- (b) there shall be ascertained and certified by the said auditor as soon as possible after the vesting date the amount required to enable the company to make payments of interest or dividend in respect of the final financial period on all their securities at the full rates permitted under the last foregoing section, assuming that the statutory or other provisions relating to the company permitted payments of interest or dividend in respect of that period and due regard being had to any interest or interim dividend already paid in respect of that period ; and
- (c) the said net revenue shall not, except to the extent (if any) to which it exceeds the amount ascertained and certified under paragraph (b) hereof, be subject to apportionment as between the company and the Electricity Board concerned under the foregoing provisions of this Part of this Act relating to the apportionment of the cash and investments of composite companies.

The provisions of subsection (1) of this section relating to the appointment of an auditor, except the requirement as to consultation with the stockholders' representative, shall apply to an auditor appointed under this subsection and there shall be paid to the auditor by the Central Authority such remuneration (whether by way of salary or fees) and such allowances as the Minister may with the approval of the Treasury determine. [450]

(12) In this section the expression "final financial period" means such part of the financial year during which the vesting date occurs as precedes that date :

Provided that, where any body has not made the payments of interest or dividends permitted under section twenty-six of this Act in respect of the last complete financial year before the vesting date, the said expression means that year together with such part of the financial year during which the vesting date occurs as precedes the vesting date. [451]

General note.—The principal provisions of this section do not apply to local authorities or to composite companies, but affect the residuary undertakings to which ss. 20 and 21, ante, apply. Note, however, sub-s. (11), supra, in relation to composite companies.

Vesting date.—Such date on or after April 1, 1948, not being less than six months after the establishment of the British Electricity Authority nor less than three months after the establishment of all the Area Boards and the definition by order of their areas, as the Minister of Fuel and Power may by order appoint. April 1, 1948, has been so appointed (ss. 14 (1), ante, and 67 (1), post, and see the notes thereto).

Composite company.—See s. 17 (1), ante, and Sched. II, Part II, post.

Central Authority.—The British Electricity Authority (s. 1 (3), ante).

Electricity Boards.—This term comprises any of the following : the British Electricity Authority, any of the Area Boards and the North of Scotland Board (s. 1 (3), ante).

Definitions.—As to "stockholders' representative," see s. 21, ante. For definitions of "local authority," "net revenue," "securities," "North of Scotland Board," "company" and "financial year," see s. 67 (1), post.

28. Income tax provisions.—(1) This section shall be construed as one with the Income Tax Acts. [452]

(2) The gross amounts of any payments made by a stockholders' representative under the last foregoing section shall be deemed to be income for all the purposes of the Income Tax Acts, and the stockholders' representative making the payments shall deduct income tax therefrom at the standard rate for the year in which the payments become due and any amounts so deducted shall, notwithstanding anything in the Income Tax Acts, be paid over to the Central Authority for their own use and benefit. [453]

(3) If—

- (a) the payments of any interest of money, annuity or other annual payment charged with tax under Schedule D made by a body to whom this Part of this Act applies other than a local authority or a composite company in the year or years of assessment falling wholly or partly within the final financial period as defined by the last foregoing section ; plus
- (b) any payments made by the stockholders' representative to the holders of securities of the body under the last foregoing section being securities bearing interest ;

together exceed—

- (i) the total income of the body for the said year or years ; plus
- (ii) the total of the assessments made for the said year or years under Rule 21 of the General Rules in respect of payments by the body, the said Rule 21 shall have effect as if a payment of a gross amount equal to the excess had been made by the Central Authority, as if that payment were a payment of interest of money charged with tax under Schedule D not payable out of profits or gains brought into charge to tax and as if the Central Authority had deducted tax at the appropriate rates in making that payment :

Provided that, in calculating whether there is such an excess as aforesaid or the extent thereof, any payment which has been reimbursed to the body by any person or is charged to capital shall be disregarded, but the said Rule 21 shall have the like effect in relation to the whole of any such payment as it has effect, or would have effect, under this subsection in relation to such an excess as aforesaid.

In this subsection, the expression “ the appropriate rates ” means the rates which were applied in making deductions of income tax from the payments referred to in paragraph (b) of this subsection, the lowest rate being taken first and applied to an amount of the excess equal to the amount to which it was applied as aforesaid, and then so with the next lowest rate, and so on. [454]

(4) Any reference in this section or in the last foregoing section to the gross amount of any payment shall be construed as a reference to the amount of that payment before any deduction is made therefrom in respect of income tax. [455]

(5) This section shall, in relation to any body whose property, rights, liabilities and obligations vest by virtue of this Act in the North of Scotland Board, have effect with the substitution for the reference to the Central Authority of a reference to the North of Scotland Board. [456]

Construed as one.—Accordingly the present section is to be construed as if it were contained in the Income Tax Acts unless there is any manifest discrepancy showing that it has modified something to be found in the earlier Acts ; Canada Southern Railway Co. v. International Bridge Co. (1883), 8 App. Cas. 723, at p. 727 ; Hart v. Hudson Brothers, [1928] 2 K. B. 629, at p. 634 ; Phillips v. Parnaby, [1934] 2 K. B. 299, at p. 302.

Thus words defined in the earlier Acts will bear the like meaning in the present section, unless it is clear from the context that their construction in the present section is different.

The present section is the latest provision of a series of Acts dealing with the specific subject-matter of Income Tax, and any amendments effected by the present section should be construed consistently, if that be possible, with any scheme which can be seen in clear outline from the Acts (Fendoch Investment Trust Co. v. I. R. C., [1945] 2 All E. R. 140, at p. 144, per Lord SIMONDS), but this principle can easily be pressed too far in relation to taxing enactments.

Income Tax Acts.—The principal Act in force is the Income Tax Act, 1918 (9 Halsbury's Statutes 426), but numerous amending Acts have been passed.

Composite company.—See s. 17 (1), ante, and Sched. II, Part II, post.

Rule 21 of the General Rules.—I.e., the General Rules applicable to Schedules A, B, C, D and E, contained in Schedule I to the Income Tax Act, 1918 (see 9 Halsbury's Statutes 587).

Rule 21 shall have effect, etc.—For an explanation of this provision, see H. of C. Official Report, S.C.E., April 24, 1947, cols. 753-756.

Definitions.—As to "stockholders' representative," see s. 21, ante. For definitions of "local authority," "securities" and "North of Scotland Board," see s. 67 (1), post.

29. Re-opening of transactions resulting in dissipation of assets.—(1) This section shall apply in any case where on or after the tenth day of January, nineteen hundred and forty-seven, any body to whom this Part of this Act applies, being a company, have—

- (a) made any payment to any person without consideration or for an inadequate consideration ;
- (b) sold or disposed of any of its property or rights without consideration or for an inadequate consideration ;
- (c) acquired any property or rights for an excessive consideration ;
- (d) entered into or varied any agreement so as to require an excessive consideration to be paid or given by the body ; or
- (e) entered into any other transaction of such an onerous nature as to cause a loss to or impose a liability on the body substantially exceeding any benefit accruing to the body ; and the payment, sale, disposal, acquisition, agreement or variation thereof, or other transaction was not reasonably necessary for the purposes of the body or was made with an unreasonable lack of prudence on the part of the body :

Provided that this section shall not apply :

- (i) to any payment or other transaction to which section twenty-six of this Act applies ;
- (ii) to any payment or other transaction made or entered into for any charitable purpose ;
- (iii) to any payment or other transaction made or entered into in connection with the determination of any question, dispute or matter falling to be determined under any provision of this Part of this Act or any regulations made thereunder ; or
- (iv) to any payment or other transaction to which the previous consent of the Electricity Commissioners was given for the purposes of any enactment other than this section, or which has been approved in writing by the Minister, either generally or specially, and whether before or after the date of the payment or other transaction. [457]

(2) The Central Authority may, at any time before the expiration of a period of twelve months beginning with the vesting date, make an application to the arbitration tribunal in respect of any transaction to which in the opinion of the Authority this section applies, and all parties to the transaction, and all persons who were directors of the body at the date when the transaction was entered into shall, unless the tribunal otherwise directs, be made parties to the application. [458]

(3) Where the arbitration tribunal is satisfied that the transaction in respect of which an application is made is a transaction to which this section applies, then, unless it is shown by any of the parties to the application that the transaction was in the ordinary course of business and was in no way connected with any provision made by this Act or with any anticipation of the making of any such provision, the tribunal shall determine the extent of the net loss or liability caused to or imposed on the body by the transaction, and shall make such orders against all or any of the parties to the application (other than the Central Authority) as it thinks just, having regard to the extent to which they were respectively responsible for the transaction or benefited from it, for the payment by them to the Central Authority of sums sufficient to enable the net loss or liability, or such part thereof as the tribunal thinks just, to be made good or met. [459]

(4) Where any Electricity Board have disclaimed an agreement or lease by a notice under this Part of this Act, being an agreement or lease entered into or varied on or after the said tenth day of January, nineteen hundred and forty-seven, the Central Authority may make an application to the arbitration tribunal under this section in respect of any loss or liability caused to or imposed on the body before the vesting date and, in the case of a lease, any loss or liability caused to or imposed on the Board between the vesting date and the disclaimer of the lease, in consequence of the onerous nature of the agreement or lease. [460]

(5) Where any application is made to the arbitration tribunal under this section in respect of any transaction, or a reference is made to that tribunal with respect to any notice given under this Part of this Act disclaiming an agreement or lease, the tribunal shall have exclusive jurisdiction—

(a) to determine claims arising in respect of the transaction or under the lease or agreement; and

(b) if the notice disclaiming any such agreement is confirmed by the tribunal, to determine any claims arising with respect to the agreement under the Law Reform (Frustrated Contracts) Act, 1943. [461]

(6) This section shall, in relation to any body whose property, rights, liabilities and obligations vest by virtue of this Act in the North of Scotland Board, have effect with the substitution for the references to the Central Authority of references to the North of Scotland Board. [462]

(7) In the case of a composite company, the company, and not the directors, shall be made parties to applications under this section. [463]

General note.—This section should be read in conjunction with s. 18, ante, providing for the disclaimer of agreements and leases. Note that, unlike s. 18, the present section has no application to transactions of local authorities.

January 10, 1947.—The date of publication of the Bill that led to the present Act.

Not reasonably necessary, etc.—For a criticism of this wording, see the speech of Lord Maugham, a former Lord Chancellor, at the Committee Stage of the Bill in the House of Lords on July 23, 1947 (151 H. of L. Official Report 203-205).

Sub-s. (1), proviso.—This proviso includes provision whereby, to avoid uncertainty, the Minister may be approached for approval of specific transactions. If approved, such transactions are no longer liable to challenge under this section.

Vesting date.—Such date on or after April 1, 1948, not being less than six months after the establishment of the British Electricity Authority nor less than three months after the establishment of all the Area Boards and the definition by order of their areas, as the Minister of Fuel and Power may by order appoint. April 1, 1948, has been so appointed (ss. 14 (1), ante, and 67 (1), post, and see the notes thereto).

Arbitration tribunal.—The Electricity Arbitration Tribunal (s. 31 (1), post). For the general provisions applicable, see ss. 31-33, post. This tribunal is referred to in the present section as "the tribunal."

Appeal to the Court of Appeal.—An appeal lies to the Court of Appeal on any question of law or fact from any determination or order of the arbitration tribunal on an application under this section in respect of any transaction (s. 32 (3), post). Note also the provisions of the same section for stating special cases for determination by the Court of Appeal.

Any Electricity Board.—The term "Electricity Board" comprises any of the following: the British Electricity Authority, any of the Area Boards and the North of Scotland Board (s. 1 (3), ante).

Law Reform (Frustrated Contracts) Act, 1943.—36 Halsbury's Statutes 50. See s. 18 (5), ante, and notes thereto. S. 1 of that Act provides for the adjustment of the rights and liabilities of the parties to a frustrated contract.

Definitions.—As to "composite company," see s. 17 (1), ante, and Sched. II, Part II, post. For definitions of "company," "regulations," "enactment," "lien" and "North of Scotland Board," see s. 67 (1), post.

30. Provisions as to foreign investments.—(1) It shall not be lawful for any body to whom this Part of this Act applies other than a composite company to acquire any foreign investments. [464]

(2) Every such body shall, within such period as may be prescribed, supply to the Minister and the Central Authority particulars in the prescribed form of all foreign investments of the body, and shall dispose of those investments in such manner and within such period as may be prescribed. [465]

(3) If any such body contravene or fail to comply with the provisions of this section or any regulation made thereunder, all persons who were directors of the body at the time when the contravention or failure occurred shall, subject to the next following subsection, be liable to make good any loss suffered by the Central Authority in consequence of the contravention or failure. [466]

(4) Any claim under this section by the Central Authority against the directors of any such body shall be made before the expiration of a period of twelve months beginning with the vesting date and shall be determined by arbitration under this Act, and all persons who were directors of the body at the time when the alleged contravention or failure occurred shall, unless the arbitration tribunal otherwise directs, be made parties to the proceedings, and, if the arbitration tribunal decides the claim in favour of the Central Authority, it shall make such orders against all or any of the said directors in respect of their liability under this section as it thinks just, having regard to all the circumstances. [467]

(5) In this section the expression "foreign investments" means any assets the transfer of which is governed otherwise than by the law of any part of Great Britain. [468]

(6) If it appears to the Minister to be necessary or expedient, for the purpose of securing the disposal of foreign investments of any body under this section, to postpone the vesting date in relation to that body, he may direct that the vesting date for the purposes of this Act shall, in relation to that body, be such date, later than the date which would otherwise be appointed or fixed, as may be specified in the direction. [469]

(7) This section shall, in relation to any body whose property, rights, liabilities and obligations vest by virtue of this Act in the North of Scotland Board, have effect with the substitution for the references to the Minister and the Central Authority of references to the Secretary of State and the North of Scotland Board respectively. [470]

Application of section.—Though composite companies are excluded from the operation of this section, local authorities are not specifically referred to. However, they would not normally be empowered to invest in foreign securities in the first place and the terminology of the later subsections as to "directors," etc., is clearly inapplicable to local authorities.

Composite company.—See s. 17 (1), ante, and Sched. II, Part II, post.

The Minister.—The Minister of Fuel and Power (s. 87 (1), post).

Regulations.—On September 24, 1947, the Minister of Fuel and Power, under the present section and s. 35, post, made the Electricity (Foreign Investments) Regulations, 1947, S. R. & O., 1947, No. 2077.

For the general provisions applicable to regulations under the Act, see s. 64, post. Any such regulations are to be laid before Parliament under s. 64 (3), post; but see note thereto. As to offences against regulations, see s. 61 (2), post.

Vesting date.—Such date on or after April 1, 1948, not being less than six months after the establishment of the British Electricity Authority nor less than three months after the establishment of all the Area Boards and the definition by order of their areas, as the Minister of Fuel and Power may by order appoint. April 1, 1948, has been so appointed (ss. 14 (1), ante, and 87 (1), post, and see the notes thereto).

Note the power under sub-s. (6) of the present section to postpone the vesting date in relation to particular bodies.

Determined by arbitration.—Arbitrations under this section will be heard and determined by the Electricity Arbitration Tribunal under the provisions of ss. 31-33, post.

Arbitration tribunal.—The Electricity Arbitration Tribunal (s. 31 (1), infra).

Definitions.—For definitions of "prescribed," "regulations" and "North of Scotland Board," see s. 87 (1), post.

Supplementary Provisions

31. Establishment of Electricity Arbitration Tribunal.—(1) For the purpose of determining any question or dispute which under any provision of this Part of this Act or any regulations made thereunder is to be determined by arbitration under this Act, or any matter in respect of which jurisdiction is given to the arbitration tribunal under this Part of this Act, there shall be established a tribunal called the Electricity Arbitration Tribunal (in this Act referred to as "the arbitration tribunal") and the arbitration tribunal shall subject to the provisions of this section, hear and determine every such question, dispute or matter as aforesaid. [471]

(2) The arbitration tribunal shall, as the Lord Chancellor may direct, either sit as a single tribunal or sit in two or more divisions, and shall, for the hearing of any proceedings, be constituted as follows:—

- (a) one member shall be a person of legal experience and he shall be the president of the tribunal;
- (b) there shall be two other members of whom one shall be a person of experience in business and the other shall be a person of experience in finance:

Provided that, in relation to any proceedings which, under the provisions of subsection (5) of this section, are required to be held in Scotland, the member who is a person of legal experience shall be a person of legal experience in Scotland. [472]

(3) The members of the tribunal shall be appointed by the Lord Chancellor, except that any member or members appointed as being a person or persons of legal experience in Scotland shall be appointed by the Lord President of the Court of Session, and any member appointed by the Lord President shall only act in relation to proceedings which are required as aforesaid to be held in Scotland. [473]

(4) The members of the arbitration tribunal shall hold office for such period as may be determined at the time of their respective appointments and shall be eligible for reappointment:

Provided that—

- (a) a member may at any time by not less than one month's notice in writing to the Lord Chancellor, or the Lord President of the Court of Session, as the case may be, resign his office;
- (b) the Lord Chancellor, or the Lord President of the Court of Session, as the case may be, may declare the office of any member vacant on the ground that he is unfit to continue in his office;
- (c) if any member becomes bankrupt or makes a composition with his creditors, his office shall thereupon become vacant. [474]

(5) Where any such question, dispute or matter as aforesaid arises out of or in connection with the vesting by virtue of this Act of the property, rights, liabilities and obligations of any body, or in connection with any transaction of any body, and the principal place of business of the body is in Scotland, the tribunal shall sit in Scotland. [475]

(6) If any member of the arbitration tribunal becomes, by reason of illness or other infirmity, temporarily incapable of performing the duties of his office, the Lord Chancellor, or the Lord President of the Court of Session, as the case may be, shall appoint some other fit person to discharge his duties for any period not exceeding six months at one time, and the person so appointed shall, during that period, have the same powers as the person in whose place he was appointed. [476]

(7) The arbitration tribunal may, at any stage in any proceedings before them, refer to a person or persons appointed by them for the purpose, any question arising in the proceedings, for inquiry and report, and the report of any such person or persons may be adopted wholly or partly by the tribunal and, if so adopted, may be incorporated in an order of the tribunal. [477]

Object of section.—This section provides for the establishment of a new tribunal, to be called the Electricity Arbitration Tribunal, to determine any question which under Part II of the Act or regulations thereunder is to be "determined by arbitration under this Act" and other matters in respect of which the tribunal is specially given jurisdiction under the said Part II.

Regulations.—I.e., regulations made by the Minister of Fuel and Power (s. 67 (1), post).
Notice in writing.—For the general provisions as to notices, see s. 63, post.
Sub-s. (7).—See note to s. 33 (3), post.

32. Procedure and enforcement of orders of arbitration tribunal.—(1) The arbitration tribunal shall be a court of record and have an official seal, which shall be judicially noticed, and any order of the tribunal shall be enforceable in England and Wales as if it were an order of the High Court. [478]

(2) The provisions of the Arbitration Acts, 1889 to 1934, with respect to—

- (a) the administration of oaths and the taking of affirmations ; and
- (b) the correction in awards of mistakes and errors ; and
- (c) the summoning, attendance and examination of witnesses and the production of documents ; and
- (d) the costs of the reference and award, shall, with any necessary modifications, apply in respect of any proceedings before the arbitration tribunal, but, save as aforesaid, the said Acts shall not apply to any such proceedings. [479]

(3) The arbitration tribunal may, and if so ordered by the Court of Appeal shall, state in the form of a special case for determination by the Court of Appeal any question of law which may arise before them, and an appeal shall lie to the Court of Appeal on any question of law or fact from any determination or order of the arbitration tribunal on a claim under section twenty-six of this Act against the directors of a body to whom Part II of this Act applies or on an application under section twenty-nine of this Act in respect of any transaction. [480]

(4) The Minister shall have a right to be heard in all proceedings before the arbitration tribunal and proceedings on a case stated by or an appeal from that tribunal. [481]

(5) Subject to the provisions of this section, the procedure in or in connection with any proceedings before the arbitration tribunal shall be such as may be determined by rules to be made by the tribunal with the approval of the Lord Chancellor. [482]

(6) In relation to proceedings which, under the last foregoing section, are required to be held in Scotland, this section shall have effect subject to the following modifications—

- (a) for subsections (2) and (3) there shall be substituted the following subsections—

“(2) The arbitration tribunal shall have the like powers for securing the attendance of witnesses and the production of documents, and with regard to the examination of witnesses on oath and the awarding of expenses as if the arbitration tribunal were an arbiter under a submission.

(3) The arbitration tribunal may, and if so directed by the Court of Session shall, state a case for the opinion of that Court on any question of law arising in the proceedings, and an appeal shall lie to the Court of Session on any question of law or fact from any determination or order of the arbitration tribunal on a claim under section twenty-six of this Act against the directors of a body to whom Part II of this Act applies or on an application under section twenty-nine of this Act in respect of any transaction.

An appeal shall lie, with the leave of the Court of Session or of the House of Lords, from any decision of the Court of Session under this subsection, and such leave may be given on such terms as to costs or otherwise as the Court of Session or the House of Lords may determine ; ”

- (b) in subsection (6) for the reference to the Lord Chancellor there shall be substituted a reference to the Secretary of State. [483]

(7) The Secretary of State shall have a right to be heard in all proceedings before the arbitration tribunal and proceedings on a case stated by or an appeal from that tribunal, being proceedings to which the North of Scotland Board is a party. [484]

Arbitration tribunal.—The Electricity Arbitration Tribunal (s. 31 (1), ante).

Court of record.—The characteristic of a court of record is the power to fine or imprison, whether for contempt of itself or for other substantive offences. Compare the status of county courts under the County Courts Act, 1934, s. 1 (2) (27 Halsbury's Statutes 92) ("court of record and shall have a seal"); and that of the Railway and Canal Commission under the Railway and Canal Traffic Act, 1888, s. 2 (14 Halsbury's Statutes 220) and the Railway Rates Tribunal under the Railways Act, 1921, s. 20 (1) (14 Halsbury's Statutes 332) ("court of record, and have an official seal which shall be judicially noticed").

Judicial notice.—It is unnecessary on the trial of an action to give formal evidence of matters of which judicial notice is taken.

As if it were an order of the High Court.—That is to say, the Electricity Arbitration Tribunal, in its particular sphere, is given jurisdiction at High Court level.

Arbitration Acts, 1889 to 1934.—The Arbitration Act, 1889 (1 Halsbury's Statutes 453); the Arbitration Clauses (Protocol) Act, 1924 (1 Halsbury's Statutes 469); the Arbitration (Foreign Awards) Act, 1930 (23 Halsbury's Statutes 4); and the Arbitration Act, 1934 (27 Halsbury's Statutes 27).

Special case for determination.—Compare the power of an arbitrator in arbitrations outside the present Act, if any question of law arises in the course of a reference, before making his award to state such question in the form of a special case for the opinion of the Court (Arbitration Act, 1889, s. 19; 1 Halsbury's Statutes 462). For the ordinary law as to references by an arbitrator under an order of the High Court, see the Supreme Court of Judicature (Consolidation) Act, 1925, s. 94 (13 Halsbury's Statutes 233).

33. Staff and expenses of arbitration tribunal.—(1) The arbitration tribunal may, subject to the consent of the Treasury as to numbers, appoint such officers as they consider necessary for assisting them in the proper execution of their duties. [485]

(2) There shall be paid to the members of the arbitration tribunal and to any such officer as aforesaid such remuneration (whether by way of salaries or fees) and such allowances as the Minister may, with the approval of the Treasury, determine. [486]

(3) There shall be paid to any person to whom proceedings are referred by the arbitration tribunal under the last but one foregoing section for hearing and determination such remuneration (whether by way of salaries or fees) and such allowances as the tribunal may, with the approval of the Treasury, determine. [487]

(4) Any such remuneration and allowances as aforesaid and any other expenses of the arbitration tribunal shall be defrayed in the first instance by the Minister out of moneys provided by Parliament, but the amounts from time to time so paid by the Minister shall be repaid on demand to the Minister by the Central Authority :

Provided that such proportion of the amounts so paid by the Minister in respect of proceedings to which the North of Scotland Board is a party as the Minister and the Secretary of State may determine shall be repaid to the Minister by the North of Scotland Board. [488]

Arbitration tribunal.—The Electricity Arbitration Tribunal (s. 31 (1), ante).

The Minister.—The Minister of Fuel and Power (s. 67 (1), post).

Sub-s. (3).—The Bill as originally drafted included in the equivalent of s. 31, ante, a sub-clause empowering the Electricity Arbitration Tribunal to "refer the proceeding for hearing and determination to a person or persons appointed by them for the purpose," but in Standing Committee of the House of Commons objection was taken to this power of delegation and the Solicitor-General agreed to reconsider the matter (see H. of C. Official Report, S.C.E., May 1, 1947, cols. 842-845). At the Committee Stage in the House of Lords on July 23, 1947, the Lord Chancellor moved two Amendments altering the sub-clause to its present form (151 H. of L. Official Report 233-234) and these were agreed without discussion. Nevertheless the consequential provision of the present subsection remained unamended and, as there would appear to be no persons in relation to whom it could operate, it becomes a surplusage.

Definitions.—For definitions of "officers" and "North of Scotland Board," see s. 67 (1), post.

34. Determination of questions as to application of Part II of this Act.—

(1) The Minister shall, within the prescribed period, serve a notice on every body who in his opinion are a power station company or electricity holding company to whom this Part of this Act applies and, unless that body serves on the Minister, within such period (not being less than twenty-eight days) after the service of the notice as may be prescribed, a counter notice in the prescribed form (which is not withdrawn) stating that in their opinion this Part of this Act does not apply to them, this Part of this Act shall be deemed to apply to the body. [489]

(2) Where any body on whom the Minister has not served a notice under the last foregoing subsection within the period prescribed therefor, are of opinion that they are a power station company or electricity holding company to whom this Part of this Act applies, they may within such further period (not being less than twenty-eight days) as may be prescribed after the expiration of the period aforesaid, serve a notice on the Minister in the prescribed form, and unless the Minister serves on that body, within such period as may be prescribed, a counter notice in the prescribed form (which is not withdrawn) stating that in his opinion this Part of this Act does not apply to them, this Part of this Act shall be deemed to apply to the body. [490]

(3) Where, in the case of any body, other than authorised undertakers, no notice has been served by the Minister or the body under the foregoing provisions of this section within the periods prescribed therefor, this Part of this Act shall be deemed not to apply to the body. [491]

(4) Where a counter notice is served under the foregoing provisions of this section and is not withdrawn, the question whether this Part of this Act applies to the body by or on whom the counter notice was served shall be determined by arbitration under this Act. [492]

(5) Where a question has been referred to arbitration in accordance with the last foregoing subsection and the arbitration tribunal determine that this Part of this Act applies to the body, the tribunal may and, if the vesting date has already occurred, shall, fix a later date which, in relation to that body shall be, and be deemed always to have been, the vesting date for the purposes of this Act. [493]

Prescribed.—I.e., prescribed by regulations made by the Minister (s. 67 (1), post). On September 24, 1947, the Minister of Fuel and Power, under the present section and s. 35, infra, made the Electricity (Power Station and Electricity Holding Companies) Regulations, 1947, S. R. & O., 1947, No. 2078.

Determined by arbitration.—Arbitrations under this section will be heard and determined by the Electricity Arbitration Tribunal under the provisions of ss. 31–33, ante.

Arbitration tribunal.—The Electricity Arbitration Tribunal (s. 31 (1), ante).

Vesting date.—Such date on or after April 1, 1948, not being less than six months after the establishment of the British Electricity Authority nor less than three months after the establishment of all the Area Boards and the definition by order of their areas, as the Minister of Fuel and Power may by order appoint. April 1, 1948, has been so appointed (ss. 14 (1), ante, and 67 (1), post, and see the notes thereto).

Note the provision for the postponement of the vesting date in the special cases to which sub-s. (5) of the present section applies.

Definitions.—As to “power station company” and “electricity holding company,” see s. 13 (1), ante, and as to “authorised undertakers,” see s. 13 (1), ante, and Sched. II, post.

35. Power to obtain information.—(1) Regulations may require any body who is or may be a body to whom this Part of this Act applies to produce such books of account, records and documents, to supply copies of and extracts from such books, records and documents, and to furnish such other information as may reasonably be required—

- (a) by the Minister or the Secretary of State for the purpose of ascertaining whether or not the body is one to whom this Part of this Act applies ;
- (b) by any Electricity Board for the purpose of facilitating the taking over of the business of the body by them on the vesting date ; or
- (c) by the Minister, the Secretary of State or any Electricity Board for other purposes arising out of the provisions of this Part of this Act ;

and to provide facilities for the examination of any such books, records and documents, and the taking of copies thereof and extracts therefrom, and facilities for the verification of other information furnished under the regulations; and such regulations may make provision as to the manner, time and place in or at which any requirement under the regulations is to be complied with. [494]

(2) Regulations made under this section shall make provision for the payment to any such body of expenses reasonably incurred by them in complying with any requirements made by or under the regulations. [495]

Regulations.—On September 24, 1947, the Minister of Fuel and Power made (a) under s. 30, ante, and this section, the Electricity (Foreign Investments) Regulations, 1947, S. R. & O., 1947, No. 2077; (b) under s. 34, ante, and this section, the Electricity (Power Station and Electricity Holding Companies) Regulations, 1947, S. R. & O., 1947, No. 2078; and (c) under this section and s. 48, post, the Electricity (Information) Regulations, 1947, S. R. & O., 1947, No. 2079, post.

For the general provisions applicable to regulations under the Act, see s. 64, post. Any such regulations are to be laid before Parliament under s. 64 (3), post; but see note thereto. As to offences against regulations, see s. 61 (2), post.

Any Electricity Board.—The term "Electricity Board" comprises any of the following: the British Electricity Authority, any of the Area Boards and the North of Scotland Board (s. 1 (3), ante).

Vesting date.—Such date on or after April 1, 1948, not being less than six months after the establishment of the British Electricity Authority nor less than three months after the establishment of all the Area Boards and the definition by order of their areas, as the Minister of Fuel and Power may by order appoint. April 1, 1948, has been so appointed (ss. 14 (1), ante, and 67 (1), post, and see the notes thereto).

PART III

FINANCIAL PROVISIONS

36. General duties and powers of Central Authority and Area Boards in financial matters.—(1) It shall be the duty of the Central Authority so to exercise and perform their functions under this Act, including their functions in relation to Area Boards, as to secure that the combined revenues of the Central Authority and all the Area Boards taken together are not less than sufficient to meet their combined outgoings properly chargeable to revenue account taking one year with another. [496]

(2) Without prejudice to the powers of the Central Authority under Part I of this Act to exercise, by means of directions given to Area Boards, a general control over the policy of those Boards in financial as in other matters, such directions may require Area Boards—

- (a) to submit for the approval of the Central Authority periodic estimates of revenue and expenditure;
- (b) to obtain the approval of the Central Authority of programmes of development involving capital expenditure, and of expenditure otherwise properly chargeable to capital account and in other classes of cases where it is desirable in the opinion of the Central Authority to secure co-ordination between different Area Boards in matters involving expenditure. [497]

Effect of section.—This section charges the Central Authority (but not the Area Boards) with the duty of seeing that the total revenues of the Central Authority and the Area Boards "taking one year with another" are sufficient to cover expenses, i.e., of seeing that the nationalised industry is not run at a loss. Sub-s. (2) is designed to assist the Central Authority in the discharge of this duty.

Area Boards.—See s. 1 (3), ante.

General control by directions.—See s. 6, ante.

Definition.—For definition of "functions," see s. 67 (1), post.

37. Fixing and variation of tariffs.—(1) The prices to be charged by the Central Authority for the supply of electricity by them to Area Boards shall be in accordance with such tariffs as may be fixed by the Authority from time to time, and different tariffs may be fixed for different Area Boards. [498]

(2) The tariffs fixed under the last foregoing subsection shall be so framed as to show the methods by which and the principles on which the charges are to be made as well as the prices which are to be charged, and shall be published in such manner as in the opinion of the Central Authority will secure adequate publicity for them. [499]

(3) Subject to any directions of the Central Authority and to the provisions of this Act with respect to railways, the prices to be charged by Area Boards for the supply of electricity by them shall be in accordance with such tariffs as may be fixed from time to time by them, and those tariffs shall be so framed as to show the methods by which and the principles on which the charges are to be made as well as the prices which are to be charged, and shall be published in such manner as in the opinion of the Area Board will secure adequate publicity for them :

Provided that—

(a) the tariffs in force immediately before the vesting date in the area of supply or any part of the area of supply of any authorised undertakers shall remain in force, until varied or replaced by tariffs fixed in accordance with this section, and apply to the supply of electricity by the Area Board within whose area the said area of supply or part thereof is comprised ; and

(b) nothing in this subsection shall affect any agreement in force immediately before the vesting date. [500]

(4) A tariff fixed by an Area Board under the last foregoing subsection may include a rent or other charge in respect of electrical fittings provided by the Board on the premises of the consumer. [501]

(5) The Central Authority may give directions to any Area Board requiring them, in such classes of cases as may be specified in the directions, to obtain the approval in writing of the Central Authority before exercising their powers under the foregoing provisions of this section. [502]

(6) The Central Authority may, if they consider that the tariffs in force in the area or any part of the area of an Area Board ought to be varied or replaced by new tariffs, direct the Area Board to submit proposals for varying or replacing those tariffs, and may approve the proposals so submitted either without modifications or with such modifications as, after consultation with the Area Board, they think fit to make ; and it shall be the duty of the Area Board to give effect to any proposals approved under this subsection. [503]

(7) Notwithstanding anything in the foregoing provisions of this section, an Area Board may enter into an agreement with any consumer for the supply of electricity to him on such terms as may be specified in the agreement :

Provided that an Area Board, in exercising their powers under this subsection, shall—

(a) secure that such agreements are only made in cases where the tariffs in force are not appropriate owing to special circumstances ; and

(b) comply with any directions given by the Central Authority, whether of a general or specific character. [504]

(8) An Area Board, in fixing tariffs and making agreements under this section, shall not show undue preference to any person or class of persons and shall not exercise any undue discrimination against any person or class of persons, and the Central Authority shall, in exercising their powers under this section in relation to the fixing of tariffs and making of agreements by Area Boards, secure compliance by Area Boards with this subsection. [505]

General note.—Sub-ss. (1) and (2) of this section relate to the prices to be charged by the Central Authority for supplies to the Area Boards : these are to be fixed by the Central Authority. Sub-ss. (3) and (4) correspondingly relate to the prices to be charged by the Area Boards for supplies to consumers: these are to be fixed by the Area Boards. The remaining four subsections provide for various incidental matters.

Directions of the Central Authority.—E.g., under s. 6, ante.

Provisions with respect to railways.—See s. 49, post.

Vesting date.—Such date on or after April 1, 1948, not being less than six months after the establishment of the British Electricity Authority nor less than three months after the establishment of all the Area Boards and the definition by order of their areas, as the Minister of Fuel and Power may by order appoint. April 1, 1948, has been so appointed (ss. 14 (1), ante, and 67 (1), post, and see the notes thereto).

Undue preference and undue discrimination.—The Electric Lighting Act, 1882, s. 19 (7 Halsbury's Statutes 695), was designed to ensure that one consumer was not overcharged as against other consumers, and s. 20 of the same Act provided that undue preference should not be shown. Though each of these sections is repealed by Sched. V, post, the protection they afforded is substantially continued by sub-s. (8), ante. As to what is "undue preference," see Metropolitan Electric Supply Co. v. Ginder, [1901] 2 Ch. 799. It was held in A.-G. for Victoria v. Melbourne Corpn., [1907] A. C. 469, that "preference" is a preference between consumers dealing under similar circumstances, and not between consumers dealing under two different systems of charge.

Definitions.—As to "authorised undertakers," see s. 67 (1) and Sched. II, post. For definition of "electrical fittings," see s. 67 (1), post.

38. Investigation into and modification of provisions of Act of 1943 regarding price of electricity supplied under s. 16 (1). [506]

General note.—This section concerns the Hydro-Electric Development (Scotland) Act, 1943 (6 & 7 Geo. 6, c. 32), and has practical application only to Scotland.

39. Borrowing powers of Central Authority and Area Boards.—(1) The Central Authority and any Area Board may, with the consent of the Minister and with the approval of the Treasury or in accordance with the terms of any general authority issued by the Minister with the approval of the Treasury, borrow temporarily, by way of overdraft or otherwise, such sums as the borrowing Authority or Board may require for meeting their obligations or discharging their functions under this Act. [507]

(2) The Central Authority may, with the consent of the Minister and the approval of the Treasury, borrow money by the issue of British Electricity Stock, for all or any of the following purposes, that is to say—

- (a) the redemption of any British Electricity Stock;
- (b) the provision of money for meeting any expenditure incurred by the Central Authority or any Area Board in connection with any works the cost of which is properly chargeable to capital account;
- (c) the provision of any working capital required by the Central Authority or any Area Board;
- (d) the provision of money required for the payment of compensation to any local authority, in respect of severance or, in pursuance of a direction of the Minister under Part II of this Act, in respect of expenditure on capital works;
- (e) any other purpose for which capital moneys are properly applicable by the Central Authority or any Area Board, including the repayment of any money temporarily borrowed under the last foregoing subsection for any of the purposes mentioned in this subsection; and
- (f) any other payment which the Central Authority or any Area Board are authorised to make and which ought in the opinion of the Central Authority to be spread over a term of years. [508]

(3) The aggregate of the amounts outstanding in respect of the principal of any stock issued by the Central Authority, otherwise than for the purpose of paying compensation under Part II of this Act whether in stock or cash, and in respect of any temporary loans raised by the Central Authority or any Area Board shall not at any time exceed the sum of seven hundred million pounds:

Provided that nothing in this subsection shall prevent the Central Authority from borrowing in excess of the said sum for the purpose of redeeming any British Electricity Stock which they are required or entitled to redeem, or of repaying any money temporarily borrowed under subsection (1) of this section. [509]

(4) Save as aforesaid, neither the Central Authority nor any Area Board shall borrow any money. [510]

Temporary borrowing.—In the case of the Transport Act, 1947, s. 88 (1) (see title ROAD TRAFFIC, post), a "ceiling" of £25,000,000 is laid down for temporary borrowing, while the Coal Industry Nationalisation Act, 1946, s. 27 (39 Halsbury's Statutes 283) and the Cotton (Centralised Buying) Act, 1947 (10 & 11 Geo. 6, c. 26), s. 16, each lay down a limit of £10,000,000. In the present Act, however, no limit is fixed, chiefly in the interests of flexibility, beyond the overall "ceiling" for stock (other than stock issued to pay compensation) and temporary loans of £700,000,000 provided for by sub-s. (3), ante, subject to the proviso to that subsection.

Any Area Board.—See s. 1 (3), ante.

The Minister.—The Minister of Fuel and Power (s. 67 (1), post).

Direction . . . under Part II.—See s. 24, ante.

Definitions.—As to "British Electricity Stock," see s. 40, infra. For definitions of "functions" and "local authority," see s. 67 (1), post.

40. British Electricity Stock.—(1) The Central Authority—

- (a) may create and issue any stock required for the purpose of exercising their powers under the last foregoing section ;
- (b) shall create and issue such stock as is required for the purpose of satisfying any right to compensation which, under any provision of this Act, is expressly required to be satisfied by the issue of stock ;

and the stock so created and issued is in this Act referred to as "British Electricity Stock." [511]

(2) Subject to the provisions of this section, and of the Third Schedule to this Act, British Electricity Stock shall be issued, transferred, dealt with and redeemed upon such terms and in accordance with such provisions as may be prescribed by regulations made by the Minister, with the approval of the Treasury, and any such regulations may, in relation to any such stock, apply with or without modifications any provisions of the Local Loans Act, 1875, or of any enactments relating to stock issued by a local authority. [512]

(3) Any British Electricity Stock in which no person other than the Central Authority has any beneficial interest shall be cancelled. [513]

(4) Where any British Electricity Stock has through inadvertence been issued in respect of securities the whole of the beneficial interest in which was vested immediately before the vesting date in a body to whom Part II of this Act applies, not being a local authority, the stock shall be deemed to be held on behalf of the Central Authority. [514]

Compensation to be satisfied by the issue of stock.—See, in particular, ss. 20 and 25, ante.

Regulations.—Up to the time of going to press, no regulations had been made under this section.

For the general provisions applicable to regulations under the Act, see s. 64, post. Any regulations under this section are to be laid before Parliament under s. 64 (3), post ; but see note thereto. As to offences against regulations, see s. 61 (2), post.

Local Loans Act, 1875.—12 Halsbury's Statutes 242. The provisions of this Act could be applied with or without modification, by regulations of the Minister of Transport, to stock created under the Electricity (Supply) Act, 1926, s. 28 (7 Halsbury's Statutes 810).

Vesting date.—Such date on or after April 1, 1948, not being less than six months after the establishment of the British Electricity Authority nor less than three months after the establishment of all the Area Boards and the definition by order of their areas, as the Minister of Fuel and Power may by order appoint. April 1, 1948, has been so appointed (ss. 14 (1), ante, and 67 (1), post, and see the notes thereto).

Definitions.—For definitions of "prescribed," "enactment," "local authority" and "securities," see s. 67 (1), post.

41. Apportionment of liabilities in respect of stock, borrowed moneys, etc., as between Central Authority and Area Boards.—(1) The Central Authority may require any Area Board to contribute, to such extent as may be determined by the Central Authority, towards the satisfaction of the obligations of the Central Authority in respect of—

- (a) the redemption of British Electricity Stock or the payment of interest thereon ;
- (b) the repayment of sums to the Treasury under the next following section or the payment of interest thereon ;
- (c) the making of payments under Part II of this Act by way of compensation to local authorities ; or
- (d) the repayment of any sums temporarily borrowed by the Central Authority or the payment of interest thereon ;

and the Area Board shall comply with that requirement. [515]

(2) The Central Authority, in exercising their powers under this section, shall act on general principles settled from time to time with the approval of the Minister. [516]

Effect of section.—Though the Central Authority is solely responsible for certain payments under the Act, it may call upon the Area Boards for contributions. Though the extent of any such calls is to be determined by the Central Authority, it must act on settled principles approved by the Minister.

Any Area Board.—See s. 1 (3), ante.

British Electricity Stock.—As to the creation and issue of this stock, see s. 40 (1), ante.

Redemption of British Electricity Stock.—See s. 40 (2), ante.

Compensation to local authorities.—See ss. 22, 23 and 24, ante.

Sums temporarily borrowed.—See s. 39 (1), ante.

42. Treasury guarantees.—(1) The principal of and the interest on any British Electricity Stock created and issued for the purpose of satisfying any right to compensation which, under any provision of this Act, is expressly required to be satisfied by the issue of stock, shall be guaranteed by the Treasury, and the Treasury may guarantee, in such manner and on such conditions as they think fit, the redemption or repayment of, and the payment of any interest on, any other British Electricity Stock or any temporary loan raised by the Central Authority or any Area Board. [517]

(2) Any sums required by the Treasury for fulfilling any such guarantee as is provided for by the last foregoing subsection shall be charged on and issued out of the Consolidated Fund of the United Kingdom or the growing produce thereof (hereinafter referred to as “the Consolidated Fund”), and any such sums shall be repaid together with interest thereon at such rate as the Treasury may determine by the Central Authority to the Treasury in such manner and over such period as the Treasury may, after consultation with the Minister, determine. [518]

(3) Immediately after a guarantee is given under this section, the Treasury shall lay a statement of the guarantee before each House of Parliament. [519]

(4) Where any sum is issued out of the Consolidated Fund under this section, the Treasury shall forthwith lay before each House of Parliament a statement that that sum has been issued. [520]

Effect of section.—British Electricity Stock issued for satisfying compensation is to be guaranteed by the Treasury, but, in contradistinction to this duty, the Treasury is merely empowered to guarantee other British Electricity Stock and temporary loans raised by the Central Authority or an Area Board. Parliament is to be informed immediately a guarantee is given. If the Treasury is, in any case, called upon to fulfil its guarantee, moneys are to be provided out of the Consolidated Fund and if any moneys are so provided, Parliament is to be informed.

British Electricity Stock.—As to the creation and issue of this stock, see s. 40 (1), ante.

Compensation to be satisfied by the issue of stock.—See, in particular, ss. 20 and 25, ante.

Any temporary loan.—For the power of temporary borrowing, see s. 39 (1), ante.

Any Area Board.—See s. 1 (3), ante.

The Minister.—The Minister of Fuel and Power (s. 67 (1), post).

43. Reserve Funds of Central Authority and Area Boards.—(1) The Central Authority shall establish and maintain a general reserve fund, which shall be known as the central reserve fund. [521]

(2) The Central Authority and the Area Boards shall contribute to the central reserve fund such sums at such times as the Central Authority may determine and the management of the said fund and the application of the moneys comprised therein shall be as the Central Authority may determine :
Provided that—

- (a) no part of the said fund shall be applied otherwise than for the purposes of the Central Authority and Area Boards ; and
- (b) the power of the Minister to give directions to the Central Authority shall extend to the giving to them, with the approval of the Treasury, of directions as to any matter relating to the establishment or management of the said fund, the carrying of sums to the credit thereof, or the application thereof, notwithstanding that the directions may be of a specific character. [522]

(3) Any Area Board may establish a general reserve fund for the purposes of the Area Board, which shall be known as an area reserve fund. [523]

(4) If an Area Board establish an area reserve fund, they shall, from their surplus revenue, contribute to the said fund, to such extent as the Central Authority may approve, and the management of the said fund and the application of the moneys comprised therein shall be as the Area Board may determine :

Provided that—

- (a) no part of the fund shall be applied otherwise than for the purposes of the Area Board ; and
- (b) the power of the Central Authority to give directions to any Area Board shall extend to the giving to them, with the approval of the Minister, of directions as to any matter relating to the establishment or management of the area reserve fund or the carrying of sums to the credit thereof, notwithstanding that the directions may be of a specific character. [524]

(5) The foregoing provisions of this section shall be without prejudice to the power of the Central Authority or any Area Board to establish appropriate reserves for replacements or other purposes :

Provided that an Area Board shall act in regard to the establishment, management and application of any such reserve in accordance with any directions of the Central Authority, whether of a general or specific character. [525]

(6) It is hereby declared that one of the purposes of the central reserve fund and the area reserve funds is the prevention of frequent fluctuations in the charges made by the Central Authority and the Area Boards, and the powers of that Authority and those Boards in relation of those funds shall be exercised accordingly. [526]

Establishing a reserve fund.—Under sub-s. (1) of this section the Central Authority is required to establish a general reserve fund, but Area Boards, though empowered to establish such funds, are not obliged to do so (sub-s. (3)). Note that the Area Boards are to contribute to the central reserve fund amounts to be fixed by the Central Authority, the purpose of the provisions as a whole being to stabilise prices by avoiding frequent fluctuations of tariff.

Area Boards.—See s. 1 (3), ante.

The Minister.—The Minister of Fuel and Power (s. 67 (1), post).

44. Application of surplus revenues of Central Authority and Area Boards.

—(1) Any excess of the Central Authority's revenues for any financial year over their outgoings for that year properly chargeable to revenue account shall be applied for such purposes as the Authority may determine :

Provided that—

- (a) no part of any such excess shall be applied otherwise than for the purposes of the Authority or any Area Board ; and
- (b) the power of the Minister to give directions to the Authority shall extend to the giving to them, with the approval of the Treasury, of directions as to the application of any such excess, notwithstanding that the directions may be of a specific character.

(2) Any excess of any Area Board's revenues for any financial year over their outgoings for that year properly chargeable to revenue account shall be applied for such purposes of the Area Board as the Board may, with the approval of the Central Authority, determine. [528]

Effect of section.—Any trading profit of the Central Authority is to be applied for such electricity purposes as that Authority shall think fit, subject to the control of the Minister. Similarly, any profit made by an Area Board is to be applied for such purposes of the Area Board as that Board, with the consent of the Central Authority, shall think fit.

Financial year.—For the definition of this term, see s. 67 (1), post.

Area Board.—See s. 1 (3), ante.

45. Sums which are to be chargeable to revenue account.—The Central Authority and the Area Boards shall charge to revenue account in every year all charges which are proper to be made to revenue account, including, in particular, proper allocations to the central reserve fund (but not including, in the case of an Area Board, allocations to an area reserve fund), proper provision for the redemption of capital and proper provision for depreciation of assets or for renewal of assets, and all payments (including the payments which are by the relevant provision of this Act, or by any other relevant enactment, to be deemed to be capital payments) which fall to be made in that year to any local authority under Part II of this Act in respect of any loan of that local authority, and references in this Act to outgoings properly chargeable to revenue account shall be construed accordingly. [529]

General note.—At the Committee Stage of the Bill in the House of Commons amendments designed to tie down the Central Authority and Area Boards as to the sums to be chargeable to revenue were resisted on the ground that too heavy burdens should not be imposed upon these Authorities in view of a possible change of circumstances in the future (see H. of C. Official Report, S.C.E., May 8, 1947, cols. 959-961).

Area Boards.—See s. 1 (3), ante.

Central and area reserve funds.—See s. 43, ante.

Definitions.—For definitions of "local authority" and "loan," see s. 67 (1), post.

46. Accounts and audit of Central Authority and Area Boards.—(1) The Central Authority and each Area Board shall keep proper accounts and other records in relation to the business of that Authority or the business of that Board, as the case may be, and shall prepare in respect of each financial year a statement of accounts in such form as the Minister, with the approval of the Treasury, may direct, being a form which shall conform with the best commercial standards. [530]

(2) The form of the said statement shall be such as to secure the provision of separate information as respects the generation of electricity, the distribution of electricity, and each of the main other activities of the Electricity Board concerned, and to show as far as may be the financial and operating results of each such activity. [531]

(3) The accounts of the Central Authority and of every Area Board shall be audited by auditors to be appointed in respect of each financial year by the Minister :

Provided that no person shall be qualified to be so appointed unless he is a member of one or more of the following bodies :—

The Institute of Chartered Accountants in England and Wales ;
 The Society of Incorporated Accountants and Auditors ;
 The Society of Accountants in Edinburgh ;
 The Institute of Accountants and Actuaries in Glasgow ;
 The Society of Accountants in Aberdeen ;
 The Association of Certified and Corporate Accountants, Limited.

(4) So soon as the accounts of any Area Board have been audited, they shall send the statement of their accounts referred to in subsection (1) of this section to the Central Authority together with a copy of any report made by the auditors on that statement or on the accounts of the Board. [533]

(5) So soon as the accounts of the Central Authority have been audited, they shall send a copy of the statement of their accounts referred to in subsection (1) of this section to the Minister together with a copy of any report made by the auditors on that statement or on the accounts of the Authority and shall also send copies of the statements of accounts of every Area Board to the Minister together with any reports on those statements or accounts as aforesaid, and copies thereof shall be made available to the public at a reasonable price. [534]

(6) The Minister shall lay a copy of every such statement and report before each House of Parliament. [535]

General note.—This section is for the most part common form in legislation of this kind. Note, however, the provisions of sub-s. (2), designed to trace the sources of profit or loss in the activities of an Electricity Board.

Area Board.—See s. 1 (3), ante.

Financial year.—For the definition of this term, see s. 67 (1), post.

The Minister.—The Minister of Fuel and Power (s. 67 (1), post).

Electricity Board concerned.—The term “Electricity Board” comprises any of the following: the British Electricity Authority, any of the Area Boards and the North of Scotland Board (s. 1 (3), ante).

47. Provisions as to North of Scotland Board. [536]

PART IV

MISCELLANEOUS AND GENERAL

Non-statutory undertakings

48. Acquisition of non-statutory undertakings.—(1) This section applies to any person, not being a body to whom Part II of this Act applies, who at the passing of this Act is engaged in supplying electricity to the general public and who, at any time after the nineteenth day of November, nineteen hundred and forty-five, has incurred or incurs, in respect of works approved by the Minister for the purposes of this section (whether before or after the execution of the works) expenditure properly chargeable to capital account ; and in this section any such person is referred to as “the undertakers,” and his business, so far as it consists of the supply of electricity to the general public, is referred to as “the electricity undertaking.” [537]

(2) The undertakers may, at any time before the expiration of the period of twelve months beginning with the date of the passing of this Act, serve on the Central Authority a notice requiring that the electricity undertaking shall be transferred under this section, and thereupon the following provisions of this section shall have effect. [538]

(3) On such date, not being later than six months after the service of the notice, as may be agreed between the undertakers and the Central Autho-riety or, in default of agreement, determined by the Minister (which date is hereafter in this section referred to as "the date of transfer"), all property of the undertakers which was, immediately before the date of transfer, wholly or mainly used for the purposes of the electricity undertaking shall, by virtue of this Act, vest in the Area Board whose area comprised the whole or the main part of the area of supply of the undertakers, and shall vest free of any mortgage or other incumbrance. [539]

(4) For the purpose of transferring to the said Area Board agreements to which the undertakers were a party immediately before the date of transfer and which they entered into for the purposes of the electricity undertaking, so far as those agreements remain to be performed after the date of transfer, every such agreement, whether in writing or not, and whether or not of such a nature that rights, liabilities and obligations thereunder could be assigned by the undertakers shall, unless its terms or subject matter make it impossible, have effect, as from the date of transfer, subject to the like modifications (with the substitution of references to the date of transfer for references to the vesting date) as agreements of bodies to whom Part II of this Act applies which are transferred to the Area Board under that Part. [540]

(5) The provisions of Part II of this Act relating to the disclaimer of agreements and leases shall apply to any agreements or leases which are transferred to the said Area Board under this section in like manner as they apply to agreements and leases of bodies to whom that Part applies, subject to the modification that for references to the vesting date there shall be substituted references to the date of transfer. [541]

(6) Subject to the provisions of this section, there shall be paid by the Central Authority to the undertakers, by way of compensation for the transfer of the electricity undertaking, such amount as the undertaking might have been expected to realise if—

(a) it had been sold as a going concern on the date of transfer in the open market by a willing seller to a willing buyer ;

(b) the effect of the sale had been to transfer to the buyer the property, rights, liabilities and obligations which are transferred or granted to the Area Board by or under this section, except any property or rights, which are transferred or granted on terms agreed or determined in accordance with regulations made under this section ; and

(c) this Act had not been passed. [542]

(7) Any question arising under this section as to—

(a) whether a particular person is a person to whom this section applies ;

(b) what property of the undertakers vests in the Area Board under subsection (3) of this section ;

(c) what agreements of the undertakers are to have effect in accordance with subsection (4) of this section ;

(d) what compensation is to be paid under subsection (6) of this section ;

shall, in default of agreement between the undertakers and the Central Authority, be determined by arbitration under this Act, and the provisions of Part II of this Act relating to the arbitration tribunal shall apply for the purpose of determining questions under this section and any questions which, under regulations made under this section, are to be determined by arbitration under this Act, as they apply for the purpose of determining questions under the provisions of Part II of this Act or any regulations made thereunder. [543]

(8) Subsections (2) and (4) of section fifteen of this Act shall apply to the undertakers in like manner as they apply to a local authority subject to the modifications that for references to property held or used by the local authority in their capacity as authorised undertakers there shall be substituted references to property held or used by the undertakers for the purposes of the electricity undertaking, for references to other capacities of the local authority there shall be substituted references to other purposes of the company and for references to the Minister of Health there shall be substituted references to the Minister and for references to the vesting date there shall be substituted references to the date of transfer, and any question whether any property is or was (for the purposes of the said subsection (2) as so applied) held or used partly for the purposes of the electricity undertaking and partly for other purposes shall, in default of agreement, be determined by arbitration under this Act. [544]

(9) Regulations may make provision, in a case where property vested in an Area Board under this section was, immediately before the date of transfer, subject to a mortgage or other incumbrance, for the payment to the mortgagee or incumbrancer of the compensation or any part of the compensation payable in respect of that property, or may make other provision for the protection of mortgagees and incumbrancers of any such property. [545]

(10) Where at the date of transfer any legal proceedings or any application to any authority under any enactment are pending by or against the undertakers in connection with any property, rights, liabilities or obligations which are vested in or transferred to an Area Board under this section, the Board, if the circumstances so require, may be added as a party to the proceedings or application or may be substituted for the undertakers as a party to the proceedings or application. [546]

(11) Nothing in this section shall operate to transfer any cash or investments of the undertakers to an Area Board, and nothing in this section shall affect—

- (a) any right, liability or obligation with respect to the borrowing of money by the undertakers or to the raising of money by the undertakers by the issue of securities ;
- (b) any right, liability or obligation (if the undertakers are a company) under any agreement for the rendering by any person of services to the undertakers as a director (other than a managing director or a director whose functions are substantially those of an employee) ;
- (c) any right to, or liability to pay, any debt which became due before, or was in respect of a consideration wholly executed before, the date of transfer ; or
- (d) any right to, or liability to pay, any damages which accrued before the date of transfer. [547]

(12) Regulations may require any person who is or may be a person to whom this section applies to produce such books of account, records and documents, to supply copies of and extracts from such books, records and documents, and to furnish such other information as may reasonably be required—

- (a) by the Minister for the purpose of ascertaining whether or not this section applies to that person, or for other purposes arising out of the provisions of this section ; or
- (b) by any Electricity Board for the purpose of facilitating the taking over of the electricity undertaking of that person by them on the date of transfer ;

and to provide facilities for the examination of any such books, records and documents, and the taking of copies thereof and extracts therefrom, and facilities for the verification of other information furnished under the regulations ; and such regulations may make provision as to the manner, time and place in or on which any requirement under the regulations is to be complied with, and shall provide for the payment to any such person of expenses reasonably incurred by him in complying with any requirements made by or under the regulations. [548]

(13) For the purposes of this section, a person shall, when supplying electricity to any other person, be deemed to be supplying electricity to the general public unless the electricity is supplied for the purposes of a trade or business and the relationship between the person giving the supply and the person supplied is that of a holding company and a subsidiary company, or vice versa, or either of the said persons is, in some other way, able to exercise a substantial measure of control over the carrying on of the trade or business of the other person, and any question as to whether a supply of electricity to any person is a supply to the general public shall, in default of agreement between the undertakers and the Central Authority, be determined by arbitration under this Act. [549]

(14) The foregoing provisions of this section shall, in their application to any undertakers whose area of supply is wholly or mainly comprised in the North of Scotland District, have effect with the substitution for references to the Minister of references to the Secretary of State, and for references to the Central Authority or to an Area Board of references to the North of Scotland Board. [550]

General note.—Non-statutory undertakings vary enormously in size and in area of supply. In view of the difficulties involved, it was not originally intended that they should be transferred to the new Authorities and the present section, which is in reality an addendum to Part II of the Act, ante, did not appear in the Bill as originally presented. In the limited circumstances in which the section applies, it is entirely for the undertakers concerned to elect to be taken over or not. In the former event notice must be given to the Central Authority before August 13, 1948.

November 19, 1945.—The date when the Government's decision to nationalise the electricity supply industry was first made known.

The Minister.—The Minister of Fuel and Power (s. 67 (1), post).

Service of notices.—For the general provisions of the Act as to notices, see s. 63, post.

Determined by the Minister.—In connection with this provision, note the Minister's power under s. 66 (1), post, in any case where he deems it advisable, to hold public inquiries as to any matter under the Act.

Disclaimer of agreements and leases.—See s. 18, ante.

Vesting date.—Such date on or after April 1, 1948, not being less than six months after the establishment of the British Electricity Authority nor less than three months after the establishment of all the Area Boards and the definition by order of their areas, as the Minister of Fuel and Power may by order appoint. April 1, 1948, has been so appointed (ss. 14 (1), ante, and 67 (1), post, and see the notes thereto).

Regulations.—On September 24, 1947, the Minister of Fuel and Power, under s. 35, ante, and this section, made the Electricity (Information) Regulations, 1947, S. R. & O., 1947, No. 2079, post.

For the general provisions applicable to regulations under the Act, see s. 64, post. Any regulations under the section are to be laid before Parliament under s. 64 (3), post; but see note thereto. As to offences against regulations, see s. 61 (2), post.

Determined by arbitration.—Arbitrations under this section will be heard and determined by the Electricity Arbitration Tribunal under the provisions of ss. 31–33, ante.

Arbitration tribunal.—The Electricity Arbitration Tribunal (s. 31 (1), ante).

Legal proceedings.—This expression is not defined in the Act. In the Bankers' Books Evidence Act, 1879, s. 10 (8 Halsbury's Statutes 238), however, it was defined for the purposes of that Act as meaning any civil or criminal proceeding or inquiry in which evidence is or may be given, including an arbitration.

Any Electricity Board.—This term comprises any of the following: the British Electricity Authority, any of the Area Boards and the North of Scotland Board (s. 1 (3), ante).

Definitions.—As to "authorised undertakers," see s. 67 (1) and Sched. II, post. As to "holding company" and "subsidiary company," see s. 67 (1), post, and s. 18 of the Companies Act, 1947 (10 & 11 Geo. 6, c. 47). For definitions of "lease," "local authority," "company," "securities" and "North of Scotland Board," see s. 67 (1), post.

Further Provisions relating to Electricity Supply

49. Supply of electricity to railways.—(1) As from the vesting date, it shall be the duty of the Central Authority to provide, except in the North of Scotland District, and it shall be the duty of the North of Scotland Board to provide in that District, a supply of electricity to meet the requirements for haulage or traction of any railway undertakers, and an Area Board shall not, without the approval of the Central Authority, supply electricity to any railway undertakers for the purposes of haulage or traction. [551]

(2) The terms and conditions on which electricity is supplied by an Electricity Board to any railway undertakers for the purposes of haulage or traction shall be determined in accordance with regulations made by the Minister and the Minister of Transport jointly, or, in the case of a supply by the North of Scotland Board, the Secretary of State and the Minister of Transport jointly, and such regulations shall make provision for securing that the charges made for any such supply and the other terms and conditions on which it is provided are such as to avoid financial loss resulting to the Electricity Board from the provision of the supply. [552]

(3) Where electricity is supplied by an Electricity Board to any railway undertakers for the purposes of haulage or traction, the Board may enter into an agreement with the railway undertakers for the use of that supply, on such terms and conditions as may be agreed, for any other purposes for which electricity may be required by the railway undertakers :

Provided that an Area Board shall not make an agreement under this subsection which involves the use of the supply outside the area of that Board, unless the agreement has been approved by the Central Authority. [553]

(4) The Central Authority may, with the approval of the North of Scotland Board, provide in the North of Scotland District a supply of electricity to railway undertakers under this section, and a supply provided by the Central Authority outside the said District may, with the like approval, be used in that District. [554]

(5) The North of Scotland Board may, with the approval of the Central Authority, provide outside the North of Scotland District a supply of electricity to railway undertakers under this section, and a supply provided by the North of Scotland Board in the said District may, with the like approval, be used outside that District. [555]

(6) Where an Area Board provide within their area, with the approval of the Central Authority, a supply of electricity to any railway undertakers under this section, that supply may be used outside the area of the Area Board :

Provided that any such supply of electricity shall not be used in the North of Scotland District without the approval of the North of Scotland Board. [556]

(7) Without prejudice to any other enactment providing for the protection of telegraphic lines belonging to or used by the Postmaster General, any electricity supplied under this section to any railway undertakers shall be used in such manner as not to cause, or to be likely to cause, any interference (whether by induction or otherwise) with any such telegraphic line, or with telegraphic communication by means of any such line.

In this subsection the expression " telegraphic line " has the same meaning as in the Telegraph Act, 1878. [557]

Effect of section.—This section requires the Central Authority to provide railway companies with the electricity they require for haulage or traction and forbids the Area Boards to do so without the consent of the Central Authority. Provision is made as to the terms and conditions of supply.

Vesting date.—Such date on or after April 1, 1948, not being less than six months after the establishment of the British Electricity Authority nor less than three months after the establishment of all the Area Boards and the definition by order of their areas, as the Minister of Fuel and Power may by order appoint. April 1, 1948, has been so appointed (ss. 14 (1), ante, and 67 (1), post, and see the notes thereto).

Area Board.—See s. 1 (3), ante.

An Electricity Board.—The term " Electricity Board " comprises any of the following : the British Electricity Authority, any of the Area Boards and the North of Scotland Board (s. 1 (3), ante).

Regulations.—Up to the time of going to press, no regulations under this section had been made.

For the general provisions applicable to regulations under the Act, see s. 64, post. Any regulations under the section are to be laid before Parliament under s. 64 (3), post; but see note thereto. As to offences against regulations, see s. 61 (2), post.

The Minister.—The Minister of Fuel and Power (s. 67 (1), post).

Such as to avoid financial loss.—The charges for electricity supply to the railways are to be such as to avoid financial loss to the Electricity Board concerned. The point here at issue is that, even if British railways are nationalised, it is important to have a true account of their position and activities. Electrification of the railways is likely to increase, and to have electricity supplied at less than cost would be equivalent to a hidden subsidy.

Protection of telegraphic lines.—See, for instance, ss. 7-9 of the Telegraph Act, 1878 (19 Halsbury's Statutes 265 et seq.).

Telegraphic line.—S. 2 of the Telegraph Act, 1878 (19 Halsbury's Statutes 261) defines this term as follows: "The expression 'telegraphic line' means telegraphs, posts, and any work (within the meaning of the Telegraph Act, 1863) and also any cables, apparatus, pneumatic or other tube, pipe or thing whatsoever used for the purpose of transmitting telegraphic messages or maintaining telegraphic communication, and includes any portion of a telegraphic line as defined by this Act."

Definitions.—For definitions of "North of Scotland Board," "railway undertakers" and "enactment," see s. 67 (1), post.

50. Use of heat from generating stations.—(1) It shall be the duty of the Central Authority to investigate methods by which heat obtained from or in connection with the generation of electricity may be used for the heating of buildings in neighbouring localities, or for any other useful purpose, and the Authority may accordingly conduct, or assist others in conducting, research into any matters relating to such methods of using heat. [558]

(2) Any Electricity Board may themselves provide, or assist other persons to provide, for the heating of buildings by such methods as aforesaid or otherwise for the use of heat obtained as aforesaid. [559]

(3) Any Electricity Board may, in accordance with a scheme submitted by them to the Minister and approved by order of the Minister, exercise for the purposes mentioned in the last foregoing subsection any powers of that Board under this Act (including any enactments incorporated therewith) or the Electricity (Supply) Acts, 1882 to 1936, or any local enactment, being powers relating to the breaking-up of streets, railways and tramways, in like manner and subject to the like provisions and restrictions as they are exercisable for the purposes of the supply of electricity, subject to such adaptations as may be prescribed by the order:

Provided that, in the case of a scheme of the North of Scotland Board, the scheme shall be submitted to, and approved by order of, the Secretary of State. [560]

(4) Any order made under this section shall be subject to special parliamentary procedure. [561]

General note.—Though s. 2 (1), ante, empowers the Central Authority generally to conduct research into matters affecting the supply of electricity and to assist others conducting such research, the present section makes it obligatory on the Central Authority to investigate methods of using the waste heat from generating stations for the heating of buildings, etc., and at the same time empowers (but not requires) the same Authority to conduct research into such matters and to assist others engaged in such research. Thus utilisation of a valuable bye-product is bound up with the possibilities of district heating in regard to which experiments have been proceeding for some time.

Central Authority.—The British Electricity Authority (s. 1 (3), ante). For the constitution of this body, see s. 3, ante.

Any Electricity Board.—The term "Electricity Board" comprises any of the following: the British Electricity Authority, any of the Area Boards and the North of Scotland Board (s. 1 (3), ante).

The Minister.—The Minister of Fuel and Power (s. 67 (1), post).

Orders of the Minister and special parliamentary procedure.—For the general provisions applicable to orders under the Act, see s. 64, post. Note that, in the case of orders of the Minister of Fuel and Power under sub-s. (3) of the present section, special parliamentary procedure is to apply, with the result that the provisions of s. 64 (3), post, requiring such orders to be laid before Parliament do not apply. In their place the reference to "special parliamentary procedure" brings into play the Statutory Orders (Special Procedure) Act, 1945 (38 Halsbury's Statutes 411), under which an order stated to be subject to special parliamentary procedure is to be of no effect until it has been laid before Parliament by the Minister responsible and brought into operation in accordance with the provisions of that Act.

the Electricity (Supply) Act, 1926 (7 Halsbury's Statutes 792); the Electricity (Supply) Act, 1928 (7 Halsbury's Statutes 826); the Electricity (Supply) Act, 1933 (26 Halsbury's Statutes 137); the Electricity (Supply) Act, 1935 (28 Halsbury's Statutes 51); the Electricity Supply (Meters) Act, 1936 (29 Halsbury's Statutes 133); and Acts applying to Scotland only.

Powers relating to the breaking-up of streets, etc.—As to powers under the Electricity (Supply) Acts, 1882 to 1936, supra, see in particular the Electric Lighting Act, 1882, ss. 3 (9), 13 (7 Halsbury's Statutes 687, 693), and the Electric Lighting Act, 1909, s. 3 (7 Halsbury's Statutes 745). Of these s. 13 of the Act of 1882, supra, is modified as from the vesting date by s. 57 and Sched. IV, Part I, post.

As to the general provisions incorporated in many local enactments, see the Electric Lighting (Clauses) Act, 1899, Sched., ss. 12, 15–17 and Appendix (7 Halsbury's Statutes 712, 714 et seq., 740). Of these ss. 12, 16 and 17 and the Appendix are modified by s. 57 and Sched. IV, Part III, post.

Note that, as from April 1, 1948, the Schedule to the Electric Lighting (Clauses) Act, 1899, as so modified, is incorporated in the present Act (s. 57 (2), post); hence the words "including any enactments incorporated therewith" in sub-s. (3) of the present section.

As to the other powers of breaking-up, etc., as in the present Act, see s. 51, infra.

Definitions.—For definition of "enactments," "local enactment" and "North of Scotland Board," see s. 67 (1), post.

51. Power to break up streets for certain purposes.—(1) Where any Area Board or the North of Scotland Board—

- (a) acquire a bulk supply of electricity which is received by them outside their area or, as the case may be, outside the North of Scotland District; or
- (b) provide a supply of electricity outside their area or, as the case may be, outside the North of Scotland District, the Board may, in accordance with proposals submitted by them to the Minister and approved by him, exercise for the purpose of such acquisition or the provision of such supply any powers of that Board under this Act (including any enactment incorporated therewith) or the Electricity (Supply) Acts, 1882 to 1936, or any local enactment, being powers relating to the breaking up of streets, railways and tramways which would not otherwise be so exercisable:

Provided that, in the case of the North of Scotland Board, the proposals shall be submitted to and approved by the Secretary of State, and the references to the enactments aforesaid shall include a reference to the Act of 1943. [562]

(2) The powers conferred by this section shall be exercisable in like manner and subject to the like provisions and restrictions as they are exercisable by the Board concerned for the purpose of the supply of electricity in the area or District of the Board. [563]

General note.—The powers of breaking-up, etc., referred to in the note to the previous section will normally be sufficient for Area Boards, but the present section makes it clear that these powers are not to be limited to the particular areas of the Boards but may be exercised outside those areas where electricity is so received or supplied by them.

Area Board.—See s. 1 (3), ante.

The Minister.—The Minister of Fuel and Power (s. 67 (1), post).

Electricity (Supply) Acts, 1882 to 1936.—See note to s. 50, ante.

Definitions.—For definitions of "North of Scotland Board" and "local enactment," see s. 67 (1), post.

52. Extension of period for certification of meters.—The period of ten years specified in section three of the Electricity Supply (Meters) Act, 1936 (which provides that certain meters shall be deemed to be proper meters for ascertaining the value of a supply), being the period after which that section is to cease to apply to any meters, shall be extended by a further period of five years, and accordingly for the words "ten years" in subsection (3) of that section there shall be substituted the words "fifteen years". [564]

Certification of meters.—Under the Schedule to the Electric Lighting (Clauses) Act, 1899 (7 Halsbury's Statutes 731), as amended by the Electric Lighting Act, 1909, s. 11 and Sched. II (7 Halsbury's Statutes 749, 754), the value of the supply of electrical energy given by undertakers to consumers is to be ascertained by appropriate meters duly certified as capable of ascertaining that value within such limits of error as may be allowed, certification being carried out by meter examiners appointed under the Electricity Supply (Meters) Act, 1936 (29 Halsbury's Statutes 133).

S. 3 of the same Act provides that meters installed on the premises of ordinary consumers before July 1, 1938 (unless certified or the subject of special agreement) are to be deemed proper meters for all purposes until (a) they are disconnected and removed, or (b) a period of ten years from July 1, 1938, has elapsed, whichever is the earlier. The effect of the present section is to substitute a period of fifteen years for ten years.

Note that, by Regulation 60CB (2A) of the Defence (General) Regulations, 1939 (39 Halsbury's Statutes 1026), the period of ten years had already been extended by two years.

As from August 1, 1943, compulsory certification has been suspended, certification becoming merely optional, at the request and expense of the authorised undertakers (Regulation 60CB of the Defence (General) Regulations, 1939, as amended (39 Halsbury's Statutes 1026)). Regulation 60CB now has effect by virtue of the Supplies and Services (Transitional Powers) Act, 1945 (38 Halsbury's Statutes 629) and the Supplies and Services (Extended Purposes) Act, 1947 (10 & 11 Geo. 6, c. 55).

Conditions of Employment and Pension rights

53. Machinery for settling terms and conditions of employment of staff, etc.—(1) Except so far as they are satisfied that adequate machinery exists for achieving the purposes of this section, it shall be the duty of the Central Authority to seek consultation with any organisation appearing to them to be appropriate with a view to the conclusion between the Authority and that organisation of such agreements as appear to the parties to be desirable with respect to the establishment and maintenance of machinery for—

- (a) the settlement by negotiation of terms and conditions of employment of persons employed by Electricity Boards, with provision for reference to arbitration in default of such settlement in such cases as may be determined by or under the agreements; and
- (b) the promotion and encouragement of measures affecting the safety, health and welfare of persons employed by Electricity Boards and the discussion of other matters of mutual interest to the Boards and such persons, including efficiency in the operation of the services of the Boards. [565]

(2) In exercising their powers under the last foregoing subsection the Central Authority shall consult with the Area Boards and the North of Scotland Board. [566]

(3) It shall be the duty of every Area Board and of the North of Scotland Board to comply with any such agreement as aforesaid. [567]

(4) The Central Authority shall send to the Minister, the Secretary of State and the Minister of Labour and National Service copies of any such agreement as aforesaid and of any instrument varying the terms of any such agreement. [568]

General note.—This is the first of four sections dealing with employment and employees, and upon its efficacy depends the harmonious working of the electricity supply industry. The succeeding sections make provision as to pensions, compensation for officers detrimentally affected by the Act and proceedings before referees appointed by the Minister of Labour and National Service in connection with such pensions or compensation.

Duty to seek consultation.—Note that the negotiations for settling conditions of employment, etc., are to be initiated by the Central Authority and conducted on a national scale. This was considered preferable to having district or area negotiations.

Appropriate organisations.—Included in the organisations to be consulted are likely to be the Electrical Power Engineers Association, the Electrical Trades Union, the Amalgamated Engineering Union, the National Union of Enginemen and Firemen, the National Union of General and Municipal Workers and the Transport and General Workers Union, which between them cover 95 per cent. of the technical and manual workers in electricity supply. Organisations representing the clerical workers, including the National Association of Local Government Officers, would also be included (see 439 H. of C. Official Report 463-464).

Paragraphs (a) and (b).—These paragraphs show that the scope of the negotiating machinery to be established is very much wider than the mere settlement of wage rates. At the Committee Stage of the Bill in the House of Commons the Minister of Fuel and Power said: "The idea we have in mind is this, that there should be created as far as is practicable, and having regard to the position of the managements in these contemplated undertakings, something in the nature of a co-partnership and a mutual understanding, not only regarding wages, conditions of labour, safety, health and welfare and other amenities, but also as regards the mutual desire of both parties to consider all matters which are likely to prove beneficial to the industry, in the sense of reorganisation, expansion, research and the like" (H. of C. Official Report, S.C.E., May 13, 1947, col. 989).

Electricity Boards.—"Electricity Board" comprises any of the following: the British Electricity Authority, any of the Area Boards and the North of Scotland Board (s. 1 (3), ante).

Area Board.—See s. 1 (3), ante.

North of Scotland Board.—For definition, see s. 67 (1), post.

The Minister.—The Minister of Fuel and Power (s. 67 (1), post).

54. Provisions as to pension rights.—(1) The Minister and the Secretary of State may make joint regulations for all or any of the following purposes, that is to say—

- (a) for providing pensions to or in respect of persons who are or have been in the employment of an Electricity Board or a Consultative Council, or persons who have been members of the Central Electricity Board or have been employed by any body to whom Part II of this Act applies or have been employed whole-time for the purpose of administering undertakings or parts of undertakings of authorised undertakers, but who have not been taken into the employment of an Electricity Board as aforesaid;
- (b) for the establishment and administration of pension schemes and pension funds for the purposes of the foregoing paragraph, for the continuance, amendment, repeal or revocation of existing pension schemes relating in whole or in part to the like purposes and of enactments relating thereto and of trust deeds, rules or other instruments made for the purposes thereof, for the transfer in whole or in part, or for the extinguishment, of liabilities under any such existing pension schemes, and for the transfer in whole or in part, or winding up, of pension funds held for the purposes of any such existing pension schemes, so, however, that nothing in this paragraph shall be construed as authorising the diversion of any such funds to purposes other than those of the foregoing paragraph;
- (c) for making any provision consequential on any such provision as aforesaid including provision for the dissolution or winding up of bodies, whether incorporated or not, the continued existence whereof is unnecessary having regard to the regulations. [569]

(2) Where provision is made by any such regulations for the amendment, repeal or revocation of any existing pension scheme or of any enactment relating thereto or any trust deed, rules or other instrument made for the purposes thereof, or for the transfer or extinguishment of any liability under any pension scheme or for the transfer or winding up of any pension fund held for the purposes of any such scheme, the regulations shall be so framed as to secure that persons having pension rights under the scheme, whether such persons as are mentioned in paragraph (a) of the last foregoing subsection or not, are not placed in any worse position by reason of the amendment, repeal, revocation, transfer, extinguishment or winding up:

Provided that this subsection shall have effect subject to such limitations as may be prescribed for meeting cases in which, in connection with any provision made by this Act or in anticipation of the making of any such provision, pension rights have been created otherwise than in the ordinary course. [570]

(3) Regulations made under this section shall not be invalid by reason that in fact they do not secure that persons having pension rights are not placed in any worse position by reason of any such amendment, repeal, revocation, transfer, extinguishment or winding up as is mentioned in the last foregoing subsection, but if the Minister and the Secretary of State are satisfied or it is determined as hereinafter mentioned that any such regulations have failed to secure that result, the Minister and the Secretary of State shall as soon as possible make the necessary amending regulations.

Any dispute arising as to whether or not the said result has been secured by any regulations made under this section shall be referred to a referee or board of referees appointed by the Minister of Labour and National Service, after consultation with the Lord Chancellor or, where the proceedings are to be held in Scotland, after consultation with the Secretary of State, for his or their determination thereon, and the decision of that referee or board shall be final. [571]

(4) Without prejudice to the generality of the foregoing provisions of this section, regulations made under this section may contain provisions authorising any person who, being a participant in any pension scheme to which the regulations relate, becomes a member of an Electricity Board, being treated as if his service as a member of the Board were service in the employment of the Board, and the pension rights of any such person resulting from the operation of any such provision shall not be affected by any provision of this Act which requires that the pensions, if any, which are to be paid in the case of members of the Board are to be determined by the Minister with the approval of the Treasury. [572]

(5) Subject to any regulations made under this section, the provisions of this Act which vest liabilities and obligations of a body to whom Part II of this Act applies in an Electricity Board shall apply in relation to customary obligations of the body in respect of pensions, notwithstanding that the body was under no legal obligation in respect of those pensions, and if any question arises as to the existence or extent of any such customary obligation, the question shall, in default of agreement, be referred to a referee or board of referees appointed by the Minister of Labour and National Service, after consultation with the Lord Chancellor, or where the proceedings are to be held in Scotland, after consultation with the Secretary of State, and the decision of that referee or board shall be final and the Electricity Board shall give effect to that decision. [573]

(6) Nothing in this section, and in particular nothing in subsection (2) thereof, shall be taken to derogate from the power conferred by subsection (4) of section sixty-nine of the National Insurance Act, 1946, to make regulations providing for the modifying or winding up of pension schemes in connection with the passing of that Act. [574]

(7) Regulations made under this section may contain such supplementary and consequential provisions as the Minister and the Secretary of State think necessary, including provisions as to the manner in which questions arising under the regulations are to be determined and provisions adapting, modifying or repealing enactments, whether of general or special application. [575]

(8) Regulations made for the purposes of this section may be made so as to have effect from a date prior to the making thereof, so, however, that so much of any regulations as provides that any provision thereof is to have effect from a date prior to the making thereof shall not place any person other than an Electricity Board in a worse position than he would have been if the regulations had been made to have effect only as from the date of the making thereof. [576]

The Minister.—The Minister of Fuel and Power (s. 67 (1), post).

May make.—Note that, though it is intended that regulations shall be made, the provision is permissive only. Aliter, in the case of the Coal Industry Nationalisation Act, 1946, s. 37 (39 Halsbury's Statutes 286), which opens: "Regulations shall be made".

Regulations.—Up to the time of going to press, no regulations under this section had been made.

For the general provisions applicable to regulations under the Act, see s. 64, post. Any regulations under the section are to be laid before Parliament under s. 64 (3), post; but see note thereto. As to offences against regulations, see s. 61 (2), post.

Electricity Board.—The term "Electricity Board" comprises any of the following: the British Electricity Authority, any of the Area Boards and the North of Scotland Board (s. 1 (3), ante).

Consultative Council.—For the establishment of these councils, see s. 7, ante.

National Insurance Act, 1946, s. 69 (4).—39 Halsbury's Statutes 481. Under this subsection provision may be made for modifying or winding up, in connection with the passing of that Act, any scheme for the provision of pensions or other benefits (excluding any scheme established by any enactment repealed by that Act but including any other scheme established by or under any enactment and any scheme evidenced only by one or more policies of insurance), by regulations made by such Minister of the Crown or Government department as may be determined by the Treasury to be appropriate in relation to the scheme to which the regulations are to apply or, if the Treasury determine that there is no appropriate Minister or department, by the Chief Registrar of Friendly Societies.

Definitions.—As to “authorised undertakers,” see s. 67 (1) and Sched. II, post. For definitions of “pensions,” “pension schemes,” “pension funds,” “pension rights” and “enactments,” see s. 67 (1), post.

55. Compensation to officers in connection with transfers.—(1) The Minister and the Secretary of State jointly shall by regulations require every Electricity Board to pay in such cases and to such extent as may be specified in the regulations, compensation to officers of any body whose property, rights, liabilities and obligations vest by virtue of this Act in the Board and officers employed whole-time for the purpose of administering undertakings or parts of undertakings of authorised undertakers, being officers who suffer loss of employment or loss or diminution of emoluments or pension rights or whose position is worsened in consequence of the vesting, or in consequence of the subsequent transfer to another Electricity Board or the subsequent disposal in any other manner, of any such property, rights, liabilities or obligations. [577]

(2) The Minister shall also, in such cases and to such extent as may be specified in the regulations, by regulations require the Central Authority to pay compensation to—

(a) members of the Central Electricity Board, and

(b) Electricity Commissioners and officers of the Electricity Commissioners, who suffer loss of employment or loss or diminution of emoluments or pension rights or whose position is worsened in consequence of the dissolution of the Central Electricity Board or, as the case may be, the Electricity Commissioners, by or under this Act. [578]

(3) Regulations made under subsection (1) or subsection (2) of this section shall, in such cases and to such extent as may be specified in the regulations, extend to persons who would have been within the said subsection (1) or, as the case may be, the said subsection (2) but for any war service in which they have been engaged.

In this subsection the expression “war service” means service in any of His Majesty’s forces and such other employment as may be specified in the regulations. [579]

(4) Different regulations may be made under this section in relation to different classes of persons, and any such regulations may be so framed as to have effect as from a date prior to the making thereof, so, however, that so much of any regulations as provides that any provision thereof is to have effect as from a date earlier than the making thereof shall not place any person other than an Electricity Board in a worse position than he would have been in if the regulations had been made to have effect only as from the date of the making thereof. [580]

(5) Regulations made under this section—

(a) shall prescribe the procedure to be followed in making claims for compensation, and the manner in which and the person by whom the question whether any or what compensation is payable is to be determined; and

(b) may in particular contain provisions enabling appeals from any determination as to whether any or what compensation is payable to be brought, in such cases and subject to such conditions as may be prescribed by the regulations, before a referee or board of referees appointed by the Minister of Labour and National Service, after consultation with the Lord Chancellor or where the proceedings are to be held in Scotland, after consultation with the Secretary of State, and where any such provision is made as is specified in paragraph (b) of this subsection, the decision of the referee or board of referees shall be final. [581]

(6) Nothing in this section shall be construed as enabling regulations to be made prejudicing the rights of any person under section sixteen of the Electricity (Supply) Act, 1919, or under section fifteen of and the Fourth Schedule to the Electricity (Supply) Act, 1926, or under the Compensation of Displaced Officers (War Service) (Electricity Undertakings) Order, 1946, being rights arising in consequence of events which occurred before the vesting date.

References to the said sections and Schedule shall be construed as including references to those sections and that Schedule as applied by any other enactment, with or without modifications and adaptations. [582]

(7) No regulations shall be made under this section unless a draft thereof has been laid before Parliament and has been approved by resolution of each House of Parliament. [583]

(8) The Minister of Labour and National Service may, with the consent of the Treasury, pay out of moneys provided by Parliament—

(a) to any referee or to the members of any board of referees appointed by him under this section or the last foregoing section such fees and allowances as he may with the consent of the Treasury determine; and

(b) to persons giving evidence before any such referee or board such allowances as he may with the consent of the Treasury determine. [584]

The Minister.—The Minister of Fuel and Power (s. 67 (1), post).

Regulations.—Up to the time of going to press, no regulations under this section had been made.

Note that under sub-s. (7), supra, no such regulations are to be made unless a draft thereof has been laid before Parliament and approved by resolution of both Houses.

For the general provisions applicable to regulations under the Act, see s. 64, post. As orders under this section are to be laid before Parliament in draft and the so-called "affirmative resolution procedure" applies, sub-s. (3) of that section, which provides that the so-called "negative resolution procedure" shall apply in most other cases, is not here applicable (see notes to s. 64, post).

Every Electricity Board.—I.e., the British Electricity Authority, any of the Area Boards and the North of Scotland Board (s. 1 (3), ante).

Sub-s. (5).—Note that paragraph (a) of this sub-section is mandatory, while paragraph (b) is permissive.

Electricity (Supply) Act, 1919, s. 16.—7 Halsbury's Statutes 764. This section provides for payment of compensation for deprivation of employment. It was amended by the Electricity (Supply) Act, 1922, s. 21 (7 Halsbury's Statutes 764), the Electricity (Supply) Act, 1928, s. 1 (7 Halsbury's Statutes 788), and the Electricity (Supply) Act, 1935, s. 1 (26 Halsbury's Statutes 137).

Electricity (Supply) Act, 1926, s. 15 and Sched. IV.—7 Halsbury's Statutes 805, 824. These provisions apply the Electricity (Supply) Act, 1919, s. 16, supra, as amended by the Electricity (Supply) Act, 1922, s. 21 (7 Halsbury's Statutes 788) and with further adaptations, to officers and servants of authorised undertakers affected by certain closures and restrictions.

Compensation of Displaced Officers (War Service) (Electricity Undertakings) Order, 1946.—S. R. & O., 1946, No. 2176. This order applies to certain displaced employees of electricity undertakers and railway companies the provisions of the Compensation of Displaced Officers (War Service) Act, 1945 (38 Halsbury's Statutes 299).

Vesting date.—Such date on or after April 1, 1948, not being less than six months after the establishment of the British Electricity Authority nor less than three months after the establishment of all the Area Boards and the definition by order of their areas, as the Minister of Fuel and Power may by order appoint. April 1, 1948, has been so appointed (ss. 14 (1), ante, and 67 (1), post, and see the notes thereto).

Definitions.—As to "authorised undertakers," see s. 67 (1) and Sched. II, post. For definitions of "officer" and "enactment," see s. 67 (1), post.

56. Arbitration Acts not to apply to proceedings before referees or boards of referees.—Nothing in the Arbitration Acts, 1889 to 1934, shall be construed as applying to any proceedings before a referee or board of referees appointed under either of the two last foregoing sections by the Minister of Labour and National Service. [585]

Arbitration Acts, 1889 to 1934.—The Arbitration Act, 1889 (1 Halsbury's Statutes 453); the Arbitration Clauses (Protocol) Act, 1924 (1 Halsbury's Statutes 469); the Arbitration (Foreign Awards) Act, 1930 (23 Halsbury's Statutes 4); and the Arbitration Act, 1934 (27 Halsbury's Statutes 27).

Consequential Amendment of Statutory Provisions

57. Application, amendment and repeal of enactments relating to electricity supply.—(1) As from the vesting date, the Electricity (Supply) Acts, 1882 to 1936, and any other enactment to which any provision of Part I of the Fourth Schedule to this Act applies, shall have effect subject to the adaptations and modifications specified in Part I of that Schedule, and the Act of 1943 shall have effect subject to the adaptations and modifications specified in Part II of that Schedule, being adaptations and modifications required for the purpose of applying the said Acts and enactments to Electricity Boards and otherwise required in consequence of the provisions of this Act. [586]

(2) The Schedule to the Electric Lighting (Clauses) Act, 1899, shall, as from the vesting date, be incorporated with this Act, and shall have effect, as so incorporated, subject to the adaptations and modifications specified in Part III of the said Fourth Schedule. [587]

(3) All local enactments in force at the vesting date and applicable to any authorised undertakers except enactments applicable to local authorities or composite companies otherwise than in their capacity as authorised undertakers, shall, as from the vesting date, have effect—

- (a) as if for references to the undertakers there were substituted references to the appropriate Board;
- (b) as if for any reference (however worded and whether expressed or implied) to the undertaking or any part of the undertaking or to the area of supply or any part of the area of supply of the undertakers there were substituted a reference to so much of the business carried on by the appropriate Board as corresponds to that undertaking or part thereof or, as the case may be, a reference to the area constituting the said area of supply or part thereof immediately before the vesting date;

and shall also have effect, as from such date as may be prescribed which may be prior to the making of the regulations but not to the vesting date, with such other adaptations and modifications (if any) as may be prescribed, being adaptations and modifications required in consequence of the provisions of this Act (including the foregoing provisions of this section) or of the Act of 1943:

Provided that the provisions of any such local enactment shall, in so far as they are inconsistent with or rendered redundant by the provisions of this Act (including the foregoing provisions of this section) or of the Act of 1943, cease to have effect, as from the vesting date.

In this subsection the expression “the appropriate Board”—

- (a) in relation to undertakers all of whose property, rights, liabilities and obligations vest by virtue of this Act in a single Electricity Board, means that Board;
- (b) in relation to undertakers, in whose case generating stations and main transmission lines vest by virtue of this Act in the Central Authority, and other parts of the undertaking vest as aforesaid in an Area Board, means—

(i) the Central Authority, as respects any enactment applicable only to the part of the undertaking vested in that Authority ;

(ii) the Area Board, as respects any enactment applicable only to other parts of the undertaking ;

(iii) both the said Authority and Board, as respects any enactment applicable both to the part vested in the Authority and to other parts of the undertaking. [588]

(4) For the purpose of securing, so far as reasonably practicable, a uniform statutory code applicable throughout the area of each Area Board and the North of Scotland District, the Minister may, as respects local enactments applicable to an Area Board, and the Secretary of State may, as respects local enactments applicable to the North of Scotland Board, by order provide for the repeal or amendment of any such enactment or for its extension to the whole of the area concerned, and for such matters consequential on or incidental to any such repeal, amendment or extension for which the Minister or the Secretary of State considers it necessary or expedient to provide.

An order under this subsection shall be subject to special parliamentary procedure. [589]

(5) Where an order made under this Act provides for the transfer of property, rights, liabilities and obligations from any Electricity Board to another such Board, that order or a subsequent order may provide for the application to the last named Board of the provisions of any local enactment applicable to the first named Board, so far as appears to the Minister or Ministers by whom the order is made necessary or expedient in consequence of the said transfer. [590]

(6) Where the undertaking of any person authorised by any enactment to supply electricity does not vest by virtue of this Act in any Electricity Board, the Minister or Secretary of State, as the case may be, may by order provide for the continued application to the undertaking, subject to such adaptations and modifications as may be necessary, of any enactments which would otherwise cease to apply to the undertaking in consequence of this section, including enactments repealed by this section. [591]

(7) As from the vesting date, the enactments mentioned in the Fifth Schedule to this Act are hereby repealed to the extent specified in the third column of that Schedule, and, where any local enactment incorporates (with or without adaptations or modifications) any provisions of the Schedule to the Electric Lighting (Clauses) Act, 1899, repealed by this subsection, or contains any provisions substantially corresponding therewith, those provisions shall cease to have effect :

Provided that—

(a) the repeal of any provision under which any special order or other order was made, being an order which would be applicable to an Electricity Board by virtue of subsection (3) of this section, shall not affect that order ;

(b) the repeal of the provisions of section sixteen of the Electricity (Supply) Act, 1919, and section fifteen of and the Fourth Schedule to the Electricity (Supply) Act, 1926, and of the Fifth Schedule to the Act of 1943 (so far as it applies the provisions aforesaid) shall not affect the rights of any person arising under any of those provisions in consequence of any event occurring before the vesting date ; and

(c) the repeal of section forty-two of and the First Schedule to the Civil Defence Act, 1939, shall not prevent the disposal of plant, equipment and property, and the application of the proceeds thereof, in accordance with Part II of the said Schedule. [592]

Vesting date.—Such date on or after April 1, 1948, not being less than six months after the establishment of the British Electricity Authority nor less than three months after the establishment of all the Area Boards and the definition by order of their areas, as the Minister of Fuel and Power may by order appoint. April 1, 1948, has been so appointed (ss. 14 (1), ante, and 67 (1), post, and see the notes thereto).

Electricity (Supply) Acts, 1882 to 1936.—See note to s. 50, ante.

Electricity Boards.—The term "Electricity Board" comprises any of the following: the British Electricity Authority, any of the Area Boards and the North of Scotland Board (s. 1 (3), ante). Note that various powers exercisable under earlier Acts referred to in Sched. IV, become exercisable by Electricity Boards by reason of the present section and the adaptations and modifications thereby provided.

Electric Lighting (Clauses) Act, 1899, Sched.—7 Halsbury's Statutes 706. This Schedule contains a number of provisions which were by that Act to be incorporated with, save as varied or excepted by, every Provisional Order made after September, 1899, by the Board of Trade under the Electric Lighting Acts (later every Special Order made by the Electricity Commissioners under the Electricity (Supply) Act, 1919, s. 26 (7 Halsbury's Statutes 772)), and every special Act passed after that date authorising the supply of electricity within any area. Special considerations were to apply to the County of London.

Note the provisions of sub-s. (7), ante, in this connection.

Composite companies.—See s. 17 (1), ante, and Sched. II, Part II, post.

Regulations and orders.—Up to the time of going to press, no regulations or orders under this section had been made.

For the general provisions applicable to regulations and orders under the Act, see s. 64, post.

Note that orders under sub-s. (4) of the present section are subject to special parliamentary procedure (see infra), with the result that the provisions of s. 64 (3), post, requiring regulations and orders under the Act to be laid before Parliament, do not apply. However, in the case of all other regulations and orders under the present section, s. 64 (3) applies; but see note thereto.

Area Board.—See s. 1 (3), ante.

The Minister.—The Minister of Fuel and Power (s. 67 (1), post).

Special parliamentary procedure.—The reference to "special parliamentary procedure" in sub-s. (4), ante, brings into play the Statutory Orders (Special Procedure) Act, 1945 (38 Halsbury's Statutes 441), under which an order to which that Act applies is to be of no effect until it has been laid before Parliament by the Minister responsible and brought into operation in accordance with the provisions of that Act (see notes to s. 64, post).

Effect of repeal.—The Interpretation Act, 1889, s. 38 (18 Halsbury's Statutes 1005), provides, first, that where an enactment repeals and re-enacts, with or without modification, any provisions of a former Act, references in any other Act to the provisions so repealed, shall, unless the contrary intention appears, be construed as references to the provisions so re-enacted.

The same section also provides that repeals shall not revive anything not in force or existing at the time when the repeal takes effect; shall not affect the previous operation of any enactment so repealed or anything duly done or suffered under any enactment so repealed; shall not affect any right, privilege, obligation, or liability acquired, accrued, or incurred under any enactment so repealed; shall not affect any penalty, forfeiture, or punishment incurred in respect of any offence committed against any enactment so repealed; and shall not affect any investigation, legal proceeding, or remedy in respect of any such right, privilege, obligation, liability, penalty, forfeiture, or punishment as aforesaid. Any such investigation, legal proceeding, or remedy may be instituted, continued, or enforced, and any such penalty, forfeiture, or punishment may be imposed, as if the repealing Act had not been passed.

Electricity (Supply) Act, 1919, s. 16, and the Electricity (Supply) Act, 1926, s. 15 and Sched. IV.—7 Halsbury's Statutes 764, 805, 824. See notes to s. 55, ante.

Civil Defence Act, 1939, s. 42 and Sched. I.—32 Halsbury's Statutes 859, 893. S. 42 concerns the powers and duties of the Central Electricity Board in the event of damage through hostile attack, and Sched. I, Part II, lays down rules as to the disposal of certain property acquired by that Board.

Definitions.—As to "authorised undertakers," see s. 67 (1) and Sched. II, post. For definitions of "enactment," "local enactment," "local authority," "prescribed" and "North of Scotland Board," see s. 67 (1), post.

58. Power to dissolve Electricity Commissioners.—(1) The Minister may by order provide—

- (a) for dissolving the Electricity Commissioners;
- (b) for transferring to the Minister all property, rights, liabilities and obligations of the Electricity Commissioners, and for the modification of agreements so far as necessary for giving effect to the transfer of rights, liabilities and obligations thereunder;
- (c) for transferring to the Minister, the Secretary of State, the Central Authority or the North of Scotland Board any functions previously exercisable by the Electricity Commissioners under any enactment or for extinguishing any such functions;

- (d) for transferring from the Minister to the Central Authority or the North of Scotland Board such of the property, rights, liabilities and obligations transferred to him from the Electricity Commissioners as appear to the Minister to relate to any functions of the Commissioners so transferred ;
- (e) for the adaptation, modification or repeal of enactments relating to the Electricity Commissioners ; and
- (f) for matters incidental or supplementary to the matters aforesaid for which it appears to the Minister to be necessary or expedient to provide. [593]

(2) Any order made under this section shall secure that the pension rights of persons who have been Electricity Commissioners or officers of the Electricity Commissioners are not prejudiced by the order, and any pension payable in satisfaction of those rights shall be paid out of moneys provided by Parliament and shall be repaid to the Treasury by the Central Authority and the North of Scotland Board on demand to such extent as the Treasury may determine. [594]

General note.—Under the enactments noted below a great number of functions, some administrative and some quasi-judicial, are exercisable by the Electricity Commissioners. Their position has, however, been materially changed by the present Act, many of their duties being taken over by the Central Authority. The present section therefore empowers the Minister by order to dissolve the Electricity Commissioners and provide for the devolution of their powers and duties. Though the wording of the section is permissive, it is the intention, as in numerous similar cases, that the power shall be exercised (see H. of C. Official Report, S.C.E., May 15, 1947, col. 1041).

The Minister.—The Minister of Fuel and Power (s. 67 (1), post).

Orders under the section.—Up to the time of going to press, no such orders had been made. For the general provisions applicable to orders under the Act, see s. 64, post. Any orders under the present section are to be laid before Parliament under s. 64 (3), post ; but see note thereto.

Central Authority.—The British Electricity Authority (s. 1 (3), ante). For the constitution of this body, see s. 3, ante.

Enactments relating to the Electricity Commissioners.—E.g. the Electricity (Supply) Act, 1919 (7 Halsbury's Statutes 754) under which the Commissioners were constituted ; the Electricity (Supply) Act, 1922 (7 Halsbury's Statutes 778) ; the Electricity (Supply) Act, 1926 (7 Halsbury's Statutes 792) ; the Electricity (Supply) Act, 1933 (26 Halsbury's Statutes 137) ; the Electricity (Supply) Act, 1935 (28 Halsbury's Statutes 51) ; and the Electricity Supply (Meters) Act, 1936 (29 Halsbury's Statutes 133). Note that by s. 67 (1), post, the term "enactment" includes regulations and orders made under Act of Parliament.

Definitions.—For definitions of "North of Scotland Board," "pension rights" and "pension," see s. 67 (1), post.

59. Assets of Electricity Associations to be applicable for compensating their officers.—Where any body, not being a body to whom Part II of this Act applies, have among their objects the promotion or protection of the interests of electricity undertakers or any class thereof, or of the officers of electricity undertakers or any class thereof, and, by reason of the failure of the objects of the body in consequence of the provisions of this Act, the affairs of the body are being wound up, any assets of the body which, after satisfaction of all their debts and liabilities, remain undisposed of may, notwithstanding anything in any enactment or instrument defining the objects of the body or regulating their affairs, be applied in whole or in part in compensating the officers of the body. [595]

General note.—This section was inserted at the instance of the Incorporated Municipal Electrical Association and other associations which would be wound up when the transfer to the new Authorities had taken place. Though anxious to make adequate provision for their staffs they had been advised by Counsel that under their Memoranda of Association there was no power to devote the funds still in their possession to staff compensation. The present section makes good the omission.

Officer.—This term includes a managing director and a director whose functions are substantially those of an employee but not any other director ; it also includes a servant (s. 67 (1), post).

Enactment.—This term, which is defined in s. 67 (1), post, includes a local, private or personal Act, a provisional order confirmed by an Act, and any deed of transfer whereby statutory powers have been transferred to any authorised undertakers.

General

60. Power to make regulations relating to efficiency of supply and safety.

—(1) The Minister may make such regulations as he thinks fit for the purpose of securing that any supply of electricity furnished to any consumer by an Electricity Board is regular and efficient, and that the public is so far as practicable protected from any personal injury, fire or other dangers arising from the use of electricity so furnished. [596]

(2) Any regulations made under section six of the Electric Lighting Act, 1882, and in force immediately before the vesting date shall continue in force, notwithstanding the repeal by this Act of the said section six, and shall have effect as if they had been made under this section. [597]

Effect of section.—The Minister is empowered to make regulations, first, to secure efficiency in electricity supplies, and secondly, to protect the public against danger. Compare the responsibility of the same Minister, as successor to the Secretary of State and the Mines Department of the Board of Trade, for safety in mines, e.g. under the Coal Mines Act, 1911, Part II (12 Halsbury's Statutes 97 et seq.).

Regulations.—Up to the time of going to press, no regulations under this section had been made.

For the general provisions applicable to regulations under the Act, see s. 64, post. Any regulations under the present section are to be laid before Parliament under s. 64 (3), post; but see note thereto. As to offences against regulations, see s. 61 (2), post.

An Electricity Board.—The term "Electricity Board" includes any of the following: the British Electricity Authority, any of the Area Boards and the North of Scotland Board (s. 1 (3), ante).

Electric Lighting Act, 1882, s. 6.—7 Halsbury's Statutes 689. This section directed that electricity undertakers should be subject to such regulations and conditions on specified subjects as might be inserted in any licence, order, or special Act affecting their undertaking.

Vesting date.—Such date on or after April 1, 1948, not being less than six months after the establishment of the British Electricity Authority nor less than three months after the establishment of all the Area Boards and the definition by order of their areas, as the Minister of Fuel and Power may by order appoint. April 1, 1948, has been so appointed (ss. 14 (1), ante, and 67 (1), post, and see the notes thereto).

Repeal.—The present section should be read in conjunction with the Interpretation Act, 1889, s. 38 (18 Halsbury's Statutes 1005); see s. 57, ante, and note thereto.

61. Penalties.—(1) If any person, in giving any information, making any claim or giving any notice for the purposes of any provision of this Act or of any regulation thereunder, makes any statement which he knows to be false in a material particular, or recklessly makes any statement which is false in a material particular, he shall be liable on summary conviction to imprisonment for a term not exceeding three months or to a fine not exceeding one hundred pounds, or to both such imprisonment and such fine, or on conviction on indictment to imprisonment for a term not exceeding two years or to a fine not exceeding five hundred pounds, or to both such imprisonment and such fine. [598]

(2) Regulations made under any provision of this Act may provide that persons offending against the regulations shall be liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding one hundred pounds and, if the offence in respect of which he is so convicted is continued after the conviction, he shall be guilty of a further offence and liable in respect thereof on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding five pounds for each day on which the offence is so continued. [599]

Penalties applicable under sub-s. (1).—The penalties provided by this subsection are the same as the general penalties applicable under Regulation 92 of the Defence (General) Regulations, 1939 (39 Halsbury's Statutes 1069). As the maximum term of imprisonment on summary conviction does not exceed three months, the accused has no right to claim trial by jury under s. 17 of the Summary Jurisdiction Act, 1879 (11 Halsbury's Statutes 329).

Five pounds for each day.—This is a fine enforceable on summary conviction and differs from the "daily penalty not exceeding five pounds" provided for by s. 18 (5) of the Schedule to the Electric Lighting (Clauses) Act, 1899 (7 Halsbury's Statutes 720) which was the subject of the decision in Chepstow Electric Light and Power Co. v. Chepstow Gas and Coke Consumers' Co., [1905] 1 K. B. 198.

For non-payment of a default fine of this kind, no matter how large, the maximum imprisonment permitted as an alternative would remain three months (Summary Jurisdiction Act, 1879, s. 5; 11 Halsbury's Statutes 324).

62. Provisions as to prosecutions and as to offences by corporations.—

(1) Proceedings for an offence under the last foregoing section or any regulation made under this Act shall not, in England and Wales, be instituted except by or with the consent of the Minister or by the Director of Public Prosecutions. [600]

(2) Where an offence under the last foregoing section or any regulation made under this Act has been committed by a body corporate, every person who at the time of the commission of the offence was a director, general manager, secretary or other similar officer of the body corporate, or was purporting to act in any such capacity, shall be deemed to be guilty of that offence unless he proves that the offence was committed without his consent or connivance and that he exercised all such diligence to prevent the commission of the offence as he ought to have exercised having regard to the nature of his functions in that capacity and to all the circumstances. [601]

Any regulation.—I.e., any regulation made by the Minister of Fuel and Power under this Act (s. 67 (1), post).

Other similar officer.—The term "officer," as defined in s. 67 (1), post, includes a servant, but the limiting words "other similar" must be taken to modify its meaning in the present connection; for the definitions in the interpretation section do not apply "where the context otherwise requires" (s. 67 (1), post).

Sub-s. (2).—Note that in the case of proceedings against officers in respect of offences by bodies corporate the usual common law presumption of innocence does not here apply. The burden of proof is shifted to the accused; in effect, it is for him to prove his innocence.

63. Service of notices, etc.—Any notice or other document required or authorised to be given, delivered or served under this Act or regulations or orders made thereunder or under any enactment applied by or incorporated with this Act may be given, delivered or served either—

- (a) by delivering it to the person to whom it is to be given or delivered or on whom it is to be served; or
- (b) by leaving it at the usual or last known place of abode of that person; or
- (c) by sending it in a prepaid registered letter addressed to that person at his usual or last known place of abode; or
- (d) in the case of an incorporated company or body, or the arbitration tribunal, by delivering it to the secretary or clerk of the company, body or tribunal at their registered or principal office or sending it in a prepaid registered letter addressed to the secretary or clerk of the company, body or tribunal at that office; or
- (e) if it is not practicable after reasonable enquiry to ascertain the name or address of a person to whom it should be given or delivered, or on whom it should be served, as being a person having any interest in land, by addressing it to him by the description of the person having that interest in the premises (naming them) to which it relates, and delivering it to some person on the premises, or, if there is no person on the premises to whom it can be delivered, affixing it, or a copy of it, to some conspicuous part of the premises.

Regulations or orders.—For the general provisions applicable to regulations or orders under the Act, see s. 64, infra.

Enactment.—For the definition of this term, see s. 67 (1), post.

Arbitration tribunal.—The Electricity Arbitration Tribunal (s. 31 (1), ante).

64. Provisions as to regulations and orders.—(1) Any power conferred by this Act to make regulations or orders shall include power to provide by those regulations or orders for the determination of questions of fact or of law which may arise in giving effect to the regulations or orders and for regulating (otherwise than in relation to any court proceedings) any matters relating to the practice and procedure to be followed in connection with the determination of such questions, including provision as to the mode of proof of any matters and provision as to parties and their representation and provision for the right to appear and be heard (as well in court proceedings as otherwise) of the Minister or other authorities, and as to awarding costs of proceedings for the determination of such questions, determining the amount thereof and the enforcement of awards thereof. [603]

(2) Any power conferred by this Act to prescribe by regulations or orders a period within which things are to be done shall include power to provide by those regulations or orders for extending the period so prescribed. [604]

(3) All orders and regulations made under this Act, not being orders or regulations required to be laid before Parliament in draft or orders subject to special parliamentary procedure, shall be laid before Parliament immediately after they are made and if either House, within a period of forty days beginning with the day on which any such order or regulations is or are so laid before it, resolves that the order or regulations be annulled, the order or regulations shall thereupon cease to have effect, but without prejudice to the validity of anything previously done thereunder or to the making of any new order or regulations. [605]

(4) In reckoning for the purposes of the last foregoing subsection any such period of forty days, no account shall be taken of any time during which Parliament is dissolved or prorogued, or during which both Houses are adjourned for more than four days. [606]

(5) Notwithstanding anything in subsection (4) of section one of the Rules Publication Act, 1893, orders and regulations made under this Act shall be deemed not to be, or to contain, statutory rules to which that section applies. [607]

(6) In the case of orders defining or varying the areas for which Area Boards are established under this Act, copies of the maps by reference to which those areas are defined by the orders shall be made available, during the period for which the orders or drafts thereof are laid before Parliament, for inspection by members of each House of Parliament. [608]

(7) Any order made under any such power may be revoked or varied by a subsequent order made in the like manner and subject to the like conditions. [609]

Statutory safeguards.—Much of the detailed provision needed to effect the objects of the Act Parliament has necessarily left to Ministers of the Crown, principally the Minister of Fuel and Power, empowering them to carry through the general principles of the Act by delegated legislation in the form of regulations and orders. In doing so, however, it has been careful to maintain a measure of control through the modern constitutional safeguard of parliamentary challenge.

This safeguard is applied to regulations and orders under the Act in three forms of varying stringency:

1. The requirement of special parliamentary procedure, as under ss. 50 and 57 (4), ante. This brings into play the Statutory Orders (Special Procedure) Act, 1945 (38 Halsbury's Statutes 441), under which orders stated to be subject to special parliamentary procedure are to be of no effect until laid before Parliament by the Minister responsible and brought into operation in accordance with the provisions of that Act, which seeks to combine the best features of provisional order procedure and affirmative resolution procedure (see infra). Within fourteen days after the order has been laid before Parliament petitions may be presented against it, being either "petitions for amendment" or "petitions of general objection." Special parliamentary procedure is usually applied to local matters to which it is specially suited.

2. The requirement that a draft be laid before Parliament and be approved by resolution of each House, as under ss. 4 (2) and 53, ante. This is the so-called "affirmative resolution procedure," in which case the regulation or order so subject is of no effect until the prescribed resolutions of Parliament have been passed. To this procedure ss. 4 to 7 of the Statutory Instruments Act, 1946 (see infra), has no application.

3. The requirement that orders shall be laid before Parliament immediately they are made and be subject to annulment by resolution, as generally applicable under the present section, supra. This is the so-called "negative resolution procedure," in which case the regulation or order so subject is effective from the time of its making and remains effective unless and until within the specified period a negative resolution is passed. The effect of the Statutory Instruments Act, 1946, on this type of procedure is noted below.

Effect of the Statutory Instruments Act, 1946.—39 Halsbury's Statutes 784. This Act came into full operation on January 1, 1948 (see S.I. 1948 No. 3). The effect of the Act is that documents made on or after that date in exercise of certain statutory powers conferred by Acts passed before its commencement are "statutory instruments" (s. 1 (2)). Accordingly documents to which the negative resolution procedure applies (see ante) are required to be laid before Parliament in accordance with the provisions of s. 4 of that Act in substitution for the corresponding provisions of sub-ss. (3) and (4), ante, and the provisions of s. 5 of that Act for annulment in pursuance of resolution of either House of Parliament are substituted for the corresponding provisions of the present section.

Rules Publication Act, 1893, s. 1.—18 Halsbury's Statutes. Note that this Act was repealed by the Statutory Instruments Act, 1946, s. 12 (1) (39 Halsbury's Statutes 789), as from January 1, 1948, the date of commencement of the last-named Act (see S.I. 1948 No. 3).

Orders defining or varying the areas.—See s. 4 (2), ante.

65. Expenses of the Minister.—Any administrative expenses incurred by the Minister or any other Minister of the Crown or Government department under this Act shall be paid out of moneys provided by Parliament, and any sums received by the Minister or by any other Minister of the Crown or Government department under or by virtue of this Act shall be paid into the Exchequer. [610]

Any administrative expenses.—E.g., a proportion of the salaries of legal officers engaged in work in connection with the Act; printing costs; stationery; and expenses incurred in regard to the transfer of local authority undertakings (see H. of C. Official Report, S.C.E., May 15, 1947, col. 1047).

66. Inquiries.—(1) The Minister or the Secretary of State may cause an inquiry to be held in any case when he deems it advisable to do so in connection with any matter arising under this Act (including any enactment incorporated therewith) or the Electricity (Supply) Acts, 1882 to 1936, or the Act of 1943. [611]

(2) Subsections (2) to (5) of section two hundred and ninety of the Local Government Act, 1933, shall apply to any inquiry held by the Minister in England and Wales in pursuance of this section, and shall have effect as if the expression "department" included the Minister, and the provisions of the Sixth Schedule to the Act of 1943 shall apply to any inquiry held in Scotland, whether by the Minister or the Secretary of State, in pursuance of this section in like manner as those provisions apply to any inquiry held by the Secretary of State for the purposes of that Act:

Provided that no local authority shall be ordered to pay costs under subsection (4) of the said section two hundred and ninety in the case of any inquiry unless they are a party thereto. [612]

Necessity for inquiries.—At the Committee Stage of the Bill the Parliamentary Secretary to the Ministry of Fuel and Power told the Standing Committee of the House of Commons:

"As the clause stands the Minister has to judge whether an inquiry is necessary, but there is one important qualification to that: he may be bound by the existing law to hold an inquiry unless that existing law is amended or repealed in the Schedule to the Bill. As far as I am aware, the only case where we are repealing previous legislation which is relevant in this connection is the repeal of s. 32 (2) of the Schedule to the Electric Lighting (Clauses) Act, 1899. That, I may say, relates to the prices and charges which can be permitted. . . . In fact any inquiry not concerned with prices and methods of charge could still be imposed on the Minister by the existing legislation" (H. of C. Official Report, S.C.E., May 15, 1947, col. 1048).

For the Electric Lighting (Clauses) Act, 1899, Sched., s. 32 (2), as substituted by the Electricity (Supply) Act, 1922, s. 22 (2), and Sched., see 7 Halsbury's Statutes 727.

Electricity (Supply) Acts, 1882 to 1936.—See note to s. 50, ante.

Local Government Act, 1933, s. 290 (2)–(5).—26 Halsbury's Statutes 459. These subsections detail the provisions applicable to inquiries ordered to be held by a Government department under the Local Government Act, 1933. Under s. 290 (4) of that Act costs may be awarded against "such local authority or party to the inquiry as the department may direct," this provision being modified in its application to inquiries under the present Act by the proviso to sub-s. (2) of the present section.

Definitions.—For definitions of "enactment" and "local authority," see s. 67 (1), infra.

67. Interpretation.—(1) In this Act, except where the context otherwise requires, the following expressions have the meanings hereby respectively assigned to them, that is to say—

"the Act of 1943" means the Hydro-Electric Development (Scotland) Act, 1943;

- “arbitration tribunal” means the tribunal established under section thirty-one of this Act ;
- “Area Board” has the meaning assigned to it by section one of this Act ;
- “authorised undertakers” means the bodies specified in the Second Schedule to this Act, and any reference in this Act to the capacity of a local authority or a composite company as authorised undertakers shall be construed as a reference to their capacity as a body authorised by any enactment to supply electricity in an area of supply ;
- “bulk supply” means a supply of electricity to be used for the purposes of distribution ;
- “Central Authority” has the meaning assigned to it by section one of this Act ;
- “company” means a company incorporated by any enactment and a company within the meaning of the Companies Act, 1929 ;
- “Electricity Board” has the meaning assigned to it by section one of this Act ;
- “electricity holding company” has the meaning assigned to it by section thirteen of this Act ;
- “electrical fittings” means electric lines, fittings, apparatus and appliances designed for use by consumers of electricity for lighting, heating, motive power and other purposes for which electricity can be used ;
- “electric line” has the same meaning as in the Electric Lighting Act, 1882 ;
- “electrical plant” means any plant, equipment, apparatus and appliances used for the purposes of generating, transmitting and distributing electricity, but not including any electrical fittings ;
- “emoluments” includes any allowances, privileges or benefits, whether obtaining legally or by customary practice ;
- “employed” means employed as an officer and “employment” shall be construed accordingly ;
- “enactment” means a public general Act, a local, private or personal Act, a provisional order confirmed by an Act, and any regulation or order made under any enactment, or any provision contained in any such Act, provisional order, regulation or order, and also includes any deed of transfer whereby statutory powers have been transferred to any authorised undertakers ;
- “financial year,”—

(a) in relation to the North of Scotland Board, means the financial year determined by the Secretary of State under section fifteen of the Act of 1943 ;

(b) in relation to any other Electricity Board, means a period of twelve months ending with a day to be prescribed, so however that the first financial year shall be the period beginning with the passing of this Act and ending with the first occurrence of the prescribed day, and, in case of any alteration of the prescribed day, the duration of the financial year as to which the alteration is first to have effect shall be shortened or extended as may be prescribed, by not more than six months, so as to end on the new prescribed day ; and

(c) in relation to any body to whom Part II of this Act applies, other than a local authority, means the period of twelve months for which the accounts of the body are normally made up ;

“functions” means duties and powers ;

- “generating station” has the same meaning as in the Electricity (Supply) Act, 1919 ;
- “holding company” shall be construed in accordance with the definition contained in the Companies Act, 1947 ;
- “joint board of local authorities” means a joint board constituted under section eight of the Electric Lighting Act, 1909, or by a local enactment ;
- “lease” includes an agreement for a lease and any tenancy agreement ;
- “loan”, in relation to a local authority, means a loan raised by the issue of securities or by a mortgage created under Part IX of the Local Government Act, 1933, or any similar enactment, and a loan advanced by the Public Works Loan Commissioners on the security of a mortgage ;
- “local authority” means the council of a county borough, county district or metropolitan borough, and the Common Council of the City of London, and includes, in section seven of this Act, the council of a county, and also includes in any other provision of this Act except the said section seven any joint board of local authorities having functions as authorised undertakers and also other functions ;
- “local enactment” means any enactment except a public general Act ;
- “main transmission lines” has the same meaning as in the Electricity (Supply) Act, 1919 ;
- “Minister” means the Minister of Fuel and Power ;
- “net revenue”, in relation to any body, means the revenue of that body, after deducting therefrom all charges which are proper to be made to revenue account, including, in particular, proper provision for the redemption of capital and proper provision for depreciation of assets or for renewal of assets, but not including provision for interest on debentures and debenture stock ;
- “North of Scotland Board” means the North of Scotland Hydro-Electric Board constituted under the Act of 1943 ;
- “North of Scotland District” means the area defined in the Second Schedule to the Act of 1943, subject to any order made under Part I of this Act varying that area ;
- “officer” includes a managing director and a director whose functions are substantially those of an employee but not any other director, and also includes a servant ;
- “pension”, in relation to any person, means a pension, whether contributory or not, of any kind whatsoever payable to or in respect of him, and includes a gratuity so payable and a return of contributions to a pension fund, with or without interest thereon or any other addition thereto ;
- “pension fund” means a fund established for the purposes of paying pensions ;
- “pension rights” includes, in relation to any person, all forms of right to or eligibility for the present or future payment of a pension to or in respect of that person, and any expectation of the accruer of a pension to or in respect of that person under any customary practice and includes a right of allocation in respect of the present or future payment of a pension ;
- “pension scheme” includes any form of arrangements for the payment of pensions, whether subsisting by virtue of an Act, trust, contract or otherwise ;
- “power station company” has the meaning assigned to it by section thirteen of this Act ;

"prescribed" means prescribed by regulations;

"railway undertakers" means any body authorised by any enactment to carry goods and passengers by railway;

"regulations" means regulations made by the Minister;

"securities", in relation to a body corporate, means any shares, stock, debentures and debenture stock of the body corporate, and also includes any mortgages of the body which were quoted in the Stock Exchange Official Daily List (within the meaning of section twenty of this Act) on all six of the dates first mentioned in subsection (2) of that section, and "holder of securities", in relation to any body to whom Part II of this Act applies, means, except in the provisions relating to the appointment of the stockholders' representative, a person who, immediately before the vesting date, was the holder of securities of that body, or his successor in title;

"stockholders' representative" has the meaning assigned to it by section twenty-one of this Act;

"subsidiary company" shall be construed in accordance with the definition contained in the Companies Act, 1947;

"vesting date" has the meaning assigned to it by subsection (1) of section fourteen of this Act. [613]

(2) The definitions of "the Act of 1943", "electrical fittings", "the North of Scotland Board" and "the North of Scotland District" shall apply for the purposes of any amendment made by this Act in any other enactment. [614]

(3) References in this Act to any other enactment shall be construed as references to that enactment as amended by or under any other enactment, including this Act. [615]

"Company."—A company within the meaning of the Companies Act, 1929, is a company formed and registered under that Act or a company existing at the time of its commencement (see the Companies Act, 1929, s. 380 (1); 2 Halsbury's Statutes 1006).

"Electric line."—This term is defined by the Electric Lighting Act, 1882, s. 32 (7 Halsbury's Statutes 698), as meaning "a wire or wires, conductor, or other means used for the purpose of conveying, transmitting, or distributing electricity with any casing, coating, covering, tube, pipe, or insulator enclosing, surrounding, or supporting the same, or any part thereof, or any apparatus connected therewith for the purpose of conveying, transmitting or distributing electricity or electric currents."

"Generating station."—This term is defined by the Electricity (Supply) Act, 1919, s. 36 (7 Halsbury's Statutes 776).

"Holding company" and "subsidiary company."—For the definition of these terms, see the Companies Act, 1947 (10 & 11 Geo. 6, c. 47), s. 18.

Public Works Loan Commissioners.—This body was constituted by the Public Works Loans Acts, 1875, s. 4 (12 Halsbury's Statutes 255).

"Main transmission lines."—This term is defined by the Electricity (Supply) Act, 1919, s. 36 (7 Halsbury's Statutes 776) as meaning "all extra high-pressure cables and overhead lines (not being an essential part of an authorised undertaker's distribution system or the distribution system of a railway company or the owners of a dock undertaking) transmitting electricity from a generation station to any other generating station, or to a sub-station, together with any step-up and step-down transformers and switch-gear necessary to, and used for, the control of such cables or overhead lines, and the buildings or such part thereof as may be required to accommodate such transformers and switch-gear."

"Vesting date."—By the Electricity (Vesting Date) Order, 1948, S.I. 1948 No. 217, dated February 6, 1948, the Minister, pursuant to his powers under s. 14, ante, appointed April 1, 1948, to be the vesting date for the purposes of the Act.

68. Application to Scotland. [616]

69. Short title and extent.—(1) This Act may be cited as the Electricity Act, 1947. [617]

(2) This Act shall not extend to Northern Ireland. [618]

THIRD SCHEDULE

ISSUE OF BRITISH ELECTRICITY STOCK IN SATISFACTION OF COMPENSATION

PART I

Provisions applicable to securities with values determined before the vesting date

1. This part of this Schedule shall apply to securities in respect of which compensation is payable under Part II of this Act and the values of which are declared by order of the Minister to have been determined under the said Part II before the vesting date.

2. The holders of any securities to which this Part of this Schedule applies shall, by virtue of this Act, become instead on the vesting date the holders of the amount of British Electricity Stock to which they are entitled, and all securities to which this Part of this Schedule applies shall, by virtue of this Act, be extinguished on the vesting date.

3. The interest on the said stock shall begin to accrue as from the vesting date.

4. The regulations to be made under Part III of this Act by the Minister with the approval of the Treasury for prescribing the terms on which and the provisions in accordance with which British Electricity Stock is to be issued, transferred, dealt with and redeemed, shall include provisions whereby any stock or share certificate or other similar document in force immediately before the vesting date in relation to any securities to which this Part of this Schedule applies shall be treated as applicable to any British Electricity Stock created and issued by way of compensation in respect of those securities until the corresponding document is issued with respect to that stock.

5. Where the holder of any securities becomes, under this Part of this Schedule, instead the holder of British Electricity Stock, he shall hold that stock in the same right and on the same trusts and subject to the same powers, privileges, charges, restraints and liabilities as those in, on or subject to which he held those securities, and any provision of any deed, will, disposition or other instrument, and any statutory provision as to what is to be done by the holder of the securities or the redemption moneys thereof, shall, with any necessary modifications, have effect in relation to the said stock as it would have had effect in relation to the securities if they had not been extinguished :

Provided that—

(a) any beneficial interest of any body to whom Part II of this Act applies in any of the said securities shall be treated as having passed to the Central Authority and the foregoing provisions of this paragraph shall have effect accordingly ;

(b) nothing in this paragraph shall limit the powers of the Minister under Part III of this Act as respects the making, with the approval of the Treasury, of regulations in relation to British Electricity Stock.

6. Nothing in this Part of this Schedule affects the making of any payment or distribution by a stockholders' representative, in accordance with the provisions of Part II of this Act relating to the final payment of dividends and interest, to the holders of securities of any body to whom the said Part II applies. [622]

PART II

Provisions applicable to other securities

1.—(1) The provisions of this Part of this Schedule shall apply to such of the securities in respect of which compensation is payable under Part II of this Act as are not securities to which Part I of this Schedule applies.

(2) In this Part of this Schedule, the expression "the conversion date" means, in relation to any securities, such date as may be specified in relation thereto by order of the Minister, being a date as soon as conveniently may be after the compensation payable in respect of those securities has been determined.

2. During the period beginning with the vesting date and ending immediately before the conversion date, the securities to which this Part of this Schedule applies shall, notwithstanding the dissolution of the bodies to whom Part II of this Act applies, continue to exist and may be transferred, and the Central Authority shall keep the registers or other records of the holders of those securities, but the only rights which shall attach to those securities shall be—

- (a) the right to have instead British Electricity Stock which attaches to the securities by virtue of the next following paragraph; and
- (b) the right to the payment of interest which attaches to the securities under paragraph 5 of this Part of this Schedule; and all other rights attaching to the securities shall, by virtue of this Act, be extinguished on the vesting date.

3. The holders of any securities to which this Part of this Schedule applies shall, by virtue of this Act, become instead on the conversion date the holders of the amount of British Electricity Stock to which they are entitled, and all securities to which this Part of this Schedule applies shall, by virtue of this Act, be extinguished on the conversion date.

4. Interest on the said stock shall begin to accrue as from the vesting date.

5.—(1) The Central Authority shall, on such dates as the Minister may direct, make to the persons who are, at such times as may be specified in the direction, holders of any securities to which this Part of this Schedule applies, payments of interest not exceeding the amount which, in the opinion of the Central Authority, will be found to have accrued on the British Electricity Stock ultimately issued under paragraph 3 of this Part of this Schedule in satisfaction of compensation payable in respect of those securities.

(2) If the amounts paid by the Central Authority under this paragraph in respect of any securities are equal to or greater than the amount of interest which is found to have accrued, for the period beginning with the vesting date and ending immediately before the conversion date, on the British Electricity Stock created and issued as aforesaid in satisfaction of compensation payable in respect of those securities, the interest so found to have accrued shall be treated as discharged.

(3) If the amount paid as aforesaid in respect of any securities is less than the amount found to have accrued as aforesaid on the British Electricity Stock created and issued as aforesaid in satisfaction of compensation payable in respect of those securities, the amount so found to have accrued shall be treated as discharged to the extent of the amount so paid and the balance shall be added to and treated as part of the interest (being interest accruing on and after the conversion date), which first falls to be paid after the conversion date on that stock.

(4) Any amount payable under sub-paragraph (1) of this paragraph which has not been paid by reason that it has not been possible to discover the person entitled thereto or that the title thereto has not been established or that a cheque or warrant issued for the purpose of making payment thereof has not been encashed shall, for the purposes of sub-paragraphs (2) and (3) of this paragraph (but not for any other purposes) be treated as paid.

6. Paragraphs 4, 5 and 6 of Part I of this Schedule shall apply for the purpose of this Schedule as if—

- (a) any reference therein to that Part of this Schedule were a reference to this Part of this Schedule; and
- (b) the reference in the said paragraph 4 to the vesting date were a reference to the conversion date. [623]

Bank Plan.—The scheme of this Schedule, known as the Bank Plan, was explained by the Financial Secretary to the Treasury in Standing Committee of the House of Commons in these terms:

"The transfer, the registration and the issue of new stock will place a very considerable strain on the Bank of England staff and it may take some time to accomplish. In order to assist all concerned, particularly stockholders, it has been arranged . . . that the stock in the hands of holders will be notionally considered to be the new British Electricity Authority Stock at the value at which the stock is going to be given on the vesting date, and that will mean that holders who desire to sell their stock can sell it freely. The certificate will pass, and, as it comes into the name of the new holder, the new British Electricity Authority Stock will be issued. I hesitate to prophesy how long the plan and the full work of transferring the new stock will take, but quite obviously it may take twelve months or even eighteen months. This is a device to assist the individuals so that they will be able, if they are so minded, to buy and sell this stock, notwithstanding the fact that at the moment when they are selling it or buying it the new stock has not been issued to them" (see H. of C. Official Report, S.C.E., April 2, 1947, col. 558).

Securities.—For definition of this term, see s. 67 (1), ante.

Vesting date.—Such date on or after April 1, 1948, not being less than six months after the establishment of the British Electricity Authority nor less than three months after the establishment of all the Area Boards and the definition by order of their areas, as the Minister of Fuel and Power may by order appoint. April 1, 1948, has been so appointed (ss. 14 (1) and 67 (1), ante, and see the notes thereto).

British Electricity Stock.—See s. 20 (1), ante.

Stockholders' representative.—See s. 21, ante.

FOURTH SCHEDULE

ADAPTATIONS AND MODIFICATIONS OF ENACTMENTS

PART I

ENACTMENTS OTHER THAN THE ELECTRIC LIGHTING (CLAUSES) ACT, 1899, AND THE HYDRO-ELECTRIC DEVELOPMENT (SCOTLAND) ACT, 1943

General Adaptations

Subject to any specific adaptation or modification made by this Schedule, references in any of the provisions of the Electricity (Supply) Acts, 1882 to 1936, or any other enactment (except the Electric Lighting (Clauses) Act, 1899, the Act of 1943, or any local enactment)—

- (a) to any body or person authorised by any enactment or licence to supply electricity in any area (whatever expression may be used to describe such a body or person);
- (b) to the undertaking of any such body or person; and
- (c) to any enactment or licence authorising such supply (whatever expression may be used);

shall be construed as referring only to an Electricity Board, to the business carried on by any such Board, and to any local enactment applicable to any such Board, respectively.

References in any of the provisions of the Electricity (Supply) Acts, 1882 to 1936, to those Acts, and any reference therein to one or more of those Acts, being a reference which, by virtue of the construction of those Acts as one, is to be construed as a reference to all the said Acts, shall be construed as including a reference to this Act and, as regards the North of Scotland Board, to the Act of 1943.

In their application to the North of Scotland District, the Electricity (Supply) Acts, 1882 to 1936, shall have effect with the additional modification that there shall be substituted (except in section four of the Electric Lighting Act, 1888, sections one to four, twenty-nine and thirty-nine of the Electricity (Supply) Act, 1919, and the Electricity Supply (Meters) Act, 1936) for references to the Minister or the Electricity Commissioners, references to the Secretary of State.

ELECTRICITY (CENTRAL AUTHORITY AND AREA BOARDS) REGULATIONS, 1947

August 14, 1947

The Minister of Fuel and Power (in these Regulations referred to as "the Minister") in exercise of the power conferred on him by section three of the Electricity Act, 1947 (in these Regulations referred to as "the Act"), and of all other powers enabling him in that behalf, hereby makes the following Regulations :—

1.—(1) Subject to the provisions of the Act and of these Regulations, the appointment of a member :—

- (a) of the Central Authority, being a member appointed by the Minister in pursuance of paragraph (a) of subsection (2) of section three of the Act ; and
- (b) of an Area Board, being a member appointed by the Minister in pursuance of paragraph (a) of subsection (3) of that section ; shall be for such term not exceeding five years as may be determined by the Minister before the appointment of such member, and upon such conditions as may be determined by the Minister, with the approval of the Treasury, either before the appointment of such member or, with his consent, at any time thereafter.

(2) A member of the Central Authority or of an Area Board appointed as aforesaid shall be eligible for reappointment.

(3) Subject to the provisions of the Act and of these Regulations, the appointment of a member of the Central Authority being a member appointed by the Minister in pursuance of paragraph (b) of subsection (2) of the said section three shall be for such term not exceeding three years as may be determined by the Minister before the appointment of such member. [628]

2.—(1) Every such member of the Central Authority or of an Area Board as is mentioned in the preceding Regulation shall forthwith disclose to the Minister full particulars of :—

- (a) any interest or securities in any undertaking carrying on a business similar to that at any time carried on by that Authority or Board which he, whether in his own name or in the name of a nominee, for his own benefit holds or acquires or to which he is or becomes entitled for his own benefit under any will or succession ;
- (b) any trade or business in which he is or becomes engaged ;
- (c) any appointment by virtue of which he is or becomes a director or officer of any body corporate or an officer or servant of any organisation of workpeople.

(2) Any such member as aforesaid shall at any time, if so required by the Minister, sell or dispose of any interest or securities disclosed by him in pursuance of sub-paragraph (a) of the preceding paragraph to such extent and within such period as the Minister may direct.

(3) In this Regulation the expression “ securities ” includes shares, stock, debentures and debenture stock. [629]

3.—(1) Every member of the Central Authority or of an Area Board who is in any way, whether directly or indirectly, interested in any contract made or proposed to be made by that Authority or Board shall disclose the nature of his interest at a meeting of that Authority or Board, and the disclosure shall be forthwith recorded in the minutes of that Authority or Board ; and such member shall not take part in any deliberation or decision of that Authority or Board with respect to that contract.

(2) A general notice given by a member of the Central Authority or of an Area Board to the effect that he is a member of a specified company or firm, and is to be regarded as interested in any contract which may, after the date of the notice, be made with that company or firm shall, for the purposes of the preceding paragraph, be deemed to be a sufficient disclosure of the nature of his interest in relation to any contract made or proposed to be made as therein mentioned. [630]

4.—(1) If such a member of the Central Authority or of an Area Board as is mentioned in Regulation one of these Regulations :—

- (a) is absent from meetings of the Authority or Board for more than six months consecutively except for some reason approved by the Minister ;
- (b) becomes in the opinion of the Minister unfit to continue in office or incapable of performing his duties ;
- (c) at any time, after being notified of the Minister's disapproval thereof, either is engaged in any trade or business or holds any such appointment as is mentioned in sub-paragraph (c) of paragraph (1) of Regulation two of these Regulations ;

the Minister may declare the office of that member to be vacant and shall notify the fact in such manner as the Minister thinks fit ; and thereupon that office shall become vacant.

(2) Any such member as is mentioned in the said Regulation one, may resign his office by not less than three months' notice in writing under his hand given to the Minister.

(3) Any member of the Central Authority who is a member appointed by the Minister in pursuance of paragraph (b) of subsection (2) of section three of the Act shall, on ceasing to hold the office of chairman of the Area Board which he held at the time when he was so appointed, cease to be a member of that Authority. [631]

5.—(1) No meeting of the Central Authority shall be held unless the chairman or one of the deputy chairmen is present unless none of them is available and one of them approves in writing of such a meeting being held ; and at any meeting of that Authority six shall be a quorum.

(2) No meeting of an Area Board shall be held unless the chairman or deputy chairman is present unless neither of them is available and either of them approves in writing of such a meeting being held ; and at any meeting of such a Board four shall be a quorum. [632]

6. The Central Authority and any Area Board shall have the power to act notwithstanding a vacancy among the members thereof. [633]

7. Every determination of the Central Authority or of an Area Board at any meeting of the Authority or Board shall be taken by the votes of the members of that Authority or Board present and voting or, in the case of difference between them, of the majority of such members ; if the votes of such members are equally divided, the person acting as chairman of the meeting shall have a second or casting vote. [634]

8. Minutes shall be kept of the proceedings of the Central Authority and of Area Boards, and any such minutes shall, if signed by a person purporting to have acted as chairman of the meeting to which the minutes relate, or of a meeting at which they were read, be evidence of those proceedings ; and a meeting to which any such minutes relate shall, unless the contrary is proved, be deemed to have been regularly convened and constituted. [635]

9. All acts done at any meeting of the Central Authority or of an Area Board shall, notwithstanding that it was afterwards discovered that there was some defect in the appointment of a person purporting to be a member of that Authority or Board, be as valid as if that defect had not existed. [636]

10. The seal of the Central Authority or of an Area Board shall be authenticated by the signature of the chairman of that Authority or Board, as the case may be, or of some other member of the said Authority or Board authorised by that Authority or Board to act in that behalf, and of the secretary or some other person authorised by the said Authority or Board so to act. [637]

11. Any instrument or contract which, if executed or entered into by a person not being a body corporate, would not require to be under seal, may be executed or entered into on behalf of the Central Authority or of an Area Board by any member, officer or servant of that Authority or Board, as the case may be, generally or specially authorised by resolution of that Authority or Board in that behalf. [638]

12. Every document purporting to be an instrument executed or issued by the Central Authority or by an Area Board, and to be sealed with the seal of that Authority or Board, authenticated in the manner provided by Regulation ten of these Regulations, or to be signed by any member, officer or servant of that Authority or Board, as the case may be, authorised by that Authority or Board to act in that behalf, shall be received in evidence and be deemed to be so executed or issued without further proof, unless the contrary is shown. [639]

13. The Interpretation Act, 1889, shall apply to the interpretation of these Regulations as it applies to the interpretation of an Act of Parliament. [640]

14. These Regulations may be cited as the Electricity (Central Authority and Area Boards) Regulations, 1947. [641]

ELECTRICITY (INFORMATION) REGULATIONS, 1947

September 24, 1947

The Minister of Fuel and Power (in these Regulations referred to as "the Minister") in exercise of the powers conferred on him by sections thirty-five and forty-eight of the Electricity Act, 1947 (in these Regulations referred to as "the Act"), and of all other powers enabling him in that behalf, hereby makes the following Regulations :—

1. Every body which is or may be a body to whom Part II of the Act applies, and every person who is or may be a person to whom section forty-eight of the Act applies, shall furnish to the Minister, on being required so to do, all such information as the Minister may reasonably require for any purpose mentioned in relation to the Minister in section thirty-five or forty-eight, as the case may be, of the Act, and shall verify any information furnished in such manner, and at or within such time and at such place, as the Minister may reasonably require. [642]

2. Every such body or person as aforesaid shall :—

- (a) produce to the Minister such books of account, records and documents, at or within such time and at such place, as the Minister may reasonably require for any such purpose as aforesaid ;
- (b) supply to the Minister such copies of and extracts from any such books, records and documents, and at or within such time and at such place, as the Minister may reasonably require for any such purpose as aforesaid ;
- (c) provide such facilities for the examination of any such books, records and documents, and the taking of copies thereof and extracts therefrom, and for the verification of any information furnished as aforesaid, as the Minister may reasonably require. [643]

3. The provisions of the preceding Regulations shall have effect in relation to any Electricity Board with the substitution for references to the Minister of references to the Electricity Board concerned. [644]

4.—(1) The expenses reasonably incurred by any such body or person as aforesaid in complying with any requirement made by the Minister or by an Electricity Board under the provisions of the preceding Regulations shall be paid by the Minister or the Board concerned.

(2) The High Court shall have power, on the application of a person aggrieved by a denial on the part of the Minister or of any Electricity Board to pay any such expenses as aforesaid, to give such directions as to the matter in question as appear to the Court to be just. [645]

5. Any person who—

- (a) wilfully obstructs any person in the exercise of any facilities provided under paragraph (c) of Regulation two of these Regulations shall be guilty of an offence against that Regulation ;
- (b) on being duly required in writing by virtue of Regulation one or two of these Regulations to furnish any information, or to produce any book, record or document, or to supply copies of or extracts therefrom, or to provide such facilities as are mentioned in paragraph (c) of the said Regulation two, makes default without reasonable cause or excuse in complying with the requirements shall be guilty of an offence against the said Regulation one or two, as the case may be ;

and a person guilty of any of those offences shall be liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding one hundred pounds and, if the offence in respect of which a person is convicted is continued after the conviction, such person shall be guilty of a further offence and liable in respect thereof on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding five pounds for each day on which the offence is so continued. [646]

6. The Interpretation Act, 1889, shall apply to the interpretation of these Regulations as it applies to the interpretation of an Act of Parliament. [647]

7.—(1) The provisions of this Regulation shall have effect for the purpose of the application of these Regulations to Scotland.

(2) For the reference to the High Court in paragraph (2) of Regulation four of these Regulations there shall be substituted a reference to the Court of Session. [648]

8. These Regulations shall come into force on the sixth day of October, 1947, and may be cited as the Electricity (Information) Regulations, 1947. [649]

EXPLANATORY NOTE

(This Note is not part of these Regulations, but is intended to indicate their general purport.)

These Regulations provide for the production or supply to the Minister or an Electricity Board by the various classes of electricity undertakings and persons to which Part II of the Act and section 48 applies or may apply of any books of account, records or extracts therefrom or such other information as they may reasonably require for purposes in connection with the Act; they also make provision for payment of expenses in connection with the Act; they also make provision for payment of expenses reasonably incurred in connection therewith.

CASES

O., a consumer of electricity supplied by the defendant company, paid in advance for his supply by means of coins inserted in a pre-payment meter. On March 8, 1944, a collector employed by the company called at O.'s house, inspected the meter, took out the coins, and entered in the "amount due and collected" column of his pre-payment collection sheet the sum of £2 7s. 11d., which was the balance due to the company after deducting rebate and a small amount put back into the meter. In the final column of his pre-payment collection sheet the collector wrote his initials. A carbon copy of the various entries made on the sheet appeared on a pre-payment meter card which was enclosed in an envelope and left on O.'s premises, the envelope stating on its face that the card was the property of the company. In a suit to recover a fine under the Stamp Act, 1891, s. 103 (1), for giving a receipt liable to duty and not duly stamped:—

Held: the phrase "gives a receipt" in s. 103 of the Stamp Act, 1891, must bear its ordinary prima facie meaning—viz., that the receipt is given in such a way that it can be retained by the recipient and will be available to him at any time as evidence of the payment which he has made, and the entry in the column "amount due and collected" in the circumstances in which O. had the pre-payment meter card in his possession was not a receipt given to him within the meaning of the subsection.

Qu.: whether a receipt given subject to a condition that it shall be returned to the giver of the receipt at the expiration of some period, or on some other condition, can ever be a receipt which is "given" within the meaning of the Stamp Act, 1891.

EVACUATED AREAS (TERMINATION) ORDER, 1947

January 20, 1947

Whereas in pursuance of Regulation 3 of the Defence (Evacuated Areas) Regulations, 1940, the Minister of Home Security, on the dates specified in the first column of the Schedule to this Order, made Declarations that the areas described in the second column of the said Schedule should be evacuation areas for the purpose of the said Regulations :

And whereas it is expedient to appoint a day for the ending of the evacuation period for the purposes of the said Regulations (which give certain relief in respect of rent, rates and other local debts) in relation to each of the areas so declared to be evacuation areas :

Now, therefore, in pursuance of the powers conferred on me by Regulation 2 of the Defence (Evacuated Areas) Regulations, 1940, as having effect by virtue of the Emergency Laws (Transitional Provisions) Act, 1946, I [the Secretary of State] hereby order as follows :—

1. The thirty-first day of March, 1947, shall be the day on which the evacuation period, for the purposes of the said Regulations, shall end in relation to each of the areas which were by the aforesaid Declarations declared to be evacuation areas. [651]

2. This Order may be cited as the Evacuated Areas (Termination) Order, 1947. [652]

Circular 42/47

To:—

*Billeting Authorities for action,
All other Local Authorities for information.*

MINISTRY OF HEALTH,
WHITEHALL,
LONDON, S.W.1.
5th March, 1947.

SIR,

GOVERNMENT EVACUATION SCHEME

I. Disbandment of Billeting Organisation of Local Authorities

1. I am directed by the Minister of Health to say that, in view of the winding up of the Government Evacuation Scheme, it appears to him that the time has come to bring to an end the war-time billeting organisations of Local Authorities.

2. In the majority of reception areas there are now few evacuees remaining and the billeting work arising from their continued presence in any one area should in future constitute so small a burden on the staff of the Local Authority concerned that they will doubtless be willing to nominate one of their officers to undertake it as a minor part of his normal functions. The Minister, has, therefore, decided that all present charges in respect of Local Authorities' billeting organisations shall cease to be borne by the Exchequer on 31st March, 1947. He regrets that it has not been possible to notify Authorities earlier of this decision, and if it should involve the termination of the services of any officer and the necessary period of notice extends beyond 31st March, reimbursement will be made of salary or wages up to the date on which the notice expires.

3. If in any area the number of persons remaining billeted is still so considerable as to involve a substantial amount of billeting work, the Minister will be prepared, on application to this Office, to consider some temporary special arrangement.

4. The Minister is aware that in addition to finding billets for persons evacuated under the Government Evacuation Scheme, much valuable work has been done by Authorities, through their billeting organisations, in securing accommodation for transferred workers. The Ministry of Labour and National Service will be taking steps to assist in providing accommodation for industrial workers (but not wives or families) transferred through their machinery, or with their approval, to work to which priority is given under current Government policy, and it is hoped that Authorities will find it possible to co-operate with the local officers of the Ministry of Labour and National Service by nominating one of their staff to deal with general enquiries regarding available accommodation and to give such other assistance as he can. Authorities will recognise the desirability of their continuing, as part of their normal duties, to keep lodging lists with a view to helping employers of labour to find accommodation for additional workers the employers may themselves attract to the area.

5. The provisions of Circular 2443 dated 31st July, 1941, relating to compensation to householders for damage attributable to transferred workers will cease to apply in respect of damage arising after 31st March, 1947; thereafter householders should look to the transferred workers direct for such compensation.

II. Disposal of Billeting Notice Counterfoils

6. Counterfoils of billeting notices which expired on or before 31st March, 1945, can now be disposed of as waste provided that they do not form an integral part of the Authority's records and that the audit of the accounts has been completed and the accounts certified by the District Auditor.

III. Disposal of Post Office Receipts for Billeting Payments

7. Post Office receipts relating to the three years ended 31st March, 1945, may now be disposed of as waste as soon as the audit of the Council's accounts for those years has been completed and the accounts certified by the District Auditor.

8. The Minister desires me to express to Local Authorities, and to the members of their billeting organisations, his grateful appreciation of their services, which contributed so materially to the successful carrying out of Government policy with regard to evacuation and the transfer of Civil Servants and other workers.

I am, Sir, etc.

* * * * *

The Clerk to the Authority.

STATUTES

COUNTY COUNCILS ASSOCIATION EXPENSES (AMENDMENT) ACT, 1947

PRELIMINARY NOTE

This short Act, which came into force when it received the Royal Assent on March 11, 1947, raises the maximum annual subscription which county councils in England and Wales may pay to the County Councils Association, and enables future alterations to be effected by Order in Council.

County councils in England and Wales were empowered to make annual payments to the Association as general expenses out of county funds by the County Councils Association Expenses Act, 1890 (10 Halsbury's Statutes 772) subject to a yearly maximum of £31 10s. 0d., which has twice been increased by amending Acts, first to £42 in 1920 and later to £157 10s. 0d. in 1937 (County Councils Association Expenses (Amendment) Acts, 1920 and 1937 ; 10 Halsbury's Statutes 859 and 30 Halsbury's Statutes 383).

The functions of county councils have been greatly increased as a result of recent legislation, e.g., the Education Act, 1944 (37 Halsbury's Statutes 123), and the Police Act, 1946 (39 Halsbury's Statutes 616), and the volume of work falling on the County Councils Association has correspondingly grown, with the result that their income from subscriptions has become inadequate to meet present needs. The present Act therefore increases the maximum subscription to £262 10s. 0d., the sum agreed by the Government with the Association. The Parliamentary Secretary to the Ministry of Health, in moving the Second Reading of the Bill, stated that this sum would result in a total income to the Association of about £8500, equivalent over the whole of the county to an extra county council rate of one-seventieth of a penny (432 H. of C. Official Report 2125).

In addition, in order to obviate any need for further legislation on the subject, the Act enables future alterations in the maximum subscription to be effected by Order in Council. [655]

An Act to alter the maximum annual subscription which county councils may pay to the County Councils Association. [656] [11th March, 1947.]

1. Maximum annual subscription.—(1) Section one of the County Councils Association Expenses Act, 1890, which, as amended by the County Councils Association Expenses (Amendment) Act, 1937, empowers the council of an administrative county to pay any sum not exceeding one hundred and fifty-seven pounds and ten shillings in any one year as a subscription to the funds of the County Councils Association, shall have effect as if the sum of two hundred and sixty-two pounds and ten shillings were therein substituted for the sum of one hundred and fifty-seven pounds and ten shillings. [657]

(2) His Majesty may by Order in Council substitute for the said sum of two hundred and sixty-two pounds and ten shillings such other sum as to His Majesty may seem proper. [658]

(3) A copy of any such Order in Council as aforesaid shall be laid before each House of Parliament after it has been made, and if either House, within the period of forty days beginning with the day on which a copy of the Order is laid before it, resolves that an Address be presented to His Majesty praying that the Order be revoked, no further action shall be taken thereunder after the date of the resolution, and His Majesty may by Order in Council revoke the Order; but the resolution and revocation shall be without prejudice to anything previously done under the Order or to the making of a new Order.

In reckoning the said period of forty days, no account shall be taken of any period during which Parliament is dissolved or prorogued or during which both Houses are adjourned for more than four days. [659]

(4) Section one of the Rules Publication Act, 1893, shall not apply to an Order in Council made under this Act. [660]

(5) Any such Order in Council as aforesaid may be varied or revoked by subsequent Order in Council made in like manner. [661]

County Councils Association Expenses Act, 1890.—10 Halsbury's Statutes 772. Note that the provision of this Act allowing payment of reasonable expenses of the attendance of not more than four representatives at meetings of the Association is unaffected.

County Councils Association Expenses (Amendment) Act, 1937.—30 Halsbury's Statutes 383. The County Councils Association Expenses (Amendment) Act, 1920 (10 Halsbury's Statutes 859), was repealed by this Act.

Order in Council.—No Order in Council had been made under this section up to the date of going to press. Note that the maximum could be reduced as well as increased by Order in Council under sub-s. (2), supra.

Effect of Statutory Instruments Act, 1946.—This Act came into full operation on January 1, 1948 (see S.I. 1948 No. 3).

Documents made after its commencement and in exercise of certain statutory powers conferred by Acts passed before its commencement are "statutory instruments" regulated by the Act (Statutory Instruments Act, 1946, s. 1 (2); 39 Halsbury's Statutes 784). The class of documents to which the Act applies is defined in a manner depending on the meaning of "statutory rules" in the Rules Publication Act, 1893 (18 Halsbury's Statutes 1018), and includes Orders in Council.

Rules Publication Act, 1893, s. 1.—18 Halsbury's Statutes 1016.

2. Citation and extent.—(1) This Act may be cited as the County Councils Association Expenses (Amendment) Act, 1947; and the County Councils Association Expenses Acts, 1890 and 1937, and this Act may be cited together as the County Councils Association Expenses Acts, 1890 to 1947. [662]

(2) This Act shall not extend to Scotland or Northern Ireland. [663]

County Councils Association Expenses Acts, 1890 to 1937.—The County Councils Association Expenses Act, 1890 (10 Halsbury's Statutes 772), and the County Councils Association Expenses (Amendment) Act, 1937 (30 Halsbury's Statutes 383).

ORDERS, CIRCULARS AND MEMORANDA

LOCAL AUTHORITIES STOCK (SINKING FUNDS, AMENDMENT OF RATE OF ACCUMULATIONS) ORDER, 1947

S. R. & O., 1947, No. 431

March 10, 1947

Whereas by virtue of paragraph (a) of Article 7 (1) of the Local Authorities (Stock) Regulations, 1934, the Minister of Health is empowered to determine from time to time the rate of accumulations which, together with certain equal annual sums, are to be carried to Stock (Sinking Fund) Accounts.

And whereas by various consent orders made under the said Regulations the Minister of Health consented to the determination by local authorities that the amounts to be carried to Stock (Sinking Fund) Accounts should be certain equal annual sums with accumulations at rates exceeding two and a half per centum per annum.

And whereas it is expedient that in all cases the said rates of accumulations should be reduced to two and a half per centum per annum.

Now therefore the Minister of Health in pursuance of the powers conferred on him by paragraph (a) of Article 7 (1) of the said Regulations hereby orders as follows :—

1. This order may be cited as the Local Authorities Stock (Sinking Funds, Amendment of Rate of Accumulations) Order, 1947, and shall come into operation on the date hereof. [664]

2. The Minister of Health hereby determines that the rate of accumulations for the purpose of paragraph (a) of Article 7 (1) of the said Regulations shall be two and a half per centum per annum. [665]

LOCAL GOVERNMENT (SINKING FUNDS, RATE OF ACCUMULATION) REGULATIONS, 1947

March 10, 1947

Whereas by the Local Government (Sinking Funds, Rate of Accumulation) Regulations, 1934, the Minister of Health prescribed the rate of accumulation to certain sinking funds authorised by section 213 of the Local Government Act, 1933, as three per centum per annum.

And whereas it is expedient that the said rate of accumulation should be varied :

Now therefore the Minister of Health in pursuance of the powers conferred on him by the said section 213 hereby makes the following regulations :—

1. These regulations may be cited as the Local Government (Sinking Funds, Rate of Accumulation) Regulations, 1947, and shall come into operation on the date hereof. [666]

2. The Local Government (Sinking Funds, Rate of Accumulation) Regulations, 1934, are hereby revoked. [667]

3. The prescribed rate of accumulation for the purpose of the said section 213 shall be two and one-half per centum per annum. [668]

* * * *

PRIVATE IMPROVEMENT EXPENSES (RATE OF INTEREST) AMENDMENT ORDER, 1947

March 10, 1947

Whereas by the Ministry of Health (Rate of Interest on Private Improvement Expenses) Order, 1934, the Minister of Health fixed the rate of interest on expenses recoverable by a local authority or a county council under the enactments mentioned in section 77 of the Public Health Act, 1925, at four per centum instead of the rate of five per centum prescribed by that section.

And whereas it is expedient that the said rate of interest should be varied :

Now therefore the Minister of Health in pursuance of the powers conferred on him by the said section 77 hereby orders as follows :—

1. This order may be cited as the Private Improvement Expenses (Rate of Interest) Amendment Order, 1947, and shall come into operation on the date hereof. [669]

2. Subject to the provisions of this order the rate of interest on expenses recoverable by a local authority or a county council under the enactments mentioned in section 77 of the Public Health Act, 1925 (which relate to private improvement rates and expenses recoverable from owners of premises under section 213 or section 257 of the Public Health Act, 1875, and to private street works expenses charged on premises or recoverable from owners under section 13 or section 14 of the Private Street Works Act, 1892, or under any local Act provision), shall be two and one-half per centum per annum. [670]

3. This order shall not apply to—

- (i) any expenses which, or any part or instalment of which, became recoverable by the local authority or county council before the date of the commencement of this order ; and
- (ii) any expenses in respect of which, or any part of which, a private improvement rate has been made and levied before the date of the commencement of this order. [671]

4. Any order under section 77 of the Public Health Act, 1925, which is in force at the commencement of this order shall cease to have effect as respects any expenses to which this order relates but as regards other expenses shall, notwithstanding any limit of time prescribed by the order, remain in force until the Minister by order otherwise directs. [672]

* * * *

PUBLIC HEALTH (RATE OF INTEREST) ORDER, 1947

March 10, 1947

The Minister of Health in pursuance of the powers conferred upon him by subsection (3) of section 291 of the Public Health Act, 1936, hereby orders as follows :—

1. This order may be cited as the Public Health (Rate of Interest) Order, 1947, and shall come into operation on the date hereof. [673]

2. Subject to the provisions of this order the maximum rate of interest for the purposes of the said section 291 (which makes certain expenses a charge on premises and empowers local authorities to order payment by instalments) shall be two and one-half per centum per annum. [674]

3. This order shall not apply to any expenses in respect of which the local authority has determined a rate of interest before the date of the commencement of this order. [675]

HOUSING (RATE OF INTEREST) AMENDMENT ORDER, 1947S. R. & O., 1947, No. 445March 10, 1947*

The Minister of Health, in pursuance of the powers conferred on him by subsections (3) and (5) of section 10 of the Housing Act, 1936, and of all other powers enabling him in that behalf, with the approval of the Treasury, hereby orders as follows :—

1. This order may be cited as the Housing (Rate of Interest) Amendment Order, 1947. [676]

2. The rate of interest on expenses incurred by a local authority under section 10 of the Housing Act, 1936 (which empowers local authorities to carry out works necessary to render a house fit for human habitation and to recover the cost of such works), and—

(a) demanded after the date of this order, or

(b) declared after the date of this order, by order of the local authority made under subsection (5) of the said section, to be payable by instalments, shall be at the rate of two and a half per centum per annum instead of at the rate of four and a half per centum per annum as fixed by the Housing (Rate of Interest) Amendment Order, 1939. [677]

* * * * *

ORDER IN COUNCIL AMENDING REGULATION 6 OF THE DEFENCE (FINANCE) REGULATIONS, 1939S. R. & O., 1947, No. 944May 21, 1947*

His Majesty, in pursuance of section three of the Supplies and Services (Transitional Powers) Act, 1945, and of all other powers enabling Him in that behalf, is pleased, by and with the advice of His Privy Council, to order, and it is hereby ordered, as follows :—

1.—(1) Regulation six of the Defence (Finance) Regulations, 1939 (which provides for controlling capital issues, public offers for sale of securities, and renewal, or postponement of the date of maturity, of securities), shall cease to have effect in its application to England and Scotland, except as regards the making therein of a public offer for sale of securities of a body corporate incorporated under the law of either of those countries.

(2) The said Regulation in its application to Northern Ireland is hereby revoked. [678]

2.—(1) In accordance with the provisions of the preceding Article the following paragraphs shall be substituted for paragraphs (1) and (2) of the said Regulation six, that is to say—

“ (1) Subject to such exemptions as may be granted by order of the Treasury, it shall not be lawful, except with the consent of the Treasury, to make, in England or Scotland, any public offer for sale of securities of a body corporate incorporated under the law of either of those countries.

(1A) Subject to such exemptions as may be granted by order of the Governor, it shall not be lawful, except with the consent of the Governor, to make an issue of capital in the Isle of Man, to make, in the Isle of Man, any public offer of securities for sale, or to renew, or postpone the date of maturity of, any security maturing for repayment in the Isle of Man.

(2) Subject to such exemptions as may be granted by order of the Treasury, it shall not be lawful to issue in England or Scotland any prospectus or other document publicly offering for sale any such securities as are mentioned in paragraph (1) of this Regulation, unless it includes a statement that the consent of the Treasury has been obtained to the offer of the securities.

(2A) Subject to such exemptions as may be granted by order of the Governor, it shall not be lawful to issue in the Isle of Man any prospectus or other document offering for subscription, or publicly offering for sale, any securities unless it includes a statement that the consent of the Governor has been obtained to the issue or offer of the securities."

(2) Nothing in this Order shall affect any order made, consent given or other thing done under or for the purposes of the said Regulation six in its application to the Isle of Man, but any such order, consent or thing shall, if in force at the date of the making of this Order, continue in force and shall, so far as it could have been made, given or done under this Order, have effect as if made, given or done under the corresponding provision of this Order. [679]

3. The Capital Issues Exemptions Orders of 1941, 1942, 1944 and 1945, are hereby revoked. [680]

4. This Order, in its application to the Isle of Man, shall be construed as one with the Supplies and Services (Transitional Powers) (Isle of Man) Order in Council, 1946. [681]

5. This Order shall come into operation on the sixteenth day of June, 1947. [682]

* * * *

EXPLANATORY NOTE

Regulation 6 of the Defence (Finance) Regulations, 1939, made provision for the control of capital issues, public offers for sale of securities, renewals of securities and postponement of the maturity date of securities in the U.K. and the Isle of Man. The present Order revokes those provisions except in so far as they relate to the Isle of Man and to the making in England or Scotland of public offers for sale of securities of a body corporate incorporated under the law of those two countries.

So far as Northern Ireland is concerned, the Regulation is revoked completely, as the control of capital issues in Northern Ireland is now dealt with by legislation of the Northern Ireland Parliament. The revoked parts of Regulation 6, so far as they relate to England and Scotland, are being replaced by an Order under Section 1 of the Borrowing (Control and Guarantees) Act, 1946.

CONTROL OF BORROWING ORDER, 1947

S. R. & O., 1947, No. 945

May 21, 1947

The Treasury in the exercise of the powers conferred upon them by section one of the Borrowing (Control and Guarantees) Act, 1946, hereby make the following Order :—

PART I

GENERAL EXTENT OF CONTROL

Borrowing in Great Britain

1.—(1) Subject to the exemptions contained in Part II of this Order, a person shall not, without the consent of the Treasury, borrow money in Great Britain where the aggregate of the amount of money borrowed and of any other amounts borrowed in Great Britain by that person in the previous twelve months (including any period before the coming into force of this Order) exceeds ten thousand pounds.

(2) This Article shall not apply to—

- (a) borrowing by any person, other than a local authority, if the borrowing is in the ordinary course of his business and is from a person carrying on a banking undertaking ;
- (b) borrowing by any person, other than a local authority, where the money borrowed is repayable on demand or not more than six months after demand and the loan is wholly unsecured or is secured only by a bill of exchange payable on demand or at a fixed period not exceeding six months after the date of the borrowing or after sight or by a promissory note payable not more than six months after the date of the borrowing ;
- (c) borrowing by a local authority for the sole purpose of defraying expenditure (including the payment of sums due by them to meet the expenses of other authorities) pending the receipt of revenues receivable by them in respect of the period of account in which that expenditure is chargeable, so long as—
  - (i) the expenditure is not capital expenditure ; and
  - (ii) the money is repayable not later than one month after the termination of that period of account ; and
  - (iii) the amount outstanding at any one time does not exceed one half of the total revenues received or receivable in respect of that period of account ;
- (d) acceptance by a person carrying on a banking undertaking or a member of the London Discount Houses Committee of moneys to be placed to the credit of a current or deposit account, whether or not any security is given ;
- (e) borrowing by the personal representative of a deceased person in his capacity as such for the purpose of paying death duties payable by reason of the death of the deceased ; and
- (f) borrowing from a department of His Majesty's Government in the United Kingdom.

For the purposes of this paragraph a loan in respect of which a guarantee is given is not an unsecured loan. [683]

Postponement of repayment of principal moneys and of payment of price of certain property to be treated as borrowing

2.—(1) In this Order references to the borrowing of money include :—

- (a) references to the making of any arrangement by which any money borrowed or any money due under a security (other than money representing interest or dividends), which would otherwise be payable at any date, is payable at a later date except where the money is payable by instalments and the arrangement is for the postponement of the payment of any instalment, other than the last instalment, to a date not later than that fixed for the payment of the last instalment ; and

(b) references to the making of any arrangement by which the price of any property except—

(i) the price of goods sold by a person in the ordinary course of his business, and

(ii) the price of any undertaking under a sale thereof to a private company, is allowed to remain unpaid for a fixed period or indefinitely but charged on the property, but do not include references to the making of any other arrangement by which a sum which would otherwise be payable at any date is payable at a later date ; and references to loans shall be construed accordingly.

(2) An arrangement to give any guarantee or to mortgage or charge any property to secure the payment of any sum which is already due when the arrangement is made or is payable not later than six months after the arrangement is made shall be deemed for the purposes of this Article to be an arrangement by which that sum is payable at a date later than it would otherwise be payable.

(3) A sum which, at the time of, or by virtue of, the making of any arrangement is payable on demand or on the expiration of a fixed period after demand shall be deemed for the purposes of this Article to be payable at the time of the making of the arrangement, or as the case may be, on the expiration of the fixed period after the making of the arrangement, notwithstanding that no demand has been made. [684]

Raising money by issue of shares

3.—(1) Subject to the exemptions contained in Part II of this Order, a body corporate shall not, without the consent of the Treasury, raise money in Great Britain by the issue, whether in Great Britain or elsewhere, of any shares in that body corporate.

(2) This Article shall not apply to money raised by the issue of shares to the subscribers of a memorandum of association where the total consideration for the issue of all those shares issued to the said subscribers does not exceed five hundred pounds.

(3) This Article shall not apply to money raised by the issue by a private company of shares to the vendors or the nominees of the vendors of any undertaking sold to the company if

(a) the shares are all fully paid ; and

(b) the money raised is cash forming part of the assets of the undertaking or cash which has been paid to the vendors as, or as part of, the purchase price of the undertaking. [685]

Issues of partly paid shares and other issues of securities

4.—(1) Subject to the exemptions contained in Part II of this Order, a body corporate shall not, without the consent of the Treasury, issue partly paid shares, if either the body corporate is incorporated under the law of England or Scotland or the shares are or are to be registered in England or Scotland.

(2) Subject to the exemptions contained in Part II of this Order, a body corporate incorporated under the law of England or Scotland shall not, without the consent of the Treasury, issue any securities where the whole or any part of the consideration for the issue is the issue or transfer of securities of another body corporate, unless one or other of the bodies corporate in question is to be wound up.

(3) Subject to the exemptions contained in Part II of this Order, a body corporate incorporated under the law of England or Scotland shall not, without the consent of the Treasury, issue any securities if the purposes or effects of the transaction consist of or include—

- (a) the capitalisation of profits or reserves ; or
- (b) the raising or borrowing of money outside Great Britain ; or
- (c) the exchanging or substituting of new securities for redeemable securities already issued.

(4) Subject to the exemptions contained in Part II of this Order, a body corporate not incorporated under the law of England or Scotland shall not, without the consent of the Treasury, issue any securities which are or are to be registered in England or Scotland if the purposes or effects of the transaction consist of or include—

- (a) the raising or borrowing of money outside Great Britain ; or
- (b) the exchanging or substituting of new securities for redeemable securities already issued. [686]

Government securities

5. Subject to the exemptions contained in Part II of this Order, no securities of any government, other than His Majesty's Government in the United Kingdom, which are or are to be registered in England or Scotland shall be issued for any purpose without the consent of the Treasury. [687]

Prospectuses, etc.

6. Subject to the exemptions contained in Part II of this Order, a person shall not, without the consent of the Treasury, circulate in Great Britain any offer for subscription, sale or exchange of—

- (a) any securities of any body corporate not incorporated under the law of England or Scotland ; or
- (b) any securities of any government other than His Majesty's Government in the United Kingdom, if the offer is a public offer or an offer to existing holders of securities of the body corporate or government in question or to existing holders of securities of any body corporate specified in the offer. [688]

Unit trusts

7.—(1) Subject to the exemptions contained in Part II of this Order, a person shall not, without the consent of the Treasury—

- (a) raise money in Great Britain for the purposes of a unit trust scheme by the issue of any unit under the scheme ; or
- (b) issue any units under a unit trust scheme if the purposes or effects of the transaction consist of or include the raising of money outside Great Britain and either the scheme is governed by the law of England or Scotland or the units are or are to be registered in England or Scotland :

Provided that this paragraph shall not apply to the issue, or to the raising of money by the issue, of any unit or sub-unit under a unit trust scheme if the issue does not cause the total number of issued units or sub-units to exceed the total number outstanding on the twelfth day of May, nineteen hundred and forty-one, including units or sub-units which at the said date the trustees could be required by the managers of the trust to issue.

(2) Article 6 of this Order shall apply in relation to units under a unit trust scheme not governed by the law of England or Scotland as it applies in relation to securities of a body corporate not incorporated under the law of England or Scotland. [689]

PART II

GENERAL EXEMPTIONS

Exemption where annual limit not exceeded

8.—(1) Subject to the provisions of this Article, the consent of the Treasury shall not be required to the carrying out by any such person as is mentioned in any of the provisions of Part I of this Order of any transaction mentioned in that provision if the amount involved in the transaction together with the amount involved in all previous transactions by the same person in the previous twelve months, being transactions which are to be taken into account in accordance with paragraph (2) of this Article, does not exceed fifty thousand pounds.

(2) The previous transactions to be taken into account for the purposes of this Article are—

- (a) any borrowing of money in Great Britain except such borrowing as is mentioned in paragraph (2) of Article 1 of this Order, whether or not the consent of the Treasury under this Order was required thereto ; and
- (b) any other transaction to which the consent of the Treasury under this Order was required or would, apart from the provisions of this Part of this Order, have been required ; and include transactions effected before the coming into force of this Order to which the preceding provisions of this paragraph would have applied if this Order had then been in force :—

Provided that

- (i) where the effect of any of the said previous transactions consisting of the borrowing or raising of money was that a capital liability (other than a capital liability in respect of any such borrowing as is mentioned in paragraph (2) of Article 1 of this Order) discharged contemporaneously with, or not more than three months before, that transaction was replaced by another capital liability, the amount involved in that transaction shall be treated as reduced by the amount so discharged ;
- (ii) where any of the said previous transactions consisted of an arrangement for postponing the repayment of money borrowed or raised, not being an arrangement to which paragraph (2) of Article 2 of this Order applies, the amount involved in that transaction shall be left out of account ;
- (iii) where any of the said previous transactions consisted solely of the borrowing of money which, subsequent to that borrowing, was repaid in whole or in part, the amount involved in that transaction shall be treated as reduced by the amount repaid unless the repayment formed part of any other of the said previous transactions and the whole or part of the amount involved in that other transaction has been left out of account by virtue of proviso (i) of this paragraph.

(3) The exemption conferred by this Article shall not apply to any issue of securities, if the purposes or effects of the transaction consist of or include the capitalisation of profits or reserves.

(4) The Treasury may at any time direct that the exemption conferred by this Article shall not apply to any person specified in the direction.

Any direction given under this paragraph may be revoked by a subsequent direction of the Treasury and any direction given by the Treasury under proviso (b) of sub-paragraph (1) of paragraph 1 of the Capital Issues Exemptions Order, 1941 (as amended by the Capital Issues Exemptions Order, 1944), shall have effect as if it had been given under this paragraph.

(5) In this Article, the expression "the amount involved" means—

- (a) in relation to the borrowing of money, the amount of money to be borrowed ;
- (b) in relation to the issue of securities or the raising of money by such an issue, the amount of the money to be raised or the total nominal value of the securities or the value of any assets to be acquired in return for the securities, whichever is the greatest ;
- (c) in relation to the circulation of an offer of securities,
  - (i) in the case of an offer to existing holders of securities registered in England or Scotland, the total price, under the offer, of the securities offered to such holders,
  - (ii) in any other case, the total price, under the offer, of all the securities offered ;
- (d) in relation to an arrangement for the postponement of payment of any money, the amount the payment of which is to be postponed.

The references in sub-paragraph (c) of this paragraph to the price of securities include, in the case of an offer of securities for exchange, references to the total value of the securities so offered.

(6) Paragraph (5) of this Article shall apply in relation to units under a unit trust scheme as it applies in relation to securities of a body corporate. [690]

Building Societies and Industrial and Provident Societies

9. Nothing in Part I of this Order applies to any borrowing or raising of money by, or any issue of securities of—

- (a) a society incorporated under the Building Societies Acts, 1874 to 1940, or such an unincorporated society as is mentioned in section seven of the Building Societies Act, 1874 ; or
- (b) a society registered under the Industrial and Provident Societies Act, 1893, whose business does not consist wholly or mainly in investing in land or securities. [691]

Profit Sharing Schemes

10. Nothing in Part I of this Order applies to any issue of shares made in pursuance of a profit sharing scheme whereby a share in the net profits from time to time made by a body corporate falls to be distributed on a pre-determined basis among all the employees of that body corporate who are entitled to participate in the scheme (not being less than three-quarters of the total number of employees of that body corporate) in the form, either wholly or in part, of fully paid shares and such distribution is made in addition to the payment to such employees of wages at rates standard in the industry of which that body corporate forms part. [692]

Exemption for transactions sanctioned by the Ministry of Finance, Northern Ireland

11. Where the consent of the Ministry of Finance, Northern Ireland, under any Order made in pursuance of the Loans Guarantee and Borrowing Regulation (Northern Ireland) Act, 1946, has been given to the carrying out of any transaction to which that Order applies, then, so long as that consent remains in force and provided that any conditions attached to the consent are complied with, the consent of the Treasury under this Order shall not be required to the carrying out of that transaction. [693]

PART III

SUPPLEMENTAL

Provisions as to Treasury consent

12.—(1) Any consent granted by the Treasury under this Order—

- (a) may be either general or special ;
- (b) may be revoked by the Treasury ;
- (c) may be absolute or conditional ; and
- (d) may be limited so as to expire at the end of a specified period unless renewed.

(2) Any consent granted by the Treasury under Regulation six of the Defence (Finance) Regulations, 1939, shall have effect as if it had been granted under the corresponding provision of this Order. [694]

Definitions

13.—(1) In this Order, unless the context otherwise requires,—

“ issue ” includes reissue ;

“ local authority ” means any authority being within the meaning of the Local Loans Act, 1875, or the Local Authorities Loans (Scotland) Act, 1891, an authority having power to levy a rate ;

“ registered ” in relation to any security or unit includes inscribed ; “ registered in England or Scotland ” means, in relation to securities or units, registered in a register in England or Scotland, and “ register,” in relation to securities or units, includes any book in which securities or units are registered ;

“ security ” includes shares, bonds, notes, debentures and debenture stock ;

“ share ” includes stock and any perpetual debenture or perpetual debenture stock ;

“ unit trust scheme ” means any arrangements made for the purpose, or having the effect, of providing facilities for the participation by persons, as beneficiaries under a trust, in profits or income arising from the acquisition, holding, management or disposal of securities or any other property whatsoever ;

“ unit ” means, in relation to a unit trust, any right or interest (described whether as a unit or as a sub-unit or otherwise) which may be acquired under the scheme, being a right or interest created or issued for the purpose of raising money for the purposes of the scheme or a right or interest created or issued in substitution (whether directly or indirectly) for any right or interest so created or issued.

(2) A person shall be deemed for the purposes of this Order to borrow or raise money in Great Britain if the money is made available in Great Britain or, in any such case as is mentioned in Article 2 of this Order, if the money would, but for the arrangement in question, have been payable in Great Britain, and, without prejudice to the preceding provisions of this paragraph, a person shall also be deemed for the purposes of this Order to borrow money in Great Britain if the money is borrowed on the security of property in Great Britain. [695]

Application of Interpretation Act

14. The Interpretation Act, 1889, shall apply to the interpretation of this Order as it applies to the interpretation of an Act of Parliament. [696]

Saving

15. The restrictions imposed by this Order shall, as respects local authorities, be in addition to and not in derogation of any restrictions imposed by or under the Local Authorities Loans Act, 1945. [697]

16. This Order applies to the borrowing or raising of money in pursuance of authority conferred by an Order made under an Act of Parliament passed before the 12th day of July, 1946, being the date of the passing of the Borrowing (Control and Guarantees) Act, 1946. [698]

Short title and commencement

17. This Order may be cited as the Control of Borrowing Order, 1947, and shall come into operation on the sixteenth day of June, 1947. [699]

* * * * *

The provisions of Regulation 6 of the Defence (Finance) Regulations, 1939, have been revoked except in so far as they relate to the Isle of Man and to the making in England and Scotland of public offers for sale of securities of a body corporate incorporated under the law of those countries. The Order which is made under Section 1 of the Borrowing (Control and Guarantees) Act, 1946, replaces the revoked parts of Regulation 6.

The principal provisions of the Order require, subject to certain exemptions and exceptions, Treasury consent to—

- (1) the borrowing of money in Great Britain in excess of £10,000 in any period of twelve calendar months. For this purpose postponements of the repayment of a security and arrangements to leave the purchase price of property (except the price of goods sold in the ordinary course of trading, or of an undertaking sold to a private company) charged on that property are included as borrowing;*
- (2) the raising of money in Great Britain by the issue of shares in a body corporate;*
- (3) the issue of securities by bodies corporate incorporated under the law of England or Scotland for the raising or borrowing of money outside Great Britain, for the capitalisation of profits or reserves, for conversion operations and for other specified purposes;*
- (4) the issue by a body corporate of partly paid shares if either the body corporate is incorporated under the law of England or Scotland or the shares are or are to be registered under the law of England or Scotland;*
- (5) the issue by overseas bodies corporate, for the raising or borrowing of money outside Great Britain, or for conversion operations, of securities registered or to be registered in England or Scotland;*
- (6) the issue for any purpose by overseas Governments of securities registered or to be registered in England or Scotland;*
- (7) the circulation in Great Britain of offers for subscription, sale or exchange, to the public or to existing holders, of securities of overseas Governments or bodies corporate or of units under a unit trust scheme not governed by the law of England or Scotland; and*

- (8) the issue of units under a unit trust scheme either to raise money in Great Britain, or, if the scheme is governed by the law of England or Scotland or the units are or are to be registered in England or Scotland, to raise money outside Great Britain :

but allow general exemptions for—

- (A) transactions consisting in the borrowing of money or the issue of securities (except securities issued to capitalise profits or reserves) or units in a unit trust scheme up to an aggregate of £50,000 in any period of twelve calendar months provided that that aggregate is calculated as set out in Article 8 of the Order ;
 (B) borrowings and issues of securities by Building Societies and by Industrial and Provident Societies ;
 (C) issues of shares under certain defined profit sharing schemes ; and
 (D) transactions to which consent has been given by the Ministry of Finance, Northern Ireland.

CAPITAL ISSUES EXEMPTIONS ORDER, 1947

S. R. & O., 1947, No. 946

Whereas it is provided by paragraphs (1) and (2) of Regulation 6 of the Defence (Finance) Regulations, 1939, that the Treasury may by order grant exemptions from the provisions of those paragraphs :

Now, therefore, the Lords Commissioners of His Majesty's Treasury in pursuance of the said paragraphs hereby make the following order :—

1. There shall be exempted from the provisions of paragraph (1) and (2) of Regulation 6 of the Defence (Finance) Regulations, 1939, any public offer for sale made in England or Scotland of the securities of a body corporate incorporated under the law of either of these countries.

Provided however that this exemption shall not apply where—

- (a) the securities offered are shares or stock, and
 (b) any of the shares or stock offered, or any other shares or stock, have been issued by that body corporate without the specific consent of the Treasury during the two years immediately preceding the offer.

In this paragraph the expression “stock” does not include debenture stock. [700]

2. This Order may be cited as the Capital Issues Exemptions Order, 1947, and shall come into force on the sixteenth day of June, 1947. [701]

EXPLANATORY NOTE

(This Note is not part of the Order, but is intended to indicate its general purport.)

Paragraphs (1) and (2) of Regulation 6 of the Defence (Finance) Regulations, 1939, as substituted by Article 2 of S. R. & O., 1947, No. 944, prohibit the making in England or Scotland of any public offer for sale of securities of a body corporate incorporated under the law of either of those countries without the consent of the Treasury. The Regulation, however, enables the Treasury to make orders granting exemptions to the general prohibition, and this Order provides that Treasury consent will continue to be required only for public offers for sale in England and Scotland of shares or stock (other than debenture stock) of a body corporate, where that body corporate has within two years previous to the offer made any issue of shares or stock without the specific consent of the Treasury—e.g. by virtue of the exemptions conferred by the Capital Issues Exemptions Orders, 1941 and 1945 (S. R. & O., 1941, No. 648 and S. R. & O., 1945, No. 587) or by virtue of the provisions of Article 8 of the Control of Borrowing Order, 1947 (S. R. & O., 1947, No. 945).

General note.—The word “ paragraph ” in the first line of Article 1, ante, should obviously read “ paragraphs.”

SIR,

CONTRACTS OF LOCAL AUTHORITIES

FAIR WAGES CLAUSE

Local Government Act, 1933 : Section 266

London Government Act, 1939 : Section 160

Standing Orders

I am directed by the Minister of Health to refer to Circular 206/46 of the 16th November, 1946, and to append Model Standing Orders which have been prepared to apply the Fair Wages Resolution passed by the House of Commons on 14th October, 1946, to the contracts of local authorities.

Section 72 (3) of the Housing Act, 1936, requires contracts by local authorities for the erection of houses to contain a fair wages clause “ complying with any resolution of the Commons House of Parliament for the time being in force with respect to contracts of Government Departments.” The Minister understands that some local authorities have already adopted a standing order which does not fully comply with the recent Resolution and he suggests that they should now adopt in substitution therefor new standing orders based on the Model Standing Orders appended hereto, and apply them to all contracts entered into after the date of adoption.

Highway Authorities will observe that the Clause appended to Ministry of Transport Circular No. 605/1 of the 21st April, 1947 is in conformity with the Model Clauses appended hereto, except for minor differences necessary to adapt it to the Standard Conditions of Tender and Contract for Road and Bridge Works. These differences are not considered to be of such importance as to involve any conflict with standing orders which follow these new Model Clauses.

I am, Sir, etc.

* * * * *

The Clerk of the Council, or
The Town Clerk, or
The Clerk of the Board or Committee.

MODEL STANDING ORDERS

FAIR WAGES CLAUSES

11. *In every written contract for the execution of work or the supply of goods or materials the following clause shall be inserted :—

The contractor shall in respect of all persons employed by him (whether in execution of this contract or otherwise) in every factory, workshop or place occupied or used by him for the execution of the contract comply with the following conditions of the Fair Wages Resolution passed by the House of Commons on the 14th October, 1946, namely :—

1. (a) The contractor shall pay rates of wages and observe hours and conditions of labour not less favourable than those established, for the trade or industry in the district where the work is carried out, by machinery of negotiation or arbitration to which the parties are organisations of employers and trade unions representative respectively of substantial proportions of the employers and workers engaged in the trade or industry in the district.

(b) In the absence of any rates of wages, hours or conditions of labour so established the contractor shall pay rates of wages and observe hours and conditions of labour which are not less favourable than the general level of wages, hours and conditions observed by other employers whose general circumstances in the trade or industry in which the contractor is engaged are similar.

2. The contractor shall recognise the freedom of his workpeople to be members of trade unions.

3. The contractor shall at all times during the continuance of the contract display, for the information of his workpeople, in every factory, workshop or place occupied or used by him for the execution of the contract a copy of the Fair Wages Resolution.**

4. The contractor shall be responsible for the observance of this clause by sub-contractors employed in the execution of the contract, and shall if required notify the Council of the names and addresses of all such sub-contractors.

5. In the event of any question arising as to whether the foregoing conditions of the Fair Wages Resolution are being observed, the question shall, if not otherwise disposed of, be referred by the Minister of Labour and National Service to an independent tribunal for decision.

12. ***Before entering into a contract for the execution of work or the supply of goods or materials, the Council shall obtain from the contractor

* This Model Standing Order takes the place of that numbered 11 in the Model Standing Orders issued as an enclosure to Circular 1388 of the 28th March, 1934.

** It will be observed that this requires the display of a copy of the Fair Wages Resolution as required in the case of Government contracts by the Resolution itself. It is suggested that local authorities should adopt this requirement in preference to requiring the display of a copy of their own standing order, to avoid confusion arising in the minds of the workpeople in the case of contractors working for a number of local authorities whose standing orders may vary slightly in form.

Copies of the Resolution for display in factories, etc., may be purchased from His Majesty's Stationery Office, price 2d. each (3d. post free) or 25 copies for 1s. 6d. (1s. 11d. post free).

*** Local authorities may find that the most convenient means of obtaining this assurance will be to require a declaration from contractors when they submit their tenders.

In some cases this assurance may not be forthcoming from the smaller contractors, whose attention may not have previously been drawn to the new Fair Wages Resolution. In cases where this presents difficulty in placing contracts, the local authority may find it desirable to suspend this standing order without suspending the previous standing order, which contains the main provisions of the Fair Wages Resolution. In such cases the local authority may consider that the position will be sufficiently met by an assurance by the contractor that he has, for the previous three months, observed the conditions of the local authority's previous standing order on the subject or that he will observe the conditions of the new standing order in the future. In some instances both these assurances may be forthcoming.

an assurance that to the best of his knowledge and belief he has complied with the general conditions of the Fair Wages Resolution passed by the House of Commons on the 14th October, 1946, for at least three months immediately preceding the date of the tender.

13. *In every written contract for the execution of work or the supply of goods or materials the following clauses shall be inserted :—

1. If the contractor at any time or times or from time to time during the continuance of the contract fails to pay to any person or persons employed by him in or about the execution of the contract wages in conformity with the conditions of the Fair Wages Resolution passed by the House of Commons on the 14th October, 1946, the Council may, without in any way prejudicing or affecting any of their rights powers and remedies under the contract in respect of any breach of contract involved, pay to the employee or employees concerned the amount of the difference between the sum or sums (if any) which such employee or employees may have received from the contractor as wages, and the sum or sums which the employee or employees should have received had the contractor performed and observed the said conditions and the Council may recover from the contractor as a debt due to the Council the amount so paid by the Council as aforesaid.

2. The contractor shall keep proper wages books and time sheets, showing the wages paid to and the time worked by the workpeople in his employ in and about the execution of the contract, and such wages books and time sheets shall be produced whenever required for the inspection of any officer authorised by the Council. [702]

* This Model Standing Order follows the Standard Conditions of Tender and Contract which the Minister of Transport requires to be used in contracts for road and bridge works and local authorities may wish to adopt this further standing order so as to facilitate the enforcement of the conditions of the Fair Wages Resolution in respect of all their contracts.

Circular 93/47.

MINISTRY OF HEALTH,
WHITEHALL,
LONDON, S.W.1.

19th May, 1947.

To : *Housing Authorities,
County Councils (for information), ENGLAND.*

PAYMENT OF HOUSING SUBSIDIES

I am directed by the Minister of Health to state that in order to give some relief to local authorities in the completion of claim forms he has had under consideration a change in the machinery for payment of those Exchequer subsidies under the Housing Acts, the amounts of which are reasonably stable. Accordingly, with the approval of the Treasury, the full amount of those subsidies payable in respect of each year will be paid in two half-yearly payments during that year without submission of a claim by the local authority. This will supersede the system hitherto followed under which two advances on account are made during the year and the final balance is made on receipt of a claim certified by the District Auditor.

The new system will operate in respect of payments due in respect of the period commencing on the 1st April, 1947, and will apply only in respect of Exchequer subsidies payable under the following Acts :—

Housing, etc., Act, 1923. Sections 1 (1) (a) and 1 (1) (b).

Housing (Financial Provisions) Act, 1924, Section 2, and Housing Act, 1930, Section 46.

Housing Act, 1936, Sections 105, 106, 107 and 108.

Housing (Financial Provisions) Act, 1938. Sections 1 and 2.

Submission of claim forms for subsidies payable under the above-mentioned provisions will not, therefore, be required in respect of years subsequent to the year 1946-47, but certification by the Chief Financial Officer and the District Auditor as to the continued observance of the statutory and Treasury conditions will be called for every third year commencing with the year ending 31st March, 1950, and a form of return and certificate will at the appropriate time be issued for completion by the Chief Financial Officer and presentation to the District Auditor.

It should be noted that forms of claim for subsidies under all Housing Acts in respect of the year 1946-47 will shortly be issued and these should be completed and presented to the District Auditor for certification in the normal way. The same procedure will apply in future years in respect of subsidies under the remaining housing provisions which are not enumerated above.

An additional copy of the Circular is enclosed for the information of the Chief Financial Officer.

CONTROL OF BORROWING ORDER, 1947

(S. R. & O., 1947, No. 945)

SIR,

CAPITAL ISSUES CONTROL : BORROWING BY LOCAL AUTHORITIES

1. I am directed by the Lords Commissioners of His Majesty's Treasury to inform you that this Circular consolidates and supersedes Treasury Circulars of 18th November, 1944, 25th February, 1946 and 29th March, 1947.

RENEWAL AND REPLACEMENT OF MORTGAGES, ETC.

2. Consent for the purpose of the Control of Borrowing Order, 1947 is hereby given, with effect until 31st March, 1948 in the case of Local Authorities in England and Wales, and until 15th May, 1948 in the case of Local Authorities in Scotland, and subject to the conditions set out in paragraph 3 below, to the renewal, replacement or other amendment of mortgages without application for specific Treasury consent.

3. The conditions of this general consent are as follows :—

- (a) For the purpose of this Circular mortgages include a local bond, corporation bond or any similar security not marketable or quoted on any stock exchange, but do not include bills, promissory notes or deposit receipts, and replacement means replacement only by other mortgages as here defined.

- (b) No mortgage shall be issued or renewed on terms providing for repayment before a date 7 years after the date of issue or renewal ; except that—
- (i) It will be permissible to issue mortgages repayable by equal instalments of capital at regular intervals or by an annuity of constant amount, provided that the full currency of the mortgage or renewal is not less than 7 years.
  - (ii) The period of any mortgage will not be regarded as determined by the inclusion of a "Stress Clause" under which the lender is entitled to premature repayment in an emergency.
  - (iii) Mortgages may be renewed or replaced for a shorter period than 7 years, if the terms of any loan sanctions identifiable as specifically governing those mortgages would not permit of a longer renewal or borrowing.
- (c) All new or renewed mortgages shall be made for a definite term, and it shall not be a provision of any new or renewed mortgage, either that it may continue to run on at notice after reaching the stipulated date for repayment or renewal or that it may so run during any part of its currency after the first 7 years.

4. The general consent given in the preceding paragraphs relates only to the renewal, replacement or other amendment of mortgage debt. New borrowing on mortgage and all borrowing by way of stock, bills, promissory notes or deposit receipts will continue to be the subject of specific Treasury consent, except in so far as other provision is made in paragraphs 6 and 7 of this Circular. It is the intention of the Treasury to specify conditions (b) and (c) of the preceding paragraph in any consent to new mortgage borrowing.

5. For the purpose of this Circular, deposit receipts will not be regarded as mortgages. Consent is hereby given, however, to the replacement by mortgages (as defined in paragraph 3 above and on the conditions prescribed therein) of deposit receipts issued (a) before the 1st June, 1943 and (b) at any time under the Capital Issues Exemption Orders 1941 and 1945, or under Article 8 (1) of the Control of Borrowing Order, 1947.

EXEMPT TRANSACTIONS

6. Under the provisions of the Control of Borrowing Order, 1947 (S. R. & O., 1947, No. 945), Treasury consent will not be required to borrowing by Local Authorities if the transaction is exempt under any one of the following Articles :—

- (a) Article 8 (1) of the Order. Subject to the provisions of this Article, borrowing as defined in Part 1 of the Order " if the amount involved in the transaction, together with the amount involved in all previous transactions by the same person in the previous twelve months, being transactions which are to be taken into account in accordance with paragraph (2) of this Article, does not exceed £50,000."

The attention of Local Authorities is also drawn to the provisos to Article 8 (1) of the Order, the broad effect of which is that in counting previous transactions for the purpose of the exemption, the borrower can ignore replacement transactions or postponements where no new money is raised, and similarly, loans raised and subsequently repaid within the twelve months period, can be disregarded.

- (b) Article 1 (2) (c) of the Order. "Borrowing by a local authority for the sole purpose of defraying expenditure (including the payment of sums due by them to meet the expenses of other authorities) pending the receipt of revenues receivable by them in respect of the period of account in which that expenditure is chargeable, so long as—

- (i) the expenditure is not capital expenditure ; and
- (ii) the money is repayable not later than one month after the determination of that period of account ; and
- (iii) the amount outstanding at any one time does not exceed one half of the total revenues received or receivable in respect of that period of account."

As this provision relates to borrowing pending the receipt of revenues, the effect of the limitation to 50% of total revenues received or receivable is that, until such time as 50% of receivable revenue has been received, the exemption covers borrowing 50% of receivable revenue. Thereafter it covers borrowing up to, but not exceeding, the balance of receivable revenues. For example, if the total revenues receivable in the year are £1 million, the exemption allows borrowing not exceeding £500,000 until £500,000 has been received, thereafter the maximum amount borrowed under this exemption and outstanding must never exceed the balance of revenue still outstanding.

- (c) Article 1 (2) (f) of the Order. "Borrowing from a department of His Majesty's Government in the United Kingdom."

Note. It should be noted that Article 12 (2) of the Order provides that any consent granted by the Treasury under Regulation 6 of the Defence (Finance) Regulations, 1939 shall have effect as if it had been granted under the corresponding provision of the new Order.

TEMPORARY BORROWING

7. As regards temporary borrowing by Local Authorities, other than temporary borrowing referred to in paragraph 6 (b) above, I am to inform you that :—

- (i) Where Treasury consent is given to an issue of capital by a specific method for a specific purpose, that consent may be taken to cover any preliminary temporary borrowing (otherwise than by way of bills or promissory notes) which is necessary for that purpose provided that such temporary borrowing is completed and the substantive issue of capital is effected before the expiration of the period of validity of the Treasury consent (or any extension thereof).
- (ii) Where an existing mortgage is replaced under the general consent accorded to Local Authorities by paragraph 2 of this circular, such general consent may be taken to cover any preliminary temporary borrowing (other than by way of bills or promissory notes) which is necessary for that purpose, provided that in respect of each specific transaction such temporary borrowing is completed and the new mortgage issued within 6 months from the date on which the existing mortgage terminates or is terminated. This provision may also be applied in the case of deposit receipts replaced under the general consent accorded by paragraph 5 above.

The concession set out in this paragraph is made on the understanding that Local Authorities have recourse to such temporary borrowing only where they cannot reasonably arrange a permanent loan without so doing. For example an Authority, having obtained specific consent to the raising of a long-term loan or intending to replace an existing mortgage under the general consent granted by paragraph 2 of this Circular, may find that some latitude of time is necessary to determine the exact amount of the permanent loan.

"FROZEN" SANCTIONS

8. Paragraph 3 of Treasury Circular of 8th August, 1946 confirmed by arrangement originally notified in paragraph 7 (a) of Treasury Circular of 24th November, 1939, whereby a new reference to the appropriate sanctioning Department was required before the exercise of a borrowing power in respect of a loan sanction given before 13th September, 1939, or in the case of Local Authorities in Scotland, before 5th October, 1939. In the Circular of 24th November, 1939, but not in that of 8th August, 1946, loan sanctions obtained before the above mentioned dates in respect of water supplies, hospitals and fire-brigades were specifically exempted from this requirement in view of the urgent need for extensions of these services at that time. The justification for this differential treatment disappeared with the end of the war time emergency, and a new loan sanction or Departmental consent is now required for borrowing in these circumstances.

GENERAL

9. In the view of Their Lordships, the present level of interest rates affords a favourable opportunity for Local Authorities to spread maturing capital obligations over a longer period of years and in particular to reduce the volume of mortgages maturing within 7 years. The borrowing period should whenever possible exceed 7 years, which should be regarded as the minimum.

10. My Lords remind your Authority of the need to consider carefully before renewing maturing debt or replacing it by a fresh borrowing, how far it is possible, having regard to prospective commitments, for the maturing debt to be repaid out of internal funds which can be made applicable.

11. Nothing in this Circular affects the existing requirements regarding other consents which may be necessary, e.g. from other Departments or from the Treasury, under other Regulations.

12. Questions of interpretation should be addressed to the Assistant Secretary, Home Finance Division, H.M. Treasury, Great George Street, S.W.1.

I am, Sir, etc.

STATUTES

FIRE SERVICES ACT, 1947

PRELIMINARY NOTE

The Fire Services Act, 1947, received the Royal Assent on July 31, 1947, and for England and Wales the appointed day, on which the commencement of its principal provisions depends, is April 1, 1948 (S.I. 1948 No. 325).

The Act is an important piece of legislation from several points of view. In the first place, it re-establishes on a permanent peace-time basis a local government service upon which the exigencies of war had imposed a high degree of centralisation. It has been welcomed in some quarters as the first attempt at "de-nationalisation," though in fact it merely transfers fire administration from one form of public ownership to another. Secondly, it is to a large extent an agreed measure. This statement remains true despite the existence of a number of basic principles upon which the representatives of local government organisations, and particularly those concerned on behalf of the smaller authorities, were unable to reach agreement with the Government.

For a proper appreciation of the significance of the Act, it is necessary to bear in mind the history of fire administration during the last few years. This history falls into three well-defined periods, which will be dealt with separately.

Before the passing of the Fire Brigades Act, 1938 (31 Halsbury's Statutes 585), the law governing the organisation of fire services outside London was completely out of touch with modern requirements. There was no general legislation to make the provision of fire cover compulsory, and such services as existed were provided either under local legislation or under a series of fragmentary and discretionary enactments. Boroughs and urban districts usually relied on the provisions of ss. 32 and 33 of the Town Police Clauses Act, 1847 (13 Halsbury's Statutes 603, 604), which were extended to their areas by s. 171 of the Public Health Act, 1875 (13 Halsbury's Statutes 696). Rural districts could also acquire these powers by an order made under s. 276 of the latter Act. Other very limited powers existed under s. 29 of the Poor Law Amendment Act, 1867 (10 Halsbury's Statutes 557), and the adoptive Lighting and Watching Act, 1833 (8 Halsbury's Statutes 1186).

In these circumstances, it is not surprising that the actual organisation of fire brigades showed considerable diversity. S. 2 of the Police Act, 1893 (12 Halsbury's Statutes 855), allowed boroughs to delegate their powers under the Act of 1847, supra, to their watch committees and to employ constables wholly or partly as firemen. Fire services, therefore, might or might not be administered in conjunction with the police. In this connection it is of some importance to note that police firemen received their pensions under the Police Pensions Acts, 1921 and 1926 (12 Halsbury's Statutes 873, 897), while professional non-police firemen fell within the provisions of the Fire Brigade Pensions Acts, 1925 and 1929 (13 Halsbury's Statutes 1095, 1194). Another classification, which cut across the first, was into professional and part-time brigades. Finally, there were volunteer brigades and a number of private fire forces.

In London, however, the system was much more coherent. Under the provisions of the Metropolitan Fire Brigade Act, 1865 (11 Halsbury's Statutes 997), the Metropolitan Board of Works became the sole fire authority, with a clear duty to extinguish fires and protect life and property. Its functions were transferred to the London County Council by s. 40 (8) of the Local Government Act, 1888 (10 Halsbury's Statutes 719), and the Metropolitan Fire Brigade (late the London Fire Brigade) was able to become a pioneer in the efficient organisation of fire services.

The second period begins with the passing of the Fire Brigades Act, 1938 (31 Halsbury's Statutes 585), which to a large extent followed the recommendations of the Departmental Committee on Fire Brigade Services under the chairmanship of Lord Riverdale, whose report was issued in 1936 (Cmd. 5224). This Committee was largely preoccupied with the measures which would be necessary to deal effectively with fires caused by aerial attack, and it is a matter of history that the outbreak of war in 1939 prevented the Act of 1938 from being given a fair trial.

The councils of boroughs and urban and rural districts were constituted fire authorities, to the exclusion of parish councils, parish meetings and inspectors appointed under the Lighting and Watching Act, 1833, ante. The new fire authorities were placed under a statutory obligation to secure the provision of adequate services for their respective districts, and were given a variety of powers to enable them to do so. Existing powers to charge owners and occupiers of property for fire services rendered were abolished. The Act did not, however, give effect to the Committee's recommendation that fire authorities should be given a special Exchequer grant attributable to their functions as such.

Elaborate provision was made to secure the efficient execution of the duties of fire authorities. In view of the simplified but basically similar machinery established by the present Act, however, it is not necessary to discuss this.

So far as London was concerned, it is only necessary to add that, except for certain sections conferring additional powers, the provisions of the Act did not extend to the London Fire Brigade, and the Metropolitan Fire Brigade Act, 1865, supra, continued to govern that brigade.

A new period in the history of British fire administration opened with the Second World War, when it soon became apparent that the existing structure of the fire services was incapable of dealing with the results of large-scale enemy attack, despite the extensive provision of emergency appliances from central resources and the establishment in each district of an Auxiliary Fire Service. In 1941, therefore, the National Fire Service (General) Regulations, 1941 (S. R. & O., 1941, No. 1134; 34 Halsbury's Statutes 227), made under powers conferred by the Fire Services (Emergency Provisions) Act, 1941 (34 Halsbury's Statutes 223), suspended all the fire powers and duties of local authorities and transferred those functions to a new national body to be known as the National Fire Service. Detailed provision was made by these and other regulations for such matters as the establishment of the new organisation, the preservation of pension rights, and the transfer of property and personnel.

The former fire authorities collaborated wholeheartedly to bring this massive re-organisation into effect and paid a proportion of their fire expenditure of a standard year towards the cost of the National Fire Service, being sustained by an official assurance that, when the period of national emergency had ended, their powers would be restored. The present Act constitutes the legislative fulfilment of that promise, though the new fire authorities are different from the old.

With the passing of the Fire Services Act, 1947, on July 31, 1947, the third period of development drew to a close. Nevertheless, it should be noted at the outset that the new Act is not in itself a complete charter for fire administration, though some progress has been made in the direction of codification by the repeal of the Fire Brigade Pensions Acts, 1925 and 1929, the Fire Brigades Act, 1938, and most of the Metropolitan Fire Brigade Act, 1865.

The main features of the new Act may conveniently be considered under ten headings:—

(i) The new fire authorities.—The structure of the future fire organisation is established by s. 4 of the Act, which provides that the basic fire authorities are to be the councils of counties and county boroughs to the exclusion of the county district councils. Provision is made by s. 5 for voluntary combination schemes to combine the areas of two or more fire authorities. These are subject to the approval of the Secretary of State. The general effect of a combination scheme is that all the powers and duties of the constituent authorities will pass to the combined body, which will then become the fire authority for the whole area concerned. No provision is made for the combination of parts of the areas of fire authorities.

The Secretary of State is given power to make combination schemes by order in case of default, although counties and county boroughs having populations of 100,000 or upwards may not be forced, against their consent, into combination schemes which would place them in a minority. In any event, the fire authorities concerned may insist upon a public inquiry before the order is made, and draft schemes are subject to negative resolution of either House of Parliament (s. 6).

Ss. 8 and 9 make provision respectively for the constitution and powers of combined fire authorities, and the amendment and revocation of combination schemes.

The existing procedure of combining for fire administration purposes by appointing a joint committee under the general powers conferred by s. 91 of the Local Government Act, 1933 (26 Halsbury's Statutes 355), is made subject to the approval of the Secretary of State (s. 7).

The Fifth Schedule to the Act empowers the Secretary of State to make regulations providing for, inter alia, the transfer of National Fire Service employees to the new fire authorities and the vesting in those authorities of National Fire Service property, rights and liabilities and property vested in non-county boroughs and urban and rural districts but at present used for National Fire Service purposes. Paragraph 8 of the Schedule is of great importance to county district councils, being apparently designed to avoid the difficulties which have arisen under the corresponding provisions of s. 1 (3) (b) of the Police Act, 1946 (39 Halsbury's Statutes 618).

(ii) Powers and duties.—The general duties of each fire authority are prescribed by s. 1 of the Act. They include the training of personnel, making arrangements for dealing with calls, obtaining information about fire risks, water supplies and other material circumstances, giving advice about fire prevention and taking measures to prevent or mitigate damage to property. A number of additional powers supplemental to the general functions prescribed by s. 1 are conferred by s. 3. S. 8 deals with the powers of combined fire authorities, while ss. 13 to 16 are concerned with the supply of water for fire-fighting. The first of these provisions casts a general duty on the fire authorities to take all reasonable measures to ensure adequate water supplies. They may make agreements with statutory water undertakers for this purpose (s. 14), and powers to compel the making of agreements are held in reserve. S. 15 is concerned with the use of water which is not under the control of statutory water undertakers, while the powers of firemen and police officers in connection with extinguishing fires, including powers to secure the maintenance of an adequate water supply, are set out in s. 30.

(iii) Arrangements with other fire authorities.—These fall into two classes: reinforcement schemes for the rendering of mutual assistance under s. 2, and contractual arrangements for fire cover under s. 12. The difference between the two is that s. 2 is obviously intended to deal with fires occurring in remote parts of a fire authority's area (which the equipment of an adjoining fire authority can reach more easily) and large fires demanding a greater concentration of equipment than a single authority possesses or can make available; s. 12, on the other hand, allows a fire authority to relieve itself by contract of all or any of its functions in relation to the whole or part of its area.

In each case, the Secretary of State is given default powers to make schemes, but only under s. 12 is he bound to hold a local inquiry in case of objection by one of the fire authorities concerned. Again, arrangements under s. 12 may make provision with respect to the "terms as to payments or otherwise" on which the services are to be provided, while s. 2 merely authorises an apportionment of the "expenses incurred in taking measures to secure the efficient operation of the scheme."

In addition to these arrangements between fire authorities, both ss. 2 and 12 authorise fire authorities to enlist and pay for the assistance of private brigades. Such contracts under s. 2, unlike the others under that section and those under s. 12, are not subject to the approval of the Secretary of State. With regard to contracts with private brigades under s. 12, it is to be noted that the provisions of sub-ss. (2) to (5) of that section do not apply in such cases.

(iv) Internal organisation of fire authorities.—Under s. 20, county fire authorities are required to constitute fire brigade committees to deal with their functions under the Act. In the Bill as first drafted, this obligation also extended to county boroughs, but its scope was reduced as a result of protests by organisations representing those authorities.

So far as county councils are concerned, detailed provisions are set out whereby the councils of county districts will be entitled to appoint representatives to the county fire brigade committees (s. 20 (4)). This will be done by means of management schemes prepared by the county councils and sent for approval to the Secretary of State together with the observations of the district councils. The First Schedule to the present Act sets out detailed provisions as to management schemes, and the Second Schedule provides for the application of these provisions to combined fire authorities.

(v) Staff arrangements.—The Secretary of State may make regulations as to the method of appointment of chief fire officers and the procedure for appointment of other employees of fire authorities (s. 18). The regulations may also prescribe the qualifications for appointment to various ranks and the requirements for promotion. When explaining this provision to the House of Commons (H. of C. Official Report, S.C.B., May 13, 1947, cols. 258 et seq.), the Home Secretary stated that the chief objects were :—

- (a) to ensure uniformity in nomenclature throughout the service ;
- (b) to specify the qualifications relating to each rank ; and
- (c) to ensure that fire authorities should make appointments themselves, or at any rate reserve the right of ratification, instead of leaving the matter in the hands of the chief officers.

The establishments of fire personnel and of stations and equipment of all kinds are to be set out in establishment schemes made by the fire authorities and approved by the Secretary of State, who has default powers if no scheme has been submitted for approval before a specified date or the scheme is considered unsatisfactory. In the latter case, however, the fire authority may insist upon the holding of a public inquiry (s. 19). The First and Second Schedules also provide for the application of these provisions to counties and to combined authorities respectively, the basic intention being to ensure that county districts have an adequate voice in the preparation of the schemes.

(vi) Training and equipment.—S. 1 (1) (a) of the Act makes it the duty of each fire authority to provide equipment sufficient to meet all normal requirements, and and s. 1 (1) (b) imposes a similar duty to secure the efficient training of an authority's fire personnel.

These general provisions are followed up by later provisions of the Act. Under s. 23 the Secretary of State may establish a central training institution managed by a Board consisting, as to one half of its members, of his nominees, and, as to the remainder, of persons appointed by the County Councils Association and the Association of Municipal Corporations. He may also set up one or more local training centres. The latter power is also enjoyed by the fire authorities themselves, who may establish and maintain training centres without ministerial consent. The Secretary of State may also, after consultation with the Central Fire Brigades Advisory Council, established under s. 29 (see under "Central control of fire authorities," post) make regulations as to standards of training and equipment (s. 21), while the section that follows empowers him to provide equipment for purchase by fire authorities. The appointment of Government fire brigade inspectors is also authorised (s. 24).

(vii) Conditions of service.—S. 17 begins by empowering the Secretary of State to make regulations as to the conditions of service of persons employed as members of fire brigades. Provision is then made for these regulations to give effect to approved recommendations made by negotiating bodies representing the interests of employers and employees, the section envisaging the establishment of one or more joint industrial councils to have general superintendence over the wages, discipline, duties and general conditions of service of fire employees.

(viii) Pensions.—The distinction between police firemen and other professional firemen and the different pension provisions applicable to each class will disappear in consequence of s. 32 of the Act, whereby no member of a police force is to be employed as a member of a fire brigade.

Provision is made for the establishment of a new Firemen's Pension Scheme to cover all members of fire brigades maintained in pursuance of the Act who retire or die on or after "the appointed day" (s. 26). The Scheme may be brought into operation by order of the Secretary of State. By sub-ss. (3) of the same section, the maximum pension is only to be paid to persons who have had thirty years or more of such service as is applicable for the purpose of the Scheme, and no pension is to be payable unless one of four conditions is satisfied :

1. Twenty-five years' service ; or
2. Retirement caused through incapacity occasioned by injury received in the execution of duty ; or
3. Retirement caused by incapacity resulting from other specified causes after not less than ten years' service ; or
4. Retirement on the ground of age.

The Firemen's Pension Scheme is, by s. 27, to supersede all other statutory schemes, except that in certain cases the provisions of existing statutory schemes, if certified to be not less favourable, may be applied.

In addition, there are supplementary provisions for the preservation of pensions (s. 28), while paragraphs 10 to 13 of the Fifth Schedule set out the transitional provisions whereby the pension functions of county district councils are to be transferred to the new fire authorities.

(ix) Financial provisions.—S. 25, which was perhaps the most controversial provision of the Bill, provides for an Exchequer grant to fire authorities of amounts not exceeding 25 per cent. of the expenditure incurred. This is an innovation, although, as mentioned above, the introduction of a specific grant was recommended by the Riverdale Committee in 1936. Government financial assistance to local authorities' fire brigades was formerly limited to the consolidated block grants, which are in aid of local government services generally, introduced by the Local Government Act, 1929 (10 Halsbury's Statutes 883).

The regulations governing the grant may provide for the deduction therefrom of amounts apportioned to fire authorities in respect of training services provided by the Secretary of State under s. 23 (see under "Training and equipment," ante).

(x) Central control of fire authorities.—The degree of control exercised by the Secretary of State over the detailed activities of fire authorities is close, and has been claimed in some quarters to be disproportionate to the amount of the Exchequer grant. It has been said, however, that the extent of the control now is no greater than under the Act of 1938, although exercised in a different manner. Under the earlier Act, central control was exercised in a somewhat complicated manner through the agency of a Fire Service Commission and Fire Service Boards. Under the present Act, however, the Secretary of State will act directly, subject to the activities of the Central Fire Brigades Advisory Council.

This Council, whose constitution is described in s. 29 of the Act, will consist of a chairman appointed by the Secretary of State and permanent members representing the interests of fire authorities and employees, together with permanent or ad hoc members appointed for their special qualifications. The inclusion of representatives of water undertakings and county district councils is important (see notes to s. 29). The Secretary of State is required to consult the Advisory Council under ss. 1 (3), 14 (6), 18 and 21.

In general terms, the establishment of the Council—which is strongly reminiscent of the Police Council—may be regarded as an attempt to modify the incidence of central control by enabling the views of fire authorities and their employees to find expression at a high level. The Council's functions, however, are merely advisory, and the Secretary of State is not bound to give effect even to the unanimous recommendation of its members.

A number of the functions conferred upon the Secretary of State have already been mentioned. The following is a list of his regulation-making and similar powers :—

- S. 1 (3)—Standards of efficiency ;
- S. 11—Adaptation of local Acts giving special powers or duties to fire personnel ;
- S. 14 (6)—Uniformity in hydrants, etc. (after consultation with the Central Fire Brigades Advisory Council) ;
- S. 17—Conditions of service ;
- S. 18—Appointments and promotions (after consultation with the Central Fire Brigades Advisory Council) ;
- S. 21—Standards of training and equipment (after consultation with the Central Fire Brigades Advisory Council) ;
- S. 25—Grants to fire authorities (with the consent of the Treasury) ;
- S. 26—Firemen's Pension Scheme ; and

Sched. V.—Transitional provisions (after consultation with associations representing local authorities).

All regulations, and the orders under ss. 11 and 26, are subject to negative resolution by either House of Parliament (s. 35 (1)). [706]

An Act to make further provision for fire services in Great Britain, to transfer fire-fighting functions from the National Fire Service to fire brigades maintained by the councils of counties and county boroughs ; to provide for the combination of areas for fire service purposes ; to make further provision for pensions and other awards in respects of persons employed in connection with the provision of fire services ; and for purposes connected with the matters aforesaid. [707]
[31st July, 1947.]

Provision of fire services

1. Provision of fire services.—(1) It shall be the duty of every fire authority in Great Britain to make provision for fire-fighting purposes, and in particular every fire authority shall secure—

- (a) the services for their area of such a fire brigade and such equipment as may be necessary to meet efficiently all normal requirements ;
- (b) the efficient training of the members of the fire brigade ;
- (c) efficient arrangements for dealing with calls for the assistance of the fire brigade in case of fire and for summoning members of the fire brigade ;
- (d) efficient arrangements for obtaining, by inspection or otherwise, information required for fire-fighting purposes with respect to the character of the buildings and other property in the area of the fire authority, the available water supplies and the means of access thereto, and other material local circumstances ;
- (e) efficient arrangements for ensuring that reasonable steps are taken to prevent or mitigate damage to property resulting from measures taken in dealing with fires in the area of the fire authority ;
- (f) efficient arrangements for the giving, when requested, of advice in respect of buildings and other property in the area of the fire authority as to fire prevention, restricting the spread of fires, and means of escape in case of fire. [708]

(2) For the purposes of such arrangements as are mentioned in paragraph (d) of the last foregoing subsection, any member of a fire brigade maintained in pursuance of this Act shall, if authorised in writing by the authority maintaining the brigade, have the like powers of entering premises as are conferred upon authorised officers of councils by section two hundred and eighty-seven of the Public Health Act, 1936 ; and accordingly that Act shall have effect as if the references in that section to an authorised officer of a council included references to a member of a fire brigade authorised as aforesaid, and as if among the purposes specified in subsection (1) of that section there were included the purposes of carrying out such arrangements as aforesaid. [709]

prescribing standards of efficiency with respect to any of the matters mentioned in subsection (1) of this section, and the standards may vary according to the requirements of, and the facilities available in, different kinds of locality; and any fire authority whose services are of a standard so prescribed shall, as respects the matter for which the standard is prescribed, be deemed to have complied with the provisions of subsection (1) of this section. [710]

Changes effected.—Sub-s. (1), ante, reproduces the provisions of s. 1 (1) of the Fire Brigades Act, 1938 (31 Halsbury's Statutes 586), except that (i) the equipment referred to in the present para. (a) is defined more widely than in the Act of 1938; (ii) arrangements are to be made for "dealing with calls" instead of "enabling persons to call" fire brigades; (iii) the obligation to make arrangements for manning the fire-engines no longer appears as it is considered redundant in view of the general duty to make provision for fire-fighting purposes under s. 1 (1) and of making available the services of a fire brigade under s. 1 (1) (a); and (iv) the duties of preventing and mitigating damage and of giving advice on fire prevention imposed by the present paras. (e) and (f) respectively are new. Sub-s. (2) reproduces with verbal modifications s. 1 (4) of the 1938 Act, while sub-s. 3 corresponds to s. 1 (2) of that Act, subject to the addition of the reference to the Central Fire Brigades Advisory Council and the substitution of regulations for orders.

Definitions.—"Fire authorities" are the councils of counties and county boroughs (s. 4, post) or are constituted for combined areas by schemes (s. 5 (2) (a), post). See s. 38 (1), post. Under s. 1 (1) of the Fire Brigades Act, 1938 (31 Halsbury's Statutes 586), the councils of county boroughs and county districts were fire authorities, "county districts" comprising non-county boroughs, urban districts and rural districts (Local Government Act, 1933, s. 305; 26 Halsbury's Statutes 466).

"Fire fighting purposes" comprise extinguishing fires and protecting life and property in case of fire (s. 38 (1), post).

As to "equipment," see s. 38 (1), post.

Liability of fire authorities.—Whether mere neglect to fulfil a statutory duty gives a right of action for damages thereby caused depends on the object and language of the particular statute (Atkinson v. Newcastle and Gateshead Waterworks Co. (1877), 2 Ex. D. 441, C. A.). In general, an action only lies when the statute confers a private right and does not simply impose a duty owed to the public at large (see Groves v. Lord Wimborne, [1898] 2 Q. B. 402). Authorities exercising statutory powers and duties must also use all reasonable diligence to prevent their operations from causing damage to others (Manchester Corp'n. v. Farnworth, [1930] A. C. 171).

Where a local authority, in fulfilment of a duty under s. 66 of the Public Health Act, 1875, had affixed to the wall of a street a plate intended to indicate the position of a fire plug in the water main but in fact giving a wrong indication of the plug's position with the result that, on the arrival of a fire brigade to deal with a fire, considerable delay was occasioned with consequent damage, the Court of Appeal held that the defendant authority were liable in damages to the plaintiffs for the additional loss sustained (Dawson & Co. v. Bingley Urban Council, [1911] 2 K. B. 149).

Further, the general principle has been established that statutory authority is no defence to an action for negligence, unless the particular act alleged to be negligent is authorised (see 23 Halsbury's Laws (2nd Edn.) 704, and cases there cited).

After standards of efficiency have been laid down by regulation under sub-s. (3), ante, the attaining of those standards fulfils a local authority's statutory duty under sub-s. (1); it is to be observed, however, that the provisions of sub-s. (3) extend only to the local authority's statutory duty and not to any possible liability of members of a fire brigade under the ordinary law of negligence.

Securing the services of a fire brigade.—Note that the obligation of fire authorities is merely to "make provision" for fire-fighting purposes and to "secure the services" for their area of a fire brigade, etc.; they are under no obligation to furnish the services themselves. Accordingly, as under the 1938 Act, fire authorities may discharge their obligations either:

- (a) by providing the services themselves;
- (b) by making arrangements with another fire authority or other fire authorities (s. 12 (1), post); or
- (c) by making arrangements with "other persons," i.e., independent contractors, not themselves a fire authority, or a private brigade run, for instance, in connection with a local works or colliery (s. 12 (1)), but in both cases (b) and (c) the approval of the Secretary of State is required (s. 12 (1), and see note thereto).

Calling the fire brigade.—Fire authorities are not required to make themselves generally responsible for the efficiency of arrangements for calling the fire brigade. Fire brigades have no control over the telephone system and there is no suggestion that they are required to instal fire alarms everywhere. The primary obligation of fire authorities is to deal efficiently with calls, though they should in suitable cases provide posts or some other system of call (see H. of C. Official Report, S.C.B., April 22, 1947, col. 4).

Preventing and mitigating damage.—Fire authorities should regard it as part of their duty to make a comprehensive study of their areas, particularly in training fire personnel, and to have regard to the appropriate way in which premises subject to fire shall be tackled so as to prevent as far as possible the infliction of unnecessary damage. In addition, first aid salvage should be regarded as part of the normal duty of the fire-fighting services (see H. of C. Official Report, S.C.B., April 22, 1947, col. 10).

"First-aid" salvage should be distinguished from salvage in the wider sense of removing property from premises after the extinction of fires. This function does not appear to be given to fire authorities by the Act and would normally be the duty of a Salvage Corps where one exists.

Powers of entering premises.—S. 287 of the Public Health Act, 1936 (29 Halsbury's Statutes 507), gives duly authorised officers of councils the right, on producing their authority, to enter any premises at all reasonable hours for the purposes of the section, subject to a proviso that admission to any premises not being a factory, workshop, or workplace is not to be demanded as of right unless twenty-four hours' notice of the intended entry has been given to the occupier. Provision is made for the issue of warrants by justices of the peace authorising entry upon premises, by force if need be, subject to the conditions specified in the section. By the present section this procedure is made applicable to the obtaining of information required for fire-fighting purposes in connection with the character of the buildings, available water supplies, means of access thereto and other material local circumstances. A similar right of entry was previously, by s. 1 (4) of the Fire Brigades Act, 1938 (31 Halsbury's Statutes 587), conferred not on "a member of a fire brigade" but on "an officer of a fire authority." Authorisation may be general or special (Public Health Act, 1936, s. 343 (1); 29 Halsbury's Statutes 536).

Regulations.—Up to the time of going to press, no regulations under sub-s. (3), ante, had been made. Any such regulations would require to be laid before Parliament (s. 35 (1), post).

2. Arrangements for mutual assistance.—(1) It shall be the duty of fire authorities, so far as practicable, to join in the making of schemes (hereafter in this section referred to as "reinforcement schemes") for securing the rendering of mutual assistance for the purpose of dealing with fires occurring in the areas of authorities participating in a reinforcement scheme where either—

(a) it is necessary to supplement the services provided under the last foregoing section by the authority in whose area the fire occurs, or

(b) reinforcements at any fire can be more readily obtained from the resources of other authorities participating in the scheme than from those of the authority in whose area the fire occurs. [711]

(2) Any reinforcement scheme made under the last foregoing subsection shall be notified to the Secretary of State, and the Secretary of State may direct that any such scheme notified to him shall have effect subject to such modifications as may be specified in the directions. [712]

(3) Where in the case of any fire authorities no reinforcement scheme has been made, or it appears to the Secretary of State that any such scheme is no longer satisfactory, the Secretary of State may, after affording an opportunity to all fire authorities appearing to him to be concerned to make representations to him, make a reinforcement scheme for the authorities in question. [713]

(4) A reinforcement scheme may make provision for apportioning between the fire authorities concerned, in such proportions as may be specified by or under the scheme, expenses incurred in taking measures to secure the efficient operation of the scheme. [714]

(5) A reinforcement scheme may contain such provisions requiring uniformity of equipment as appear to the Secretary of State to be necessary for the purpose of ensuring that the fire brigades affected will be able to render efficient assistance in pursuance of the scheme. [715]

(6) Where a reinforcement scheme has come into operation, it shall be the duty of the fire authorities to whom the scheme applies to carry it into effect. [716]

(7) Any reinforcement scheme may be varied by a subsequent such scheme made in the like manner and subject to the like provisions. [717]

(8) A fire authority may enter into arrangements with persons (not being other fire authorities) who maintain fire brigades to secure, on such terms as to payment or otherwise as may be provided by or under the arrangements, the provision by those persons of assistance for the purpose of dealing with fires occurring in the area of the authority where either—

(a) it is necessary to supplement the services provided by the authority under the last foregoing section, or

(b) reinforcements at any fire occurring in the area of the authority can be more readily obtained from the resources of the said persons than from the resources of the authority. [718]

(9) The Secretary of State may, for the purposes of his functions under this section, hold such public local inquiries as he thinks fit. [719]

Changes effected.—This section develops the principle of co-operation between fire authorities underlying s. 1 (5) of the Fire Brigades Act, 1938 (31 Halsbury's Statutes 587), and the co-ordination provisions of ss. 8 and 9 of the same Act, but, inter alia, substitutes for payments for assistance given the possibility of apportioning expenses incurred in measures to secure the efficient operation of reinforcement schemes. Again, the Secretary of State is to be notified directly of reinforcement schemes, and is empowered himself to effect modifications thereof and to initiate and make such schemes where none has been made by the fire authorities in question or where any schemes so made are no longer satisfactory.

For further comments on this section, see the Preliminary Note, ante.

Persons (not being other fire authorities) who maintain fire brigades.—This refers to the private fire brigades maintained not for the service of the public at large, but by individuals or firms for the protection of their own property, e.g., the Port Sunlight Brigade in Cheshire, maintained by Lever Brothers and Unilever, Ltd. and the Mines Rescue Organisation of Durham and Northumberland. Note the limited number of cases in which arrangements with private fire brigades are permitted under this section and also the wider powers conferred by s. 12, post.

Public local inquiries.—S. 290 (2), (3) and (5) of the Local Government Act, 1933 (26 Halsbury's Statutes 459), applies to any inquiry held under this section (s. 33 (2), post, and see note thereto). The Under-Secretary of State for the Home Department said in Standing Committee of the House of Commons when the present section was being discussed:

"Any Home Secretary, in exercising a power for a public inquiry, would only think of doing so when some issue in which the public is generally interested arises, something which is a matter of principle and which may constitute a leading case for other fire authorities deciding, or being called upon to decide, a similar set of circumstances" (H. of C. Official Report, S.C.B., April 22, 1947, col. 34).

Definitions.—For definitions of "fire authority" and "equipment," see s. 38 (1), post. As to "reinforcement scheme," see sub-s. (1) of the present section, ante.

3. Supplementary powers of fire authorities.—(1) The powers of a fire authority include power—

- (a) to provide accommodation for the fire brigade for their area and its equipment, including housing and other accommodation for members of the brigade and furniture reasonably required for such accommodation;
- (b) to pay to persons, not being members of a fire brigade maintained in pursuance of this Act, who render services for fire-fighting purposes such rewards as the authority think fit;
- (c) to provide and maintain fire alarms in such positions in any street or public place as they think proper, and to affix any such fire alarm to any wall or fence adjoining a street or public place;
- (d) to employ the fire brigade maintained by them, or use any equipment so maintained, outside their area;
- (e) to employ the fire brigade maintained by them, or use any equipment so maintained by them, or use any equipment so maintained, for purposes other than fire-fighting purposes for which it appears to the authority to be suitable and, if they think fit, to make such charge as they may determine for any services rendered in the course of such employment or use. [720]

(2) Before exercising the powers conferred by paragraph (c) of the last foregoing subsection in relation to any trunk road a fire authority shall obtain the consent of the Minister of Transport, and before exercising those powers in relation to any road maintained by a highway authority, other than the Minister of Transport or the fire authority, they shall obtain the consent of the highway authority maintaining the road; and—

- (a) without prejudice to the foregoing provisions of this subsection, the said powers shall not be exercised in a county district except after consultation with the council of the county district,
- (b) the said powers shall not be exercised except after consultation with the chief officer of police for the area in which the fire alarms are to be placed,
- (c) nothing in the said paragraph (c) shall affect any privilege conferred on the Postmaster General by the Telegraph Act, 1869. [721]

(3) Before making any standing arrangements for the exercise of the powers conferred by paragraph (e) of subsection (1) of this section, a fire authority shall obtain the approval of the Secretary of State to the proposed arrangements unless they have been approved by the Minister in charge of any other Government department. [722]

(4) Save as expressly provided in this Act, a fire authority shall not make any charge for services rendered by the authority. [723]

(5) A fire authority may be authorised by the Minister of Health to purchase compulsorily any land, whether situate within or without the area of the authority, which is required by them for the purposes of their functions under this Act, and the Acquisition of Land (Authorisation Procedure) Act, 1946, shall apply as if this Act had been in force immediately before the commencement of that Act :

Provided that section two of that Act (which confers temporary powers for speedy acquisition of land in urgent cases) shall not apply to any compulsory purchase of land under this Act. [724]

Changes effected.—This section corresponds to s. 1 (6) and (8) of the Fire Brigades Act, 1938 (31 Halsbury's Statutes 587), but modifies the position in several respects. In particular, the provision of the earlier Act allowing payment to members of a fire brigade in addition to their remuneration is expressly negatived, while the power to make payments to outside brigades in respect of fire services provided for the area is carried over, in altered form, to the present s. 12, post. A new provision appears allowing fire brigades and their equipment to be used for other suitable purposes with power to charge for services so rendered subject to Government sanction for any standing arrangement for such use. The provisions for compulsory acquisition are brought up to date.

Employing fire brigades in trade disputes.—The Home Secretary assured the Standing Committee of the House of Commons dealing with the Bill that in the regulations to be issued for the government of the fire service specific instructions would be given to fire authorities not to allow fire personnel "to be employed as a means of compulsion" during the course of a trade dispute. Otherwise men in the fire service are ordinary local government employees under neither greater nor less obligation with regard to assisting the civil power than ordinary citizens (H. of C. Official Report, S.C.B., April 24, 1947, cols. 56, 58).

Purposes other than fire-fighting.—Note that under sub-s. (1) (e) of this section, first, no consent is necessary, and secondly, there is power to charge. It is only when standing arrangements are made that the approval of the Secretary of State under sub-s. (3) or other Government department is necessary. The effect of this is that all "emergency" acts, such as bringing a child down from a tree or liberating a trapped person from under a tramcar, can be performed without prior approval. The kind of standing arrangement envisaged is for the manning of ambulances by members of fire brigades. In a statement made in the House of Commons on the Re-commitment of the Bill, the Home Secretary pointed out that the primary responsibility for ambulance services rests on the Minister of Health. He hoped that it would be possible in the great majority of cases to arrange that the fire services personnel would be able to drive and to man the ambulances (see now Ministry of Health Circular 109/47, title NATIONAL HEALTH AND UNEMPLOYMENT INSURANCE, post). The Home Secretary added that if the Minister of Health gave his sanction for any scheme of amalgamating the fire brigade and ambulance service it would not be necessary for a separate approach to be made to the Home Office (438 H. of C. Official Report 1373-1376).

Apart from these cases involving another Government department the reason for the requirement to submit standing arrangements to the Secretary of State for approval is to prevent fire brigades being used regularly for purposes which might interfere with their work as fire brigades (see H. of C. Official Report, S.C.B., April 24, 1947, cols. 41-44). The power to charge can be used to prevent persons obtaining extra-fire services "on the cheap."

Trunk road.—The Trunk Roads Act, 1936 (29 Halsbury's Statutes 183), constituted 4,459 miles of roads trunk roads for which the Minister of Transport was to be highway authority. By the Trunk Roads Act, 1946 (39 Halsbury's Statutes 149), a further 3,685 miles of roads were declared trunk roads and the Minister of Transport was empowered to constitute additional trunk roads or exclude those no longer required as might be expedient for re-organising the national system of routes for through traffic.

An important change brought about by s. 1 (3) of the Act of 1946 was to repeal the provision of the Act of 1936 by which no road in a county borough was to be a trunk road. A county borough fire authority under the present Act will, therefore, have to obtain the consent of the Minister of Transport before providing fire alarms in a trunk road passing through its area.

Telegraph Act, 1869.—S. 4 of this Act (19 Halsbury's Statutes 252), confers on the Postmaster General, subject to an exception in the case of messages despatched for private use without payment, the exclusive privilege of transmitting telegrams within the United Kingdom, including any message or other communication transmitted by any apparatus for transmission by electric signals. The rights of the Postmaster General extend over all messages and communications (a) sent by means of electric signals, and (b) in which wire is an essential part, even though electricity is not used. A telephone was held to be a "telegraph" (A.-G. v. Edison Telephone Co. (1880), 6 Q. B. D. 244). In Postmaster General v. National Telephone Co., Ltd., [1909] A. C. 321, the House of Lords rejected a suggestion that fire alarm signals operated from street boxes and maintained by a local authority were outside the privileges of the Postmaster General. Bevir on the Fire Brigades Act, 1938, states at p. 8 :—

“Call-bell circuits which provide communication between firemen's residences and the fire station only are outside the scope of the Postmaster General's monopoly. The local authority which desires to make its own arrangements for the installation of a public fire alarm system is not refused permission by the Postmaster General subject to the recognition of his monopoly. There are a number of such systems erected and maintained by private contractors, but the majority of public fire alarm systems throughout the country have been erected and are maintained by the Post Office.”

Acquisition of Land (Authorisation Procedure) Act, 1946.—This Act (39 Halsbury's Statutes 52) provides a uniform procedure for authorising the compulsory acquisition of land by local authorities, though the speedy procedure of s. 2 of that Act is not to apply by virtue of sub-s. (5) of the present section. For the detailed provisions, see s. 1 and Sched. I to the Act of 1946. Inasmuch as the term “fire authority” includes a fire authority constituted under a combination scheme under s. 5 or 6, post, the right of compulsory acquisition may be made applicable to such an authority under the present subsection. Note the effect on any compulsory acquisition under the present subsection of Part VIII of the Requisitioned Land and War Works Act, 1945 (38 Halsbury's Statutes 614 et seq.), as applied and extended by paragraph 18 of Sched. V, post (and see note thereto).

A somewhat similar right of compulsory acquisition obtains under ss. 5 (3) and 15 of the Police Act, 1946 (39 Halsbury's Statutes 621, 631), as amended by s. 6 of and Sched. IV to the Acquisition of Land (Authorisation Procedure) Act, 1946.

Definitions.—For definitions of “fire authority,” “equipment,” “fire-fighting purposes” and “street,” see s. 38 (1), post.

Fire Authorities

4. County and county borough councils to be fire authorities.—As from the appointed day the Fire Brigades Act, 1938, and any other enactment passed before the passing of this Act in so far as it confers on the council of a county district functions for fire-fighting purposes, shall cease to have effect, and the council of every county and county borough shall, subject to the provisions of this Act, be the fire authority for the area of the council :

Provided that nothing in this section shall affect any functions relating to fire prevention, restricting the spread of fires, or means of escape in case of fire, being functions conferred on a council otherwise than as an authority maintaining a fire brigade. [725]

Appointed day.—S. 38 (1), post, provides that “appointed day” means such day as the Secretary of State may by order appoint. On February 23, 1948, the Secretary of State, under s. 38 (1), post, appointed April 1, 1948, as the appointed day for England and Wales for the purposes of the present Act (see S.I. 1948 No. 325).

Fire Brigades Act, 1938.—31 Halsbury's Statutes 585.

Proviso.—Functions in relation to fire prevention are exercisable by county district councils by or under other statutes, e.g., in connection with cinemas and with factories, the last named being under ss. 34 and 35 of the Factories Act, 1937 (30 Halsbury's Statutes 229 et seq.) ; the proviso to this section operates to preserve those duties.

5. Voluntary schemes for combination of fire authorities.—(1) If it appears to any two or more fire authorities that it is expedient that their areas should be combined for fire-fighting purposes, they may submit to the Secretary of State a scheme in that behalf (hereafter in this Act referred to as a “combination scheme”) and the Secretary of State may by order approve any combination scheme submitted to him. [726]

(2) Subject to the provisions of this Act, a combination scheme shall make provision with respect to the following matters, that is to say—

(a) the constitution of an authority as the fire authority for the combined area and the establishment of a fire brigade therefor, the transfer to that brigade of members of fire brigades maintained by the constituent authorities and the appointment as first chief officer of the brigade established by the scheme of such person as may be specified therein ;

(b) the payment of the expenses of the fire authority constituted by the scheme out of a combined fire service fund constituted in accordance with the provisions of the scheme ;

- (c) the payment into the combined fire service fund, out of the local funds of the constituent areas, of contributions assessed in accordance with the provisions of the scheme for meeting liabilities imposed on that fund by or under the scheme ;
- (d) the transfer to the fire authority constituted by the scheme of such property, rights and liabilities of the constituent authorities (being property, rights and liabilities held or incurred in connection with the provision of fire services, as may be determined by or under the scheme, or the use by the fire authority constituted by the scheme of any such property) the appointment of officers of that fire authority (including a clerk to that authority and a treasurer of the combined fire service fund) and the transfer to that authority of such officers of the constituent authorities as may be determined by or under the scheme ;
- (e) the payment, by such authority and subject to such provisions as may be provided by the scheme, of compensation to persons employed by any of the constituent authorities who in consequence of the scheme or anything done thereunder suffer direct pecuniary loss by reason of the determination of their appointments or the diminution of their emoluments ;
- (f) in the case of persons who, having immediately before the coming into operation of the scheme been chief officers of fire brigades maintained by any of the constituent authorities, do not on the coming into operation thereof become chief officer of the fire brigade established by the scheme, for the payment in lieu of compensation under the last foregoing paragraph of emoluments, and of pensions, gratuities or allowances, of such amounts, subject to such conditions, and by such authority as may be provided by the scheme, and may provide for any other matters incidental to or consequential on the provisions of the scheme. [727]

Analogy with the police.—The provisions of this section are analogous to those of s. 3 of the Police Act, 1946 (39 Halsbury's Statutes 619), in relation to voluntary amalgamation schemes under that section, but there is a distinction between former chief officers of fire brigades and displaced chief constables.

Approval by order.—S. 35, post, does not apply to orders by the Secretary of State under sub-s. (1) of this section, and accordingly it is unnecessary to lay such orders before Parliament.

Definitions.—For definitions of " fire authority " and " fire-fighting purposes," see s. 38 (1), post.

6. Power of Secretary of State to make combination schemes.—(1) Subject to the provisions of this section, if it appears to the Secretary of State that it is expedient in the interests of efficiency that a combination scheme should be made for the areas of any two or more fire authorities, and no scheme satisfactory to him has been submitted to him by the fire authorities for those areas under the last foregoing section, the Secretary of State may for that purpose by order make such scheme as he considers expedient, and the provisions of subsection (2) of the last foregoing section shall apply in relation to any such scheme as they apply in relation to a scheme made under that section :

Provided that where the population of a county or county borough, as estimated by the Registrar General, is one hundred thousand or upwards, then except with the consent of the council of the county or borough no scheme shall be made by the Secretary of State under this section for the combination of the county or borough with any area or areas of a fire authority or authorities of which the population or aggregate population, as so estimated, exceeds that of the county or borough. [728]

(2) Where the Secretary of State proposes to make a scheme under this section, he shall give to the fire authorities concerned notice of the general nature of the proposed scheme ; and unless those authorities give him notice that they assent thereto, he shall cause a public local inquiry to be held by a person appointed by him, not being an officer of a fire authority or of any Government department. [729]

(3) The Secretary of State shall lay before each House of Parliament a draft of any scheme proposed to be made by him under this section, and, where a local inquiry has been held under this section with respect thereto, shall lay together with the draft a copy of the report of the person by whom the inquiry was held ; and if either House within the period of forty days beginning with the day on which the draft scheme is laid before it resolves that the scheme be not made, no further proceedings shall be taken thereon, but without prejudice to the laying before Parliament of a new draft scheme.

In reckoning any such period of forty days as aforesaid, no account shall be taken of any time during which Parliament is dissolved or prorogued or during which both Houses are adjourned for more than four days. [730]

Effect of section.—This section closely follows the pattern of s. 4 of the Police Act, 1946 (39 Halsbury's Statutes 620). The proviso to sub-s. (1) is intended to prevent a compulsory combination scheme being made the effect of which would be to force a county or county borough whose population is at least 100,000 into combination with one or more fire authorities whose aggregate population exceeds that of the county or county borough. In Standing Committee of the House of Commons the Home Secretary stated that in the main he proposed to wait until the Local Government Boundary Commission had reported before he resorted to compulsion, though that did not mean he did not welcome voluntary arrangements in the meantime (H. of C. Official Report, S.C.B., May 1, 1947, col. 142).

Order of the Secretary of State.—S. 35, post, does not apply to orders by the Secretary of State under sub-s. (1) of this section and accordingly it is unnecessary to lay such orders before Parliament.

Public local inquiry.—S. 290 (2), (3) and (5) of the Local Government Act, 1933 (26 Halsbury's Statutes 459), applies to any inquiry held under this section (s. 33 (2), post, and see note thereto).

Laying a draft scheme before Parliament.—As from the commencement of that Act, s. 6 (2) of the Statutory Instruments Act, 1946 (39 Halsbury's Statutes 787), applied to schemes proposed to be made under this section, and the substituted provisions of sub-s. (1) thereof accordingly became applicable. The Statutory Instruments Act, 1946, was brought into full operation on January 1, 1948, by S.I. 1948 No. 3.

Definitions.—As to the construction of "combination scheme," see s. 5 (1), ante. For definition of "fire authority," see s. 4, ante, and s. 38 (1), pos.

7. Appointment of joint committees by fire authorities.—(1) A joint committee under section ninety-one of the Local Government Act, 1933, shall not be appointed for the purposes of this Act without the prior approval of the Secretary of State. [731]

(2) For the avoidance of doubt it is hereby declared that a combination scheme may be submitted and approved under section five of this Act or may be made under section six thereof notwithstanding that a joint committee under the said section ninety-one has been appointed for fire service purposes for all or some of the areas in respect of which the combination scheme is submitted or made. [732]

Local Government Act, 1933, s. 91.—26 Halsbury's Statutes 355. This section gives local authorities a general residuary power to concur with any one or more other local authorities in appointing from amongst their respective members a joint committee of those authorities for any purpose in which they are jointly interested, with power to delegate to the committee so appointed. This power still holds, in relation to fire service purposes, notwithstanding the power to make voluntary combination schemes under s. 5, ante, but the prior approval of the Secretary of State is now required. As to the distinction between joint committees and fire authorities constituted by combination schemes, see note to s. 8, post.

Approval of joint committee.—On the question of approval, the Home Secretary intimated in Standing Committee of the House of Commons that, where a joint committee was desired, he saw no reason why the Secretary of State, after examining the circumstances and, in particular, the circumstances in which it could be dissolved, should withhold his approval, but he must be assured that the fire arrangements were sufficiently permanent to enable him to feel that it was a preferable way of dealing with the matter to that of combination. Great importance was attached to provision in the scheme for long-term notice of breaking-up the joint committee to be established. For details, see H. of C. Official Report, S.C.B., May 1, 1947, col. 144.

8. Constitution and powers of fire authorities constituted by combination schemes.—(1) A fire authority constituted by a combination scheme shall consist of such representatives of each of the constituent areas as may be prescribed by the scheme, and every such authority shall be a body corporate by such name as may be prescribed by the scheme with a common seal and with power to hold land without licence in mortmain. [733]

(2) Provision may be made by a combination scheme for applying in relation to the constitution and proceedings of the fire authority thereby constituted, and in relation to the officers of that authority, any of the provisions of Parts II to IV of the Local Government Act, 1933 (which contain general provisions as to members, committees and officers of local authorities), subject to such modifications as may be prescribed by the scheme. [734]

(3) The Acquisition of Land (Authorisation Procedure) Act, 1946, and the provisions of the Local Government Act, 1933, with respect to the acquisition of land by agreement and the appropriation and disposal of land shall apply to fire authorities constituted by combination schemes as they apply to fire authorities being councils of counties or county boroughs, and accordingly references in the said Act of 1946 and the said provisions of the said Act of 1933 to local authorities shall include references to fire authorities constituted by combination schemes. [735]

(4) For the purposes of the discharge of their functions under a combination scheme, the fire authority constituted by the scheme shall have the powers of the council of a county or county borough in relation to the borrowing of money for fire service purposes, and the provisions of Part IX of the Local Government Act, 1933, and of any other enactment relating to the borrowing of money by local authorities shall apply accordingly, subject to such adaptations and modifications as may be prescribed by the scheme. [736]

(5) The accounts of every fire authority constituted by a combination scheme shall be subject to audit by a district auditor under Part X of the Local Government Act, 1933. [737]

(6) A fire authority constituted by a combination scheme may, if so authorised by the scheme, make arrangements with any constituent authority for the use by the fire authority of the services of officers and servants of the constituent authority and for the making of contracts and payments on behalf of the fire authority by the constituent authority. [738]

(7) The Local Government Superannuation Act, 1937, shall have effect as if a fire authority constituted by a combination scheme were included among the local authorities specified in Part I of the First Schedule to that Act, and in relation to contributory employees of such a fire authority the appropriate superannuation fund for the purposes of that Act shall be such fund as may be determined by or under the scheme. [739]

(8) For the purposes of section nine of the Superannuation Act, 1935 (which makes provision for civil servants entering the service of a local authority and officers of a local authority becoming civil servants) a fire authority constituted by a combination scheme shall be deemed to be a local authority. [740]

Analogy with the police.—This section runs in parallel with s. 5 of the Police Act, 1946 (39 Halsbury's Statutes 621), except that sub-s. (8) of the present section does not there appear. The object of allowing the inclusion of Parts II to IV of the Local Government Act, 1933 (see infra), in the said s. 5 (and, by implication, in the present section) was to allow the imposition of penalties.

Body corporate.—By constituting a fire authority under a combination scheme a body corporate the authority is placed on a like footing to that of a county council who are a body corporate by statute (Local Government Act, 1933, s. 2 (2) ; 26 Halsbury's Statutes 307). The position of councils of county boroughs who also are to be fire authorities under s. 4 of this Act is different ; the council of a county borough is not incorporated but the inhabitants of the borough are incorporated to constitute a municipal corporation which is capable of acting by the council (see Municipal Corporations Act, 1882, ss. 6, 7 ; 10 Halsbury's Statutes 577 ; Local Government Act, 1933, s. 17 ; 26 Halsbury's Statutes 313). Joint committees, referred to in s. 7 of this Act, have not corporate capacity.

Licence in mortmain.—The Mortmain and Charitable Uses Acts, 1888 and 1891, as amended by the Mortmain and Charitable Uses Act Amendment Act, 1892 (2 Halsbury's Statutes 385, 396, 398), prohibit the assurance of land to bodies corporate except under royal licence or with statutory authority.

Local Government Act, 1933, Parts II to IV.—26 Halsbury's Statutes 333 to 372. These are the general provisions governing the working of local authorities.

Acquisition and disposal of land.—The Acquisition of Land (Authorisation Procedure) Act, 1946 (39 Halsbury's Statutes 52), provides a uniform procedure for authorising the compulsory acquisition of land by local authorities and its provisions are here extended to fire authorities constituted by combination schemes, though they would appear to be applicable without further mention by the combined effect of s. 3 (5), ante, and the definition of "fire authority" in s. 38 (1), post. In any case the speedy procedure of s. 2 of the Act of 1946 does not apply, as the proviso to s. 3 (5), ante, negatives its application "to any compulsory purchase of land under this Act" and not merely under that section.

The provisions of the Local Government Act, 1933, as to the acquisition of land by agreement and the appropriation and disposal of land are contained in Part VII of that Act (26 Halsbury's Statutes 391 et seq.); see, in particular, ss. 157, 158 and 163-166. The detailed provisions of Part VII as to compulsory acquisition are now superseded by the Act of 1946 (see s. 6 thereof and Sched. IV thereto; 39 Halsbury's Statutes 60, 69).

Borrowing of money.—The Local Government Act, 1933, Part IX (26 Halsbury's Statutes 412 et seq.), sets out the general provisions as to borrowing applicable to local authorities, including county and county borough councils.

Audit by a district auditor.—The Local Government Act, 1933, Part X (26 Halsbury's Statutes 424 et seq.), makes detailed provision by s. 219 thereof for the audit by district auditors of accounts of, inter alia, county councils, certain committees thereof and "any other accounts which are made subject to audit by a district auditor by virtue of any enactment or statutory order. . . ."

Local Government Superannuation Act, 1937, Sched. I, Part I.—30 Halsbury's Statutes 419. The effect of the inclusion in this Part of fire authorities constituted by combination schemes is to make certain employees of such authorities compulsorily superannuable. The term "contributory employees" appearing in sub-s. (7) of the present section is defined in s. 3 (1) of the Act of 1937.

Superannuation Act, 1935, s. 9.—28 Halsbury's Statutes 302.

9. Amendment and revocation of combination schemes.—(1) A combination scheme approved or made under section five or section six of this Act may be amended or revoked by a subsequent scheme approved or made under those sections, and the foregoing provisions of this Act shall, so far as applicable, have effect in relation to any such amending or revoking scheme subject to any necessary modifications and to the following provisions of this section. [741]

(2) Without prejudice to the generality of the provisions of subsection (1) of this section, provision may be made by any such subsequent scheme—

- (a) for the division of the combined area into any two or more areas for the purposes of this Act, being either counties or county boroughs or combined areas constituted by the subsequent scheme, or for the inclusion in the combined area of the area of any other fire authority;
- (b) for the dissolution of any fire authority constituted by the original scheme, and the winding-up of any combined fire service fund established thereunder, or for the reconstitution of any such authority or fund;
- (c) for the transfer or re-transfer to such fire brigades as may be determined by the subsequent scheme of members of the fire brigade established by the original scheme;
- (d) for the transfer or re-transfer to such authorities as may be determined by the subsequent scheme of any officers, property, rights or liabilities of the fire authority constituted by the original scheme;
- (e) for any other matters incidental to or consequential on the provisions of the subsequent scheme. [742]

(3) The authority or authorities by whom a scheme for the amendment or the revocation of a combination scheme or schemes may be submitted to the Secretary of State under subsection (1) of section five of this Act shall be the fire authority or authorities constituted by the scheme or schemes to be amended or revoked, together, in the case of an amending scheme which provides for the inclusion in a combined area of the area of a fire authority other than one constituted by a combination scheme, with that fire authority; and references to fire authorities in subsection (1) of section five of this Act shall be construed accordingly. [743]

(4) The authorities to whom, under subsection (2) of section six of this Act, notice must be given by the Secretary of State of a scheme proposed to be made by him for the amendment or revocation of a combination scheme or schemes shall be the authority or authorities by whom a scheme for that purpose might have been submitted by virtue of the last foregoing subsection, and the council of any county and the council of any county borough comprised in the combined area constituted by the original scheme or schemes. [744]

Analogy with the police.—This section closely follows the provisions of s. 6 (1) to (4) of the Police Act, 1946 (39 Halsbury's Statutes 622, 623).

Approved or made under those sections.—Except as otherwise provided, any amending or revoking scheme is to be made under the same conditions as an original combination scheme. It follows that a voluntary amending or revoking scheme must be submitted to the Secretary of State for approval under s. 5 (1), ante, while sub-s. (3) of the present section seeks to meet the particular circumstances in which such a scheme would be submitted, and sub-s. (4) of the present section adapts the machinery of s. 6, ante, where the Secretary of State is desirous of making a compulsory amending or revoking scheme.

As to sub-s. (3), note that the original constituent authorities are not included in those who may submit an amending or revoking scheme. An amendment which would have permitted this was moved in Standing Committee of the House of Commons (see H. of C. Official Report, S.C.B., May 1, 1947, cols. 147-149), but was withdrawn when the Home Secretary pointed out that, as a matter of general principle, any local authority may approach the Secretary of State at any time. A further reason given by the Government for their reluctance to accept the amendment was the necessity of securing reasonable permanence in combination schemes, especially those created compulsorily.

10. Power to make schemes in advance of alterations of local government areas.—If an order is made under the Local Government (Boundary Commission) Act, 1945, constituting any area as a new county or county borough as from a date specified in the order, a combination scheme may be made under this Act with respect to that area before that date but so as to come into operation on or after that date; and in relation to such a scheme the provisions of this Act shall apply subject to any necessary modifications and as if for references to the fire authority there were substituted references to the fire authority for any county, county borough or combined area of which the whole or any part is to be comprised in the new county or county borough. [745]

Local Government (Boundary Commission) Act, 1945.—38 Halsbury's Statutes 314. This Act established a Local Government Boundary Commission charged with the duty of reviewing and, where expedient, altering local government areas in England and Wales. Provisional proposals of the Commission for some areas have already been announced.

On or after that date.—This section follows the general lines of s. 7 of the Police Act, 1946 (39 Halsbury's Statutes 623); minor variations include "on or after that date" in the present section as against "at that date" in the said s. 7.

Operation of the section.—The Home Secretary said in Standing Committee of the House of Commons on May 1, 1947 :—

"I will give an assurance that no action detrimental to a newly created authority will be taken without consulting those authorities who will be succeeded by the new authority when it is created, and every effort will be made, if it is necessary to exercise the powers under this clause, to make sure that what is done is done in accordance with the wishes of the inhabitants of the district concerned. I do not anticipate that the power will be used in many cases, if at all, but I know that the Boundary Commission feel that it is a power which should be available" (H. of C. Official Report, S.C.B., May 1, 1947, cols. 150-151).

11. Adaptation of local Acts relating to fire services.—(1) Where, by any local Act in force with respect to an area of any local authority which ceases to be a separate authority for fire-fighting purposes by virtue of this Act or of a scheme thereunder, provision is made for conferring or imposing special powers or duties on persons employed for such purposes by that authority, the Secretary of State may by order adapt the local Act so far as appears to him to be necessary or expedient for the purpose of the exercise or performance of those powers or duties by persons so employed by the fire authority for the county comprising that area, or for the combined area, as the case may be :

Provided that nothing in this subsection or in any order made in accordance therewith shall be construed as extending the area within which or the matters in relation to which any such powers or duties as aforesaid are authorised or required by the local Act to be exercised or performed. [746]

(2) As, from the appointed day any reference in any enactment passed before the passing of this Act and for the time being in force to a fire brigade (by whatever name described) maintained by an authority which is an authority for fire-fighting purposes by virtue of this Act shall be construed as a reference to the brigade maintained by the authority in pursuance of this Act. [747]

(3) Any order under subsection (1) of this section may be varied or revoked by a subsequent order thereunder made in the like manner and subject to the like provisions. [748]

Adapting local Acts.—The general power of adaptation here conferred on the Secretary of State is necessitated by the wide variation in the provisions of the local Acts applying in particular districts. The Local Government Act, 1933, s. 148 (1) (e) (26 Halsbury's Statutes 386), makes a somewhat similar provision, while sub-ss. (1) and (3) of the present section, read in conjunction with s. 35, post, follow generally the model of s. 8 of the Police Act, 1946 (39 Halsbury's Statutes 623, 624). Note that under the proviso to sub-s. (1), ante, any extension of the areas or subject-matter to which the local provisions apply would be ultra vires the Secretary of State.

Order of the Secretary of State.—Any orders under sub-s. (1), ante, require to be laid before Parliament under s. 35, post (and see note thereto).

Definitions.—As to "fire-fighting purposes," "fire authority" and "appointed day," see s. 38 (1), post.

12. Discharge of functions of fire authorities through other fire authorities or persons.—(1) A fire authority may make arrangements with any other fire authority or other persons who maintain a fire brigade so as to secure, by the provision of services by the other fire authority or persons, the discharge of all or any of the first-mentioned fire authority's functions under this Act in respect of all or any part of its area, and arrangements under this subsection may make provision with respect to the terms as to payments or otherwise on which the services in question are to be provided :

Provided that no arrangements shall take effect under this subsection unless submitted to and approved by the Secretary of State. [749]

(2) Where any fire authority have requested another fire authority to enter into arrangements under the last foregoing subsection, and the other fire authority are unwilling to do so, or the authorities cannot agree as to the extent of the services to be provided under such arrangements or the terms on which they are to be provided, the first-mentioned authority may request the Secretary of State to determine what arrangements, if any, should be made for the provision of services by the other fire authority. [750]

(3) Where in the case of any fire authority no arrangements approved by the Secretary of State under subsection (1) of this section are in force and it appears to the Secretary of State expedient with a view to securing greater efficiency or economy that it is for consideration whether such arrangements should be entered into with any other authority, he may give notice to the authorities accordingly. [751]

(4) Where a request is made to the Secretary of State under subsection (2) of this section, or notice is given by the Secretary of State under the last foregoing subsection, he shall afford an opportunity to the fire authorities concerned to make representations and, if he thinks fit or if any of those authorities request him so to do, shall cause a public local inquiry to be held. [752]

(5) If the Secretary of State is satisfied, after considering any representations made under the last foregoing subsection and, if an inquiry is held, the report of the person by whom the inquiry was held, that it is expedient with a view to securing greater efficiency or economy that arrangements should be made for the provision of services as mentioned in subsection (1) of this section, he may direct that the fire authorities shall enter into such arrangements as may be specified in the direction. [753]

Changes effected.—Sub-s. (1) of this section reproduces in developed form s. 1 (3) of the Fire Brigades Act, 1938 (31 Halsbury's Statutes 586), but now makes necessary the approval of the Secretary of State. The rest of the section corresponds to s. 10 (1) and (2) of the earlier Act, the function of the Fire Service Commission being taken over by the Secretary of State directly and that Minister being given power to take the initiative where no approved arrangements under the section are in force.

Discharge of functions.—See note to s. 1, ante. The provisions of sub-s. (1) of the present section should be distinguished from those of s. 2 (8), ante. The former are general, they allow arrangements both with other fire authorities and with private brigades, and the approval of the Secretary of State is required; the latter are limited to supplementing and reinforcing, they do not allow arrangements with other fire authorities (this being dealt with earlier in the same section), and no ministerial approval is required. Both, however, are permissive (see also the Preliminary Note, ante).

Approval of arrangements under sub-s. (1).—The Secretary of State has power to decline to sanction any arrangements with "other persons," i.e., with those responsible for private fire brigades, and has indicated that he will exercise this power where he is of opinion that conditions of service of the men in private employment are such that they ought not to be used to relieve the fire authority's service or that the men should have a certain statutory guarantee in regard to pensions (see H. of C. Official Report, S.C.B., May 1, 1947, cols. 152-156).

Powers in default.—Sub-s. (1) applies to arrangements (a) with other fire authorities, and (b) with those responsible for private fire brigades; but the rest of the section applies solely to case (a). It follows that the powers of the Secretary of State under sub-s. (2) to determine what arrangements should be made and under sub-s. (5) to direct arrangements to be entered into apply only to arrangements between two fire authorities, and the Secretary of State has no power under this section to direct arrangements with the organisers of private brigades.

Public local inquiry.—S. 290 (2), (3) and (5) of the Local Government Act, 1933 (26 Halsbury's Statutes 459), applies to any inquiry held under this section (s. 33 (2), post, and see note thereto).

Supply of water for fire-fighting

13. Duty of fire authorities to ensure supply of water for fire-fighting.—

A fire authority shall take all reasonable measures for ensuring the provision of an adequate supply of water, and for securing that it will be available for use, in case of fire. [754]

Extent of liability.—The obligation upon fire authorities under this section is considerably less onerous than are those imposed by s. 1, ante, in view of the physical difficulty of securing an adequate water supply in some localities. Nevertheless, the duty under this section is wider than under the Fire Brigades Act, 1938 (see ss. 2 and 3 thereof; 31 Halsbury's Statutes 588, 589).

14. Supply of water by statutory undertakers.—(1) For the purposes of the last foregoing section, a fire authority may enter into an agreement with statutory water undertakers for the taking by the undertakers, on such terms as to payment or otherwise as may be specified in the agreement, of such measures as may be so specified for securing that an adequate supply of water will be available in case of fire; and no water undertakers shall unreasonably refuse to enter into any agreement proposed by a fire authority under this subsection.

Any question whether statutory water undertakers have unreasonably refused to enter into an agreement under this subsection shall be determined by the Minister of Health. [755]

(2) Without prejudice to the generality of the last foregoing subsection, a fire authority, if satisfied that the existing supply of water provided by any statutory water undertakers for domestic and industrial purposes would be likely to be inadequate in case of fire, may enter into an agreement with the undertakers under the last foregoing subsection for the provision of such additional supply of water as may be specified in the agreement. [756]

(3) Sections thirty-two to thirty-four of the Third Schedule to the Water Act, 1945 (which require undertakers at the expense of the fire authority to provide hydrants) shall apply to all statutory water undertakers, and shall so apply in substitution for any other provision having effect for the purposes of those sections by virtue of any enactment; and—

(a) undertakers shall at the expense of the fire authority cause the situation of every fire hydrant provided by the undertakers to be plainly indicated by a notice or distinguishing mark, which may be placed on any wall or fence adjoining a street or public place;

- (b) where any such hydrant is damaged as the result of any use made of it, with the authority of the undertakers, not being a use for fire-fighting purposes or for any other purposes of a fire brigade maintained in pursuance of this Act, the fire authority shall not be liable for the cost of repairing or replacing the hydrant incurred as the result of the damage. [757]

(4) Section thirty-eight of the Third Schedule to the Water Act, 1945 (which provides for penalties for breaches of obligations under Part VIII of that Schedule) shall apply to any breach of an obligation of undertakers under subsection (1) or (3) of this section or under an agreement entered into in pursuance of the said subsection (1). [758]

(5) Any person who uses a fire hydrant, otherwise than for fire-fighting purposes or for any other purposes of a fire brigade maintained in pursuance of this Act or for any purpose authorised by the undertakers or other persons to whom the hydrant belongs, or who damages or obstructs any fire hydrant, otherwise than in consequence of its use for any such purpose as aforesaid, shall be liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding ten pounds. [759]

(6) The Secretary of State may, after consultation with the Central Fire Brigades Advisory Council constituted under this Act, make regulations providing for uniformity in fire hydrants provided by statutory water undertakers and in the notices or marks indicating their situation; and in any case to which regulations under this subsection apply such undertakers shall not be deemed to have complied with their obligations under subsection (3) of this section and the enactments therein referred to unless the hydrants, notices or marks provided by them conform with the regulations. [760]

(7) In this and the next following section the expression "statutory water undertakers" has the same meaning as in the provisions of the Water Act, 1945, other than Part II thereof; and references in this section to any provision of the Third Schedule to that Act shall include references to any other provision of that Schedule (whether as to the giving of notices, the enforcement of obligations, or otherwise) ancillary thereto. [761]

Changes effected.—S. 2 (6) of the Fire Brigades Act, 1938 (31 Halsbury's Statutes 589), empowered fire authorities to enter into agreements with any water company or person for securing an adequate supply of water in case of fire. The present section and that following elaborate this power, dividing it into the two categories of supply (a) by statutory undertakers, and (b) by other persons.

Unreasonable refusal.—Where statutory undertakers are alleged to have unreasonably refused to enter into an agreement with a fire authority under sub-s. (1) the question will be submitted to and determined by the Minister of Health, and if the Minister holds that unreasonable refusal has been established, the water undertakers will have committed a breach of statutory duty, to which, by sub-s. (4) of the present section, the penalties of s. 38 of Sched. III to the Water Act, 1945 (38 Halsbury's Statutes 555), apply. See, generally, notes to s. 1, ante.

Water Act, 1945.—For Part VIII and ss. 32 to 34 and 38 of Sched. III thereto, see 38 Halsbury's Statutes 554 and 555. Sched. III to the Water Act contains a new Waterworks Code in substitution for that contained in the Waterworks Clauses Acts, 1847 and 1863 (20 Halsbury's Statutes 186, 220). S. 32 of the Water Act itself (38 Halsbury's Statutes 519) authorises the application of this Code by order of the Minister of Health, but the effect of the application of part of the Code by the present section is to dispense with the safeguards of s. 32, e.g., as to modifying and adapting local Acts before June 14, 1950. "Any enactment" includes a local Act.

Penalties for breach of obligations.—As to the effect of imposing specific penalties, see Atkinson v. Newcastle and Gateshead Waterworks Co. (1877), 2 Ex. D. 441, and note to s. 1 ante.

Note that the maximum penalties provided by s. 38 of Sched. III to the Water Act (38 Halsbury's Statutes 555), are a fine not exceeding £50 and a further fine not exceeding £5 for each day during which the failure of statutory undertakers to comply with their obligations continues after notice thereof, but prevention by frost, drought, unavoidable accident or other unavoidable cause or the execution of necessary works is a good defence. Note that failure to comply with regulations providing for uniformity in fire hydrants attracts these penalties through the operation of sub-s. (6) of the present section.

Central Fire Brigades Advisory Council.—See s. 29, post.

Regulations of the Secretary of State.—Up to the time of going to press no regulations had been made under sub-s. (6). Any such regulations require to be laid before Parliament (s. 35 (1), post, and see note thereto).

"Statutory water undertakers."—S. 59 (1) of the Water Act, 1945 (38 Halsbury's Statutes 534), defines this term as meaning "any company, local authority, board, committee or other person supplying water under an enactment . . . but the said expression does not include a railway company or navigation authority having statutory power to sell surplus water or any body or person supplying water solely for the purpose of producing motive power by hydraulic pressure."

15. Provision of water supply otherwise than by statutory undertakers.—

(1) A fire authority shall for the purposes of the last but one foregoing section have power by agreement—

- (a) to secure the use, in case of fire, of water under the control of any person other than statutory water undertakers ;
- (b) to improve the access to any such water ;
- (c) to lay and maintain pipes and to carry out other works in connection with the use of such water in case of fire. [762]

(2) Subject to any agreement under the last foregoing subsection, a fire authority may use for fire-fighting purposes any convenient and suitable supply of water, but shall be liable to pay reasonable compensation therefor :

Provided that nothing in this subsection shall affect the duty of undertakers to whom section forty-two of the Waterworks Clauses Act, 1847, or section thirty-six of the Third Schedule to the Water Act, 1945, applies to supply water for the said purposes without compensation or payment.

Water under the control of any person other than statutory water undertakers.—E.g., open water of various kinds, such as in canals, ponds and streams.

Waterworks Clauses Act, 1847, etc.—For s. 42 of this Act, see 20 Halsbury's Statutes 201. For the Water Act, 1945, Sched. III, s. 36, see 38 Halsbury's Statutes 555.

Definitions.—As to "statutory water undertakers," see s. 14 (7), ante, and note thereto. As to "fire authority" and "fire-fighting purposes," see s. 38 (1), post.

16. Notice to be given of proposed works affecting water supply and fire hydrants.—(1) Where a person proposes to carry out any works for the purpose of supplying water to any part of the area of a fire authority, he shall give notice in writing thereof to the fire authority, and the notice shall be given—

- (a) not less than fourteen days before the works are begun, in any case where the works are proposed to be carried out to comply with a requirement imposed under any enactment other than the Water Act, 1945 ;
- (b) not less than six weeks before the works are begun, in any other case.

(2) At least seven days before any works which affect any fire hydrant are begun, the authority or person by whom the works are to be executed shall give notice in writing to the fire authority :

Provided that where in a case of emergency it is not practicable for notice to be given at the time required by the foregoing provisions of this subsection, those provisions shall be deemed to have been complied with if the notice is given as early as may be. [765]

Effect of section.—The effect of sub-s. (1) was explained by the Under-Secretary of State for the Home Department in Standing Committee of the House of Commons on May 13, 1947, as follows :—

"Under the Fire Brigades Act, 1938, the local authority was entitled to 14 days' notice where it was proposed to lay down a water supply in any of the areas of a fire authority, but it was found that 14 days' notice was quite inadequate for the purposes of the fire authority. It was unreasonable to ask for a longer period because, under the Waterworks Clauses Act, 1847, the water authority were expected to provide a domestic water supply on 28 days' notice."

"If the water authority had only 28 days' notice, it was unreasonable to expect them to give the fire authority more than 14 days' notice. Under the Water Act, 1945, s. 25 (2) and Sched. III—the corresponding provision—the period has been increased from 28 days to 3 months. In those circumstances it is not unreasonable to ask the water undertaking to give the fire authority at least 6 weeks' notice. Sched. III of the 1945 Act does not come into operation in relation to any particular water undertaking until applied thereto by order of the Minister of Health. This Amendment, therefore, will perpetuate the 14 days' notice until such time as the Water Act is applied by order to any particular undertaking, in which case the longer period of 6 weeks will be required " (H. of C. Official Report, S.C.B., May 13, 1947, cols. 231-232).

The proviso as to emergency notice applies only to fire-hydrants covered by sub-s. (2) of this section.

Administrative provisions

17. Conditions of service.—(1) The Secretary of State may, subject to the provisions of this section, make regulations as to the conditions of service of persons employed as members of fire brigades maintained in pursuance of this Act, and in particular—

- (a) as to ranks, pay and allowances ;
- (b) as to hours of duty and leave ;
- (c) as to the maintenance of discipline ;
- (d) as to appeals against dismissal or disciplinary action (including dismissal on disciplinary grounds).

References in this section to the conditions of service of persons employed as aforesaid include references to welfare arrangements for such persons. [766]

(2) Where—

- (a) the Secretary of State is satisfied that proper arrangements are in force for the consideration, by persons representing the interests of fire authorities and of persons employed as members of fire brigades maintained in pursuance of this Act, or any class of persons so employed, of questions arising as to the conditions of service of persons so employed or of the class of persons in question, as the case may be ; and
- (b) a recommendation is made in accordance with the arrangements as to any matter falling within the last foregoing subsection, then if the Secretary of State approves the recommendation he may by regulations under this section give effect thereto. [767]

(3) Where the Secretary of State does not approve any recommendation made as mentioned in the last foregoing subsection he shall refer the recommendation for further consideration in accordance with the arrangements, and for the making in accordance with the arrangements of a report thereon within such period not less than twenty-one days as he may specify, and shall take into consideration any report so made before proceeding to make regulations under this section as to any matter to which the recommendation relates. [768]

(4) Where, without any such recommendation as aforesaid in that behalf having been made, the Secretary of State proposes to make regulations under this section, then, if such arrangements as aforesaid are in force as respects the persons to whom the regulations are to relate, he shall before making the regulations refer his proposals—

- (a) for consideration in accordance with the arrangements ; and
- (b) for the making in accordance with the arrangements of a report on the proposals within such period not less than twenty-one days as the Secretary of State may specify, and where a report is so made then if the Secretary of State approves the recommendations in the report he may by regulations under this section give effect thereto, but if he does not approve the recommendations the last foregoing subsection shall apply as it applies where he does not approve recommendations made as mentioned in subsection (2) of this section. [769]

(5) In the proviso to subsection (1) of section nineteen of the Wages Councils Act, 1945 (which excludes from the operation of Part III of that Act workers whose remuneration is fixed under other enactments), after the words "the Education Act, 1944," there shall be inserted the words "the Fire Services Act, 1947." [770]

Effect of section.—This section empowers the Secretary of State to make regulations governing the conditions of service of fire personnel, including pay, hours of duty, discipline and welfare arrangements but excluding matters specified in s. 18 (1), post. It is expected that negotiating machinery covering all fire brigades will be in existence, constituted on Joint Industrial Council lines, through which proposals for regulations will normally be initiated, and which will be consulted on any proposals initiated by the Secretary of State. The whole section is obviously the result of long negotiation between the parties interested and their representatives.

Regulations.—Up to the time of going to press, no regulations had been made by the Secretary of State under this section. Any such regulations require to be laid before Parliament (s. 35 (1), post, and see note thereto).

Wages Councils Act, 1945, s. 19 (1).—38 Halsbury's Statutes 471. The purpose of sub-s. (5) of the present section was explained by the Home Secretary in Standing Committee of the House of Commons on May 13, 1947, as follows:—

"Part III of the Conditions of Employment and National Arbitration Order, 1940, entail that terms and conditions of employment which have been settled by machinery of negotiation or arbitration to which the parties are organisations of employers and trade unions representing a substantial portion of the employees or workers in a trade or industry are binding on both sides. S. 19 of the Wages Councils Act, 1945, provides for Part III of this Order to remain in operation after the Order has ceased to have effect, but there is a proviso which excludes from the considerations I have just mentioned various classes of workers whose wages are determined under certain statutory provisions, such as agricultural wages, which are determined under a separate statute. . . . In this Clause we suggest that wages and conditions of service here shall similarly be determined by the methods within this Statute and it would, therefore, appear appropriate that decisions reached under this Statute should similarly be excluded" (H. of C. Official Report, S.C.B., May 13, 1947, cols. 240-241).

18. Procedure and qualifications for appointments and promotions.—

(1) The Secretary of State may, after consultation with the Central Fire Brigades Advisory Council constituted under this Act, make regulations as to any of the following matters, that is to say—

- (a) the method of appointment of chief officers of fire brigades maintained in pursuance of this Act;
- (b) the procedure for the appointment by a fire authority of members, other than the chief officer, of any such brigade;
- (c) the qualifications for appointment to any such brigade or to any rank therein, and for promotion into any such rank; and
- (d) the procedure for such promotion. [771]

(2) Nothing in the last foregoing section shall apply to the matters specified in subsection (1) of this section. [772]

Object of the section.—The section is designed to secure by regulations of the Secretary of State a sufficient standardisation of appointments, qualifications and promotion to apply satisfactorily the wages scales expected to be drawn up under the negotiating machinery of s. 17, ante.

Central Fire Brigades Advisory Council.—See s. 29, post.

Regulations.—Up to the time of going to press, no regulations had been made under this section. Any such regulations require to be laid before Parliament (s. 35 (1), post, and see note thereto).

Appointment by a fire authority.—See the Preliminary Note, ante.

19. Fire brigade establishments to be determined in accordance with approved schemes.—(1) The establishment of members of a fire brigade of different descriptions and ranks, and of fire stations and equipment of different descriptions, to be maintained by a fire authority in pursuance of the foregoing provisions of this Act shall be determined in accordance with the provisions of a scheme made by the authority under this section (hereafter in this Act referred to as an "establishment scheme") and for the time being in force. [773]

(2) An establishment scheme shall provide that the chief officer of the fire brigade to which the scheme relates shall be directly responsible to the fire authority maintaining the brigade or to a committee thereof. [774]

(3) An establishment scheme shall be submitted to the Secretary of State, and shall come into force when approved by him, either as submitted or subject to such modifications as he may direct. [775]

(4) An establishment scheme may be varied by a subsequent scheme made in like manner and subject to the like provisions as the scheme varied. [776]

(5) If as respects the area of any fire authority—

(a) before the first day of January, nineteen hundred and forty-eight, or such later date as the Secretary of State may in special circumstances allow, no establishment scheme has been submitted to the Secretary of State, or

(b) at any time it appears to the Secretary of State that the establishment scheme in force is not satisfactory, the Secretary of State may, after affording to the fire authority an opportunity of making representations to him, make a scheme. [777]

(6) The provisions of subsections (1), (2), (4) and (5) of this section shall apply to a scheme made under the said subsection (5) as if it were an establishment scheme submitted to and approved by the Secretary of State. [778]

(7) In the case of a fire authority, other than the London County Council, which is the council of a county, the foregoing provisions of this section shall have effect subject to the provisions of the First Schedule to this Act. [779]

(8) The Secretary of State may, for the purposes of his functions under this section, hold such public local inquiries as he thinks fit; and if in connection with the making of a scheme under paragraph (b) of subsection (5) of this section the fire authority so requires the Secretary of State shall cause a public local inquiry to be held before he makes the scheme. [780]

(9) The provisions in that behalf of the Second Schedule to this Act shall have effect for the purposes of this section in the case of fire authorities constituted by combination schemes. [781]

(10) In relation to any period before the appointed day the foregoing provisions of this section and the provisions ancillary thereto of the said First and Second Schedules shall apply with the substitution for references to a fire authority of references to an authority which on the appointed day will become a fire authority. [782]

*Sub-s. (5).—*As to the operation of this subsection in relation (a) to fire authorities which are county councils, see paragraph 3 of Sched. I, post, and (b) to fire authorities constituted by combination schemes, see paragraph 1 (3) of Sched. II, post.

*Sub-s. (7) and Sched. I.—*The transfer to county boroughs will be a comparatively simple matter for not only are they single-tier authorities but they were fire authorities until the constitution of the National Fire Service in August, 1941. County councils, on the other hand, include numerous county district councils and have no fire service history behind them, the county district councils being the previous fire authorities. The object of this subsection, in conjunction with Sched. I, post, is therefore to ensure that county district councils are fully consulted on the fire brigade establishments proposed, without derogating from the responsibility and control of the county councils.

The procedure to be followed in counties between the passing of the Act (July 31, 1947) and the appointed day for transfer to the new fire authorities (April 1, 1948, for England and Wales; S.I. 1948 No. 325) has been thus summarised by the Home Secretary:—

"First will come the appointment of a fire brigades committee, with instructions to it to prepare an establishment scheme; secondly, the preparation by the fire brigade committee of a draft establishment scheme to be circulated for observations to all district councils in the county; thirdly, the consideration of any observations received within a month from district councils and the submission of a final scheme to the county council; fourthly, before the county council can submit a scheme to the Secretary of State, it will have to obtain a report from its finance committee. . . . All this must be done in time to enable the county council to submit a scheme, together with any suggestions made by the district councils, and its observations thereon, to the Secretary of State by January 1, 1948, or such later date as the Secretary of State may, in special circumstances, allow" (H. of C. Official Report, S.C.B., May 22, 1947, cols. 358–359). The Home Secretary made it clear that no progress with the preparation of a scheme would be possible until the future chief fire officer had been selected.

At the time of going to press, centralised arrangements for the appointment of all chief fire officers are being put into operation.

Public local inquiries.—S. 290 (2), (3) and (5) of the Local Government Act, 1933 (26 Halsbury's Statutes 459), applies to any inquiry held under this section (s. 33 (2), post, and see note thereto).

*Sub-s. (9) and Sched. II.—*The practical working of this subsection and Schedule was similarly explained by the Home Secretary (H. of C. Official Report, S.C.B., May 22, 1947, cols. 359–360):—

"The second new Schedule provides, in fact, for establishment schemes forming part of combination schemes. If establishment questions were left to an establishment scheme, it could not be made until the combined fire authority had been set up. This might cause unnecessary delay, particularly since no practical discussions of combination proposals can take place without including discussions as to the establishment for the combined brigade. The duty of consulting district councils in the case of any proposal for a combination scheme which includes a county, will rest in the case of voluntary combinations, jointly upon all the fire authorities proposing to combine and, in the case of a compulsory combination scheme, upon the Secretary of State. As the discussion in these cases may be more protracted than in the case of any combined fire authorities—because one is bringing in more people in a wider area—it may be necessary in those cases to allow a slightly longer term. Para. [1 (3)] of the Schedule dealing with the combined fire authorities provides that subsection (5) of the new Clause is not to apply in relation to a fire authority constituted by a combination scheme. The reason for this is that since establishment questions are dealt with in a combination scheme, the necessary provision must have been made by the time the combined authority has come into existence. If, in the preparatory stage, it becomes clear that a proposed combination scheme will not be in operation by the appointed day, the component authorities will have a chance of preparing their individual schemes for the interim period, and if they fail to do so, the Secretary of State is empowered to act under sub-s. (5) of the Clause. It follows that it will be necessary to decide sufficiently early whether a proposed combination scheme can or cannot be brought into operation by the appointed day, so that if it cannot there will be sufficient time for the component authorities to prepare their interim schemes. I am in a position to give assurances that this can be given effect to if the circumstances should arise."

Appointed day.—By s. 38 (1), post, this means such day as the Secretary of State may by order appoint. April 1, 1948, has been so appointed for England and Wales (see S.I. 1948 No. 325).

20. Fire brigade committees in counties.—(1) Every fire authority (other than the London County Council) which is the council of a county shall constitute a fire brigade committee in accordance with the following provisions of this section, and—

(a) shall refer to the fire brigade committee for report and recommendation all matters relating to the authority's functions under this Act, except such matters as the authority may with the approval of the Secretary of State determine, and shall unless in their opinion the case is urgent receive and consider the report of the committee with respect to any matters referred to the committee before taking action in relation to those matters ;

(b) may delegate to the fire brigade committee, either with or without conditions or restrictions, any of the authority's functions under this Act other than powers of raising a rate or borrowing money. [783]

(2) Until the coming into force in accordance with the provisions of this Act of a scheme (hereafter in this Act referred to as a "management scheme") determining the constitution of a fire brigade committee under this section, the constitution thereof shall be such as may be determined by the fire authority, and thereafter such as may be determined by such a scheme. [784]

(3) As soon as may be after the appointed day every such fire authority as aforesaid shall make a management scheme in accordance with the provisions in that behalf of the First Schedule to this Act. [785]

(4) A management scheme shall provide for the appointment to a fire brigade committee by the fire authority of such number of members of that authority as may be specified in the scheme, and for the appointment to the committee by or on behalf of councils of county districts comprised in the area of the fire authority of such less number of persons representing those councils as may be so specified. [786]

(5) A management scheme shall be submitted to the Secretary of State, and shall come into force when approved by him, either as submitted or subject to such modifications as he may direct. [787]

(6) A management scheme may be varied by a subsequent scheme made in the like manner and subject to the like provisions as the scheme varied. [788]

(7) If as respects the area of any fire authority such as is mentioned in subsection (1) of this section—

(a) before the expiration of three months from the appointed day, or such later date as the Secretary of State may in special circumstances allow, no management scheme has been submitted to the Secretary of State, or

- (b) at any time it appears to the Secretary of State, whether on the representations of the council of any county district comprised in the area of the fire authority or otherwise, that the management scheme in force is not satisfactory, the Secretary of State may, after affording to the first authority and to every such council as aforesaid an opportunity of making representations to him, make a scheme. [789]

(8) The provisions of subsections (4), (6) and (7) of this section shall apply to a scheme made under the said subsection (7) as if it were a management scheme submitted to and approved by the Secretary of State. [790]

(9) The foregoing provisions of this section shall, subject to the provisions of the Second Schedule to this Act, apply to a fire authority—

- (a) which is constituted by a combination scheme,
 (b) the area of which includes one or more counties, other than the County of London, as they apply to such authorities as are mentioned in subsection (1) of this section. [791]

Fire brigade committees.—The object of the present section is to ensure that, notwithstanding their ceasing to be fire authorities, county district councils shall continue to have a say in the fire arrangements for the county. In the setting up of fire brigade committees it is intended to broaden the basis of responsibility by including in the fire brigade committees a minority of representatives of county district councils; by this means the committees will be more fully representative, while the majority control will remain in the county councils.

The first four lines of para. (a) of sub-s. (1) are clearly designed for the protection of county district councils. Their statutory right to be represented on the county fire brigade committees would be of limited value if those committees were not invested with real powers. All fire brigade matters must, therefore, be referred to the committees, except where exclusion is approved by the Secretary of State.

Management schemes.—Local diversities of circumstance are great and the machinery of management schemes has been chosen as that best-suited to produce arrangements appropriate to the particular localities. Large district councils will be entitled to at least one direct representative on the county fire brigade committee but smaller councils will probably be grouped together, the group sending (say) two, three or four members to the committee. The procedure in relation to management schemes and their approval and the powers of the Secretary of State in default are not unlike those applicable to reinforcement schemes (s. 2, ante) and combination schemes (ss. 5 and 6, ante). Note that the provisions of Schedules I and II, post, apply to management schemes for counties and for combined fire authorities respectively subject to the detailed provisions of this section.

Appointed day.—By s. 38 (1), post, this means such day as the Secretary of State may by order appoint. April 1, 1948, has been so appointed for England and Wales (see S.I. 1948 No. 325).

21. Standards of training and equipment.—The Secretary of State may, after consultation with the Central Fire Brigades Advisory Council constituted under this Act, by regulations provide for the observance by fire authorities of such requirements with respect to—

- (a) standards of training for members of fire brigades maintained in pursuance of this Act;
 (b) design or performance of equipment for such brigades, as appear to him to be necessary to secure efficient fire services. [792]

Central Fire Brigades Advisory Council.—See s. 29, post.

Regulations.—Up to the time of going to press, no regulations under this section had been made. Any such regulations require to be laid before Parliament (see s. 35, post, and note thereto).

Standardisation.—The importance of this section, which replaces s. 22 of the Fire Brigades Act, 1938 (31 Halsbury's Statutes 600), with regard to standards of training, uniform and equipment, needs no emphasis. Lack of uniformity in threads and couplings, in particular, has been a frequent source of difficulty which the use of adaptors has only reduced. The ideal aimed at is not a complete uniformity, as this might tend to prevent improvement in design, but a fair working standardisation.

Failure to comply.—The present section is one of several designed to provide central supervision of the efficiency of the local fire services. Failure to observe requirements laid down under this section may involve a withholding of the Exchequer grant (see s. 25, post, and notes thereto).

22. Provision by Secretary of State of equipment.—The Secretary of State may in accordance with arrangements approved by the Treasury provide, for purchase by any fire authority desiring to avail themselves of the arrangements, equipment for the discharge of the functions of fire authorities under this Act. [793]

Desiring to avail themselves.—There is no obligation on local authorities to avail themselves of the central purchase facilities available under this section, though many will find it convenient to do so, particularly in view of possible requirements as to standardisation under s. 21, ante. It is not the intention to set up within the Home Office a supply department for the purposes of this section; arrangements will be carried out by an existing supply department of the Government, probably the Ministry of Supply.

Definitions.—For definitions of “equipment” and “fire authority,” see s. 38 (1), post.

23. Training centres.—(1) The Secretary of State may establish and maintain—

- (a) a central training institution; and
- (b) one or more local training centres, for providing courses of instruction in matters relating to fire services. [794]

(2) The arrangements to be made for the central training institution established under this section shall secure that the institution shall be under the general direction of a board—

- (a) consisting as to half of persons appointed by the Secretary of State and as to the remainder of persons appointed by such bodies as appear to the Secretary of State to represent the interests of fire authorities, and

(b) having as chairman such member of the board as may be selected by the other members with the approval of the Secretary of State, and that before appointing the person having control of the administration of the institution the Secretary of State shall consult the board. [795]

(3) A fire authority may establish and maintain training centres for providing courses of instruction for members of their own or other fire brigades and for training persons for service in fire brigades. [796]

Background of the section.—This section, which is permissive rather than mandatory, reproduces in modified form s. 20 of the Fire Brigades Act, 1938 (31 Halsbury's Statutes 599). A training college was set up at Saltdean during the war, and this it is intended to continue, though possibly on other premises. Local training facilities will also continue but the emphasis seems likely to be on the national training college.

An amendment was moved in Standing Committee of the House of Commons (see H. of C. Official Report, S.C.B., May 15, 1947, cols. 284-287) to the effect that local training centres should not be provided by the Secretary of State, but it was withdrawn upon an assurance being given that the Government did not seek to impose on fire authorities centres managed and run by the State.

Constitution and cost.—The power of appointing half the members of the board given to the representatives of fire authorities is not unrelated to the contributions by those authorities to the cost of the national training arrangements under s. 25 (3), post, by which deductions from the grant in aid are authorised.

24. Inspectors of Fire Brigades.—(1) For the purpose of obtaining information to the manner in which fire authorities are performing their functions under this Act and as to technical matters relating to those functions, inspectors may be appointed by His Majesty, and the Secretary of State may appoint assistant inspectors and other officers. [797]

(2) The Secretary of State may pay to persons appointed under this section such remuneration as he may with the approval of the Treasury determine. [798]

Effect of section.—The provisions of this section closely follow those of s. 19 of the Fire Brigades Act, 1938 (31 Halsbury's Statutes 599). While the section provides for the appointment of inspectors (apparently with a view to deciding whether fire authorities have fulfilled the conditions subject to which grants in aid are payable under s. 25, post), the persons so appointed are given no special powers to enable them to obtain information required. The appointment of the inspectors themselves now lies with the Crown and not with the Secretary of State as under the Act of 1938. The cost of the inspectors and other officials within the contemplation of the section is to be borne by the Government and not by the fire authorities.

25. Grants to fire authorities.—(1) The Secretary of State may with the consent of the Treasury make regulations providing for the payment by him to the councils of counties and county boroughs, and to authorities constituted by combination schemes, of annual grants in respect of expenditure incurred by them in connection with the provision of fire services of amounts not exceeding twenty-five per cent. of the expenditure. [799]

(2) Regulations made under the last foregoing subsection may make provision whereby the payment of grants in pursuance thereof is dependent upon the fulfilment of such conditions as may be determined by or under the regulations. [800]

(3) Regulations made as aforesaid may provide for the deduction from grants to any authority of amounts not exceeding the appropriate fraction of so much of the expenditure incurred by the Secretary of State under section twenty-three of this Act as is apportioned to the authority in accordance with the regulations.

In this subsection the expression "appropriate fraction" means the fraction of any expenditure of an authority incurred by them in the exercise of their functions under this Act which, after allowing for the grants provided under subsection (1) of this section but not for the deductions therefrom under this subsection, would fall ultimately to be borne by the authority. [801]

Regulations.—Up to the time of going to press, no regulations under this section had been made.

Any such regulations require to be laid before Parliament (see s. 35, post, and note thereto).

Not exceeding twenty-five per cent.—Prior to August, 1941, the whole of the cost of the fire services (except in the case of the London County Council) fell upon the fire authorities constituted under the Fire Brigades Act, 1938 (31 Halsbury's Statutes 585).

After the transfer of fire functions to the National Fire Service the fire authorities continued to bear a large proportion of the cost of this organisation, calculated on the basis of their fire expenditure during a standard year. It may be noted that none of the associations of local authorities has expressed satisfaction with the amount of the grant, which is one-half of that payable for police services.

The Home Secretary said of the grant in aid during the Second Reading debate in the House of Commons on March 27, 1947:—

"It was originally intended that this grant should vary as between authority and authority. We have found it simpler to deal with it on the basis of a flat rate grant, and the necessary adjustments with regard to the richness and poverty of an area will be dealt with in the revision of the block grant" (435 H. of C. Official Report 1438-1439).

Under the present Act the Secretary of State has no power, as he had through the fire service board machinery of ss. 11-13 of the Act of 1938, to supersede a fire authority whose service he regards as inefficient; but pressure can be brought to bear by withholding or making reductions in the grant in aid if a service in a given area is inefficient (sub-s. (2), supra).

S. 23 of this Act.—See ante. This section relates to the provision of training centres.

Pensions, etc.

26. Firemen's Pension Scheme.—(1) The Secretary of State may by order bring into operation a scheme, to be known as the Firemen's Pension Scheme, whereby provision is made, subject to the provisions of this section and of the Scheme, for the payment by fire authorities and such other authorities as may be specified in the Scheme of pensions, allowances and gratuities to persons employed as members of fire brigades maintained in pursuance of this Act who retire from such employment on or after the appointed day or die on or after the appointed day while so employed, and to their widows, children and dependants. [802]

(2) The Firemen's Pension Scheme (hereafter in this and the next following section referred to as "the Scheme") may include provision—

- (a) for defining the classes of persons employed as aforesaid in respect of whose service awards, or awards of any class specified in the Scheme, may be made under the Scheme, and in particular for excluding in relation to any such awards or class of awards persons who are not wholly and permanently so employed or who are so employed on such ancillary duties as may be specified in the Scheme, and for treating, for all or any of the purposes of the Scheme, employment in Great Britain or elsewhere on duties connected with the provision of fire services, being employment (otherwise than as a member of a fire brigade maintained in pursuance of this Act) of such classes as may be specified in the Scheme, as if it were employment as a member of such a brigade ;

- (b) for reckoning, for all or any of the purposes of the Scheme, such employment, whether before or after the appointed day (other than employment as a member of a fire brigade maintained in pursuance of this Act) as may be specified in the Scheme as if it were employment as a member of such a brigade, either unconditionally or subject to such conditions as may be so specified and either as respects the whole of service in employment so specified or as respects such fraction thereof as may be so specified ;
- (c) for the making by persons in respect of whose service awards may be made under the Scheme of such contributions as may be specified by the Scheme, and, in such circumstances as may be so specified, for the repayment of contributions so made or their application in such manner and for the benefit of such persons as may be so specified ;
- (d) for substituting, for all or any of the purposes of the Scheme, the Secretary of State for a fire authority in relation to any employment specified under paragraph (b) of this subsection ;
- (e) for the making to a fire authority by the Secretary of State or another fire authority, or by any other authority by which a person has been employed in employment specified under paragraph (b) of this subsection or which has incurred any liability in respect of the payment of a pension in the event of a person's retirement from employment so specified of payments in respect of previous service (whether before or after the appointed day) on a person's entry on employment with the fire brigade maintained by the first-mentioned fire authority, and for the making to the Secretary of State by a fire authority or any such other authority as aforesaid of payments in respect of previous service (whether before or after the appointed day) on a person's entry on employment specified under paragraph (b) of this subsection ;
- (f) for the reimbursement of payments under the last foregoing paragraph out of any superannuation fund to which contributions have been made in respect of the previous service to which the payments related ;
- (g) for the making, where a person enters on employment with a fire authority in a case where no payment falls to be made under paragraph (e) of this subsection, of payments in respect of previous service with that authority out of any superannuation fund to which contributions have been made in respect of the previous service ;
- (h) for the conditions as to evidence or otherwise subject to which any award under the Scheme may be made, for the manner in which any question specified in the Scheme arising under the Scheme is to be determined, and for appeals from determinations of any such question ;
- (i) for excluding or modifying, in the case of an injury in respect of which an award is made under the Scheme, being an injury sustained in the execution of duty in such circumstances as may be specified in the Scheme, any other right against the Crown or other authority in whose employment the injury occurred to compensation or damages in respect of the injury or the consequences thereof, so however that no provision made by virtue of this paragraph shall affect any right under the National Insurance (Industrial Injuries) Act, 1946, or the National Insurance Act, 1946 ;

- (j) for such incidental and supplemental matters as appear to the Secretary of State expedient for the purposes of the Scheme, including provisions as to funds for defraying liabilities under the Scheme and provision for the like purposes as under the enactments in the Fire Brigade Pensions Act, 1925, specified in the first column of the Third Schedule to this Act (which relate to the matters specified in the second column of that Schedule) was made in relation to awards under the said Act of 1925.

In this section the expression "employment" includes engagement in any service. [803]

(3) The maximum pension under the Scheme shall not be provided for a person unless he has been engaged in service which is to be reckoned for the purpose of his pension under the Scheme for a period of not less than thirty years, and no pension shall be provided under the Scheme for any person on retirement unless—

- (a) he has been engaged in such service as aforesaid for a period of not less than twenty-five years ; or
- (b) his retirement is caused by such incapacity or infirmity of mind or body (occasioned otherwise than as mentioned in the next following paragraph) as may be specified in the Scheme, and he has been engaged in such service for a period of not less than ten years ; or
- (c) his retirement is caused through incapacity of mind or body occasioned by an injury received in the execution of his duty without his own default or in such circumstances that the Scheme applies in like manner as if it had been occasioned by an injury so received ; or
- (d) he is compelled to retire on the ground of age. [804]

(4) If a person obtains or attempts to obtain for himself or any other person—

- (a) any award under the Scheme, or
- (b) any sum in respect of the repayment or application of contributions made under the Scheme, by means of any false declaration, false certificate, false representation, false evidence or personation or by malingering or feigning disease or infirmity or by maiming or injuring himself, or causing himself to be maimed or injured, or otherwise producing disease or infirmity, or by any other fraudulent conduct, he shall be liable on conviction on indictment to imprisonment for a term not exceeding two years, or on summary conviction to imprisonment for a term not exceeding three months or to a fine not exceeding twenty-five pounds, and (without prejudice to the provisions of paragraph (j) of subsection (2) of this section) the Scheme may authorise, in the case of a person who has been convicted of an offence under this subsection, the forfeiture, in whole or in part, of any award or sum so obtained. [805]

(5) The Scheme may be varied by a subsequent order of the Secretary of State under this section. [806]

(6) Any order under this section shall be made with the approval of the Treasury, and after consultation with the Central Fire Brigades Advisory Council. [807]

Effect of section.—This is the first of three sections providing for a new uniform pension scheme for firemen in place of the previous divergent schemes where the period of service for the maximum pension of two-thirds varied from twenty-eight to forty years. The Scheme, to be known as the Firemen's Pension Scheme, is to be made by order of the Secretary of State with the approval of the Treasury and after consulting the Central Fire Brigades Advisory Council. In addition, any such order must be laid before Parliament (s. 35, post, and see note thereto). The section is mainly enabling in character and does not actually prescribe the contents of the Scheme, except in sub-s. (3), ante, by which maximum pension rights under the Scheme are not to accrue until after thirty years' pensionable service and no pension at all is to be provided except in the four cases specified. Sub-s. (4), ante, provides penalties for a comprehensive list of offences in regard to pensions, and sub-s. (5), ante, allows for variation of the Scheme in the light of experience. It seems likely that the Scheme, which may follow the main lines of the police pensions scheme, will be restricted to fire-fighting personnel of the brigades, and that persons employed for clerical or administrative duties will be covered by other pension arrangements.

Appointed day.—By s. 38 (1), post, this means such day as the Secretary of State may by order appoint. April 1, 1948, has been so appointed for England and Wales (see S.I. 1948 No. 325).

Sub-s. (2) (b) to (g).—These paragraphs will allow the Firemen's Pension Scheme to make provision for a wide variety of circumstances resulting from the complexity of the previous law and the introduction of the National Fire Service. By paragraph (b), the Scheme may specify certain categories of service as being available for pension purposes in the same way as service with one of the new fire authorities. Paragraph (c) will enable the Scheme to provide for payments in the nature of transfer values in respect of transfers from ordinary employment with a fire authority to a class of employment specified under paragraph (b) and vice versa, while paragraph (f) provides for the reimbursement of these payments out of superannuation funds. The probable scope of paragraph (g) is not entirely clear, but it would cover, for example, the case of a superannuable employee of a county borough who joined the fire brigade maintained by that authority.

National Insurance (Industrial Injuries) Act, 1946.—39 Halsbury's Statutes 322. For the general provisions for injury benefit under this Act, which replaces the Workmen's Compensation Acts, 1925 to 1945, see ss. 7–11 of the said Act.

National Insurance Act, 1946.—39 Halsbury's Statutes 412. For the general provisions for benefit under this Act, which sets up a comprehensive system of social insurance, see Part II thereof.

Fire Brigade Pensions Act, 1925.—13 Halsbury's Statutes 1095. For specific references, see note to Sched. III, post.

Penalties under sub-s. (4).—As the maximum term of imprisonment on summary conviction does not exceed three months, the accused will have no right to claim trial by jury under s. 17 of the Summary Jurisdiction Act, 1879 (11 Halsbury's Statutes 329). It will be for the Scheme to declare the court or body authorised to forfeit the awards or sums referred to at the end of the subsection.

Central Fire Brigades Advisory Council.—See s. 29, post.

27. Firemen's Pension Scheme to supersede other statutory schemes.—

(1) As respects any person retiring on or after the appointed day from employment as, or employment which for the purposes of the Scheme is to be treated as employment as, a member of a fire brigade maintained in pursuance of this Act, or dying on or after the appointed day while in such employment, the Scheme shall, subject to the provisions of this section, have effect to the exclusion of any other provision for pension, allowance or gratuity in respect of such employment contained in or in force under any enactment. [808]

(2) Where—

- (a) immediately before the appointed day there are in operation by virtue of any enactment (other than an enactment contained in the Fire Brigade Pensions Act, 1925), any arrangements for the grant of pensions, allowances or gratuities in respect of members of a fire brigade maintained in pursuance of the Fire Brigades Act, 1938 (in this subsection referred to as "the former brigade"); and
- (b) the Government Actuary certifies that the Scheme, if modified by reference to the arrangements so as to have effect subject to such modifications as are mentioned in the next following subsection, would be on the whole not less favourable than the Scheme not so modified,

then if any person—

- (i) who was a member of the former brigade immediately before the eighteenth day of August, nineteen hundred and forty-one; or
- (ii) who by virtue of having been a member of the former brigade was designated under paragraph (1) (b) of regulation 3 of the National Fire Service (Preservation of Pensions) (Police Firemen) Regulations, 1941, as a person in whose case those regulations should have effect; or

- (iii) who immediately before the said eighteenth day of August was engaged in service or work in such circumstances that under the Police and Firemen (War Service) Act, 1939, his service or work fell to be treated as a period of approved service in the former brigade ; and
- (iv) who in any case becomes on the appointed day or on the termination thereafter of such service or work as aforesaid a member of the former brigade, gives notice in that behalf to such authority and within such period as may be specified by the Scheme, the Scheme shall have effect in his case, so long as he remains a member of the former brigade, subject to the said modifications. [809]

(3) The modifications referred to in the last foregoing subsection are such modifications as will secure that subject to the following provisions of this section—

- (a) as respects superannuation awards, the Scheme contains the like provisions in respect of the persons entitled to awards, the conditions entitling persons to awards, and the amounts of awards, as the arrangements mentioned in paragraph (a) of the last foregoing subsection ;
- (b) as respects injury awards, an authority making an award under the Scheme may, in any case in which it appears to them that an award under the said arrangements would have exceeded the award under the Scheme, increase the award under the Scheme by an amount not greater than the excess, as estimated by the authority ;
- (c) as respects the rates of contributions to be made by persons in respect of whose service awards may be made, the rates shall be the same as under the said arrangements, subject to such abatement as may be provided by the Scheme for offsetting any provisions of the Scheme having effect by virtue of subsection (5) or (6) of this section in cases where those provisions apply.

In this subsection the expression “injury award” means a pension, allowance or gratuity in respect of death or incapacity of mind or body occasioned either by an injury received in the execution of duty without the default of the person injured or in such circumstances that the Scheme, apart from the foregoing modifications, applies in like manner as if it had been occasioned by an injury so received ; and “superannuation award” means a pension, allowance or gratuity other than an injury award. [810]

(4) For the purposes of subsection (2) of this section, a fire brigade maintained in pursuance of the Fire Brigades Act, 1938, for any area and a fire brigade maintained in pursuance of this Act for that area, or an area including that area, shall be treated as one. [811]

(5) Nothing in subsection (1) of this section shall affect the operation of the National Insurance (Industrial Injuries) Act, 1946, or the National Insurance Act, 1946, but the Scheme may provide for the reduction or withholding of awards under the Scheme in cases where awards are provided for in respect of the same matters under either of the said Acts. [812]

(6) The Secretary of State may by regulations provide, in the event of the appointed day for the purposes of the National Insurance (Industrial Injuries) Act, 1946, falling earlier than the appointed day for the purposes of this Act, for the reduction or withholding of awards under the Fire Brigade Pensions Act, 1925, or any such arrangements as are mentioned in paragraph (a) of subsection (2) of this section in cases where awards are provided for in respect of the same matters under the said Act of 1946. [813]

Effect of section.—This is the second of three sections providing for a new uniform pension scheme in place of those previously in force. Like s. 26, ante, the present section applies to claims arising on or after the appointed day, expected to be April 1, 1948, in the case of England and Wales (see note to s. 4, ante), and makes detailed provision for superseding earlier statutory schemes in cases where the Firemen's Pension Scheme applies, subject to the limited right of election under sub-s. (2), ante.

Under any enactment.—The pension rights of fire personnel (other than police firemen who are in a special position) are variously governed by :

- (a) the Fire Brigade Pensions Act, 1925 (13 Halsbury's Statutes 1095) as amended by ss. 16 and 17 of the Fire Brigades Act, 1938 (31 Halsbury's Statutes 596), the Fire Services (Emergency Provisions) Act, 1941 (34 Halsbury's Statutes 223), and numerous regulations thereunder;
- (b) in London, s. 8 of the Metropolitan Fire Brigade Act, 1865, and s. 44 of the London County Council (General Powers) Act, 1895 (11 Halsbury's Statutes 999, 1219);
- (c) the Local Government Superannuation Act, 1937 (30 Halsbury's Statutes 385), replacing the Local Government and Other Officers' Superannuation Act, 1922 (10 Halsbury's Statutes 863); and
- (d) pension schemes under local Acts.

Sub-ss. (2) and (3).—These subsections are not easy to understand, in view of the fact that the right of election is not between the previous arrangements and the Firemen's Pension Scheme but between the latter as generally applying and as modified in a given way. In the circumstances the Home Secretary's explanation to the Standing Committee of the House of Commons is worth quoting despite its length :—

"Subject to the conditions in Clause 27 (2) it was desired to allow a serving man a clear option between his present scheme and the new Firemen's Pension Scheme, but closer examination of existing schemes has revealed certain difficulties, and, in particular, the fact that the injury awards in some of them are closely bound up with Workmen's Compensation. The Workmen's Compensation Acts are, however, expected to come to an end next year, at about the same time as the introduction of the new Firemen's Pension Scheme, so that some amendment of the existing scheme would have to be made, even if no firemen's pension legislation were contemplated. In these circumstances, it is not possible to give the serving men a clearcut option, since their existing scheme is bound to be altered to take account of the disappearance of Workmen's Compensation.

"Therefore, the first three Amendments on the Order Paper have been drafted to provide for an option between the new Firemen's Pension Scheme, on the one hand, and a modified version of the existing scheme, on the other. The modified existing scheme will include, firstly, the existing superannuation rights of the men's present scheme, that is, for awards for injuries not arising out of duty; secondly, the injury awards of the new Firemen's Pension Scheme, and thirdly, a discretion conferred on the local authority to supplement any injury award up to the level of the award which they consider would have been made under the old local scheme. It will be noted that, in this connection, the injury provisions of the existing schemes provide, broadly speaking, for a minimum guaranteed award which may be increased at the discretion of the local authority. I understand that this discretion, in practice, was widely, though not always consistently, used. It is intended that the injury provisions of the new Firemen's Pension Scheme shall be at least as favourable as the minimum rates under existing schemes, and, in some cases, they will be considerably more favourable. Therefore, although the proposed Amendment looks rather as though the serving man's existing rights are being tampered with, what is proposed, in practice, is to guarantee the man at least as much as he would be guaranteed under his old scheme, and, in addition, to confer on the local authority the discretion to increase injury awards, which they already possess and exercise" (H. of C. Official Report, S.C.B., May 20, 1947, cols. 311-312).

Fire Brigade Pensions Act, 1925.—13 Halsbury's Statutes 1095.

Fire Brigades Act, 1938.—31 Halsbury's Statutes 585.

Not less favourable.—Compare the use of this phrase in the Workmen's Compensation Act, 1925, s. 31 (1) (a) (11 Halsbury's Statutes 571), with regard to the substitution of liability under a scheme for liability under that Act.

National Fire Service (Preservation of Pensions) (Police Firemen) Regulations, 1941.—S. R. & O., 1941, No. 1271. See also S. R. & O., 1945, Nos. 1649 and 1650, and S. R. & O., 1947, No. 824.

Police and Firemen (War Service) Act, 1939.—32 Halsbury's Statutes 1149.

National Insurance (Industrial Injuries) Act, 1946, and the National Insurance Act, 1946.—39 Halsbury's Statutes 322 and 39 Halsbury's Statutes 412. The "appointed day" for the purposes of the former Act is July 5, 1948 (S.I. 1948 No. 53).

Regulations of the Secretary of State.—Up to the time of going to press the occasion for regulations under sub-s. (6) of this section had not arisen and accordingly no such regulations had been made.

Any regulations under the subsection require to be laid before Parliament (s. 35, post, and see notes thereto).

28. Supplementary provisions as to preservation of pensions, etc.—(1) The Secretary of State may by regulations, applying to such classes of persons as may be specified in the regulations,—

- (a) being pensionable members of fire brigades who whether before or after the passing of this Act entered or enter on employment in the civil service of the Crown or other pensionable employment under a local authority or any police authority not being a local authority, or

- (b) being persons (other than pensionable members of fire brigades) employed in the National Fire Service who on the appointed day enter on employment in the civil service of the Crown or, otherwise than as members of fire brigades, on pensionable employment under a local authority or any such police authority as aforesaid, make provision for securing that their former employment shall, to such extent and subject to such conditions as may be specified in the regulations, be treated for pension purposes as if it were the employment on which they entered or enter as mentioned in either of the two foregoing paragraphs.

(2) In the case of persons transferring from one employment to another in such circumstances that under the last foregoing subsection service in the former employment is treated for pension purposes as if it were service in the latter employment, regulations under this section may provide for the making of payments in respect of previous service—

- (a) by the authority by whom any such person was employed in the former employment, to the authority to whose employment he was transferred or to a pension fund out of which awards may be made to him in respect of his service in the employment to which he was transferred ; or
- (b) out of a pension fund from which, apart from the transfer, awards might have been made to him in respect of his service in the former employment, to the authority to whose employment he was transferred or to such a fund as is mentioned in paragraph (a) of this subsection. [815]

(3) In this section—

the expression “ pensionable members of fire brigades ” means persons in whose case provision for pension purposes is made by or under any enactment in respect of their employment as members of fire brigades, including employment which for pension purposes is treated as employment as members of fire brigades ;

the expression “ pensionable employment ” means employment in service in respect of which provision for pension purposes is made by or under any enactment ;

the expression “ pension purposes ”, in relation to any employment, means the purposes of authorising pensions, gratuities or other awards in respect of that employment. [816]

Effect of section.—This is the third of three sections designed to provide a uniform pension scheme for firemen ; the subject-matter of this particular section relates to the preservation of existing pension rights on two categories of transfer, namely :—

- (a) transfers of pensionable members of fire brigades, at any time before or after the passing of the Act, to pensionable employment in the Civil Service or with a local authority or police authority ; and
- (b) transfer on the appointed day of National Fire Service personnel, not being pensionable members of fire brigades, to the Civil Service or to pensionable non-fire duties with a local authority or police authority.

A transferred fireman is to draw the whole of his pension from the authority to whose service he is transferred, the amount of the pension presumably being based on his rate of pay at retirement as under the Local Government Superannuation Act, 1937 (30 Halsbury's Statutes 385).

Sub-s. (2), supra, provides for the payment by the former employing authority of a “ transfer value ” by means of which they will avoid the necessity of providing for a contingent liability in the future. By these provisions the regulations will place transferred firemen in substantially the same position as other local government employees in the service of the authorities employing them on their retirement.

Regulations of the Secretary of State.—Up to the time of going to press no regulations under this section had been made.

Any such regulations require to be laid before Parliament (s. 35, post, and see note thereto). Passing of this Act.—July 31, 1947.

Civil service of the Crown.—The reason for the inclusion of transfers to the civil service is that cases may arise where inspectors of fire brigades, and, in particular, chief inspectors, may more properly be governed by the Superannuation Acts, 1834 to 1935 (16 Halsbury's Statutes 122, 179, 186, 238, 551, 566, 686 and 772; 13 Halsbury's Statutes 374; and 28 Halsbury's Statutes 295) than the Firemen's Pension Scheme (see H. of C. Official Report, S.C.B., May 20, 1947, col. 315).

Miscellaneous and General

29. Central Fire Brigades Advisory Council.—(1) The Secretary of State shall constitute a Council to be called the Central Fire Brigades Advisory Council, for the purpose of advising him on any matters as to which he is required by this Act to consult the Council or any other matter arising, otherwise than under section seventeen of this Act, in connection with the operation of this Act which the Council have taken into consideration, whether on a reference from the Secretary of State or otherwise. [817]

(2) Subject to the provisions of the next following subsection, the Council shall consist of a chairman appointed by the Secretary of State and of such number of other persons so appointed as the Secretary of State may determine, being persons appointed as representing the interests of fire authorities and of persons employed as members of fire brigades maintained in pursuance of this Act. [818]

(3) In addition to the persons mentioned in the last foregoing subsection the Secretary of State may, if he thinks fit, appoint as members of the Council, either generally or for the consideration of any particular matter, such other persons appearing to him to have special qualifications as he may determine. [819]

(4) The procedure (including the quorum) of the Council shall, subject to any directions of the Secretary of State, be such as the Council may determine. [820]

(5) The Secretary of State may defray any expenses authorised by him with the consent of the Treasury to be incurred by the Council. [821]

Effect of section.—There are to be two Central Fire Brigades Advisory Councils, one for England and Wales set up under this section and one for Scotland established under s. 36 (18) of this Act. In each case the Council's functions are purely advisory.

Required to consult the Council.—The Secretary of State is required to consult the Council under ss. 1 (3), 14 (6), 18 and 21, ante. He may also, if he so desires, consult it upon other matters arising under the Act, except those arising under s. 17 (see infra).

S. 17 of this Act.—See ante. This is the section setting out the negotiating machinery by which pay, hours of duty and other conditions of service are to be determined. In this machinery the Advisory Council has no place.

Or otherwise.—These words make it clear that the Advisory Council has the power to tender advice on their own initiative, without prior request from the Secretary of State on matters arising under the Act.

Special qualifications.—In the course of a statement in Standing Committee of the House of Commons, the Home Secretary announced that under sub-s. (3), supra, he proposed to include members representing the water undertakings and the county district councils as well as technical experts able to assist in fire-fighting matters (H. of C. Official Report, S.C.B., May 20, 1947, col. 320).

Defraying expenses.—On the same occasion the Home Secretary made it clear that the whole of the expenses of the Advisory Councils would be borne by the Exchequer.

30. Powers of firemen and police in extinguishing fires.—(1) Any member of a fire brigade maintained in pursuance of this Act who is on duty, any member of any other fire brigade who is acting in pursuance of any arrangements made under this Act, or any constable, may enter and if necessary break into any premises or place in which a fire has or is reasonably believed to have broken out, or any premises or place which it is necessary to enter for the purposes of extinguishing a fire or of protecting the premises or place from acts done for fire-fighting purposes, without the consent of the owner or occupier thereof, and may do all such things as he may deem necessary for extinguishing the fire or for protecting from fire, or from acts done as aforesaid, any such premises or place or for rescuing any person or property therein. [822]

(2) Any person who wilfully obstructs or interferes with any member of a fire brigade maintained in pursuance of this Act who is engaged in operations for fire-fighting purposes shall be liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding twenty-five pounds. [823]

(3) At any fire the senior fire brigade officer present shall have the sole charge and control of all operations for the extinction of the fire, including the fixing of the positions of fire engines and apparatus, the attaching of hose to any water pipes or the use of any water supply, and the selection of the parts of the premises, object or place where the fire is, or of adjoining premises, objects or places, against which the water is to be directed. [824]

(4) Any water undertakers shall, on being required by any such senior officer as is mentioned in the last preceding subsection to provide a greater supply and pressure of water for extinguishing a fire, take all necessary steps to enable them to comply with such requirement and may for that purpose shut off the water from the mains and pipes in any area; and no authority or person shall be liable to any penalty or claim by reason of the interruption of the supply of water occasioned only by compliance of the water undertakers with such a requirement. [825]

(5) The senior officer of police present at any fire, or in the absence of any officer of police the senior fire brigade officer present, may close to traffic any street or may stop or regulate the traffic in any street whenever in the opinion of that officer it is necessary or desirable to do so for fire-fighting purposes. [826]

(6) In this section the expression "senior fire brigade officer present," in relation to any fire, means the senior officer present of the fire brigade maintained in pursuance of this Act in the area in which the fire originates, or, if any arrangements or reinforcement scheme made under this Act provide that any other person shall have charge of the operations for the extinction of the fire, that other person. [827]

(7) This section shall come into operation on the appointed day. [828]

Changes effected.—As from the appointed day (see infra), this section reproduces the substance of s. 14 of the Fire Brigades Act, 1938 (31 Halsbury's Statutes 595). Modifications include the addition to the purposes of entry of "protecting the premises or place from acts done for fire-fighting purposes"; the increase of the fine for obstruction from £10 to £25; and the additional power of closing streets and regulating traffic given to senior fire brigade officers in the absence of police. The specific reference to water undertakers is also new.

Application to London.—S. 14 of the Fire Brigades Act, 1938, supra, did not apply to the County of London where the powers of entry, etc., were regulated by the Metropolitan Fire Brigade Act, 1865 (11 Halsbury's Statutes 997), under which there was no power of forcible entry in the absence of an actual fire (s. 12). By the same section persons who interfered with the operations of a fire brigade could be forcibly removed. As from the appointed day, however, both the Fire Brigades Act, 1938, supra, and the said s. 12, supra, are repealed (s. 39 (4) and Sched. VI, post), and the present section applies to the administrative county of London as it applies elsewhere.

Appointed day.—This means such day as the Secretary of State may by order appoint (s. 38 (1), post). April 1, 1948, has been so appointed for England and Wales (see S.I. 1948 No. 325).

31. False alarms of fire.—(1) Any person who knowingly gives or causes to be given a false alarm of fire to any fire brigade maintained in pursuance of this Act or to any member of such a brigade shall be liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding twenty-five pounds or to imprisonment for a term not exceeding three months or both such fine and such imprisonment. [829]

(2) In relation to anything done before the appointed day references in the last foregoing subsection to a fire brigade maintained in pursuance of this Act shall be construed as references to the National Fire Service. [830]

(3) The False Alarms of Fire Act, 1895, and section sixty-one of the London County Council (General Powers) Act, 1909, shall cease to have effect as from the appointed day, and Regulation one of the Defence (General) Regulations, 1939 (which, so far as still in force, relates to false alarms of fire) is hereby revoked. [831]

Changes effected.—The maximum sanction under the False Alarms of Fire Act, 1895 (13 Halsbury's Statutes 870), was a penalty not exceeding £20; that under s. 61 of the London County Council (General Powers) Act, 1909 (11 Halsbury's Statutes 1311), a penalty not exceeding £25, and under regulation 1 of the Defence (General) Regulations, 1939 (S. R. & O., 1939, No. 927, as amended), the general penalties applicable to breaches of the Defence Regulations, namely, on summary conviction, imprisonment for not more than three months or a fine not exceeding £100 or both, and on indictment, not more than two years' imprisonment or a fine not exceeding £500 or both (regulation 92).

Note that the first and second are also formally repealed as from the appointed day by s. 39 (4) and Sched. VI, post.

32. Members of police force not to be employed in fire brigade.—No member of a police force shall be employed as a member of a fire brigade maintained in pursuance of this Act. [832]

Police firemen.—The proviso to s. 1 (7) of the Fire Brigades Act, 1938 (31 Halsbury's Statutes 588), forbade, as from July 29, 1943, the employment of police as part-time members of fire brigades but left intact the power to employ police as whole-time firemen. The present section completes the strong move away from the system of police firemen.

33. Inquiries.—(1) The Secretary of State may hold a public local inquiry into the manner in which any fire authority are performing their functions under this Act, or into the circumstances of, or the steps taken to deal with, any particular outbreak of fire. [833]

(2) Subsections (2), (3) and (5) of section two hundred and ninety of the Local Government Act, 1933 (which relate to evidence at local enquiries and to the making of orders as to payment of the costs incurred thereat by local authorities) shall apply to any inquiry held in pursuance of this Act. [834]

Local Government Act, 1933, s. 290 (2), (3) and (5).—26 Halsbury's Statutes 459. These subsections provide that the person appointed to hold an inquiry may by summons require attendance to give evidence or to produce relevant documents, and may take evidence on oath or by declaration duly subscribed, provided that no person shall be required to go more than ten miles from his place of residence without payment of expenses or to produce the title to any land not being the property of a local authority. Refusal to comply, etc., are punishable on summary conviction by a fine not exceeding £50 or imprisonment not exceeding six months or both. The Secretary of State may make orders as to payment of costs.

In connection with offences, note that an accused has the right under s. 17 of the Summary Jurisdiction Act, 1879 (11 Halsbury's Statutes 329), to be tried by jury if he so wishes; he must therefore be informed of his right as required by sub-s. (2) of that section.

34. Expenses and receipts of Secretary of State.—(1) All expenses incurred by the Secretary of State by virtue of this Act shall be defrayed out of moneys provided by Parliament. [835]

(2) Any receipts of the Secretary of State under this Act shall be paid into the Exchequer. [836]

35. Regulations and orders to be laid before Parliament.—(1) Any regulations of the Secretary of State under this Act, and any order of the Secretary of State under section eleven or twenty-six thereof, shall be laid before Parliament forthwith after being made. [837]

(2) If either House of Parliament, within a period of forty days beginning with the day on which any such regulations or order as aforesaid are laid before it, resolves that an Address be presented to His Majesty praying that the regulations or order be annulled, no further proceedings shall be taken thereunder after the date of the resolution, and His Majesty may by Order in Council revoke the regulations or order, so, however, that any such resolution and revocation shall be without prejudice to the validity of anything previously done under the regulations or order or to the making of new regulations or a new order. [838]

(3) In reckoning any such period of forty days as aforesaid, no account shall be taken of any time during which Parliament is dissolved or prorogued, or during which both Houses are adjourned for more than four days. [839]

Effect of the Statutory Instruments Act, 1946.—Under this Act, which came into full operation on January 1, 1948 (see S.I. 1948 No. 3), documents made after its commencement in exercise of certain statutory powers conferred by Acts passed before its commencement will be "statutory instruments" (s. 1 (2); 39 Halsbury's Statutes 784); accordingly such documents are to be laid before Parliament in accordance with s. 4 of that Act in substitution for the corresponding provisions of the present section, and the provisions of s. 5 of that Act for annulment in pursuance of a resolution of either House of Parliament are substituted for the corresponding provisions of the present section. As to what documents are "statutory instruments," see note to s. 3 of the Probation Officers (Superannuation) Act, 1947, title SUPERANNUATION, post.

36. Application to Scotland. [840]

37. Application to Isles of Scilly.—This Act shall apply to the Isles of Scilly as if they were an administrative county and as if the Council of those Isles were the council of the county. [841]

38. Interpretation.—(1) In this Act, except where the context otherwise requires, the following expressions have the meanings hereby respectively assigned to them, that is to say:—

- "appointed day" means such day as the Secretary of State may by order appoint;
- "chief officer of police", "police area", "police authority" and "police force" have the same meanings respectively as in the Police Pensions Act, 1921;
- "equipment" includes fire engines and other vehicles and appliances and other apparatus, and also uniforms and badges of rank;
- "fire authority" means an authority which for the time being is constituted a fire authority by this Act or any combination scheme made thereunder;
- "fire-fighting purposes" means the purposes of the extinction of fires and the protection of life and property in case of fire;
- "street" includes any highway, including a highway over any bridge and any road, lane, footway, square, court, alley or passage whether a thoroughfare or not. [842]

(2) References in this Act to any enactment shall be construed as references to that enactment as amended by or under any other enactment. [843]

(3) References in this Act to a fire authority under the Fire Brigades Act, 1938, and to a fire brigade maintained in pursuance of that Act respectively include references to the London County Council and the London Fire Brigade. [844]

Appointed day.—April 1, 1948, for England and Wales (S.I. 1948 No. 325).

Police Pensions Act, 1921.—12 Halsbury's Statutes 873.

Fire Brigades Act, 1938.—31 Halsbury's Statutes 585. The reason for the inclusion of sub-s. (3), supra, is that only certain sections of the Act of 1938 applied to the County of London.

39. Short title, extent, transitional provisions, repeals and savings.—

(1) This Act may be cited as the Fire Services Act, 1947. [845]

(2) This Act shall not extend to Northern Ireland. [846]

(3) The transitional provisions specified in the Fifth Schedule to this Act shall have effect in relation to the matters specified in that Schedule. [847]

(4) As from the appointed day the enactments specified in the Sixth Schedule to this Act are hereby repealed to the extent specified in the third column of that Schedule. [848]

(5) Without prejudice to the provisions of section thirty-eight of the Interpretation Act, 1889 (which relates to the effect of repeals), save as provided in the Fifth Schedule to this Act, nothing in this Act shall affect—

- (a) the operation of any pension scheme in relation to persons retiring before the appointed day from employment as members of fire brigades or the National Fire Service, or dying before that date while in such employment; or

- (b) the operation of any pension scheme the Police and Firemen (War Service) Act, 1939, or any scheme under section seven of that Act in relation to a person to whom section one of that Act or any scheme under the said section seven applies, unless and until the said person becomes a member of a fire brigade maintained in pursuance of this Act or becomes engaged in such other employment in connection with the provision of fire services as may for the purposes of this paragraph be specified in the Firemen's Pension Scheme.

In this subsection the expression "pension scheme" means the Fire Brigade Pensions Act, 1925, or any other scheme for the grant of pensions, allowances or gratuities on the retirement or death of persons employed as members of fire brigades. [849]

Appointed day.—For England and Wales, April 1, 1948 (S.I. 1948 No. 325).

Interpretation Act, 1889, s. 38.—18 Halsbury's Statutes 1005.

Police and Firemen (War Service) Act, 1939.—For ss. 1 and 7 thereof, see 32 Halsbury's Statutes 1150 and 1156.

Fire Brigade Pensions Act, 1925.—13 Halsbury's Statutes 1095.

SCHEDULES

Section 8

FIRST SCHEDULE

MAKING, APPROVAL AND VARIATION OF ESTABLISHMENT SCHEMES AND MANAGEMENT SCHEMES FOR COUNTIES

1.—(1) A fire authority proposing to make an establishment scheme to which this Schedule applies or a management scheme shall, before making the scheme send to the council of every county district comprised in the area of the authority a copy of a draft of the proposed scheme and shall take into consideration any representations made by the council of any such county district before the expiration of one month from the sending of the copy to that council.

(2) A scheme made in accordance with the last foregoing sub-paragraph may be made either in terms of the draft therein referred to or with such modifications as appear to the fire authority expedient having regard to any representations duly made, and on the submission of any such scheme to the Secretary of State for his approval the fire authority shall forward with the scheme any such representations as aforesaid.

2. Before approving any scheme submitted in accordance with the last foregoing paragraph the Secretary of State shall consider any representations of the council of a county district which have been forwarded to him with the scheme, and any observations he has received from that council or from the fire authority relating thereto.

3. In relation to a fire authority (other than the London County Council) which is the council of a county, subsection (5) of section nineteen of this Act shall have effect—

- (a) as if in paragraph (b) thereof after the words "the Secretary of State" there were inserted the words "whether on the representations of the council of any county district comprised in the area of the fire authority or otherwise";
- (b) as if after the words "after affording to the fire authority" there were inserted the words "and to the council of any such county district as aforesaid." [850]

Effect of Schedule.—See note to s. 19 (7), ante. As to establishment schemes, see s. 19, ante, and as to management schemes, see s. 20, ante.

Section 19

SECOND SCHEDULE

APPLICATION TO COMBINED FIRE AUTHORITIES OF PROVISIONS AS TO ESTABLISHMENT SCHEMES AND MANAGEMENT SCHEMES

1.—(1) In the case of a fire authority constituted by a combination scheme, provision for the matters to which establishment schemes relate (hereafter in this Schedule referred to as "establishment matters") or to which management schemes relate (hereafter in this Schedule referred to as "management matters") shall be made by the combination scheme and not by an establishment scheme or management scheme, as the case may be, and may be varied or revoked accordingly :

Provided that in the case of an authority constituted by a combination scheme so as to become a fire authority on the appointed day, provision for management matters may be made either in the scheme constituting the authority or by the variation of that scheme as soon as may be after the appointed day.

(2) In this Schedule references to a fire authority constituted by a combination scheme shall be construed, in relation to management matters, as references to such an authority the area of which consists of or includes one or more counties other than the County of London.

(3) Without prejudice to any power to vary a combination scheme, subsection (5) of section nineteen and subsections (3) and (7) of section twenty of this Act shall not apply in relation to a fire authority constituted by a combination scheme.

2. Where by reason of the variation or revocation of a combination scheme the council of a county or county borough becomes a fire authority, the establishment scheme for the authority, and in the case of an authority being the council of a county the management scheme for the authority, shall be contained in the varying or revoking scheme instead of being made in accordance with the provisions of this Act in that behalf, but may be varied or revoked as if so made.

3.—(1) Where a combination scheme, or a scheme varying or revoking a combination scheme, makes provision for establishment or management matters relating to one or more counties, the following provisions shall have effect.

(2) Before the scheme is made a copy of a draft of so much thereof as makes provision for establishment or management matters shall be sent by the authority making the scheme to the council of every county district comprised in the said county or counties, and the said authority shall take into consideration any representations made by the council of any such county district before the expiration of one month from the sending of the copy to that council.

(3) So much of the scheme as aforesaid may be made either in terms of the draft referred to in the last foregoing sub-paragraph or with such modifications as appear expedient to the authority making the scheme, having regard to any representations duly made.

(4) Where the scheme is required to be submitted to the Secretary of State for his approval, there shall be forwarded with the scheme any such representations as aforesaid.

(5) Before approving or making a scheme the Secretary of State shall consider any representations of the council of a county district made or forwarded to him in accordance with the foregoing provisions of this Schedule and, in the case of a scheme not made by him, any observations relating thereto which he has received from the authority making the scheme or the council making the representations.

4. The Secretary of State may, for the purpose of his function under this Schedule as to establishment matters, hold such public local inquiries as he thinks fit. [851]

Effect of Schedule.—See note to s. 19 (9), ante. As to combined fire authorities and combination schemes, see ss. 5, 6, 8, 9 and 10, ante. As to establishment schemes, see s. 19, ante, and as to management schemes, see s. 20, ante. The appointed day for England and Wales is April 1, 1948 (see S.I. 1948 No. 325).

Section 39

FIFTH SCHEDULE

TRANSITIONAL PROVISIONS

Provisions relating to period between passing of Act and appointed day

1. For the purposes of the Fire Services (Emergency Provisions) Act, 1941, the expression "the period of the present emergency" (being the expression which designates the period for which under that Act the National Fire Service is established) shall mean the period beginning as provided in that Act and ending immediately before the appointed day.

2. Subsection (2) of section four of the Emergency Laws (Transitional Provisions) Act, 1946 (which continues the Personal Injuries (Emergency Provisions) Act, 1939, in operation as respects war service injuries, as defined in that Act, sustained by members of the National Fire Service during the period during which the said section four is in force) shall have effect as if the said section four continued in force until the beginning of the appointed day.

General provisions arising out of transfer of functions to fire authorities

3.—(1) The Secretary of State may by regulations make such transitional provisions as appear to him expedient in consequence of the transfer to fire authorities of functions relating to fire services of the Secretary of State and of authorities which were fire authorities for the purposes of the Fire Brigades Act, 1938.

(2) Nothing in the following provisions of this Schedule shall be construed as limiting the generality of the provisions of the last foregoing sub-paragraph.

(3) In the following provisions of this Schedule the expression "regulations" means regulations made by the Secretary of State.

Transfer of persons employed in connection with National Fire Service

4. Regulations may provide for the transfer on the prescribed terms, to the prescribed fire brigade maintained in pursuance of this Act or to such other service under such fire authority as may be prescribed, of persons who immediately before the appointed day were serving in the National Fire Service.

5.—(1) Regulations may provide for the retention in the service of the Crown, on the prescribed terms, of persons to whom this paragraph applies who immediately before the appointed day were employed (whether as members of the National Fire Service or otherwise) for the purposes of the Fire Services (Emergency Provisions) Act, 1941.

(2) The persons to whom this paragraph applies are persons in whose case the Secretary of State with the approval of the Treasury determines that it is expedient that they should be retained as aforesaid for the purpose of enabling him to perform his functions under this Act or for administrative purposes pending the bringing into operation by fire authorities of arrangements for the performance of their functions under this Act.

6. Regulations may provide for the employment in the service of the Crown, on such terms and for such period as may be prescribed, of persons transferred to a fire brigade under paragraph 4 of this Schedule where the Secretary of State determines with the approval of the Treasury that it is expedient so to do for the purpose of enabling him to perform his functions under this Act and the fire authority and person concerned consent to that person's being employed as aforesaid.

Transfer of property, rights and liabilities

7. Regulations may provide for the transfer to fire authorities of property, rights and liabilities vested, enjoyed or incurred on behalf of His Majesty for the purposes of the National Fire Service, and for the carrying on by fire authorities of arrangements (including arrangements for the making of payments) entered into on behalf of the Crown for those purposes.

8.—(1) Regulations may provide for the vesting in fire authorities of property used on behalf of His Majesty for the purposes of the National Fire Service but vested in an authority being a fire authority for the purposes of the Fire Brigades Act, 1938, or for the use of such property by a fire authority on such terms (including terms as to payments) as may be agreed between the authorities or in default of agreement as may be determined by the Secretary of State.

(2) Where property is to be vested under the last foregoing sub-paragraph and it is agreed or determined as aforesaid that the property cannot conveniently be severed from other property, whether or not forming part of the same building, the other property shall also be vested in the fire authority, subject to such rights of the authority for the purposes of the said Act of 1938 to use the other property, on such terms (including terms as to payments), as may be agreed or determined as aforesaid.

9.—(1) Subject to the provisions of the next following sub-paragraph, regulations may provide that where an authority for the purposes of the said Act of 1938 which does not on the appointed day become a fire authority is on or after the appointed day liable to make payments in respect of interest and redemption charges on moneys borrowed for fire-fighting purposes, the fire authority for the area including the area of the first-mentioned authority shall reimburse to that authority the amount of the payments.

(2) Regulations having effect by virtue of the last foregoing sub-paragraph shall not apply in relation to moneys borrowed by the authority for the purposes of the said Act of 1938 in connection with property retained by that authority, but may be made to apply in relation to moneys borrowed in connection with property vested under sub-paragraph (2) of the last foregoing paragraph notwithstanding that the money was not borrowed for fire-fighting purposes.

(3) Any question arising under this paragraph or regulations made thereunder shall be determined by the Minister of Health.

Provisions as to pensions

10.—(1) The liabilities of any authority for pensions, allowances and gratuities in respect of members of a transferred fire brigade retiring or dying at any time before the appointed day, and the functions of that authority in relation thereto, shall on the appointed day be transferred to the fire authority.

(2) In the last foregoing sub-paragraph the expression "transferred fire brigade" means a fire brigade maintained in pursuance of the Fire Brigades Act, 1938, by an authority which does not on the appointed day become a fire authority, and the expression "the fire authority" in relation to any such brigade means the fire authority for the area including the area for which the brigade was maintained.

11.—(1) Regulations may provide for payments by a former pension authority, in respect of pension liabilities of a fire authority accrued at the appointed day, of such amounts at such times as may be prescribed, and if the regulations so provide out of such funds as may be prescribed.

(2) Regulations made under this paragraph may provide for the determination by the Secretary of State of questions arising under the regulations.

(3) In this paragraph the following expressions have the meaning hereby assigned to them respectively, that is to say :—

“ Pension liabilities of a fire authority accrued at the appointed day ” means, in relation to any fire authority,—

(a) any liabilities for pensions, allowances and gratuities in respect of members of a fire brigade retiring or dying at any time before the appointed day, being liabilities which either were liabilities of the authority immediately before the appointed day or were transferred under the last foregoing paragraph, and

(b) any liabilities of the authority under the Firemen's Pension Scheme in respect of employment or service before the appointed day which under that scheme is treated as employment in the fire brigade maintained by the authority ;

“ former pension authority ” means—

(a) in relation to liabilities specified in paragraph (a) of the last foregoing definition, the authority which immediately before the appointed day was liable to meet them ;

(b) in relation to liabilities specified in paragraph (b) of the last foregoing definition, the authority liable immediately before the appointed day for meeting liabilities, whether vested or contingent, for pensions, allowances or gratuities in respect of such employment or service as is specified in the said paragraph (b).

12.—(1) The liabilities of fire authorities for such pensions, allowances and gratuities as are specified in sub-paragraph (1) of paragraph 10 of this Schedule shall, if regulations so provide, be defrayed out of funds established for defraying liabilities under the Firemen's Pension Scheme.

(2) Payments under sub-paragraph (1) of the last foregoing paragraph shall, if regulations so provide, be carried into funds established as aforesaid.

13. Where by virtue of this Act or a combination scheme an authority which maintained a fire brigade in pursuance of the Fire Brigades Act, 1938, ceases to maintain a fire brigade, the Police and Firemen (War Service) Acts, 1939 and 1944, shall, in the case of former members of the brigade to whom section one of the Police and Firemen (War Service) Act, 1939, applies, have effect with such modification of references to the fire brigades to which they belonged, and to the authority maintaining that brigade, as may be prescribed.

Compensation for loss of emoluments or employment

14.—(1) Regulations made with the approval of the Treasury may provide for authorising or requiring the appropriate authority to pay compensation in respect of loss of emoluments or pension—

- (a) to members of police forces and persons employed by local authorities, not being in either case persons who were transferred to the National Fire Service, as to whom the Secretary of State is satisfied that by reason of the National Fire Service (General) Regulation, 1941, they suffered a loss of emoluments ;
- (b) to persons who, having been members of the National Fire Service immediately before the appointed day, become on that day members of a fire brigade maintained in pursuance of this Act and suffer a reduction of emoluments in comparison with the emoluments determined by the regulations to be appropriate to their former employment in connection with the provision of fire services ;
- (c) to persons who immediately before the eighteenth day of August, nineteen hundred and forty-one, were employed by a local authority, or were engaged in war service within the meaning of the Local Government Staffs (War Service) Act, 1939, having left employment with the local authority to undertake such service, and immediately before the appointed day were employed for the purposes of the Fire Services (Emergency Provisions) Act, 1941, otherwise than as members of the National Fire Service, and who either—

(a) become employed on the appointed day by a local authority and suffer a reduction in emoluments in comparison with the emoluments determined by the regulations to be appropriate as aforesaid, or

(b) do not on the appointed day become employed by a local authority.

(2) Regulations may authorise or require the payment by the appropriate authority of emoluments, and of pensions, gratuities or allowances, of such amounts and subject to such conditions as may be prescribed in the case of persons who, having at any time before the appointed day been chief officers of fire brigades maintained in pursuance of the Fire Brigades Act, 1938, do not on or after the appointed day become chief officers of fire brigades maintained in pursuance of this Act.

(3) In this paragraph the expression "appropriate authority", in relation to the whole or any part of any payment, means a fire authority or the Secretary of State, as may be prescribed.

(4) Regulations under this paragraph may make provision as to the determination of questions arising under the regulations.

Special provisions as to police-firemen

15.—(1) The provisions of the Police Act, 1946, as to the transfer of property, rights and liabilities from the council of an area ceasing to be a separate police area to the council of a county or to a combined police authority shall apply, and be deemed always to have applied, to property, rights and liabilities of the first-mentioned council held or incurred in connection with pensions, allowances or gratuities—

(a) in respect of whole-time service for fire-fighting purposes in the police force of the said area, and

(b) in respect of service for such purposes (whether before or after the said area ceased to be a separate police area) falling by virtue of regulations made under the Fire Services (Emergency Provisions) Act, 1941, to be treated for the purposes of the Police Pensions Act, 1921, as service in the said police force.

(2) The said provisions of the Police Act, 1946, shall not apply, and shall be deemed never to have applied, to any other property, rights or liabilities held or incurred in connection with the provision of fire services.

(3) Without prejudice to the generality of sub-paragraph (1) of this paragraph, the provisions of sub-paragraph (1) of paragraph 3 of the Third Schedule to the said Act of 1946 as to the treatment of pensions, allowances and gratuities granted before the date of transfer in respect of members of a transferred force shall apply, and be deemed always to have applied, to pensions, allowances and gratuities granted before that date to members of the National Fire Service whose service therein fell by virtue of regulations made under the said Act of 1941 to be treated as service in the transferred force.

16.—(1) Where section one of the Police and Firemen (War Service) Act, 1939, applied to a constable by reason of his having ceased to serve as a member of a fire brigade maintained in pursuance of the Fire Brigades Act, 1938—

(a) engagement in service on the National Fire Service, whether before or after the passing of this Act, shall be treated for the purposes of the Police and Firemen (War Service) Acts, 1939 and 1944, as resumption of service as a constable ;

(b) if he is, or was before the passing of this Act, prevented as mentioned in those Acts from engaging in service in the National Fire Service or a fire brigade maintained in pursuance of this Act, he shall be treated for the purposes of those Acts as having been so prevented from resuming service as a constable.

(2) Nothing in the last foregoing sub-paragraph shall be construed as prejudicing the power of the Secretary of State under subsection (3) of section six of the Police and Firemen (War Service) Act, 1944, to declare what during the existence of the National Fire Service is to be treated for the purposes of the said Acts of 1939 and 1944 as resuming service as a fireman.

17.—(1) Regulations may provide for authorising the taking before the appointed day by councils of counties and county boroughs and other authorities which on the appointed day will become fire authorities of such steps as appear to the Secretary of State to be requisite for the purpose of enabling fire authorities to perform their functions under this Act on or after that day.

(2) Without prejudice to the provisions of the last foregoing paragraph, a combination scheme may be made before the appointed day, but so as to come into operation on or after that day, or, if the scheme is made by virtue of section ten of this Act, on or after the appointed day or the date mentioned in that section, whichever is the later.

(3) In relation to a combination scheme made by virtue of the last foregoing sub-paragraph, references in sections five, six, nine and ten of this Act to fire authorities (other than references to the fire authority constituted by the scheme) shall be construed as references to authorities which apart from the scheme would on the appointed day become fire authorities.

(4) Notwithstanding anything in the provisions of the last foregoing sub-paragraph or in section ten of this Act, a combination scheme made by virtue thereof may come into operation earlier than would be permissible under those provisions, in so far as is requisite for the purposes of sub-paragraph (1) of this paragraph.

18. The provisions of Part VIII of the Requisitioned Land and War Works Act, 1945 (which provides for adjustments of compensation on the acquisition of land in certain cases for the purpose of eliminating changes in value due to the exercise of emergency powers) shall have effect in relation to any purchase of land by a fire authority under subsection (5) of section three of this Act as if the expression "war period" in the said Act of 1945 included any period during which the Supplies and Services (Transitional Powers) Act, 1945, is in force.

Provisions as to regulations

19.—(1) Regulations shall be made after consultation with such associations representing local authorities as appear to the Secretary of State to be concerned.

(2) In this Schedule the expression "prescribed" means prescribed by or under regulations.

(3) Regulations may be made either generally or so as to apply in such circumstances as may be prescribed, and may make different provisions for different cases. [854]

Fire Services (Emergency Provisions) Act, 1941.—34 Halsbury's Statutes 223. S. 1 of this Act empowered the Secretary of State to make "regulations providing for the co-ordination, for the period of the present emergency, of all or any of the fire services provided by local authorities or for the unification, in whole or in part, of all or any of those services for that period. . . ." The powers conferred on the Secretary of State by this Act were later extended and modified by the Defence (National Fire Service) Regulations, 1941 (S. R. & O., 1941, No. 1133). By regulation 3 (1) of the National Fire Service (General) Regulations, 1941 (S. R. & O., 1941, No. 1134; 34 Halsbury's Statutes 228), made under the Act of 1941 (as amended), it was provided as follows:—

"During the period of the present emergency, there shall be a National Fire Service in Great Britain, to be set up and maintained on behalf of the Crown by the Secretary of State, for the extinction of fires, and the protection of life and property in case of fire, in Great Britain."

This provision was replaced as from September 26, 1944, with minor modifications, by regulation 3 (1) of the National Fire Service (General) Regulations, 1944 (S. R. & O., 1944, No. 1077).

Paragraph 1 of this Schedule, in defining the period of the present emergency for the purposes of the Act of 1941, brings to an end the National Fire Service as from the beginning of the appointed day (see infra).

National Fire Service.—The National Fire Service was a national force under the supreme control of the Secretary of State, who delegated powers to Regional Commissioners who were assisted by Chief Regional Fire Officers, subject to whom were Fire Force Commanders and various other ranks down to that of fireman. As at August 18, 1941, all fire personnel of local authorities were transferred to the National Fire Service (General) Regulations, 1941, regulation 12 (34 Halsbury's Statutes 232), as applied by S. R. & O., 1941, No. 1381).

Appointed day.—By s. 38 (1), ante, this means such day as the Secretary of State may appoint. For England and Wales, April 1, 1948, has been so appointed (see S.I. 1948 No. 325).

War service injuries sustained by members of the National Fire Service.—S. 1 of the Personal Injuries (Emergency Provisions) Act, 1939 (32 Halsbury's Statutes 1061), provided for the making of payments in respect of "war service injuries," as defined in s. 8 (1) thereof, sustained "during the period of the present emergency" by civil defence volunteers, that is to say, persons certified by responsible officers of civil defence organisations to have been members of those organisations at the time when the injuries were sustained (s. 8 (1)). The National Fire Service was declared to be a civil defence organisation for the purposes of the Personal Injuries (Emergency Provisions) Act, 1939, by regulation 9 of the National Fire Service (General) Regulations, 1941 (S. R. & O., 1941, No. 1134; 34 Halsbury's Statutes 231).

The Personal Injuries (Emergency Provisions) Act (End of Emergency) Order, 1946 (S. R. & O., 1946, No. 379) declared March 19, 1946, to be the date on which the emergency that was the occasion of the passing of the Act of 1939 came to an end, but s. 4 of the Emergency Laws (Transitional Provisions) Act, 1946 (39 Halsbury's Statutes 883), extended this period as respects war service injuries sustained by members of the National Fire Service until December 31, 1947 (subject to an important proviso) and paragraph 2 of the present Schedule has the effect of substituting for December 31, 1947, the appointed day under the present Act, i.e. for England and Wales April 1, 1948.

Regulations.—On December 23, 1947, the Secretary of State, under paragraphs 3 and 17 of the present Schedule, made the Fire Services (Authorisation) Regulations, 1947 (S. R. & O., 1947, No. 2781).

Note that regulations under paragraph 14 (1), ante, require Treasury consent. Note also paragraph 19 which provides, inter alia, that regulations are to be made after consultation with such associations representing local authorities as appear to the Secretary of State to be concerned.

Transfer of fire authorities.—"Functions relating to fire services of the Secretary of State" refers to the National Fire Service, and "authorities which were fire authorities for the purposes of the Fire Brigades Act, 1938," refers to the bodies which were fire authorities before August 18, 1941, the date of transfer to the National Fire Service, namely, county boroughs and county district councils (i.e. the councils of non-county boroughs, urban and rural districts) (see s. 1 of the Fire Brigades Act, 1938; 31 Halsbury's Statutes 586). Under s. 4 of the present Act, ante, the only local authorities to be fire authorities are county boroughs and county councils.

Fire Brigades Act, 1938.—31 Halsbury's Statutes 585.

Paragraph 9.—Note that it is the Ministry of Health, which as a "neutral" department is empowered to determine questions arising out of the present paragraph.

Liability for pensions, etc.—See note to s. 27, ante.

Police and Firemen (War Service) Act, 1939, s. 1.—32 Halsbury's Statutes 1150. This Act, like the Local Government Staffs (War Service) Act, 1939 (32 Halsbury's Statutes 1118), and the Teachers Superannuation (War Service) Act, 1939 (32 Halsbury's Statutes 1131), in their respective spheres, made provision for the make-up of war service pay and the protection of superannuation rights of police and firemen who undertook war service during the period of the emergency. For the Police and Firemen (War Service) Act, 1944, see 37 Halsbury's Statutes 400.

Paragraph 14 (1) (a).—By regulation 11 of the National Fire Service (General) Regulations, 1941 (S. R. & O., 1941, No. 1134), all persons who, on August 18, 1941, were fire personnel employed by or serving under the directions of a local authority were transferred to the National Fire Service, but it was expressly provided that no person should be transferred (1) who was a member of a police force within the meaning of the Police Pensions Act, 1921 (12 Halsbury's Statutes 873), unless he were a member of a fire brigade employed whole-time on fire brigade duties, or (2) whom the appropriate Regional Commissioner and local authority were agreed had since September 3, 1939, been employed mainly on duties other than fire brigade duties.

The word "Regulation" for "Regulations" in this paragraph is a misprint in the King's Printer's Copy.

Paragraph 14 (1) (b).—Compare regulation 19 of the National Fire Service (General) Regulations, 1941 (S. R. & O., 1941, No. 1134) (34 Halsbury's Statutes 235).

Paragraph 14 (1) (c).—This refers to employees or ex-employees of a local authority, who, though not themselves members of the National Fire Service, were employed for fire brigade purposes, as, for instance, on clerical duties or duties in connection with the construction, repair or maintenance of fire engines or of vehicles, appliances or equipment used for fire brigade purposes. For a full explanation of the operation of this provision, see 438 H. of C. Official Report 1388-1389.

Former chief officers of fire brigades (paragraph 14 (2)).—There have been no chief officers of brigades since August 18, 1941, when the transfer to the National Fire Service took effect. Before that date there were approximately 1,668 local fire brigades in Great Britain with a similar number of chief officers; after the appointed day the number of local fire authorities will have been reduced to some 140. These factors account for the absence of any provisions analogous to s. 11 of the Police Act, 1946 (39 Halsbury's Statutes 626), relating to chief constables.

Paragraph 15.—Speaking for the Government, Lord Walkden explained the purpose of this paragraph at the Committee Stage in the House of Lords on July 10, 1947, as follows:—

"The subject dealt with here . . . has relation to the position of ex-police constables who serve as firemen. . . . The Amendment relates to a number of firemen—about 1,000 in all, I understand—who until the formation of the National Fire Service were police firemen. . . . He [the police fireman] was a member of a police force . . . and he held his superannuation rights under the Police Pensions Acts. When the National Fire Service was formed, whole-time police firemen were transferred to the Service and ceased to be constables. For pension purposes service in the National Fire Service was deemed to be service in the police force from which they were transferred. The Police Act, 1946, required the police forces of non-county boroughs to be amalgamated with the county police forces, and among the forces which thus ceased to have a separate existence were a number of forces which had included police firemen. The Police Act makes provision in such cases for the pension liability of the defunct police authority to be transferred to the new authority—that is, the county. As, however, the police firemen were no longer members of the defunct force at the time of its amalgamation (although they were deemed to be serving in that force for pension purposes), some doubt has arisen as to their present position, and the object of this Amendment is to make it clear that the pension functions of the defunct police authority were in fact transferred at the appointed day of the Police Act—April 1, 1947. Other property and liabilities held or incurred in connection with the provisions of fire services by the defunct police authorities have not been transferred to the county, although they will, of course, be so transferred on the appointed day of this Bill" (150 H. of L. Official Report 478-474).

Police Act, 1946.—39 Halsbury's Statutes 616. For the transfer of property, rights and liabilities referred to in paragraph 15, ante, see ss. 1, 9 and Sched. III thereof (39 Halsbury's Statutes 618, 634 and 636).

Whole-time fire service in a police force.—See s. 32, ante, and note thereto.

Regulations under the Fire Services (Emergency Provisions) Act, 1941 (see paragraph 15 (1) (b)).—As to service to be treated as police service, see regulation 4 of the National Fire Service (Preservation of Pensions) (Police Firemen) Regulations, 1941 (S. R. & O., 1941, No. 1271) as amended by the National Fire Service (Preservation of Pensions) (Police Firemen) (No. 2) Regulations, 1945 (S. R. & O., 1945, No. 1659).

Requisitioned Land and War Works Act, 1945, Part VIII.—38 Halsbury's Statutes 614 et seq. S. 41 of this Act provides that, subject to certain detailed considerations, in assessing compensation on the acquisition of land, such adjustment is to be made therein as is necessary to offset any increase or diminution of the compensation attributable either to damage occurring while the land was, during the war period, in the possession of a Minister or of a person occupying or using it under the authority of a Minister; or any work done since the beginning of the war period by or by arrangement with a Minister or the acquiring authority or in exercise of emergency powers; or any prohibition or restriction, imposed in the exercise of emergency powers, on the doing of any work on the land.

Supplies and Services (Transitional Powers) Act, 1945.—38 Halsbury's Statutes 629. S. 8 of this Act provides that it shall continue in force for five years from December 10, 1945, the date of its passing, but provision is made for its continuance in force for a further year at a time if both Houses of Parliament so resolve. For present purposes, therefore, this period is to be included in the expression "war period" as appearing in the Requisitioned Land and War Works Act, 1945, supra.

NATIONAL FIRE SERVICE (GENERAL) REGULATIONS, 1947

S. R. & O., 1947, No. 5

January 1, 1947

In pursuance of the powers conferred on me by the Fire Services (Emergency Provisions) Act, 1941, as having effect by virtue of the Emergency Laws (Transitional Provisions) Act, 1946, I [i.e. the Secretary of State] hereby make the following Regulations:—

1. For sub-paragraphs (3), (4), (5), (6), (7) and (8) of paragraph 1 of the Third Schedule to the National Fire Service (General) Regulations, 1944 (which relate to the pay of whole-time firemen and firewomen), there shall be substituted the following sub-paragraphs:—

“(3) The scale of pay for a whole-time Section Leader shall be as follows:—

	Weekly
	s.	d.
During the first year of service after promotion .. ..	150	0
During the second year of service after promotion .. ..	153	0
During the third year of service after promotion .. ..	156	0
During the fourth year of service after promotion .. ..	159	0
During the fifth year of service after promotion .. ..	162	0
During the sixth and subsequent years of service after promotion .. ..	165	0

(4) The scale of pay for a whole-time Leading Fireman shall be as follows :—

NATIONAL FIRE SERVICE (PRESERVATION OF PENSIONS) REGULATIONS, 1947

March 26, 1947

In pursuance of the powers conferred on me by the Fire Services (Emergency Provisions) Act, 1941, as having effect by virtue of section four of the Emergency Laws (Transitional Provisions) Act, 1946, I [i.e. the Secretary of State] hereby make the following Regulations :—

1. The National Fire Service (Preservation of Pensions) Regulations, 1943, shall have effect as if for the words "one and a half times" in the following paragraphs of the said Regulations, that is to say :—

paragraph (2) of Regulation 3; paragraph (1) of Regulation 4; paragraph (2) of Regulation 11; paragraph (2) of Regulation 12; paragraph (1) of Regulation 13; paragraph (2) of Regulation 16; paragraph (1) of Regulation 22; paragraph (2) of Regulation 25; and paragraphs (a) and (b) of Regulation 26, there were substituted, in the case of the said paragraph (2) of Regulation 11 of the said Regulations, the words "twice the amount of" and, in the case of the remaining of the foregoing paragraphs of the said Regulations, the word "twice." [858]

2. These Regulations may be cited as the National Fire Service (Preservation of Pensions) Regulations, 1947, and shall come into operation on the first day of April, 1947. [859]

* * * * *

EXPLANATORY NOTE

(This Note is not part of the Regulations, but is intended to indicate their general purport.)

The purpose of this amendment is, in the case of those former professional and police firemen who fall within the National Fire Service (Preservation of Pensions) Regulations, 1943, to increase the amount of National Fire Service pay to be taken into account for pension purposes from the existing maximum of one and a half times the sum estimated as the pay which the fireman would have been receiving had he remained a member of the local brigade to a new maximum of twice this estimated local brigade pay.

NATIONAL FIRE SERVICE (GENERAL) (NO. 2) REGULATIONS, 1947

April 2, 1947

In pursuance of the powers conferred on me by the Fire Services (Emergency Provisions) Act, 1941, as having effect by virtue of the Emergency Laws (Transitional Provisions) Act, 1946, I [i.e. the Secretary of State] hereby make the following Regulations :—

1. For sub-paragraph (4) of paragraph 1 of the Third Schedule to the National Fire Service (General) Regulations, 1944 (which sub-paragraph relates to the pay of a whole-time Leading Fireman), there shall be substituted the following sub-paragraph :—

“(4) The scale of pay for a whole-time Leading Fireman shall be as follows :—

	Weekly
	s.      d.
During the first year of service after promotion .. .. .	127   0
During the second year of service after promotion .. .. .	130   0
During the third year of service after promotion .. .. .	133   0
During the fourth year of service after promotion .. .. .	136   0
During the fifth year of service after promotion .. .. .	139   0
During the sixth year of service after promotion .. .. .	142   0
During the seventh and subsequent years of service after promotion .. .. .	145   0

Provided that a man who, immediately before promotion, was entitled to a rate of pay in the scale then applicable to him not less in amount than the lowest rate in the scale in this sub-paragraph shall be entitled, during the first year of service after promotion, to the rate of pay in the latter scale next above the amount of the rate to which he was entitled immediately before promotion and, during each subsequent year of service, to an increment in the latter scale.” [860]

2.—(1) These Regulations may be cited as the National Fire Service (General) (No. 2) Regulations, 1947.

(2) These Regulations shall come into operation on the fourth day of April, 1947. [861]

NATIONAL FIRE SERVICE (GENERAL) (NO. 3) REGULATIONS, 1947

S. R. & O., 1947, No. 823

May 1, 1947

In pursuance of the powers conferred on me by the Fire Services (Emergency Provisions) Act, 1941, as having effect by virtue of the Emergency Laws (Transitional Provisions) Act, 1946, I [i.e. the Secretary of State] hereby make the following Regulations :—

1. In sub-paragraph (9) of paragraph 1 of the Third Schedule to the National Fire Service (General) Regulations, 1944, for the words “after the thirty-first day of August, 1939”, in the first place where those words occur, there shall be substituted the words “and also, in the case of service in the London Fire Brigade or the West Ham Fire Brigade, any period of service (other than service in the London Fire Brigade as a member entitled to benefit from the Superannuation and Provident Fund established by virtue of the London County Council (General Powers) Act, 1891, before the first day of September, 1939". [862]

2. After paragraph 1 of the Third Schedule to the said Regulations there shall be inserted the following paragraph :—

" 1A.—(1) Subject to the provisions of sub-paragraph (5) of this paragraph, a fireman who has performed seventeen years of service may be granted a long service increment of 4s. 0d. a week in his pay if the Fire Force Commander is satisfied that he has shown zeal and proficiency in the performance of his duties and is well conducted.

(2) Subject as aforesaid, a fireman who has performed twenty-two years of service may be granted, in lieu of the long service increment (if any) granted to him under sub-paragraph (1) of this paragraph, a long service increment of 8s. 0d. a week in his pay if the Fire Force Commander is satisfied as aforesaid.

(3) As soon as a fireman has performed seventeen or, as the case may be, twenty-two years of service, the Fire Force Commander shall consider whether a long service increment shall be granted to him under sub-paragraph (1) or, as the case may be, sub-paragraph (2) of this paragraph.

(4) If the Fire Force Commander is of opinion that a fireman in receipt of a long service increment under this paragraph is not showing zeal or proficiency in the performance of his duties or that he is not well conducted, the fireman shall be given a written warning of the opinion of the Fire Force Commander and if, at the end of a period of two months from the date of the warning or of such longer period as may be specified in the warning, the Fire Force Commander is still of the same opinion, the increment shall be withdrawn :

Provided that if, after the last grant of an increment under this paragraph to a fireman—

- (a) the fireman is guilty of an offence against discipline for which he is punished by a stoppage of pay amounting in the aggregate to 20s. 0d., or any greater punishment,
- (b) the fireman is guilty, during any period of twelve months, of two offences against discipline, for which he is punished by any punishment specified in paragraph 4 of Part II of the Second Schedule to these Regulations, or
- (c) the fireman is guilty of more than three offences against discipline for which he is punished by any punishment specified as aforesaid, the increment may be withdrawn without warning.

(5) No long service increment shall be granted under this paragraph to a fireman from whom a long service increment has been withdrawn under sub-paragraph (4) of this paragraph until a period of a year has elapsed from the date of the withdrawal.

(6) In the case of any fireman who is not a member of a Fire Force, this paragraph shall have effect with the substitution for references to the Fire Force Commander of references to such officer as may be designated by the Secretary of State in relation to any particular case or class of cases.

(7) In this paragraph ' service ' has the same meaning as in paragraph 1 of this Schedule, and ' fireman ' means a member of the National Fire Service holding the rank of fireman." [863]

3. For the proviso to sub-paragraph (3) of paragraph 8 of the Third Schedule to the said Regulations there shall be substituted the following proviso :—

“ Provided that where any fireman is or has since he became a fireman in the National Fire Service been reduced in rank for an offence against discipline or on conviction of a criminal offence and has not since he was so reduced been promoted to the rank from which he was so reduced or to a higher rank, the pay to which he would have been entitled if he had remained a member of his brigade or force shall be deemed to be reduced by an amount equal to the difference at the time of his reduction between the ordinary pay of the rank from which he was reduced and that of the rank to which he was reduced so, however, that—

- (a) during any time when he is serving in a rank higher than that to which he was so reduced, the pay to which he would have been entitled as aforesaid shall not be deemed to be reduced by an amount greater than the difference at the time of his reduction between the ordinary pay of the rank from which he was reduced and that of the rank in which he is serving, and
- (b) the pay to which he would have been entitled as aforesaid shall not be deemed to be less than the pay, if any, to which he would have been entitled had he immediately before his transfer to the National Fire Service been in the rank of fireman or constable in his brigade or force and had he remained a member of his brigade or force :

in this proviso the expression ‘ ordinary pay ’ means, in relation to any rank, the pay (as determined in accordance with paragraph 1 of this Schedule or of the Third Schedule to the National Fire Service (General) Regulations, 1941, as circumstances require) of a member of the National Fire Service to whom this paragraph does not apply holding that rank.”

4. In the proviso to paragraph 10 of the Third Schedule to the said Regulations after the words “ Provided that ” there shall be inserted the letter “ (a) ” and at the end of the said proviso there shall be added the following proviso :—

- “(b) where the Secretary of State is satisfied that in the case of any such fireman as aforesaid there has at any time been an increase of pay granted wholly or partly in respect of any change in conditions of service affecting hours of duty, being either an increase of pay given to the fireman before he ceased to be a member of his brigade or force or an increase of pay taken into account under proviso (a) to this paragraph, and that the conditions of service of the fireman as regards hours of duty are not more onerous than was the case immediately before the change which was the occasion of the said increase of pay, then the said increase of pay shall, to such extent, if any, as the Secretary of State may direct, be left out of account.”

5.—(1) These Regulations may be cited as the National Fire Service (General) (No. 3) Regulations, 1947.

(2) These Regulations shall come into operation on the second day of May, 1947. [866]

EXPLANATORY NOTE

(This Note is not part of the Regulations, but is intended to indicate their general purport.)

For the purposes of the scale of pay for the rank of fireman in the National Fire Service, certain former whole-time paid service after August 31st, 1939, is counted under the present Regulations. Under the amendment made by Regulation 1 the limitation to service after that date is removed, except in the case of certain service in the London Fire Brigade and service in the West Ham Fire Brigade. Regulation 2 provides for the grant under certain conditions of long service increments after seventeen and twenty-two years. The purpose of the amendment made by Regulation 3 is to secure that a former professional or police fireman transferred to the National Fire Service shall not on reduction in rank for an offence against discipline or on conviction of a criminal offence lose the benefit of certain increments in pay and increases of bonus which he would have had if he had remained a member of his brigade or force and of which account would have been taken if he had not been so reduced in rank. The amendment made by Regulation 4 enables increases of pay granted, in respect of more onerous conditions as to hours of duty which have since ceased to obtain, to a former professional or police fireman transferred to the National Fire Service to be left out of account, to such extent as the Secretary of State may direct, in computing the pay to which he would have been entitled if he had remained a member of his brigade or force.

NATIONAL FIRE SERVICE (PRESERVATION OF PENSIONS) (NO. 2) REGULATIONS, 1947

S. R. & O., 1947, No. 824

May 1, 1947

In pursuance of the powers conferred on me by the Fire Services (Emergency Provisions) Act, 1941, as having effect by virtue of section four of the Emergency Laws (Transitional Provisions) Act, 1946, I [i.e. the Secretary of State] hereby make the following Regulations :—

1. The following Regulations, that is to say :—

- (a) Regulation 12 of the National Fire Service (Preservation of Pensions) (Act of 1925) Regulations, 1941,
- (b) Regulation 11 of the London Fire Service (Preservation of Pensions) (London and West Ham) Regulations, 1941,
- (c) Regulation 12 of the National Fire Service (Preservation of Pensions) (Birmingham and Leicester) Regulations, 1941, and
- (d) Regulation 12 of the National Fire Service (Preservation of Pensions) (Bolton and Derby) Regulations, 1941, shall be amended in each case by the substitution for the words “ the National Fire Service (General) Regulations, 1941 ” of the words “ the National Fire Service (General) Regulations, 1944 ”, and the said Regulations and Regulation 13 of the National Fire Service (Preservation of Pensions) (Police Firemen) Regulations, 1941, shall be amended in each case by the substitution for the proviso of the following proviso :—

“ Provided that—

- (i) any such resulting increase of pay as is mentioned in proviso (a) to that paragraph shall (however treated for the purposes of those Regulations) be taken into account for the purposes of these Regulations to such extent, if any, as the Secretary of State may direct under this paragraph, and

EXPLANATORY NOTE

(This Note is not part of the Regulations, but is intended to indicate their general purport.)

Under these amendments to the various Regulations, increases of pay granted, in respect of more onerous conditions as to hours of duty which have since ceased to obtain, to the different classes of former professional or police firemen to whom those Regulations apply, may be left out of account for pension purposes to such extent as the Secretary of State may direct.

NATIONAL FIRE SERVICE (GENERAL) (NO. 4) REGULATIONS, 1947

S. R. & O., 1947, No. 846

May 5, 1947

In pursuance of the powers conferred on me by the Fire Services (Emergency Provisions) Act, 1941, as having effect by virtue of the Emergency Laws (Transitional Provisions) Act, 1946, I [i.e. the Secretary of State] hereby make the following Regulations :—

1. For sub-paragraph (2) of paragraph 1 of the Third Schedule to the National Fire Service (General) Regulations, 1944 (which sub-paragraph relates to the pay of whole-time firemen and firewomen holding the ranks of Divisional Officer, Column Officer, Senior Company Officer, Company Officer, Group Officer and Assistant Group Officer) there shall be substituted the following sub-paragraph :—

“(2) The rate of pay for whole-time firemen or firewomen holding a rank set out in the subjoined table shall be the amount set opposite to that rank in the second column of the table :—

CIVIC RESTAURANTS ACT, 1947

PRELIMINARY NOTE

The purpose of the Civic Restaurants Act, 1947, which came into force on receiving the Royal Assent on April 2, 1947, is to enable local authorities to continue on a permanent basis the restaurant and catering services provided during and since the war under the title of British Restaurants, and to engage in the catering trade and carry on services ancillary thereto without the necessity of securing a private Act of Parliament for that purpose. Only the provisions for England and Wales are dealt with in this Note and in the annotations that follow.

British Restaurants, which arose out of the war-time need to provide additional communal feeding centres for " blitzed " areas, were established under the provisions of the Local Authorities (Community Kitchens and Sale of Food in Public Air Raid Shelters) Order, 1941 (S. R. & O., 1941, No. 103), made under regulation 54B of the Defence (General) Regulations, 1939 (S. R. & O., 1939, No. 927), which order was revoked, as from August 11, 1947, by the Sale of Food (Local Authorities and Public Air Raid Shelters) Revocation Order, 1947 (S. R. & O., 1947, No. 1686; see title AIR-RAID PRECAUTIONS, ante). In May, 1943, there were over 2,000 British Restaurants serving some 500,000 meals a day, and although at the end of 1946 the number of such restaurants had dropped almost to half the 1943 level, some 400,000 meals, at an average price of 1s. 3d. per meal, were still being served each day. It is clear, therefore, that there is a continued public demand for the type of services provided by these restaurants.

The present Act empowers specified local authorities to establish and carry on restaurants and otherwise to provide for supplying the public with meals and refreshments and, in addition, to carry on such activities as are reasonably incidental or ancillary to these powers. The local authorities so empowered are, in the administrative county of London, the London County Council, and elsewhere in England and Wales, county borough and county district councils (s. 1 (1)). The powers are limited to these particular types of local authorities in order to avoid the situation of two or more authorities being in a position to use them concurrently in the same area. It may well be desirable, however, in certain areas, for some other local authorities to establish civic restaurants, and provision is accordingly made for delegation of their powers by any of the above specified authorities, in respect of the whole or any part of their area, to any other local authority (s. 1 (2)). The expression "local authority" is defined, for the purposes of the Act, to mean, in addition to the aforesaid authorities, county councils, the Common Council of the City of London and metropolitan borough councils (s. 4 (3)). Accordingly, the London County Council may delegate its powers to the Common Council of the City of London and to the metropolitan borough councils, and, outside the administrative county of London, county borough or county district councils may delegate upwards to the county council. The reason for adopting this form of delegation was explained by the Minister of Food during the Committee Stage of the Bill, in the following words:

"The main reason for this is that local authorities themselves want it this way round. It seems to me sensible that they should want it this way, because the most frequent authorities to use these powers will be the district authorities, the rural and urban district councils. This does not mean that county councils have not a part to play. They will play their part by delegation. If it had been the other way round, and the more frequent authorities to use the powers had been the county councils, we would have put it that way" (H. of C. Official Report, S.C.C., December 10, 1946, cols. 4, 11).

Any authority exercising powers, including delegated powers, under s. 1 of the Act is termed a "civic restaurant authority" (s. 1 (3)). The Act, however, contains no definition of the term "civic restaurant".

The position of civic restaurant authorities in regard to the sale and supply of intoxicating liquor was the subject of considerable debate and amendment during the course of the passage of the Bill. As originally drafted, the Bill placed civic restaurant authorities in the same position as any other persons carrying on the like activities, namely, that they would be entitled to apply for a justices' licence, but, by an amendment made on the Committee Stage, the sale or supply of intoxicating liquor was expressly excluded from the activities in which civic restaurant authorities might engage. Further amendments were moved by the Government on the Report Stage, and the final result has been to restore the provisions originally made by the Bill. The Minister of Food, in moving the amendments, stated that it was the Government's view that the question whether or not a particular civic restaurant authority should sell intoxicating liquor was one to be decided locally by the local authority concerned in each case, and not by the central government (433 H. of C. Official Report 820). Civic restaurant authorities are therefore entitled to apply for justices' licences under the Licensing Acts for the sale of intoxicating liquor in their restaurants. Such a licence will, however, be restricted to authorising the sale of liquor only for consumption in the restaurant with a meal (s. 1 (1), proviso (iii)). Furthermore, no justices' licence may be granted in respect of any civic restaurant established in premises forming part of any church, chapel, or other place of religious worship or used for the purposes of any religious organisation except with the consent of the minister or other person in charge or the consent of the organisation (s. 1 (1), proviso (iv)). Many British Restaurants during the war were established in such premises, and this latter provision will have the effect of prohibiting without consent the sale of intoxicating liquor in these premises if they continue to be used for civic restaurants.

It is expressly provided that a civic restaurant authority in carrying out its activities is to be subject to all enactments and rules of law relating thereto, in-

CIVIC RESTAURANTS ACT, 1947

PRELIMINARY NOTE

The purpose of the Civic Restaurants Act, 1947, which came into force on receiving the Royal Assent on April 2, 1947, is to enable local authorities to continue on a permanent basis the restaurant and catering services provided during and since the war under the title of British Restaurants, and to engage in the catering trade and carry on services ancillary thereto without the necessity of securing a private Act of Parliament for that purpose. Only the provisions for England and Wales are dealt with in this Note and in the annotations that follow.

British Restaurants, which arose out of the war-time need to provide additional communal feeding centres for "blitzed" areas, were established under the provisions of the Local Authorities (Community Kitchens and Sale of Food in Public Air Raid Shelters) Order, 1941 (S. R. & O., 1941, No. 103), made under regulation 54B of the Defence (General) Regulations, 1939 (S. R. & O., 1939, No. 927), which order was revoked, as from August 11, 1947, by the Sale of Food (Local Authorities and Public Air Raid Shelters) Revocation Order, 1947 (S. R. & O., 1947, No. 1686; see title AIR-RAID PRECAUTIONS, ante). In May, 1943, there were over 2,000 British Restaurants serving some 500,000 meals a day, and although at the end of 1946 the number of such restaurants had dropped almost to half the 1943 level, some 400,000 meals, at an average price of 1s. 3d. per meal, were still being served each day. It is clear, therefore, that there is a continued public demand for the type of services provided by these restaurants.

The present Act empowers specified local authorities to establish and carry on restaurants and otherwise to provide for supplying the public with meals and refreshments and, in addition, to carry on such activities as are reasonably incidental or ancillary to these powers. The local authorities so empowered are, in the administrative county of London, the London County Council, and elsewhere in England and Wales, county borough and county district councils (s. 1 (1)). The powers are limited to these particular types of local authorities in order to avoid the situation of two or more authorities being in a position to use them concurrently in the same area. It may well be desirable, however, in certain areas, for some other local authorities to establish civic restaurants, and provision is accordingly made for delegation of their powers by any of the above specified authorities, in respect of the whole or any part of their area, to any other local authority (s. 1 (2)). The expression "local authority" is defined, for the purposes of the Act, to mean, in addition to the aforesaid authorities, county councils, the Common Council of the City of London and metropolitan borough councils (s. 4 (3)). Accordingly, the London County Council may delegate its powers to the Common Council of the City of London and to the metropolitan borough councils, and, outside the administrative county of London, county borough or county district councils may delegate upwards to the county council. The reason for adopting this form of delegation was explained by the Minister of Food during the Committee Stage of the Bill, in the following words :

"The main reason for this is that local authorities themselves want it this way round. It seems to me sensible that they should want it this way, because the most frequent authorities to use these powers will be the district authorities, the rural and urban district councils. This does not mean that county councils have not a part to play. They will play their part by delegation. If it had been the other way round, and the more frequent authorities to use the powers had been the county councils, we would have put it that way" (H. of C. Official Report, S.C.C., December 10, 1946, cols. 4, 11).

Any authority exercising powers, including delegated powers, under s. 1 of the Act is termed a "civic restaurant authority" (s. 1 (3)). The Act, however, contains no definition of the term "civic restaurant".

The position of civic restaurant authorities in regard to the sale and supply of intoxicating liquor was the subject of considerable debate and amendment during the course of the passage of the Bill. As originally drafted, the Bill placed civic restaurant authorities in the same position as any other persons carrying on the like activities, namely, that they would be entitled to apply for a justices' licence, but, by an amendment made on the Committee Stage, the sale or supply of intoxicating liquor was expressly excluded from the activities in which civic restaurant authorities might engage. Further amendments were moved by the Government on the Report Stage, and the final result has been to restore the provisions originally made by the Bill. The Minister of Food, in moving the amendments, stated that it was the Government's view that the question whether or not a particular civic restaurant authority should sell intoxicating liquor was one to be decided locally by the local authority concerned in each case, and not by the central government (433 H. of C. Official Report 820). Civic restaurant authorities are therefore entitled to apply for justices' licences under the Licensing Acts for the sale of intoxicating liquor in their restaurants. Such a licence will, however, be restricted to authorising the sale of liquor only for consumption in the restaurant with a meal (s. 1 (1), proviso (iii)). Furthermore, no justices' licence may be granted in respect of any civic restaurant established in premises forming part of any church, chapel, or other place of religious worship or used for the purposes of any religious organisation except with the consent of the minister or other person in charge or the consent of the organisation (s. 1 (1), proviso (iv)). Many British Restaurants during the war were established in such premises, and this latter provision will have the effect of prohibiting without consent the sale of intoxicating liquor in these premises if they continue to be used for civic restaurants.

It is expressly provided that a civic restaurant authority in carrying out its activities is to be subject to all enactments and rules of law relating thereto, including the enactments relating to the sale of intoxicating liquor, in like manner as other persons carrying on like activities (s. 1 (4)).

A civic restaurant authority may be authorised by the Minister of Health to purchase land compulsorily for the purposes of the Act, and the uniform procedure laid down by the Acquisition of Land (Authorisation Procedure) Act, 1946 (39 Halsbury's Statutes 52), for authorising the compulsory purchase of land by a local authority applies to the authorisation of any such purchase (s. 2 (1)). The speedy procedure provided by s. 2 of the Act of 1946, for obtaining possession of land in urgent cases is not, however, available to a civic restaurant authority, and they will not, moreover, be authorised to purchase compulsorily any premises which are being used by any other person for an existing catering business (s. 2 (1), proviso).

In addition to the above powers of compulsory purchase a civic restaurant authority may be authorised to acquire land compulsorily for a civic restaurant under the provisions of s. 26 of the Requisitioned Land and War Works Act, 1945 (38 Halsbury's Statutes 605), as amended by the Acquisition of Land (Authorisation Procedure) Act, 1946, s. 6 and Sched. IV (39 Halsbury's Statutes 60, 69), with the result that any work which has been carried out by such authority on premises in connection with their use as a British Restaurant will be left out of account in arriving at the price to be paid on a compulsory acquisition of the premises (s. 2 (2)).

Civic restaurant authorities are under an obligation to keep accounts of receipts and expenses in connection with the running of their restaurants, and the form in which these accounts are to be prepared and the particulars which they must contain, are to be prescribed by the Minister of Food (s. 3 (1)). Every endeavour is to be made to ensure that a civic restaurant pays its way, and if the accounts of any civic restaurant authority show a deficit in respect of each of three consecutive years, that authority will lose its power to carry on a restaurant at the expiration of six months from the end of the last of those three years. If, however, the Minister of Food considers that such authority will within a reasonable time be able to put their restaurant on a paying basis, he may allow them to continue to operate, and he may, furthermore, restore to an authority powers which it has lost under the above provision, if he considers that, by reason of any change of circumstances, that authority would be able to operate its restaurant on a paying basis (s. 3 (2)).

Any expenses incurred by a county council (other than in the administrative county of London) in running a civic restaurant under powers delegated to them by a district council, are to be borne by the district council, which will also get the benefit of any profit made by the county council (s. 3 (3)), and any deficit in the civic restaurant accounts of the Common Council of the City of London is to be met out of the general rate (s. 3 (4)). [873]

An Act to empower local authorities to establish and carry on restaurants, and otherwise provide for the supply to the public of meals and refreshments, and for purposes connected with the matters aforesaid. [874] [2nd April, 1947.]

1. Power of local authorities to establish restaurants.—(1) The following authorities, that is to say—

- (a) in the administrative county of London, the London County Council,
- (b) elsewhere in England and Wales, the council of a county borough or county district,
- (c) in Scotland, a county or town council, may establish and carry on restaurants and otherwise provide for the supply to the public of meals and refreshments, and may carry on such activities as are reasonably incidental or ancillary to the activities aforesaid :

Provided that—

- (i) where the Minister of Food is satisfied that the council of any county in Scotland are unreasonably refusing to exercise their powers under this Act in any district of the county, he may by order direct that the powers of the county council, so far as relating to that district, shall be exercisable by the district council instead of by the county council ; and

- (ii) this subsection shall not authorise the grant of a certificate under the Licensing (Scotland) Acts, 1903 to 1934, for the sale of exciseable liquor in any such restaurant in Scotland; and
- (iii) a justices' licence granted under the Licensing Acts, 1910 to 1934, for the sale of intoxicating liquor in any such restaurant in England or Wales shall only authorise the sale of such liquor for consumption in the restaurant with a meal; and
- (iv) such a licence shall not be granted in respect of any such restaurant established in premises forming part of, or used for the purposes of, any church, chapel or other place of religious worship or used for the purposes of any religious organisation except with the consent of the incumbent, minister, or other person in charge of the church, chapel or place of worship or, as the case may be, the consent of the religious organisation. [875]

(2) Any such authority may delegate their powers under the foregoing provisions of this section, in respect of the whole of their area or any part thereof, to any other local authority. [876]

(3) An authority exercising powers under this section, including an authority exercising delegated powers, is hereafter in this Act referred to as a "civic restaurant authority". [877]

(4) A civic restaurant authority shall, in carrying on any activities under this section, be subject to all enactments and rules of law relating thereto, including, in England and Wales, the enactments relating to the sale of intoxicating liquor, in like manner as other persons carrying on the like activities. [878]

County district.—A county district is either a non-county borough, an urban district or a rural district; see the Local Government Act, 1933, ss. 1, 305 (26 Halsbury's Statutes 306, 466).

Ancillary activities.—On the question of the scope of the activities in which a civic restaurant authority is empowered to engage, it was stated by the Government spokesman in the House of Lords during the passage of the Bill that the section was designed to enable an authority to carry on all the normal activities that are ancillary to the running of a catering establishment. He instanced the provision of morning coffee and afternoon teas, a "cash and carry" service by which customers might buy the same food as was served in the restaurant and take it away with them, the supplying of bulk meals in heat-preserving containers to schools, factories and groups of workers, and the sale of cigarettes and sweets (146 H. of L. Official Report 172, 430).

Justices' licence.—This expression is defined by s. 110 of the Licensing (Consolidation) Act, 1910 (9 Halsbury's Statutes 1042) to mean a justices' licence for the sale of any intoxicating liquor granted in accordance with that Act.

Licensing Acts, 1910 to 1934.—The Licensing (Consolidation) Act, 1910 (9 Halsbury's Statutes 985); the Licensing Act, 1921 (9 Halsbury's Statutes 1055); the Intoxicating Liquor (Sale to Persons under Eighteen) Act, 1923 (9 Halsbury's Statutes 1067); and the Licensing (Permitted Hours) Act, 1934 (27 Halsbury's Statutes 349).

Local authority.—This expression means the council of a county, county borough or county district, the Common Council of the City of London and the council of a metropolitan borough (see s. 4 (3), post).

Intoxicating liquor.—This expression is defined by the Licensing (Consolidation) Act, 1910, s. 110 (9 Halsbury's Statutes 1042), to mean spirits, wine, beer, porter, cider, perry and sweets, and any fermented, distilled, or spirituous liquor which cannot, according to any law for the time being in force, be legally sold without an excise licence.

2. Compulsory purchase powers.—(1) A civic restaurant authority may be authorised by the Minister of Health to purchase land compulsorily for the purposes of this Act, and the Acquisition of Land (Authorisation Procedure) Act, 1946, shall have effect as if this section had been in force immediately before the passing of that Act:

Provided that section two of that Act shall not apply to the compulsory purchase of land for the purposes of this Act and a civic restaurant authority shall not be authorised under this subsection to purchase compulsorily for the purposes of this Act any premises which are being used by any other person wholly or mainly as a restaurant or otherwise for the supply to the public of meals and refreshments.

In the application of this subsection to Scotland, for the reference to the Minister of Health there shall be substituted a reference to the Secretary of State. [879]

(2) Section twenty-six of the Requisitioned Land and War Works Act, 1945 (which empowers local authorities to acquire land which they have been authorised under Defence Regulations to use for purposes for which they can acquire land compulsorily under any Act) shall apply to any local authority, being a civic restaurant authority, as if this Act had been in force immediately before the passing of that Act, and the other provisions of the Requisitioned Land and War Works Act, 1945, relating to the acquisition of land under the said section twenty-six shall have effect accordingly. [880]

Civic restaurant authority.—Any authority exercising powers under s. 1, ante, including an authority exercising delegated powers (s. 1 (3), ante).

Acquisition of Land (Authorisation Procedure) Act, 1946.—39 Halsbury's Statutes 52. The effect of providing that that Act is to have effect as if the present section had been in force immediately before the passing of that Act is, in accordance with s. 1 (1) thereof, to make the uniform procedure for authorising compulsory purchases of land by local authorities provided by s. 1 (1) thereof and Sched. I thereto applicable to compulsory purchases under the present section.

S. 2 of the Act, which is excluded in relation to civic restaurant authorities, temporarily provides a speedy method of acquiring land in cases of urgency.

Requisitioned Land and War Works Act, 1945, s. 26.—38 Halsbury's Statutes 605. This section makes special provision for the compulsory acquisition by a local authority of land which they have, under Defence Regulations, been directed to do work on, or authorised to use, for any purpose for which they are or can be authorised under any Act to acquire land compulsorily, and s. 27 (which, with s. 26, forms Part V of the Act) prescribes the procedure on such a compulsory purchase. Notice to treat for the compulsory purchase of land under Part V must be given within two years from the end of the war period, which period extends to December 10, 1950 (see the Requisitioned Land and War Works Act, 1945, s. 59; 38 Halsbury's Statutes 623, and the Supplies and Services (Transitional Powers) Act, 1945, ss. 5 (5), 8; 38 Halsbury's Statutes 634, 635). Where land is compulsorily acquired under the said Part V, s. 41 of the Act provides for the elimination, in the assessment of the compensation payable, of any value due to any war work done by the acquiring authority. Thus, a local authority which has done work on land in connection with the establishment of a British Restaurant will be able compulsorily to acquire the land in their capacity as a civic restaurant authority without being required to pay compensation in respect of the value of such work. Ss. 26 and 27 of the Requisitioned Land and War Works Act, 1945 (38 Halsbury's Statutes 605, 606), are amended by s. 6 of, and Sched. IV to, the Acquisition of Land (Authorisation Procedure) Act, 1946 (39 Halsbury's Statutes 60, 69), in order to bring the procedure for compulsory acquisition under Part V of the Act of 1945 into line with the uniform procedure established by s. 1 of, and Sched. I to, the Act of 1946, for authorising compulsory purchases of land by local authorities.

3. Financial provisions.—(1) Every civic restaurant authority shall keep an account of their income under this Act and their expenditure under this Act on income account, and the form of the account and the particulars to be included therein shall be prescribed by the Minister of Food, after consultation with such associations of local authorities as appear to him to be concerned. [881]

(2) Every civic restaurant authority shall use their best endeavours to ensure that their income under this Act is sufficient to defray their expenditure thereunder and if the account kept by any such authority under the last foregoing subsection shows a deficit in respect of each of three consecutive financial years, the said powers shall cease to be exercisable by that authority at the expiration of six months from the end of the last of those years:

Provided that—

- (a) if the Minister of Food considers that a civic restaurant authority whose account shows such a deficit as aforesaid will, within a reasonable period, be able to defray their expenditure under this Act out of their income thereunder, he may, subject to such conditions as he thinks fit, postpone or exclude the operation of this subsection as respects that deficit;
- (b) if the Minister of Food considers that a civic restaurant authority whose powers have ceased to be exercisable by virtue of this subsection would, by reason of any change of circumstances, be able to defray their expenditure under this Act out of their income thereunder, if the said powers were restored, he may direct that the said powers shall again become exercisable and that this subsection shall have effect as if they had not previously been exercised. [882]

(3) Any expenses incurred under this Act by the council of a county in England or Wales, other than the administrative county of London, shall be treated as expenses incurred for a special county purpose and chargeable on the county district or county districts for the benefit of which those expenses are incurred, and all receipts of the county council in exercising powers under this Act shall be treated as receipts for that special county purpose. [883]

(4) Any expenses incurred under this Act by the Common Council of the City of London shall, in so far as they cannot be defrayed out of the receipts of the Council under this Act, be defrayed out of the general rate. [884]

(5) Any expenses incurred under this Act by a civic restaurant authority in Scotland shall, in so far as they cannot be defrayed out of the receipts of the authority under this Act, be defrayed by the authority, or, where the authority are exercising delegated powers and so agree with the county or town council by whom the powers are delegated, by that county or town council, out of such rate payable by owners and occupiers in equal proportions as the authority or the council may determine and any excess of such receipts over such expenses shall be applied in reduction of that rate. [885]

(6) Expenditure incurred by a district council under this Act shall not be taken into account in any calculation as to the limit imposed on the district council rate by section twenty-six of the Local Government (Scotland) Act, 1929. [886]

(7) A civic restaurant authority in Scotland who incur expenditure under this Act or a county or town council on whose behalf expenditure is incurred by a civic restaurant authority in the exercise of delegated powers may, subject to the provisions of subsection (2) of section twenty-three of the Local Government (Scotland) Act, 1929, borrow such sums as may be required to meet any expenditure of a capital nature, or the cost of executing any work, or providing any plant or equipment, or doing any other thing where, having regard to the nature of the work, plant, equipment or thing, the cost ought to be spread over a period of years :

Provided that—

- (a) sums so borrowed shall be repaid within such period not exceeding sixty years as the Secretary of State may determine ;
- (b) nothing in this subsection shall authorise the exercise of the power of borrowing money thereby conferred otherwise than in compliance with the provisions of the Local Authorities Loans Act, 1945, of any Defence Regulation within the meaning of the Supplies and Services (Transitional Powers) Act, 1945, for the time being having effect by virtue of that Act, and of any orders for the time being in force, made by the Treasury under section one of the Borrowing (Control and Guarantees) Act, 1946. [887]

Civic restaurant authority.—Any authority exercising powers under s. 1 (1), ante, including an authority exercising delegated powers (s. 1 (3), ante).

Particulars included in accounts.—The Parliamentary Secretary to the Ministry of Food stated during the course of the debate in Committee that the particulars to be included in the prescribed form of account would include particulars as to heating, cleaning, lighting, rates, rent and all other items usually shown on the account of a catering establishment. It was not, however, intended to prescribe a separate account for each civic restaurant, since commercial caterers do not usually produce for their shareholders separate accounts for each restaurant (H. of C. Official Report, S.C.C., January 30, 1947, col. 227).

Special county purposes.—This is defined by the Local Government Act, 1933, s. 180 (1) (b) (26 Halsbury's Statutes 405), to mean any purposes for expenditure on which part only of the county is chargeable, whether by reason of any part of the county being exempt therefrom or otherwise. S. 181 provides for a county council keeping a separate account of receipts and payments out of the County Fund for any special county purpose, and s. 183 provides for the levying of a rate to meet liabilities in respect of expenditure for a special county purpose on that part of the county chargeable therewith.

4. Short title, extent, and interpretation.—(1) This Act may be cited as the Civic Restaurants Act, 1947. [888]

(2) This Act shall not extend to Northern Ireland. [889]

(3) In this Act the expression "local authority" means, in England and Wales, the council of a county, county borough or county district, the Common Council of the City of London and the council of a metropolitan borough, and, in Scotland, a county, town or district council. [890]

County district.—A county district is either a non-county borough, an urban district or a rural district; see the Local Government Act, 1933, ss. 1, 305 (26 Halsbury's Statutes 306, 466).

ORDERS, CIRCULARS AND MEMORANDA

ICE CREAM (HEAT TREATMENT, ETC.) REGULATIONS, 1947

S. R. & O., 1947, No. 612

April 2, 1947

In exercise of the powers conferred upon him by the Food and Drugs Act, 1938, the Minister of Health hereby makes the following regulations:—

1. These regulations may be cited as the Ice-Cream (Heat Treatment, etc.) Regulations, 1947, and shall come into operation on the first day of May, 1947, with the exception of regulation 3 (b) (iv) which shall come into operation on a date to be appointed by the Minister of Health. [891]

2. In these regulations—

"ice-cream" includes water ices and any article, under whatever description it is sold, which is so similar to ice-cream as to constitute a substitute therefor;

"ingredients" includes sugar and dried egg, but does not include colouring or flavouring materials or fruit, nuts, chocolate and other similar substances; and

"complete cold mix" means a product which is capable of manufacture into ice-cream with the addition of water only, is sent out by the manufacturer in airtight containers, and has been made by evaporating a liquid mixture which has already been submitted to heat treatment comparable with that prescribed in these regulations. [892]

3. The following requirements shall be observed in the manufacture of ice-cream intended for sale for human consumption:—

(a) Where a complete cold mix is used which is reconstituted with wholesome drinking water and to which nothing is added other than colouring or flavouring materials, fruit, nuts, chocolate or other similar substances, the reconstituted product shall be converted into ice-cream within one hour of reconstitution.

(b) In any other case, after the ingredients have been mixed together the following provisions shall apply—

(i) the mixture shall not be kept for more than one hour at any temperature which exceeds 45° Fahrenheit before being subjected to heat treatment in accordance with the next following sub-paragraph ;

(ii) the mixture shall be subjected to heat treatment as follows—

It shall be raised to and kept at a temperature of not less than 150° Fahrenheit for 30 minutes or alternatively of not less than 160° Fahrenheit for 10 minutes ;

(iii) after the mixture has been subjected to heat treatment as aforesaid it shall be reduced to a temperature of not more than 45° Fahrenheit within 1½ hours and shall be kept at such a temperature until the freezing process is begun ;

(iv) such indicating and recording thermometers shall be used as the local authority considers requisite for indicating and recording the temperatures to or at which the ice-cream is raised, kept or reduced ;

(v) the records of any thermometers used to record the temperatures to or at which the ice-cream is raised, kept or reduced shall be preserved for a period of not less than one month ;

(vi) all apparatus used for the purposes of this paragraph shall be installed, maintained and operated to the satisfaction of the local authority. [893]

4. Ice-cream shall not be sold or offered for sale unless either—

(a) it has been kept at a temperature not exceeding 28° Fahrenheit since it was frozen, or

(b) if its temperature has risen above 28° Fahrenheit at any time since it was frozen, it has again been subjected to the treatment prescribed by sub-paragraphs (i), (ii) and (iii) of regulation 3 (b) and, after having again been frozen, has been kept at a temperature not exceeding 28° Fahrenheit. [894]

5. Ice-cream shall be protected from dirt, dust or other contamination at all times during its manufacture, storage and distribution and all apparatus and utensils brought into contact with ice-cream during its manufacture, storage or distribution shall be thoroughly cleansed immediately after use and shall be kept clean at all times. [895]

6. Any person failing to comply with any of the provisions of these regulations shall be guilty of an offence, and shall be liable, in the case of a first offence, to a fine not exceeding twenty pounds, and, in the case of a subsequent offence, to a fine not exceeding one hundred pounds or to imprisonment for a term not exceeding three months, or to both such a fine and such imprisonment :

Provided that it shall be a defence for a defendant charged with an offence under regulation 3 (b) (iii) which is alleged to have been committed before the first day of May, 1948, to prove that before the date of the alleged offence suitable apparatus to enable him to comply with that regulation had been ordered by him or on his behalf and had not been delivered and that he had taken all practicable steps to comply as far as possible with the said regulation. [896]

7. The authorities for enforcing and executing these regulations shall be local authorities within the meaning of section 64 of the Food and Drugs Act, 1938. [897]

PRESERVES (AMENDMENT NO. 9) ORDER, 1947S. R. & O., 1947, No. 755April 24, 1947 [898]*

This order, with numerous other orders, has been revoked by the Preserves Order, 1947 (S. R. & O., 1947, No. 1515, infra). It increased the maximum prices of jam and marmalade (other than "special standard" grapefruit marmalade) manufactured in the United Kingdom, and of fruit curd.

PRESERVES (AMENDMENT NO. 10) ORDER, 1947S. R. & O., 1947, No. 878May 9, 1947 [899]*

This order, with numerous other orders, has been revoked by the Preserves Order, 1947 (S. R. & O., 1947, No. 1515, infra). It increased the maximum prices of imported honey.

PRESERVES ORDER, 1947S. R. & O., 1947, No. 1515July 18, 1947*

In exercise of the powers conferred upon him by Regulations 55, 55AA and 55AB of the Defence (General) Regulations, 1939, as having effect by virtue of the Supplies and Services (Transitional Powers) Act, 1945, and of all other powers him enabling, the Minister of Food hereby makes the following Order :—

PART I—INTERPRETATION*1.—(1) In this Order—

"The Minister" means the Minister of Food.

"Buy" includes offer or agree to buy; and "sell" includes offer or agree to sell or expose for sale.

"Catering business" includes the business or undertaking of an inn, public-house, hotel, restaurant, buffet, coffee-stall or of any place of refreshment open to the public, or of any club, boarding-house, refreshment contractor or canteen; and the word "caterer" shall be construed accordingly.

"Container" means the jar, bottle, can or other receptacle in which any preserves are or were immediately contained; and "returnable container" means a container other than a can.

"Extracted honey" means honey expressed or extracted from the honeycomb.

"First hand sale" means any sale to a wholesaler.

"Fresh Fruit standard jam" and "fresh fruit standard marmalade" have the same meanings as in the Food Standards (Preserves) Order, 1944, as amended.

"Fruit curd" means—

(a) the articles commonly known as lemon cheese and lemon curd; and

(b) any substantially similar article made from or so as to produce the flavour of, lemons or any other fruit.

"Full fruit standard jam" and "full fruit standard marmalade" have the same meanings as in the Food Standards (Preserves) Order, 1944, as amended.

"Heather honey" means honey produced wholly or mainly from nectar gathered from heather.

"Home produced honey" means honey produced by bees kept in the United Kingdom or Eire.

"Imitation honey" means any manufactured product (whether or not containing honey) made up so as to resemble honey in appearance, consistency and flavour.

"Imported honey" means honey imported into the United Kingdom, other than honey produced by bees kept in Eire.

"Jam" includes marmalade, jam in the form of jelly, jam made from fruit or vegetables or both, and jam described as "conserve" or "preserve" or by any other name.

"Loose", in relation to any preserves, means preserves sold otherwise than in a container in which they have been packed in advance ready for retail sale.

"Marmalade" means any jam manufactured from citrus fruit with or without the addition of the juice or pectin of other fruit.

"Mincemeat" means—

(a) the mixture of fresh or dried fruit with other ingredients, commonly known as mincemeat; and

(b) any substantially similar article.

"Multiple retailer" means a retailer carrying on business at not less than ten retail shops.

"No.  $\frac{1}{2}$  size container", in relation to any fruit curd or mincemeat, means a container of a capacity of not less than  $6\frac{1}{4}$  fluid ounces or more than  $6\frac{3}{4}$  fluid ounces and containing not less than  $7\frac{1}{4}$  ounces net weight.

"No. 1 size container", in relation to any fruit curd or mincemeat, means a container of a capacity of not less than  $12\frac{1}{2}$  fluid ounces or more than  $13\frac{1}{4}$  fluid ounces and containing not less than  $14\frac{1}{2}$  ounces net weight.

"No. 2 size container", in relation to any fruit curd or mincemeat, means a container of a capacity of not less than 25 fluid ounces or more than  $26\frac{1}{4}$  fluid ounces and containing not less than 29 ounces net weight.

"Pack" means to pack preserves into any container; and the word "packer" shall be construed accordingly.

"Package" means any outer receptacle in which containers are or were packed.

"Preserves" mean jam, honey, fruit curd and mincemeat.

"Sale by retail" means any sale to a person buying otherwise than for the purposes of resale, and includes any sale to a person for the purposes of his catering business or for use in the manufacture or preparation for sale of any other article; and the word "retailer" shall be construed accordingly.

"Sale by wholesale" means any sale other than a first-hand sale or a sale by retail; and the word "wholesaler" shall be construed accordingly.

"Special standard marmalade" has the same meaning as in the Food Standards (Preserves) Order, 1944, as amended.

"Specified brand of honey" means imported honey in respect of which a certificate, for the time being in force, has been granted by or on behalf of the Minister certifying that such honey is a specified brand of honey for the purposes of this Order.

(2) Reference in this Order to the purchase or sale of preserves by a wholesaler, manufacturer, retailer or other class of trader means the purchase or sale by him in the course of his business of such class of trader. [900]

PART II—MANUFACTURE, PACKING, ETC.

2.—(1) Except under and in accordance with the terms of a licence granted by or on behalf of the Minister for the purposes of this Article, no person shall engage in the manufacture of jam, fruit curd or mincemeat.

(2) The provisions of this Article shall not apply to—

(a) the manufacture by any person during the period of twelve months commencing on the 23rd day of July, 1944, or during any succeeding period of twelve months thereafter, of a total quantity of jam, fruit curd and mincemeat not exceeding 30 cwt.; or

(b) the manufacture of jam, fruit curd or mincemeat otherwise than for sale (whether or not as part of any other article). [901]

3. Except under and in accordance with the terms of a licence granted by or on behalf of the Minister for the purposes of this Article, no person shall engage by way of trade or business in—

(a) the blending of imported honey (including the blending thereof with home produced honey);

(b) the packing of imported honey or of any blend of honey containing imported honey; or

(c) the manufacture or packing of imitation honey. [902]

PART III—MAXIMUM PRICES

4.—(1) No person shall sell or buy any jam manufactured in the United Kingdom or any fruit curd or mincemeat at a price exceeding the maximum price applicable in accordance with the provisions of the Second Schedule to this Order.

(2) No person shall sell any jam manufactured in the United Kingdom unless it is of a description and is packed in a container in respect of which prices are prescribed in the Second Schedule to this Order or a container containing a multiple of 7 lb. net; provided that this paragraph shall not apply to the sale by retail of loose jam.

(3) No person shall sell any fruit curd or mincemeat packed in a container containing 2 lb. net weight or less, except a No.  $\frac{3}{4}$  size container, a No. 1 size container or a No. 2 size container; provided that this paragraph shall not apply to the sale by retail of loose fruit curd or loose mincemeat.

(4) The provisions of this Article shall not apply to—

(a) any jam of a description specified in the First Schedule to this Order; or

(b) any jam, fruit curd or mincemeat that has been manufactured without a licence by virtue of proviso (a) to Article 2 of this Order, when it is sold by retail by its manufacturer. [903]

5. No person shall sell or buy any imported jam of a description specified in the Third Schedule to this Order at a price exceeding the maximum price applicable in accordance with the provisions of that Schedule. [904]

6. No person shall sell or buy any honey of a description specified in the Fourth Schedule to this Order at a price exceeding the maximum price applicable in accordance with the provisions of that Schedule. [905]

PART IV—RECORDS AND RETURNS

7. Every person licensed to manufacture jam under Article 2 of this Order shall furnish to the Minister a return in respect of each week (ending at midnight on Saturday) showing the quantities and descriptions of fruit delivered to him during that week ; and such return shall be so furnished not later than the end of the week following that to which it relates. [906]

8. Every person licensed to blend, pack or manufacture honey under Article 3 of this Order shall keep or cause to be kept an accurate record of—

- (a) all purchases by him of imported honey for packing, and all purchases by him of home produced honey for blending with imported honey ;
- (b) all purchases by him of honey, invert sugar or any other ingredient for manufacturing imitation honey ;
- (c) all sales by him of imported honey (including any blend of honey containing imported honey) blended or packed by him ; and
- (d) all sales by him of imitation honey manufactured or packed by him ;

and such record shall show in the case of each purchase or sale the date thereof, the name and address of the person from or to whom the honey or the invert sugar or other ingredient as aforesaid or the imitation honey (as the case may be) was purchased or sold, the quantity purchased or sold and the price paid or received. [907]

9.—(1) Every person who sells preserves otherwise than by retail shall keep or cause to be kept an accurate record of—

- (a) all purchases and sales by him of preserves otherwise than by retail ; and such record shall include in respect of each purchase or sale the date thereof, the name and address of the person from whom the preserves were purchased or to whom they were sold, the net weight of each description of preserves purchased or sold, the price paid or received, and particulars of all additions to the maximum price (including any charge by way of deposit in respect of a returnable container) made in accordance with the provisions of this Order ; and
- (b) the stocks of preserves held by him from time to time.

(2) Every person who sells preserves by retail shall keep or cause to be kept an accurate record of all purchases by him of preserves ; and such record shall include in respect of each purchase the date thereof, the name and address of the person from whom the preserves were purchased, the net weight of each description of preserves purchased, the price paid, and particulars of all additions to the maximum price (including any charge by way of deposit in respect of a returnable container) made in accordance with the provisions of this Order. [908]

10.—(1) The retention by any person of an invoice or a copy of an invoice shall as regards the particulars mentioned therein be a sufficient compliance by him with the provisions of this Part of this Order.

(2) Every person who is required by this Part of this Order to keep any record shall retain it for one year from the date of the transaction to which it relates, or, in the case of a record of stocks, from the date when he took delivery of such stocks. [909]

PART V—LABELLING OF CONTAINERS

11.—(1) No person shall sell any preserves to which this Article applies in a container unless there appears on a label or labels affixed to the container a true statement as to the matters hereafter mentioned in this Article. The said statement shall be clearly legible and shall appear in a prominent position on the label or labels ; and, where the container is sold in a wrapper, a label or labels complying with the provisions of this Article shall, except where the wrapper is transparent and bears no other label or printed matter be affixed to the outside of the wrapper.

(2) This Article applies to—

- (a) jam manufactured in the United Kingdom,
- (b) fruit curd and mincemeat,
- (c) heather honey,
- (d) imported honey,
- (e) any preserves authorised by virtue of a licence granted under this Order to be sold at a price exceeding the maximum price prescribed by this Order, and
- (f) any jam, fruit curd or mincemeat permitted by virtue of paragraph (4) (b) of Article 4 of this Order to be sold by retail by its manufacturer free of price-control.

(3) The said statement—

- (i) in the case of jam (other than marmalade) manufactured in the United Kingdom, shall contain the number of the relevant licence (if any) granted for the purposes of Article 2 of this Order immediately preceded by the letter “L”, and shall specify whether the said jam is fresh fruit standard or full fruit standard jam ;
- (ii) in the case of marmalade manufactured in the United Kingdom shall contain the number of the relevant licence (if any) granted for the purposes of Article 2 of this Order immediately preceded by the letter “L”, and shall specify whether the said marmalade is fresh fruit standard, full fruit standard or special standard marmalade ;
- (iii) in the case of fruit curd or mincemeat, shall contain the number of the relevant licence (if any) granted for the purposes of Article 2 of this Order immediately preceded by the letter “L” ;
- (iv) in the case of heather honey, shall contain the number of the relevant licence (if any) granted for the purposes of Article 3 of this Order immediately preceded by the letters “LH”, and shall contain the words “heather honey” ;
- (v) in the case of imported honey or any blend of honey containing imported honey, shall contain the number of the relevant licence (if any) granted for the purposes of Article 3 of this Order immediately preceded by the letters “LH” ;
- (vi) in the case of any specified brand of honey, shall contain (in addition to anything contained therein by virtue of any other sub-paragraph of this paragraph) the words—

“By virtue of a certificate issued by the Minister of Food to the packer named hereon, this honey may be sold at a price not exceeding (x) ”

(such statement to be completed by inserting at (x) the maximum price applicable under this Order to the honey, and the name and address of the packer to whom the certificate in respect of such honey has been issued) ;

- (vii) in the case of any preserves authorised by virtue of a licence granted under this Order to be sold at a price exceeding the maximum price prescribed by this Order, shall contain (in addition to anything contained therein by virtue of any other sub-paragraph of this paragraph) the words “maximum retail price” followed by such price in figures not less than one-quarter of an inch in height, after which shall be added the words “prescribed by Licence No.” immediately followed by the number of the relevant licence ; and

(viii) in the case of any jam, fruit curd or mincemeat to which paragraph (4) (b) of Article 4 of this Order applies, shall contain (in addition to anything contained therein by virtue of any other sub-paragraph of this paragraph) a statement to the effect that the said jam, mincemeat or fruit curd is permitted to be sold by retail by its manufacturer free of price-control.

(4) A label or labels required by this Article to be affixed to any container shall not be so affixed except by the manufacturer, blender or packer of the preserves contained in such container.

(5) No person shall remove, alter, deface or render illegible any label affixed to any container pursuant to the provisions of this Article :

Provided that it shall be a defence in any proceedings under this paragraph of this Article for the person charged to prove either—

- (a) that the container was at the time of the infringement in his possession otherwise than for sale ; or
- (b) that he acted without intent to deceive.

(6) Any honey not labelled in accordance with the provisions of paragraphs (3) (iv) or (3) (v) and (vi) of this Article shall for the purposes of this Order be deemed not to be heather honey or (as the case may be) a specified brand of honey. [910]

PART VI—GENERAL

12.—(1) Where in any prosecution a person is charged with an infringement of this Order by reason of—

- (a) the inaccuracy or omission of any particular required to be shown on a label affixed to a container pursuant to Article 11 hereof ; or
- (b) the preserves sold by him being of a description other than the description under which he sold them ; or
- (c) the preserves sold by him being of a weight less than was represented by him on their being sold ; it shall be a defence for him to prove—

- (i) in the case of a charge relating to the inaccuracy or omission of any particular as aforesaid, that such particular was shown on or (as the case may be) omitted from the label when the container was purchased by him ; or
- (ii) in the case of a charge relating to description or weight as aforesaid, that he purchased the preserves in the container in which he sold them, and with a written warranty that they were of the description under which he sold them or (as the case may be) of the weight that he represented ; and in either case that at the time of the alleged infringement he had no reason to believe that this Order was being infringed.

(2) A person shall not be entitled to avail himself of any defence provided by this Article unless he has sent to the prosecutor within fourteen days of the service of the summons a copy of the label or warranty upon which he intends to rely, with a notice stating that he intends to rely on it and specifying the name and address of the person from whom he received it, and has also sent a like notice of his intention to that person.

(3) Where the person so charged is a servant of the person who purchased the preserves with such a label or (as the case may be) under such a warranty, he shall be entitled to rely upon the provisions of this Article in the same way as his employer would have been entitled to do if he had been so charged.

(4) The person by whom any such label or warranty is alleged to have been given shall be entitled to appear at the hearing and give evidence.

(5) For the purposes of this Article any statement relating to description or weight on any label affixed to the wrapper or container of any preserves, or in an invoice or similar document relating to any preserves mentioned in that invoice or document, shall be deemed to be a written warranty by the seller that the preserves in such container or to which the statement relates are of the description or weight indicated in the statement. [911]

13.—(1) Every person who sells heather honey or any specified brand of honey otherwise than by retail shall furnish to the buyer, on or before the delivery of the honey, a statement in writing clearly stating that such honey is heather honey or (as the case may be) a specified brand of honey.

(2) Every person who sells fruit curd or mincemeat in a container otherwise than by retail shall clearly indicate to the buyer, either by means of a label upon the container or on an invoice or similar document delivered to the buyer on or before the delivery of the fruit curd or mincemeat, whether such container is a No.  $\frac{1}{2}$  size or a No. 1 size or a No. 2 size container, or, in the case of any other container, what is the net weight contained therein. [912]

14. In any proceedings under this Order in respect of an alleged deficiency of weight of any preserves (otherwise than on a sale by retail of loose preserves) the Court shall disregard any deficiency in the weight of the preserves contained in a single container if such deficiency does not exceed  $\frac{1}{2}$  oz. for each purported 1 lb. of preserves, provided that in all the circumstances of the case the Court is satisfied that the deficiency is due to some cause which could not reasonably be avoided, including, in particular, variation in the weight arising in the process of packing or from evaporation after packing; and for this purpose the Court may have regard to the average weight of preserves contained in a reasonable number of any containers of the same kind, and containing the same description of preserves, sold or delivered by the person charged, or in his possession for the purpose of sale or delivery, on the same occasion. [913]

15.—(1) In any proceedings in respect of an infringement of this Order, the production by one of the parties of (i) a document purporting to be a certificate of a public analyst or the Government Chemist, or (ii) a document supplied to him by the other party as being a copy of such a certificate, shall be sufficient evidence of the facts stated therein; unless in the case mentioned under (i) above the other party requires that the person making the analysis shall be called as a witness.

(2) In any such proceedings—

(a) if the prosecution intends to produce a certificate of a public analyst or the Government Chemist, a copy of such certificate shall be served with the summons; and

(b) if a defendant intends to produce a certificate of a public analyst or the Government Chemist, or to require that the person making the analysis shall be called as a witness, he shall give to the other party at least three clear days' notice of his intention; and if any of these requirements is not complied with the Court may, if it thinks fit, adjourn the hearing on such terms as it deems proper.

(3) In this Article, "public analyst" has in relation to England and Wales the meaning assigned to it by the Food and Drugs Act, 1938; in relation to Scotland the meaning assigned to it by the Food and Drugs (Adulteration) Act, 1928; and in relation to Northern Ireland the meaning assigned to it by the Sale of Food and Drugs Acts (Northern Ireland), 1875 to 1939. [914]

16. The provisions of this Order shall not apply to the sale of any preserves served as part of a meal by a caterer in the course of his catering business. [915]

17.—(1) The provisions of this Order are subject to any directions that may at any time be given by or on behalf of the Minister, and to any licence or authorisation that may be granted by or on behalf of the Minister under this Order.

(2) Every person holding a licence or authorisation granted under this Order shall comply with every condition imposed by such licence or authorisation.

(3) Every licence or authorisation granted under this Order is and shall remain the property of the Minister; and the licensee or any person in possession of any such licence or authorisation shall, if requested to do so by or on behalf of the Minister, produce or deliver it to such person or to a person of such class or description, and within such time, as may be specified in the request. [916]

18. Infringements of this Order are offences against the Defence (General) Regulations, 1939. [917]

19. No person shall, in connection with the sale or disposition or proposed sale or disposition of any preserves, enter or offer to enter into any artificial transaction or make or demand any unreasonable charge. [918]

20.—(1) The Preserves Order, 1944, as amended, is hereby revoked, but without prejudice to any proceedings in respect of any contravention thereof.

(2) Any licence or authorisation granted under the said Order and subsisting at the date of the coming into force of this Order shall continue to have effect as if granted under this Order.

(3) Every person shall, notwithstanding the revocation of the said Order, retain any record required to be kept by him thereunder for one year from the date of the transaction or delivery to which it relates. [919]

21. This Order shall come into force on the 20th day of July, 1947, and may be cited as the Preserves Order, 1947. [920]

PART III

PROVISIONS RELATING TO MAXIMUM PRICES OF JAM MANUFACTURED IN THE UNITED KINGDOM AND OF FRUIT CURD AND MINCEMEAT

Packing and Containers

1. Subject as hereinafter provided, the maximum prices include all costs in respect of packing and of the provision of packages or containers, and no additional charge may be made by the seller in respect thereof; provided that—

- (a) on a sale of jam in a returnable container containing 7 lb. or any multiple of 7 lb., the seller may charge a sum by way of deposit as security for the return thereof not exceeding 9d. in the case of a container containing 7 lb. and not exceeding 1s. 6d. in the case of a container containing 14 lb. or more;
- (b) on a sale of fruit curd or mincemeat in a returnable container containing 6 lb. or more, the seller may charge a sum by way of deposit as security for the return thereof not exceeding 9d. in the case of a container containing 6 lb. or more but less than 12 lb. and not exceeding 1s. 6d. in the case of a container containing 12 lb. or more;
- (c) on a first-hand sale or sale by wholesale of jam, fruit curd or mincemeat, the seller may charge a reasonable sum by way of deposit in respect of any returnable package as security for its return, provided that the sum so charged shall be repaid by the seller to the buyer on the re-delivery of the package to the seller, carriage paid, in such condition as is reasonable having regard to its condition when supplied and to ordinary wear and tear; and
- (d) on a sale by retail of loose jam, fruit curd or mincemeat where the seller provides a container, a reasonable additional charge may be made for such container.

Transport and Delivery

2. The maximum prices on a first-hand sale or sale by wholesale include all costs and charges of and incidental to delivery by the seller at the buyer's premises, and no additional charge shall be made by the seller in respect of transport or delivery;

Provided that—

- (a) where the buyer's premises at which delivery is made are situate on the mainland of Scotland north of the Caledonian Canal, or on any of the Islands of the West of Scotland other than those of the Firth of Clyde, or in the counties of Orkney or Zetland, an additional charge may be made by the seller not exceeding a sum calculated at the appropriate rate specified in paragraph 5 of this Part of this Schedule;
  - (b) where delivery is made to the buyer at a point nearer to the seller's premises than the buyer's premises (including any place where the goods are stored or kept on the seller's behalf), the maximum price shall be reduced by an amount which fairly represents the difference between the cost of delivery to the buyer's premises and the cost of delivery to the place at which delivery is actually made.
3. On a sale of jam by a retailer in any of the areas of Scotland referred to in paragraph 2 hereof, there may be added to the maximum retail prices specified in Part I of this Schedule an amount not exceeding a sum calculated at the appropriate rate specified in paragraph 5 of this Part of this Schedule.

Fractions of a Farthing

4. Where the maximum price on a sale by retail includes any fraction of a farthing such fraction shall be regarded as one farthing.

Rates

5. The rates referred to in paragraphs 2 (a) and 3 above—

Jam	..	..	..	..	..	$\frac{1}{2}$ d. per lb. net.
Fruit curd	}	..	..	..	..	$\frac{1}{2}$ d. per No. $\frac{1}{2}$ or No. 1 size container

The retail prices specified above shall not apply to the sale by retail of loose jam. The maximum price for loose jam shall be—

- (a) when sold in quantities of 8 ounces or less, a price at the rate of one penny per ounce ; and
- (b) when sold in quantities of over 8 ounces, a price at the rate per lb. calculated by reference to the retail price specified above for jam in a can containing 2 lb. [925]

PART II

PROVISIONS RELATING TO THE MAXIMUM PRICES OF IMPORTED JAM

Packing and Containers

1. The maximum prices include all costs in respect of packing and of the provision of packages or containers, and no additional charge shall be made by the seller in respect thereof.

Transport and Delivery

2. The maximum prices on a first-hand sale or a sale by wholesale include all costs and charges of and incidental to delivery at the buyer's premises, and no additional charge shall be made in respect of transport or delivery ;

Provided that—

- (a) where the buyer's premises at which delivery is made are situate on the mainland of Scotland north of the Caledonian Canal, or on any of the Islands of the West of Scotland other than those of the Firth of Clyde, or in the counties of Orkney or Zetland, an additional charge may be made by the seller at a rate not exceeding  $\frac{1}{2}$ d. per lb. net ;
  - (b) where delivery is made to the buyer at a point nearer to the seller's premises than the buyer's premises (including any place where the goods are stored or kept on the seller's behalf), the maximum price shall be reduced by an amount which fairly represents the difference between the cost of delivery to the buyer's premises [and the cost of delivery to the buyer's premises] and the cost of delivery to the place at which delivery is actually made ; and
  - (c) where on a sale to a multiple retailer delivery is given at a central depot or warehouse from which distribution is ordinarily made by the buyer to not less than ten of his retail shops, the maximum price shall be reduced by a sum at the rate of 1s. per case.
3. On a sale by a retailer in any of the areas of Scotland referred to in subparagraph (a) of paragraph 2 hereof, there may be added to the prices specified in Section C of Part I of this Schedule a sum at a rate not exceeding  $\frac{1}{2}$ d. per lb. net.

Breaking Bulk

4. Where on a sale by wholesale part only of a case is sold or is at the buyer's request delivered to him, the maximum price in respect thereof may be increased by a sum at a rate not exceeding 1d. per dozen cans.

Maximum Price of Imported Jam Packed in Unspecified Containers

5. The maximum price on any sale of imported jam packed in containers of sizes other than those specified in Part I of this Schedule shall be a price at the rate per lb. calculated by reference to the price specified in relation to the sale of such jam packed in cans each containing 2 lb.

Fractions of a Halfpenny

6. Where the maximum price includes any fraction of a halfpenny such fraction shall be regarded as one halfpenny. [926]

Note.—The words in square brackets in paragraph 2, proviso (b), supra, would appear to be redundant.

PART II—PROVISIONS RELATING TO MAXIMUM PRICES

Honey in the Honeycomb

1. In calculating the weight of honey in the honeycomb for the purposes of the table set out in Part I of this Schedule, the weight of the frame in which the section of honeycomb is contained may be included, provided that such frame is in all the circumstances of a reasonable weight.

Transport and Delivery

2. The maximum prices on a first-hand sale or on a sale by wholesale of imported honey include all costs and charges of and incidental to delivery by the seller at the buyer's premises, and no additional charge shall be made by the seller on any such sale in respect of transport or delivery.

Provided that where delivery is made to the buyer at a point nearer to the seller's premises than the buyer's premises (including any place where the honey is stored or kept on the seller's behalf), the maximum price shall be reduced by an amount which fairly represents the difference between the cost of delivery to the buyer's premises and the cost of delivery to the place at which delivery is actually made.

Packing and Containers

3.—(1) On a first-hand sale or sale by wholesale of imported honey, the seller may charge a reasonable sum by way of deposit in respect of any returnable package as security for the return thereof, provided that the sum so charged shall be repaid by the seller to the buyer on the re-delivery of the package to the seller, carriage paid, in such condition as is reasonable having regard to its condition when supplied and to ordinary wear and tear.

(2) Except as provided in this paragraph, no additional charge shall be made on the sale of honey in respect of packing or of packages or containers.

Honey sold Loose or in Unspecified Containers

4. Where honey of a description mentioned in Part I of this Schedule is sold otherwise than in a container specified therein, the maximum price on any sale thereof shall be calculated at the lowest rate per lb. chargeable on that sale for that description of honey when sold in any container specified in Part I of this Schedule. [928]

EXPLANATORY NOTE

(This Note is not part of the Order, but is intended to indicate its general purport.)

This Order replaces the Preserves Order, 1944, as amended.

Sixteen varieties of jam manufactured in the United Kingdom are freed from price control.

New maximum prices are prescribed for the remaining varieties of jam and marmalade manufactured in the United Kingdom. In the case of jam or marmalade sold in 7-lb. containers, higher maximum prices are prescribed if the containers are not returnable.

The labelling provisions of the Order now apply to all imported honey, whether of a "specified brand" or not.

The definition of "jam" has been slightly altered.

PRESERVES (AMENDMENT) ORDER, 1947

ORDERS, CIRCULARS AND MEMORANDA

GAS FUND (CONTRIBUTION) ORDER, 1947

S. R. & O., 1947, No. 20January 2, 1947

The Minister of Fuel and Power in pursuance of the powers conferred upon him by Section 7 of the Gas Regulation Act, 1920, as amended by the Gas Undertakings Act, 1934, hereby prescribes as follows :—

1. The rate of contribution to the Gas Fund for the year 1947 shall be :—

- (a) eight pence for each five thousand therms in the form of gas sold during the year 1946 (excluding gas sold to other undertakers in bulk for distribution and gas supplied separately for industrial purposes only); and
- (b) four pence for each five thousand therms in the form of gas supplied separately for industrial purposes only during the year 1946.

2. Such contribution shall be paid on or before the 1st April, 1947, to the Minister of Fuel and Power at Heyhouses Lane, Lytham St. Annes, Lancashire, by all Gas Undertakers with respect to whom an Order under the Gas Regulation Act, 1920, shall have been made or to whom subsection (3) of section 7 of that Act applies by virtue of any public general Act, special Act or Special Order. [934]

3. Payment of the contribution shall be by cheque made payable to the Minister of Fuel and Power and crossed "Bank of England". [935]

4. This Order may be cited as the Gas Fund (Contribution) Order, 1947. [936]

CASES

Gas—Local authority owning gas pipes laid under public highways by virtue of statutory powers—Right to subjacent support—Damage to pipes from subsidence of surface land caused by mining operations—Right of authority to damages—Gasworks Clauses Act, 1847 (c. 15), s. 6—Public Health Act, 1875 (Support of Sewers) Amendment Act, 1883 (c. 37), s. 4.

Newcastle-under-Lyme corporation were the gas undertakers for the area covered by their borough, and their gas mains had been laid pursuant to successive local Acts embodying s. 6 of the Gasworks Clauses Act, 1847, which provides: "The undertakers . . . may open and break up the soil and pavement of the several streets and bridges within the limits of the special Act . . . and lay down and place within the same limits, pipes, conduits, service pipes and other works . . . and they may . . . do all other acts which the undertakers shall from time to time deem necessary for supplying gas to the inhabitants of the district included within the said limits. . . ." The defendant company mined certain seams of iron and coal and in the course of their workings let down the surface of the soil and damaged some of the corporation's gas mains. In an action by the corporation against the defendant company for damages in respect of the said damage :—

Held : (i) s. 6 of the Gasworks Clauses Act, 1847, did not confer on the corporation any legal or equitable right in the soil which surrounded the gas mains, but only a right to possession of the gas mains and the cavity filled by them.

(ii) the corporation never acquired any right of support against the defendant company except the implied right arising from the exercise of the corporation's statutory privilege and founded on the principle that when the legislature gives power to do something the execution of which requires subjacent support from land the persons who do the act acquire such a right to support as against the landowner : see Normanton Gas. Co. v. Pope and Pearson, Ltd. (1883), 52 L. J. Q. B. 629, but that implied right was swept away by s. 4 of the Public Health Act, 1875 (Support of Sewers) Amendment Act, 1883, and the corporation had no right to support for their gas mains whether laid before or after 1883.

(iii) the corporation had failed to prove that, at the passing of the Public Health Act, 1875 (Support of Sewers) Amendment Act, 1883, no compensation was recoverable in respect of the right to support of pipes laid before 1883, and so had not satisfied the condition for the preservation of such right in the second part of s. 5 of the Act.

(iv) there was nothing in s. 4 of the Act of 1883 which limited the operation of that section to land within 40 yards from the gas mains, and, therefore, there would be an implied right to support as regards land outside that limit.

STATUTES

TRANSPORT ACT, 1947

(10 & 11 Geo. 6, c. 49)

PRELIMINARY NOTE

Part IV of the Transport Act, 1947, which Part came into operation on August 6, 1947, the date of the Royal Assent, deals, inter alia, with harbours and coastal shipping. The British Transport Commission, whose general duties include the provision of an efficient, adequate, economical and properly integrated system of public inland transport and port facilities, is empowered, and where the Minister of Transport so directs, required, to prepare schemes for securing the development, maintenance or management of any trade harbour in Great Britain, as defined in s. 66 (1), or of any group of such trade harbours (s. 66 (3)). In the preparation of schemes the Commission is to consult with persons carrying on harbour undertakings in the harbour or group of harbours. In order to allow different schemes to be made to meet the needs of different harbours, the provisions governing the contents of schemes are drawn in wide, and for the most part, permissive terms.

Among the matters with which a scheme may deal are (a) the body which is to provide port facilities under the scheme (which body may be the Commission itself); (b) the transfer of harbour undertakings to such body; (c) the port facilities which are to be provided by any such body as above; and (d) the application to the harbour or any of the harbours of the provisions of s. 67, which relates to the licensing of port facilities. Private dock undertakings, however, may not be brought compulsorily within the ambit of a scheme except where they are carried on under a private Act or order having equivalent effect (s. 66 (7)). Further, subject to the provisions of s. 67, a scheme may not provide for conferring an exclusive right to provide specified port facilities such as berthing, unloading and lighterage (s. 66 (6)).

When s. 67 is applied to a harbour, save in so far as the scheme otherwise provides, no port facilities may be provided therein except under licence from the licensing authority constituted or specified under the scheme. Licences are, normally, to be freely granted and to last for at least seven years; persons aggrieved by determinations of the licensing authority have a right of appeal to the Transport Tribunal. Persons who were carrying on an undertaking providing port facilities on November 28, 1946, are further protected by the fact that where the refusal or revocation of a licence will involve substantial interference with some activity regularly carried on by them before and since that date, the Tribunal may declare that the undertaking is to be transferred to the licensing authority or other body administering the scheme (s. 68 (1)). If within a period of six months no agreement has been reached between the parties for the transfer of the undertaking, the Minister may give effect thereto by order, which order is to include provisions for compensation as laid down in s. 68 (3).

By s. 66 (8), no scheme will have effect until embodied in an order made by the Minister in accordance with Sched. VIII (the text of which is included in the title ROAD TRAFFIC, post). This Schedule prohibits the Minister from approving a scheme which provides for the transfer of an undertaking unless it makes satisfactory provision for compensation, which in the case of a transfer from a local authority is to be compensation identical, as nearly as may be, with that provided by s. 25 (the text of which is included in the title ROAD TRAFFIC, post) for transfers from local authorities under Part II of the Act. Such a transfer will also attract the additional compensation, designed to cover severance and increase of overhead expenses, provided for local authorities by s. 114 (the text of which is included in the title ROAD TRAFFIC, post).

Sched. VIII also deals with the preparation of draft orders, the publication of notices thereof and the making of objections thereto. When objection is duly made and not withdrawn the Minister is to hold a public local inquiry and may, after considering the report of the person holding the inquiry, make the order in terms of the draft, with or without amendment. When an objection after being duly made is not withdrawn before the order is made, the order will be subject to the special parliamentary procedure laid down by the Statutory Orders (Special Procedure) Act, 1945 (38 Halsbury's Statutes 439).

The Commission is empowered to make working agreements with coastal shipping interests for the co-ordination of their activities with those of the Commission (s. 70). A Coastal Shipping Advisory Committee is to be established by the Minister to consider and report on all matters referred to them jointly affecting the Commission and coastal shipping interests (s. 71). ## OTHER FORMS OF TRANSPORT AND PORT FACILITIES

* * * * *

Harbours

66. Schemes as to harbours.—(1) The harbours to which this section applies (hereafter in this section referred to as "trade harbours") are all harbours in Great Britain which are, or form part of, or abut on, harbours not normally used only by pleasure steamers, yachts, fishing vessels and vessels not required to be registered under the Merchant Shipping Acts, 1894 to 1940 :

Provided that this section shall not apply to any harbour which is or forms part of a dockyard port within the meaning of the Dockyard Ports Regulation Act, 1865. [940]

(2) The Commission shall keep the trade harbours under review with a view to determining whether the powers conferred on them by this section should be exercised with respect to any trade harbour or group of trade harbours. [941]

(3) The Commission may, with a view to securing the efficient and economical development, maintenance or management of any trade harbour or group of trade harbours, prepare, in consultation with the persons theretofore carrying on harbour undertakings in or in connection with the harbour or group of harbours and with such bodies or persons as the Commission may consider to be properly representative of shipping and traders actually using, and of workers actually employed in, the harbour or group of harbours, and submit to the Minister a scheme providing for all or any of the following matters, that is to say—

- (a) for constituting or specifying the body or bodies who are to provide port facilities under the scheme in or in connection with the harbour or group of harbours, and the body or bodies who are to administer, or take part in administering, the scheme ;
- (b) for the transfer to any such body as aforesaid of any harbour undertaking carried on in or in connection with the harbour or group of harbours ;
- (c) for regulating the relations of persons carrying on harbour undertakings in or in connection with the harbour or group of harbours, and, in particular, for the pooling by those persons of receipts or expenses ;
- (d) for specifying the port facilities which are to be provided by any such body as is mentioned in paragraph (a) of this subsection in or in connection with the harbour or group of harbours ;
- (e) for prohibiting or restricting the construction, improvement or extension of any dock in the harbour or group of harbours otherwise than under the scheme ;
- (f) for applying the next succeeding section to the harbour or any of the harbours and declaring the authority which is to be the licensing authority for the purposes thereof ;
- (g) for incorporating, with or without modifications, in relation to any such body as is mentioned in paragraph (a) of this subsection, any of the provisions of this Act relating to borrowing or the issue of stock, including the provisions thereof relating to guarantees by the Treasury ;
- (h) for incorporating, with or without modifications, in relation to any such body as is mentioned in paragraph (a) of this subsection, being a body who are to provide port facilities in or in connection with the harbour or group of harbours—
  - (i) any of the provisions of Part V of this Act or of any scheme or regulations made thereunder ; or
  - (ii) any other statutory provisions relating to or affecting the charges to be made by the Commission or the terms and conditions applicable to the Commission, whether for or in relation to the provision of port facilities or not ;
- (i) for incorporating, with or without modifications, in relation to any such transfer as is mentioned in paragraph (b) of this subsection, any of the provisions of this Act relating to the transfer of undertakings or parts of undertakings to the Commission, including provisions relating to compensation ;
- (j) for repealing or amending any previous scheme in force with respect to the harbour or group of harbours, or any part thereof ; and
- (k) for making such other consequential or incidental provision as appears necessary or expedient for any of the purposes aforesaid, including provision for repealing or amending any statutory provision of local application affecting the harbour or group of harbours. [942]

(4) The Commission may be the body specified, or one of the bodies specified, in a provision included in a scheme by virtue of paragraph (a) of the last preceding subsection, and a part of the undertaking of the Commission may be the subject of a transfer under a provision included in a scheme by virtue of paragraph (b) of the last preceding subsection. [943]

(5) The Commission, in preparing a scheme under this section, shall have regard to the desirability—

(a) of including among the members of any body (other than the Commission) constituted or specified in a provision included in the scheme by virtue of paragraph (a) of subsection (3) of this section to administer or take part in administering the scheme persons, or representatives of persons, who are payers of dues for the services or facilities afforded in, or who are otherwise interested in the trade or activities of, the harbour or group of harbours to which the scheme relates; and

(b) of providing for the scheme to be administered, as far as may be, from a place at or in the vicinity of the harbour, or one of the harbours in the group of harbours, to which the scheme relates. [944]

(6) Subject to the provisions of subsection (3) of this section relating to the application to harbours of the next succeeding section, nothing in the said subsection (3) shall be construed as authorising the inclusion in any scheme of any provision which confers upon any such body as is mentioned in paragraph (a) of that subsection the exclusive right to carry on or in any part of any harbour a business the activities of which consist of or include all or any of the following activities, that is to say, the berthing, towing, moving or drydocking of ships, the loading or unloading of goods or embarking or disembarking of passengers or the lighterage or the sorting, weighing, warehousing or handling of goods:

Provided that nothing in this subsection shall apply to any exclusive right exercisable immediately before the operation of the scheme by any person, whether by virtue of any statutory provision or by virtue of any right of property, being a right exercisable for the purposes of an undertaking or part of an undertaking transferred to the body under the scheme. [945]

(7) No provision of any scheme made under this section shall apply to any private dock undertaking, oil dock undertaking, coal dock undertaking or drydock undertaking, unless either the person carrying on the undertaking consents to the application thereof or the undertaking is carried on in pursuance of some private Act or some order having the effect of an Act. [946]

(8) A scheme under this section shall not have effect until embodied in an order made by the Minister in accordance with the provisions of the Eighth Schedule to this Act, and the date on which it takes effect shall be such date as may be specified in the order:

Provided that where objection is made in accordance with the said Schedule to the making of the order and is not withdrawn before the making thereof, the order shall be subject to special parliamentary procedure. [947]

(9) The Minister may—

(a) specify a trade harbour or group of trade harbours, and

(b) direct the Commission to prepare and submit a scheme under this section with respect to the trade harbour or group of trade harbours so specified, and the Commission shall give effect to any such directions.

(10) In this section, the following expressions have the meanings hereby assigned to them, that is to say:—

"harbour undertaking" means an undertaking or part of an undertaking the activities whereof consist wholly or mainly of the construction, improvement, maintenance, management, regulation, marking or lighting of a harbour or part of a harbour ;

"private dock undertaking" means an undertaking or part of an undertaking the activities whereof consist wholly or mainly of the construction, improvement, maintenance or management of a dock the use whereof is substantially confined to ships resorting thereto for the purpose, and only for the purpose, of bringing goods which are to be used by the person carrying on the undertaking or part of an undertaking in the manufacture or production, at premises on or near the dock, of goods, substances, electricity or power, or of receiving goods or substances manufactured or produced by that person on such premises ;

"oil dock undertaking" and "coal dock undertaking" mean an undertaking or part of an undertaking the activities whereof consist wholly or mainly of the construction, improvement, maintenance or management of a dock the use whereof is substantially confined to ships resorting thereto for the purpose, and only for the purpose, of bringing or receiving oil in bulk or, as the case may be, coal ;

"drydock undertaking" means an undertaking or part of an undertaking the activities whereof consist wholly or mainly of the construction, improvement, maintenance or management of a dock the use whereof is substantially confined to the cleaning or repairing of ships. [948]

General note.—It is the general duty of the British Transport Commission to provide or secure the provision of a properly integrated system of public inland transport and port facilities within Great Britain (s. 3 (1); see title ROAD TRAFFIC, post). The present section gives the Commission the necessary power to carry out this duty, so far as port facilities are concerned, by empowering them to make schemes for securing the efficient and economical development, maintenance or management of any trade harbour or group of harbours. See, generally, the Preliminary Note, ante.

The trade harbours in Great Britain number approximately 330, of which about 110 are operated under some form of public trust; about 70 are owned by municipal authorities; about 50, formerly owned by railway undertakings, were transferred on January 1, 1948, to the Commission; and about 100 are owned by other harbour undertakings. While the section provides for the making of schemes in regard only to trade harbours, the Minister of Transport stated during the course of the debate on the Second Reading of the Bill that the Commission would be expected to keep a watchful eye on the small ports and to assist them as far as possible (431 H. of C. Official Report 1632).

Schemes and organisation.—The provisions governing the contents of schemes are widely drawn so as to enable different schemes to be drawn up suitable to the widely differing requirements of the various harbours and groups of harbours. The Parliamentary Secretary to the Ministry of Transport stated at the Committee Stage of the Bill that while the Commission must be left free to prepare in any particular case the type of scheme which they considered most suitable, it was the Government's general intention that the ports should be run locally by some form of public trust. Financially, however, such trusts would not be completely autonomous, since it was considered essential that there should be some centralised financial responsibility. It was the intention of the Government that, whatever form of scheme was made, local experience and local knowledge should be used for the management of each port or each group of ports (H. of C. Official Report, S.C.B., February 12, 1947, cols. 147, 161).

That schemes will have due regard to local requirements is further assured by the provisions of sub-s. (5), ante, which was inserted as a result of a Government amendment on the Report stage in the House of Lords.

Merchant Shipping Acts, 1890 to 1940.—For the twenty-nine Acts comprising the Merchant Shipping Acts, 1890 to 1940, see 18 Halsbury's Statutes 162–828; 25 Halsbury's Statutes 634; 29 Halsbury's Statutes 795; 30 Halsbury's Statutes 810, 811; 31 Halsbury's Statutes 230; and 33 Halsbury's Statutes 473.

Dockyard Ports Regulation Act, 1865.—18 Halsbury's Statutes 128. S. 2 of that Act defines "dockyard port" as follows:—"The term 'dockyard port' means any port, harbour, haven, roadstead, sound, channel, creek, bay, or navigable river of the United Kingdom in, on, or near to which Her Majesty now or at any time hereafter has any dock, dockyard, steam factory yard, victualling yard, arsenal, wharf or mooring."

The Commission.—The British Transport Commission.

Transfer of harbour undertaking.—Where a scheme provides for the transfer of an undertaking previously carried on by a county council, the Common Council of the City of London, a county borough council or a county district council or by a joint committee, joint board, joint authority or other combined body all the members of which are, or are representative of, local authorities, the scheme must make provision for compensation identical as near as may be with the provision made by s. 25 (see title ROAD TRAFFIC, post) in the case of transfers from local authorities under Part II of the Act (see Sched. VIII, Part I; title ROAD TRAFFIC, post).

In cases where the authority have, for the purposes of the transferred undertaking, raised money by the issue of securities or have advanced money for those purposes out of moneys held by them, s. 25 of the Act provides for the Commission taking over as from the date of transfer liability for the payment of amounts due in respect of the redemption of the loan or the repayment of the advance and the payment of interest thereon (see title ROAD TRAFFIC, post). There will be payable, in addition, in the case of a transfer from any of the above-mentioned local authorities, the appropriate sum as compensation under s. 114 (see title ROAD TRAFFIC, post). This sum, which is designed to cover compensation in respect of severance and increase of overhead expenses, will be such sum as may be specified in relation to the undertaking by regulations, it being provided that the total of all appropriate sums payable in respect of harbour undertakings is not to exceed £200,000 (see s. 114; title ROAD TRAFFIC, post). Where on the transfer of a local authority's undertaking to the British Transport Commission the Commission acquire any land held by that authority for the purposes of the undertaking, the local authority are entitled to a right of pre-emption in respect of the land for a period of ten years (see s. 115; title ROAD TRAFFIC, post).

Provisions relating to borrowing, the issue of stock and Treasury guarantees.—For the provisions of the Act relating to borrowing, the issue of stock and guarantees of stock by the Treasury, see respectively ss. 88, 89, 90; title ROAD TRAFFIC, post.

Special parliamentary procedure.—This is the procedure for the confirmation of orders laid down in the Statutory Orders (Special Procedure) Act, 1945 (38 Halsbury's Statutes 439).

Directions.—Powers of giving directions to the Commission in addition to that conferred by sub-s. (9), ante, are conferred on the Minister by s. 71 (4), post, and by ss. 4, 6 (8), 63 (4), 92 (2) (b), 94 (3), (7) and 102 (2), for which see title ROAD TRAFFIC, post.

Definitions.—For definitions of "charges," "dock," "harbour," "the Minister," "port facilities," "property," "ship" and "statutory provision," see s. 125 (1), post.

67. Power to license provision of port facilities.—(1) This section shall apply to harbours to which it is applied by a provision in that behalf contained in a scheme made under the last preceding section, and in this and the next succeeding section the expression "the harbour" means a harbour to which this section applies and the expression "the licensing authority" means such body as may be declared by the scheme to be the licensing authority for the purposes of this section. [949]

(2) Save so far as may be otherwise provided by the scheme, port facilities shall not be provided in or in connection with the harbour by any person except under and in accordance with the conditions of a licence granted by the licensing authority. [950]

(3) Subject to the provisions of subsection (4) of this section, any such licence may be granted by the licensing authority for such period and subject to such conditions (including conditions as to the charges to be made by the holder of the licence) as the licensing authority think fit, and may at any time be revoked by the licensing authority:

Provided that the licensing authority shall not, unless, in their opinion, it is expedient so to do with a view to securing the better use of the harbour in the national interest or the economical improvement, maintenance or management thereof, either—

- (i) refuse or revoke a licence under this section or impose any conditions thereon; or
- (ii) without the consent of the applicant, grant any licence for a period of less than seven years. [951]

(4) If any person, being an applicant for, or the holder of, any such licence, is aggrieved by any determination of the licensing authority as respects the granting or revocation of the licence, or the conditions to be attached thereto, he may appeal to the Transport Tribunal, and the tribunal shall make such order as to the grant or revocation of the licence or the conditions which are to be attached thereto as they think just and proper in all the circumstances, and the licensing authority shall give effect to their order. [952]

(5) If any person provides any port facilities in or in connection with the harbour in such circumstances that a licence is necessary under this section, and he does so otherwise than under and in accordance with such a licence, he shall be liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding ten pounds, and, if the contravention in respect of which he is so convicted is continued after the conviction, he shall be guilty of a further offence and liable in respect thereof on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding ten pounds for each day on which the contravention is so continued. [953]

General note.—This section, which deals with the licensing of port facilities, may be applied by schemes to the harbour or any of the harbours to which the schemes relate (see s. 66 (3) (f), ante). Except under licence, the section prohibits the provision of port facilities within any harbour to which it is applied, save in so far as the scheme may otherwise provide.

Provision is made for the issuing of licences, which will normally be granted freely and will last for a minimum period of seven years, and for the hearing by the Transport Tribunal of appeals by persons aggrieved by determinations of the licensing authority, and penalties are laid down for contravention of the provisions of the section.

Harbours to which section is applied.—See s. 66 (1), (3) (f), ante.

Licensing authority.—See sub-s. (1), ante.

Transport Tribunal.—This tribunal is the tribunal heretofore known as the Railway Rates Tribunal (see s. 125 (1), post).

Offences.—As to offences by bodies corporate, see s. 121 (3); title ROAD TRAFFIC, post.

Definitions.—For definitions of “contravention,” “harbour,” “the Minister” and “property,” see s. 125 (1), post.

68. Right to require acquisition of undertakings providing port facilities.

—(1) Where—

- (a) a person who, on the twenty-eighth day of November, nineteen hundred and forty-six was carrying on an undertaking the activities of which consisted wholly or partly of the provision of port facilities in the harbour (hereinafter in this section referred to as “the appellant”) appeals to the Transport Tribunal under subsection (4) of the last preceding section from a determination of the licensing authority in relation to the provision of port facilities in the harbour; and
- (b) the tribunal refuse, either in whole or in part, to do by their order what is asked for by the appellant on that appeal; and
- (c) the tribunal are satisfied that their refusal will involve a substantial interference with the carrying on by the appellant of some activity which he was carrying on before the said twenty-eighth day of November and which he has, up to the time of the determination which was the subject of the appeal, continued to carry on with only such intermissions, if any, as are incidental to the nature of the activity, the tribunal may, on the application of the appellant, declare that the undertaking of the appellant, or some part thereof specified in the declaration, is to be transferred to such body, being either the licensing authority or some other body administering or taking part in administering the scheme relating to the harbour or providing port facilities thereunder, as may be specified in the declaration. [954]

(2) Where a declaration is made under the last preceding subsection, and at the expiration of six months from the making thereof no agreement has been entered into between the appellant and the body specified in the declaration for the acquisition by that body by agreement of the undertaking or of the part of the undertaking specified in the declaration, the appellant may apply to the Minister for an order giving effect to the transfer required by the declaration and the Minister shall make an order accordingly :

Provided that the Minister may permit such an application to be made before the expiration of the said six months if he is satisfied that there is no reasonable prospect of the transfer being effected by agreement. [955]

(3) Any such order shall apply to the transfer, with such exceptions and subject to such modifications as may be specified in the order, the provisions of this Act relating to transfers of undertakings or parts of undertakings under Part III of this Act, including provisions as to compensation :

Provided that—

(a) where the transfer is, in the opinion of the Minister, not comparable in the material respects with the form of transfer of the whole or part of an undertaking under Part III of this Act, the order may provide—

(i) in the case of a transfer which, in the opinion of the Minister, is comparable with the form of transfer of the whole or part of an undertaking effected under Part II of this Act, for compensation on a basis reasonably comparable, in his opinion, with that of the compensation provided under this Act in respect of that form of transfer; or

(ii) in any other case, for compensation in respect of the transfer which in his opinion is proper compensation; and

(b) before making the order the Minister shall give the body specified in the declaration and the appellant an opportunity of being heard before a person appointed by the Minister for that purpose, and shall consider the report of the person so appointed. [956]

(4) If the body specified in the declaration and the appellant so agree, the order may effect the transfer of a part only of the undertaking notwithstanding that the declaration related to the whole of the undertaking, or of the whole of the undertaking notwithstanding that the declaration related to part only thereof, or of a part of the undertaking not identical with the part of the undertaking specified in the declaration. [957]

General note.—This section, which was inserted by Amendment at the Committee Stage of the Bill, affords protection to persons who were, on November 28, 1946, carrying on undertakings providing port facilities in harbours to which s. 67 is applied, when, as a result of the refusal or revocation of licences, substantial interference will be caused to businesses carried on by them before and since that date. In such circumstances the Transport Tribunal is enabled to declare that the undertaking is to be transferred to one of the bodies administering the scheme or providing port facilities thereunder. In default of agreement between the parties for giving effect to such declaration, the Minister is enabled to give effect thereto by order.

Corresponding provision is made in the case of existing road haulage undertakings by s. 54 (title ROAD TRAFFIC, post). Compare also the provision for compensation made in the case of existing passenger road transport undertakings by s. 64 (4) (title ROAD TRAFFIC, post).

November 28, 1946.—This is the day immediately preceding the First Reading of the Bill in the House of Commons.

Transport Tribunal.—This tribunal is the tribunal heretofore known as the Railway Rates Tribunal (see s. 125 (1), post).

Licensing authority.—The licensing authority under the scheme (see s. 67 (1), ante).

Order.—As to orders, see s. 120 (title ROAD TRAFFIC, post).

Part III of this Act.—This Part is printed under the title ROAD TRAFFIC, post.

Compensation for transfer under Part II of the Act.—See s. 25, printed under the title ROAD TRAFFIC, post.

Definitions.—For definitions of “harbour,” “the Minister” and “port facilities,” see s. 125 (1), post.

69. Holyhead harbour.—All property, rights, powers and liabilities of the Minister as successor to the Board of Trade in respect of Holyhead harbour shall, on the appointed day, become the property, rights, powers and liabilities of the Commission. [958]

Appointed day.—S. 125 (3) of the Act provides that, except in so far as the context otherwise requires, the expression “the appointed day” means such day as the Minister may by order appoint, and different days may be appointed for different purposes and different provisions of the Act. No day had been appointed under this section at the time of going to press.

The Commission.—The British Transport Commission.

Definitions.—For definitions of “liability,” “the Minister” and “property,” see s. 125 (1), post.

Coastal Shipping

70. Working agreements as to coastal shipping.—Without prejudice to any powers possessed by the Commission apart from the provisions of this section, the Commission shall have power to enter into and carry out agreements with any person engaged in coastal shipping for co-ordinating the activities of that person with those of the Commission, and, in particular, for facilitating the through carriage of goods, for the quoting of through rates, and for the pooling of receipts or expenses. [959]

The Commission.—The British Transport Commission.

Coastal shipping.—For definition of this term, see s. 125 (1), infra.

71. Advisory Committee as to coastal shipping.—(1) The Minister shall establish a Coastal Shipping Advisory Committee for the purpose of considering and from time to time reporting to the Minister on all matters which may jointly affect the interests of the Commission and those of persons engaged in coastal shipping or which the Minister may refer to them for consideration. [960]

(2) The said Committee shall consist—

- (a) of such number of members representing the interests of persons engaged in coastal shipping as the Minister thinks fit, to be appointed by him after consultation with such body or bodies as he thinks fit, being a body or bodies who appear to him to be representative of those persons; and
- (b) such number of representatives of the Commission as the Minister may determine, to be nominated by the Commission, of whom one at least shall be a member of the Commission :

Provided that the number of members of the Committee representing the interests of persons engaged in coastal shipping shall not be less than the number of representatives of the Commission on the said Committee. [961]

(3) The Committee shall appoint their own chairman from among their own members and their procedure, including their quorum, shall be such as they may determine. [962]

(4) If the Committee make a report to the Minister with respect to any matter, the Minister may give to the Commission such directions as he thinks fit as to the exercise of the Commission's powers with respect to that matter (being directions which, in his opinion, it is necessary that he should give for securing that efficient coastal shipping services are maintained to the extent which he considers is required in the national interest), and the Commission shall give effect to any such directions. [963]

Directions.—Powers of giving directions to the Commission, in addition to that conferred by sub-s. (4), supra, are conferred on the Minister by s. 66 (9), ante, and by ss. 4, 6 (8), 63 (4), 92 (2) (b), 94 (3), (7) and 102, which are printed in the title ROAD TRAFFIC, post.

ORDERS, CIRCULARS AND MEMORANDA

NEWPORT HARBOUR COMMISSIONERS (RESUMPTION OF ELECTIONS) ORDER, 1947

S. R. & O., 1947, No. 982

May 21, 1947

Whereas by the Newport Harbour Commissioners (Extension of Term of Office) Order, 1945, provision was made under section two of the Chartered and Other Bodies (Temporary Provisions) Act, 1939, for postponing until the year nineteen hundred and forty-six the elections of such of the Newport Harbour Commissioners as are elected by the following classes of electors mentioned in section seventeen of the Newport (Monmouthshire) Harbour Act, 1890, that is to say :—

registered ship-owners of the port of Newport, persons engaged in the smelting of iron shipped at the said port, persons engaged in the mining and working of coal shipped at the said port :

And whereas by the Newport Harbour Commissioners (Resumption of Elections) Order, 1946, provision was made under the said section two and under section one of the Chartered and Other Bodies (Resumption of Elections) Act, 1945, for the holding of elections in the year nineteen hundred and forty-six and for the modification, in relation to those elections, of certain provisions of the said Newport (Monmouthshire) Harbour Act, 1890, and in particular the provisions of section eighteen of that Act relating to the persons entitled to vote at the election of Commissioners by registered ship-owners :

And whereas it appears to His Majesty that owing to the continuance of abnormal conditions it is necessary or expedient to extend the operation of the said Newport Harbour Commissioners (Resumption of Elections) Order, 1946, to the elections due to be held in the year nineteen hundred and forty-seven, and for that purpose to make an Order in Council under the proviso to subsection (2) of section one of the said Chartered and Other Bodies (Resumption of Elections) Act, 1945 :

Now, therefore, His Majesty, in exercise of the powers conferred on Him by section one of the said Chartered and Other Bodies (Resumption of Elections) Act, 1945, and of all other powers enabling Him in that behalf, is pleased, by and with the advice of His Privy Council, to order, and it is hereby ordered, as follows :—

1. The provisions of Article 1 of the Newport Harbour Commissioners (Resumption of Elections) Order, 1946, so far as they modify the provisions of section eighteen of the Newport (Monmouthshire) Harbour Act, 1890, relating to the persons entitled to vote at the election of Commissioners by registered ship-owners, shall extend, with the necessary variations, to the elections due to be held in the year nineteen hundred and forty-seven, and accordingly the said Act shall apply in relation to those elections subject to the following modifications :—

- (a) in addition to the persons entitled to vote by virtue of section eighteen, a person shall be entitled to vote at the election of Commissioners by registered ship-owners if he is a ship broker or shipping agent who—
  - (i) on the thirty-first day of March, nineteen hundred and forty-seven, was resident in the county borough of Newport or in the county of Monmouth ; and
  - (ii) has during the twelve months immediately preceding the said thirty-first day of March paid to the Commissioners the sum of twenty-five pounds or more in respect of harbour dues, and any such person shall be entitled to give one vote for any one or more of ten persons, and if he has during the said twelve months paid eighty-five pounds or more to the Commissioners as aforesaid he may, in addition, give one vote in respect of every sixty pounds by which the amount so paid exceeds twenty-five pounds for any one or more of such ten persons, so, however, that no person shall be entitled to give more than twenty votes for any one person ;
- (b) subsection (4) of section eighteen shall apply in relation to persons entitled to vote at the election of Commissioners by registered ship-owners by virtue of this Article as if for the references to a ship-owner there were substituted references to a ship broker or shipping agent and as if for references to shipping owned by a company there were substituted references to harbour dues paid by a company.

MERSEY DOCKS AND HARBOUR BOARD (RESUMPTION OF ELECTIONS) ORDER, 1947

June 11, 1947

Whereas by the Mersey Docks and Harbour Board (Temporary Provisions) Order, 1940, as amended by the Mersey Docks and Harbour Board (Temporary Provisions) Order, 1942, the Mersey Docks and Harbour Board (Temporary Provisions) Order, 1943, and the Mersey Docks and Harbour Board (Temporary Provisions) Order, 1944, provision was made under section two of the Chartered and Other Bodies (Temporary Provisions) Act, 1939, for postponing the election of elective members of the Mersey Docks and Harbour Board until the year nineteen hundred and forty-six :

And whereas by the Mersey Docks and Harbour Board (Resumption of Elections) Order, 1946, provision was made under section one of the Chartered and Other Bodies (Resumption of Elections) Act, 1945, for the holding of elections in the year nineteen hundred and forty-six and for the modification in relation to those elections, of certain provisions of the Mersey Docks and Harbour Acts relating to the qualifications of persons for election as elective members of the Board and of the persons qualified to vote at the elections of such members :

And whereas it appears to His Majesty that owing to the continuance of abnormal conditions it is necessary or expedient to extend the operation of the said Mersey Docks and Harbour Board (Resumption of Elections) Order, 1946, to the elections due to be held in the year nineteen hundred and forty-seven, and for that purpose to make an Order in Council under the proviso to subsection (2) of section one of the said Chartered and Other Bodies (Resumption of Elections) Act, 1945 ;

Now, therefore, His Majesty, in exercise of the powers conferred on Him by section one of the said Chartered and Other Bodies (Resumption of Elections) Act, 1945, and of all other powers enabling Him in that behalf, is pleased, by and with the advice of His Privy Council, to order, and it is hereby ordered as follows :—

1. The Mersey Docks and Harbour Board (Resumption of Elections) Order, 1946 (which modifies, in relation to elections to be held in nineteen hundred and forty-six, certain provisions of the Mersey Docks and Harbour Acts relating to the qualifications of elective members of the Mersey Docks and Harbour Board and of voters at the election of such members), shall extend to the election of elective members of the said Board to be held in the year nineteen hundred and forty-seven, and accordingly Article one of that Order shall have effect, in relation to that election, as if for the words “nineteen hundred and forty-six”, wherever they occur, there were substituted the words “nineteen hundred and forty-seven”. [967]

2.—(1) This Order may be cited as the Mersey Docks and Harbour Board (Resumption of Elections) Order, 1947.

(2) In this Order the expression “the Mersey Docks and Harbour Acts” means the Mersey Docks and Harbour Act, 1857, the Mersey Docks Acts Consolidation Act, 1858, the Mersey Docks Act, 1880, the Mersey Docks Act, 1881, and the Mersey Docks and Harbour Board Act, 1889.

(3) The Interpretation Act, 1889, shall apply to the interpretation of this Order as it applies to the interpretation of an Act of Parliament. [968]

DUNDEE HARBOUR TRUSTEES (RESUMPTION OF ELECTIONS) ORDER, 1947

S. R. & O., 1947, No. 1590/S.63

July 25, 1947

Whereas in exercise of the powers conferred on Him by section one of the Chartered and Other Bodies (Temporary Provisions) Act, 1939, His Majesty in Council was pleased to make provision by Orders in Council postponing during the years nineteen hundred and forty-one to nineteen hundred and forty-five the elections of the Trustees of the Harbour of Dundee.

And whereas in exercise of the powers conferred on Him by section one of the Chartered and Other Bodies (Resumption of Elections) Act, 1945, His Majesty was pleased by Order in Council to modify the provisions of the Dundee Harbour and Tay Ferries Acts 1911 to 1933 (hereinafter together referred to as "the special Act") in such manner as to enable elections of the Trustees of the Harbour of Dundee to be held in the year nineteen hundred and forty-six and to enable the Trustees elected to remain in office until the third Tuesday of November nineteen hundred and forty-seven.

And whereas it appears that the triennial election of the said Trustees is due to be held in the year nineteen hundred and forty-seven under the provisions of the special Act and that owing to the continuance of abnormal conditions it is necessary and expedient to extend, for the purposes of that election, the said modifications so far as relating to the qualifications of the persons entitled to be electors as harbour ratepayers, and to make provisions for incidental and consequential matters.

Now, therefore, His Majesty in the exercise of the powers conferred on Him by section one of the Chartered and Other Bodies (Resumption of Elections) Act 1945 and of all other powers enabling Him in that behalf is pleased, by and with the advice of His Privy Council, to order, and it is hereby ordered as follows:—

1. Subject to the provisions of this Order the election of the Trustees of the Harbour of Dundee to be held in the year nineteen hundred and forty-seven shall be in accordance with the provisions of the special Act. [969]

2. Notwithstanding anything contained in the special Act, the register of qualified harbour ratepayers to be used for the purposes of the said election in November, nineteen hundred and forty-seven, shall be the register of qualified harbour ratepayers used for the purpose of the election held in the year nineteen hundred and forty-six (hereinafter referred to as "the 1946 register"),

Provided that—

- (a) on or before the thirtieth day of September, nineteen hundred and forty-seven, any company or incorporated company who in terms of sections twenty-three and twenty-four of the Dundee Harbour and Tay Ferries Consolidation Act, 1911, nominated persons for inclusion in the register of qualified harbour ratepayers for the year nineteen hundred and thirty-eight, may revise the name and address of any person appearing as their nominee in the 1946 register, and may substitute therefor the name and address of another qualified person, and any such company, or incorporated company, who in terms of the said sections were entitled to nominate persons for inclusion in the register of qualified harbour ratepayers for the year nineteen hundred and thirty-eight, may on or before the date aforementioned notwithstanding that they did not so nominate any person in the year nineteen hundred and thirty-eight, or in the year nineteen hundred and forty-six, nominate persons in pursuance of the said sections for the purposes of the election to be held in the year nineteen hundred and forty-seven;

- (b) the 1946 register as altered in accordance with paragraph (a) hereof shall be made available for inspection by the public (of which notice shall be duly published) and names may be added to it by order of the Sheriff at Dundee, all in accordance with the Provisions of the Special Act;

Provided that applications to the said Sheriff for the addition of names shall be made on or before the twentieth day of October, nineteen hundred and forty-seven. [970]

3. The Trustees elected by the harbour ratepayers at the election in November, nineteen hundred and forty-seven, shall remain in office until the third Tuesday in November, nineteen hundred and fifty. [971]

4. During the period between the third Tuesday in November, nineteen hundred and forty-seven and the third Tuesday in November, nineteen hundred and fifty, the 1946 register amended as aforesaid for the purpose of the election to be held in the year nineteen hundred and forty-seven, shall be used for the purpose of filling casual vacancies occurring among the Trustees representing harbour ratepayers in accordance with the provisions of the special Act. [972]

5. This Order may be cited as "The Dundee Harbour Trustees (Resumption of Elections) Order, 1947". [973]

6. The Interpretation Act, 1889 shall apply to the interpretation of this Order as it applies to the interpretation of an Act of Parliament. [974]

EXPLANATORY NOTE

(This Note is not part of the Order, but is intended to indicate its general purport.)

The elections of the Trustees of the Harbour of Dundee were postponed during the years 1941 to 1945 by Order in Council made under the Chartered and Other Bodies (Temporary Provisions) Act, 1939. By Order in Council made under the Chartered and Other Bodies (Resumption of Elections) Act, 1945, it was provided that an election of Trustees should be held in the year 1946, that there should be certain modifications in the register of qualified ship-owners and qualified harbour ratepayers for the purposes of that election and that the Trustees so elected should hold office for one year instead of three.

The present Order provides that the modifications in the register of qualified harbour ratepayers shall continue in operation for the election of Trustees in 1947 and that the Trustees elected in 1947 shall hold office for the normal term of three years.

CASES

Animals—Trespass—Horse on highway—Escape through gap in fence of field adjoining highway—Collision with cyclist—Duty so to maintain gates and fences that escape of animals impossible—Duty to take reasonable care to prevent escape.

Practice—Appeal to House of Lords—Leave to appeal—Appellant a poor person—Consideration of respondent's position as to costs.

In April, 1944, at about 1.30 a.m. and during "black-out" conditions, the appellant was cycling along the highway when he was injured through coming into collision with a horse (which was not of a mischievous nature) belonging to the respondent who kept it in a field adjoining the highway. At the time of the accident the horse was straying unattended on the highway on which it had got through a gap in the fence which separated the highway from the field:—

Held: the respondent was not liable in negligence because (a) there was no prima facie legal obligation on him, as the owner of a field abutting on the highway, to users of the highway so to maintain his fence as to prevent his animals from straying on to the highway, and (b) he was under no duty as between himself and users of the highway to take reasonable care to prevent any of his animals (not known to be dangerous) from straying on to the highway.

Per Viscount MAUGHAM: In such a case, if the animal is wild by nature or is a domestic animal known to be dangerous, I can readily conceive that the possibility or probability of danger to passers-by might impose a duty of reasonable care.

Per Viscount MAUGHAM: When the Court of Appeal gives leave to appeal to the House of Lords in what is regarded as a test case, the position of the respondent as to costs, if the appeal should fail, ought to be borne in mind. It is an unfortunate fact for the respondent in the present case that the appellant presents his appeal as a poor person.—SEARLE v. WALLBANK, [1947] A. C. 341; [1947] 1 All E. R. 12; [1947] L. J. Highways—Wilful obstruction of footway—Business not carried on in normal manner—Selling from window of, and not inside, shop—Liability of shopkeeper—Highway Act, 1835 (c. 50), s. 72.

A shopkeeper sold ice-cream from a window of her shop, which the justices found was not the ordinary manner of conducting her business. A crowd assembled which obstructed the highway, and the shopkeeper ignored a suggestion made by the police that the sale be made within the shop:—

Held: as the obstruction could have been avoided by the shopkeeper selling the ice-cream inside the shop in the ordinary way and not through the window, the obstruction was wilful and the shopkeeper was liable.

Highways—Diversion—Powers of quarter sessions—No appeal against diversion order—Highway Act, 1835 (c. 50), ss. 84, 85.

A certificate in relation to the diversion of a highway lodged with the clerk of the peace in accordance with s. 85 of the Highway Act, 1835, showed that all formalities with regard to notices, view by the justices, etc., had been complied with, but, in the view of quarter sessions, the proposed new road was less commodious than the old one because it contained two new right-angled turns and debouched into another road in an unsatisfactory way. Quarter sessions, accordingly, held that the certificate was bad on the face of it, and refused to enrol it. On an application by the local authority for an order of mandamus directing quarter sessions to enrol the certificate and make the necessary order :—

Held : quarter sessions had no jurisdiction to go into the question of the convenience or adequacy of the proposed new highway ; their duty, if there was no appeal, was to satisfy themselves that the statutory provisions had been complied with, and, that on the face of the certificate, the proceedings were in order, and, if satisfied, to enrol the certificate and make the necessary order ; and, therefore, an order for mandamus would be made.—*R. v. ### NURSES REGULATIONS, 1947

January 28, 1947

The Minister of Health, in exercise of the powers conferred on him by proviso (b) to subsection (1) of section 6, and by Part II, of the Nurses Act, 1943, and of all other powers enabling him in that behalf, hereby makes the following regulations :—

1.—(1) These regulations may be cited as the Nurses Regulations, 1947, and shall come into operation on the first day of February, 1947.

(2) The Nurses Regulations, 1945, the Nurses (No. 2) Regulations, 1945, the Nurses Amendment Regulations, 1946, the Nurses Amendment (No. 2) Regulations, 1946, and regulation 2 of these regulations may be cited together as the Nurses Regulations, 1945 to 1947 ; and the Nurses Agencies Regulations, 1945, and regulation 3 of these regulations may be cited together as the Nurses Agencies Regulations, 1945 and 1947.

(3) The Interpretation Act, 1889, applies to the interpretation of these regulations as it applies to the interpretation of an Act of Parliament. [978]

2. A person who has satisfied the General Nursing Council for England and Wales that he or she—

(a) would have been eligible for admission to some part of the list kept by the said Council under section 18 of the Nurses Act, 1943, if he or she had applied for admission thereto within two years from the passing of that Act ; and

(b) was prevented from applying for such admission within the said period by circumstances beyond his or her control occasioned by the war then in progress ;

may use any name or title, or use in relation to himself or herself any expression, which he or she would be entitled under the Nurses Regulations, 1945, to use if he or she was for the time being on that part of the said list. [979]

3. The following paragraph shall be inserted in regulation 3 of the Nurses Agencies Regulations, 1945 (which prescribes classes of persons who, in addition to registered nurses, enrolled assistant nurses and certified midwives, may be supplied by a person carrying on an agency for the supply of nurses) after paragraph (e) :—

“(ee) persons who are entitled by virtue of the Nurses Regulations, 1947, to use the name or title of “trained nurse,” or any expression containing those words.” [980]

* * * * *

EXPLANATORY NOTE

(This Note is not part of the regulations, but is intended to indicate their general purport.)

These regulations deal with the position of persons who satisfy the General Nursing Council that they were qualified for inclusion in the list kept by the Council but were prevented by the war from applying for that inclusion before the period for such applications expired in April, 1945.

Regulation 2 provides for such persons being entitled to describe themselves as trained nurses or as trained nurses of a particular type in the same way as if they were included in the list, and regulation 3 provides similarly for the supply of such persons by agencies for the supply of nurses.

CASES

Medicine and pharmacy—Medical practitioner—Pharmacist—Negligence—Liability of hospital—Dangerous and negligent system—Injection of lethal dose of cocaine—Apportionment of damages between joint tortfeasors—Law Reform (Married Women and Tortfeasors) Act, 1935 (c. 30), s. 6 (2).

While undergoing an operation, a patient in a county council hospital was killed by an injection of cocaine which was given by the operating surgeon in the mistaken belief that it was procaine. The operating surgeon had ordered procaine on the telephone, but the resident house surgeon (who was then unqualified) had mis-heard “procaine” as “cocaine,” and had told the pharmacist to dispense a mixture which was, in fact, lethal. The pharmacist dispensed the mixture without making further inquiry and without requiring the written instruction of a qualified person, and the operating surgeon had given the injection without checking that it was what he had ordered. The operating surgeon, the house surgeon and the pharmacist were all three in the full-time or part-time employment of the council. In an action by the patient’s widow against the county council and the operating surgeon alleging that the death was the result of (a) the council’s negligence in the conduct of their hospital, and (b) the operating surgeon’s failure to exercise reasonable care :—

Held : (i) the county council, in managing the hospital, was permitting a dangerous and negligent system to be in operation, and the operating surgeon and the house surgeon had failed to exercise reasonable skill and care.

(ii) the council were able to control the manner in which the resident medical officer performed her work, and, therefore, the acts of the house surgeon done in the course of her employment were acts for which the council was responsible.

(iii) although the operating surgeon was a part-time employee on the staff of the council, the council could not control how he was to perform his duties and was not responsible for his want of care.

Gold v. Essex County Council ([1942] 2 K. B. 293; [1942] 2 All E. R. 237), applied.

Quaere, whether Hillyer v. St. Bartholomew's Hospital (Governors) ([1909] 2 K. B. 820) still a binding authority.

(iv) the county council and the surgeon were to contribute in equal proportions to the amount of damages recoverable by the plaintiff.—COLLINS v. HERTFORDSHIRE COUNTY COUNCIL, [1947] K. B. 598; [1947] 1 All E. R. 633; [1947] L. J. R. 789; 176 L. T. 456; 111 J. P. 272; 63 T. L. R. 317; 45 L. G. R. 263. [1981]

Negligence—Bailee—Hospital—Patient's property deposited on admission—Liability of hospital for loss—Measure of damages.

A local authority, who were under a statutory duty to maintain a hospital and to admit patients thereto, but were empowered to recover all the expenses to which they were put (including the cost of looking after patients' property), admitted a patient into the institution and took possession of certain jewellery and a cigarette case which she had in her handbag. They were unaware at the time that the articles were of value, but shortly afterwards they received a letter from the patient's sister asking for confirmation of the contents of the patient's handbag and referring to diamonds. They did not reply. The articles were entered in a book and stored with hundreds of others in envelopes on the floor in a room which a burglar would have had no difficulty in breaking into. They were not put into a safe even after receipt of the letter, and they disappeared, presumably being stolen. In an action against the authority for the return of the chattels or their value, and damages for their detention, and, alternatively, for damages for conversion, negligence, or breach of duty:—

Held: (i) the local authority were bailees, but not gratuitous bailees, and so had a higher duty of care than that required from a gratuitous bailee.

(ii) they were not entitled to assume that a patient's property was of no value, and they were negligent in not storing the property in a safe, particularly after the receipt of the letter drawing their attention to its value.

(iii) in arriving at the value of the property to determine the damages, purchase tax should be taken into consideration.—MARTIN v. LONDON COUNTY COUNCIL, [1947] K. B. 628; [1947] 1 All E. ## HOUSING ACTS (EQUALISATION ACCOUNT) REGULATIONS, 1947

March 3, 1947

The Minister of Health in exercise of the powers conferred on him by section 176 of the Housing Act, 1936, and of all other powers enabling him in that behalf, hereby makes the following regulations :—

1. These regulations may be cited as the Housing Acts (Equalisation Account) Regulations, 1947. [983]

2.—(1) In these regulations, unless the context otherwise requires, the following expressions have the meanings hereby assigned to them :—

“ the Act of 1923 ” means the Housing, &c., Act, 1923 ;

“ the Act of 1924 ” means the Housing (Financial Provisions) Act, 1924 ;

“ the Act of 1936 ” means the Housing Act, 1936 ;

“ the Act of 1938 ” means the Housing (Financial Provisions) Act, 1938 ;

“ the Minister ” means the Minister of Health ; and “ Housing Revenue Account ” and “ Housing Equalisation Account ” have the same meaning as in the Act of 1936.

(2) The Interpretation Act, 1889, applies to the interpretation of these regulations as it applies to the interpretation of an Act of Parliament. [984]

3. The Housing Acts (Equalisation Account) Regulations, 1938, are hereby revoked, but without prejudice to anything done thereunder. [985]

4. Subject to the provisions of these regulations, every local authority who keep a Housing Equalisation Account shall in each financial year beginning on the 1st day of April carry to the credit of that account from the Housing Revenue Account the aggregate of the under-mentioned sums, namely :—

(a) an amount equal to the one-seventh part of the aggregate amount of the Exchequer contributions payable to the authority for that year under—

(i) paragraph (b) of subsection (1) of section 1 of the Act of 1923, as amended by sections 1 and 2 of the Act of 1924 ;

(ii) sections 105, 106 and 108 of the Act of 1936 ;

(iii) sections 1 and 2 of the Act of 1938 ;

(b) an amount equal to the one-seventh part of the aggregate amount of any contributions payable to the authority for that year from a county council under—

(i) section 115 of the Act of 1936 ;

(ii) section 7 of the Act of 1938. [986]

5. If a local authority satisfy the Minister that, having regard to arrangements made by them for repaying money borrowed for expenditure in connexion with the provision of the houses to which the Housing Revenue Account relates, or for any other reason, it is necessary or expedient that the total amount to be carried to the credit of the Housing Equalisation Account in any year under regulation 4 of these regulations should be varied, the amount to be carried to the credit of that account in that year shall be such sum as the Minister may determine to be appropriate in all the circumstances.

6. If a local authority satisfy the Minister that it is necessary or expedient that an amount should be carried in any year from the Housing Revenue Account in respect of contributions payable under paragraph (b) of subsection (1) of section 1 of the Act of 1923 or under section 107 of the Act of 1936 to the credit of the Housing Equalisation Account the amount to be carried to the credit of that account in that year in respect of the said contributions shall be such sum as the Minister may determine to be appropriate. [988]

7. Where a local authority keep a Housing Equalisation Account such sums as they may, with the approval of the Minister, think it necessary or desirable to transfer to the Housing Revenue Account with a view to carrying out the objects of section 132 of the Act of 1936 shall from time to time be transferred from the Housing Equalisation Account accordingly but, subject to the foregoing provision, an amount equal to all moneys standing to the credit of the Housing Equalisation Account shall be applied in manner provided by section 133 of the Act of 1936. [989]

EXPLANATORY NOTE

(This Note is not part of the Regulations, but is intended to indicate their general purport.)

These Regulations take the place of the Housing Acts (Equalisation Account) Regulations, 1938, and are rendered necessary by the amendment to section 132 of the Housing Act, 1936, which is made by section 21 (5) of the Housing (Financial and Miscellaneous Provisions) Act, 1946, the effect of which is to leave the keeping of a Housing Equalisation Account to the local authority's discretion.

CASES

Public health—Housing—Compulsory purchase order—Confirmation by Minister—Regard had by Minister to letters from local authority received by him while acting administratively—Right of Minister to use knowledge gained by him extra-judicially—Housing Act, 1936 (c. 51), s. 29 (1), Sched. I (4).

In confirming a compulsory purchase order made by a local authority, the Minister of Health had regard not only to the evidence given at the public inquiry, but also to two letters from the local authority received by him three years earlier. These letters merely stated that the object of the local authority was "the rapid erection of as large a number of dwellings as possible" and that the authority's attention had been drawn to certain areas [including the area in question] which had suffered extensively from damage by enemy action and "the acquisition of which would enable housing development to be commenced immediately conditions permit." Since these letters were not in evidence at the public inquiry, it was contended by the objectors to the order that the confirmation order was bad:—

Held: (i) it was not necessary for copies of the letters to have been laid before the objectors and they had not been prejudiced by not having had an opportunity of dealing with them.

(ii) the letters having been received by the Minister before the public inquiry and while he was still acting in an administrative capacity, and there being nothing in them which required them to be given in evidence at the public inquiry, there was no ground for quashing the confirmation order.

Public health—Housing—Compulsory acquisition of land—“Persons employed or paid by county council”—Superintendent of police—Housing Act, 1936 (c. 57), s. 97.

By s. 97 of the Housing Act, 1936: “A county council . . . shall have power to provide houses for persons employed or paid by, or by a statutory committee of, the council . . . and for that purpose may be authorised to acquire or appropriate land in like manner as a local authority may be authorised to acquire or appropriate land for the purposes of [Part V] of this Act.” Part V of the Act is headed: “Provision of housing accommodation for the working classes”.

In February, 1946, the Lancashire County Council made an order for the compulsory acquisition of a house and its grounds to provide a residence for a police superintendent of the Lancashire county police whose annual income amounted to £800 and, after a public inquiry had been held, the Minister of Health confirmed the order. On an appeal by the applicants, the executors of the owner of the house, against the confirmation:—

Held: (i) the police superintendent did not come within the group designated by the phrase “working class”, but

(ii) the persons for whom houses might be provided under s. 97 need not be persons of the “working class”, and

(iii) the police in a county are paid by the county council and, therefore, the police superintendent came within s. 97 of the Act, and the order was validly made and confirmed.—RODWELL v. MINISTER OF HEALTH, [1947] K. B. 404; [1947] 1 All E. R. 80; [1947] L. J. R. 568; 176 L. T. 193; 111 J. P. 72; 63 T. L. R. 45; 91 Sol. Jo. 43; 45 L. G. R. 60. [1991]

County courts—Adjournment—Action for recovery of possession—Vested right of action—Application by tenant for registration of premises under Defence Regulations—Refusal by local authority—Adjournment pending application to High Court for order of mandamus—Defence (General) Regulations, 1939 (S. R. & O., 1939, No. 927, as amended), reg. 68CB.

In breach of a covenant in his lease, the tenant of a house sub-let rooms in the house to several tenants. After the commencement of proceedings by the landlord to recover possession of the house on that ground, the tenant applied to the local authority under the Defence Regulations, reg. 68CB, for registration of the house as accommodation available for occupation by tenants or lodgers, which would have the effect of nullifying any covenant against sub-letting, but an order for registration was refused. The county court judge, considering that, if the local authority did register the premises, he would be precluded from giving effect on the trial of the action to the landlord's claim for forfeiture of the lease, granted an adjournment at the request of the tenant, pending an application to the High Court by way of mandamus to compel the local authority to reverse their previous decision:—

Held: before the application by the tenant for registration the landlord had a vested right of action in respect of the breaches of covenant; reg. 68CB had no retrospective effect; and, therefore, the landlord was entitled to have the issue of forfeiture of the lease on the ground of breach of covenant decided as a matter of law by the competent tribunal and the judge erred in law in granting an adjournment.—OUZMAN v. KENNEDY, [1947] K. B.

Public health—Housing—Compulsory purchase order—Confirmation by Minister—Matters to be considered by Minister—Originating notice of motion entered at Crown Office within 6 weeks after publication of notice of confirmation, but notice of motion not served on Minister or local authority within the 6 weeks—Whether notice of motion out of time—Power of court to enlarge time for service—Housing Act, 1936 (c. 51), Sched. II, para. 2—R. S. C., Ord. 55B, r. 74; Ord. 64, r. 7.

The objectors to a compulsory purchase order (made on February 9, 1946), in sending their objections to the Ministry of Health, stated that the objections set out were "the principal grounds of objection." The Minister, after considering the objections and certain other documents which were before him, confirmed the compulsory purchase order, the confirmation order being published on May 4, 1946. The objectors made an application under the Housing Act, 1936, Sched. II, para. 2, for the Minister's order to be quashed on the grounds (a) that a requirement of the Act had not been complied with, in that the Minister had failed properly or fully to consider their objections, no opportunity having been given to them to elaborate the objections which had been set out; (b) that documents which were before the Minister when he made his decision had not been made available to the objectors. Of the six documents objected to, three had been received by the Minister from another government department before the compulsory purchase order had been made (i.e. while the Minister was still acting in an administrative capacity) and two were communications between the Minister and the local authority also written before that date. The sixth, dated March 15, 1946, was from another government department to the local authority stating that that department raised no objection to the proposed use of the site for housing purposes. The originating notice of motion by which it was sought to quash the confirmation order was entered at the Crown Office on June 14, 1946, but the notice of motion was not served on the Minister or on the local authority until June 20, 1946, more than six weeks after the publication of the confirmation order and a preliminary point was taken by the Minister that the notice was out of time:—

Held: (i) the notice of motion was out of time because not only should the originating notice of motion have been entered at the Crown Office within six weeks from the date of the publication of the confirmation order as provided by Sched. II, para. 2, to the Act of 1936, but also, under R. S. C., Ord. 55B, r. 74, the notice of motion should have been served within that period on the Minister and on anyone else on whom it was to be served. The court had, however, power under R. S. C., Ord. 64, r. 7, to enlarge the time for service, since the period for service was specified by the rules and not by the Act, the "application" (the period for which was specified by Sched. II, para. 2, to the Act) being, as indicated by R. S. C., Ord. 55B, r. 71, the originating notice of motion.

(ii) it was not necessary for the Minister, before adjudicating on the matter, to send any of the documents in question to the objectors, and they had not been prejudiced by not having them.

Miller v. Minister of Health, [1946] K. B. 626, and Offer v. Minister of Health, [1936] 1 K. B. 40, applied.

(iii) it was not established that the Minister had failed properly and in a correct manner to consider the objections and there was no ground for quashing the order.

Public health—Housing—Limitation of purchase price of houses constructed under building licence—Sale of registered land at price exceeding limit—Place of sale—Jurisdiction of justices—Building Materials and Housing Act, 1945 (c. 20), ss. 7 (1), 9 (3).

A sale, within the meaning of the Building Materials and Housing Act, 1945, s. 7 (1), takes place where the contract is completed, and it is immaterial that the transaction requires registration at the Land Registry Office. Consequently, justices for the area in which the sale is completed, and not those in the Land Registry area, have jurisdiction to deal with a summons for contravening s. 7 (1).—*R. v. Crown practice—Certiorari—When order granted—Furnished Houses Rent Tribunal—Furnished Houses (Rent Control) Act, 1946 (c. 34), s. 2.

Certiorari does not lie to bring up and quash a decision of a tribunal constituted under the Furnished Houses (Rent Control) Act, 1946, when the decision is good on its face and not outside the jurisdiction of that tribunal.—R. v. FURNISHED HOUSES RENT TRIBUNAL FOR PADDINGTON & ST. MARYLEBONE, Ex parte KENDAL HOTELS, LTD., [1947] 1 All E. R. 448; 176 L. T. 330; 63 T. L. R. 239. [1995]

Landlord and tenant—Rent control—“Rent which includes payment for use of furniture or for services”—Need of contractual obligation of landlord—Breach of contract—Jurisdiction of tribunal—Furnished Houses (Rent Control) Act, 1946 (c. 34), ss. 2 (1), 12 (1).

In the absence of any contractual obligation on the landlord to provide furniture or services the rent of premises cannot be said to include “payment for the use of furniture or for services” within s. 2 (1) of the Furnished Houses (Rent Control) Act, 1946, and, consequently, a rent tribunal has no jurisdiction to hear and determine a case referred to it by the lessee of such premises.

Per cur.: where there is a provision for the supply of furniture or services, or both, the tribunal must see what the lease provides and consider whether the rent reserved is a fair rent for the use of the premises with those services, but the Act gives the tribunal no power to decide questions of breach of contract or to award compensation to tenants for breaches of contract by way of reduction of rent. Where, therefore, a tribunal has jurisdiction to hear a case it is not entitled to reduce the rent merely because the landlord is not providing that which he has contracted to provide.—*R. v. R. 301; 91 Sol. Jo. 265; 45 L. G. R. 363, D. C. [1996]

Landlord and tenant—Rent control—Furnished house—Reduction of rent—Reduction below amount of standard rent—Furnished Houses (Rent Control) Act, 1946 (c. 34), s. 7.

There is no jurisdiction in a rent tribunal set up under the Furnished Houses (Rent Control) Act, 1946, to reduce the rent of any premises below the standard rent for those premises. The tribunal is, in effect, forbidden to do so by s. 7 of the Act which preserves, inter alia, the standard rent and all rights in respect of it, whether of the landlord or the tenant.

The provision by a landlord of services cannot, in the absence of contractual obligation to supply such services, operate to bring a letting within the jurisdiction of a rent tribunal under the Furnished Houses (Rent Control) Act, 1946.

Public health—Housing—Accommodation of working classes—Recovery of possession—Rent exceeding £20—Summary procedure before justices—Suspension of warrant—Small Tenements Recovery Act, 1838 (c. 74), s. 1—Housing Act, 1936 (c. 51), ss. 83 (1), 156 (1) (a), (2).

The letting of premises to a member of the working classes is within the powers of management vested in a local authority by s. 83 (1) of the Housing Act, 1936, even although the eviction from the premises of another member of the working classes is involved (R. v. Snell, Ex parte Marylebone Borough Council, [1942] 1 All E. R. 612, followed, but criticised). Therefore, in such a case, a local authority may, by virtue of s. 156 (1) (a) and s. 156 (2) of the Act, recover possession under the Small Tenements Recovery Act, 1838, whatever may be the rent of the premises, and the Rent Restrictions Acts are excluded. Accordingly, a warrant made by a magistrate for the possession of such premises cannot be suspended under the Increase of Rent and Mortgage Interest Restrictions Act, 1920, s. 5 (4), for such time as the magistrate directs, but only for a maximum of thirty days under the Small Tenements Recovery Act, 1838, s. 1.—LONDON COUNTY COUNCIL v. SHELLEY, HARCOURT v. LONDON COUNTY COUNCIL, [1947] 2 All E. R. 320; [1947] L. J. R. 1270; 111 J. P. 487; 63 T. L. R. 475; 91 Sol. Jo. 517; affirmed, [1947] 2 All E. R. 720, C. A. [998]

Public health—Housing—Compulsory purchase order—Confirmation—Duties of Minister—Disclosure of information acquired before order made—"Lis"—"Quasi-judicial"—"Duty to act fairly"—Housing Act, 1936 (c. 51), Sched. I (4), (5).

Owners of land comprised in a compulsory purchase order made by a local authority under s. 74 of the Housing Act, 1936, and confirmed by the Minister of Health under Sched. I, para. (4), to the Act, applied to the court to quash the order on the grounds that the Minister, in considering objections to it, was bound to act in a quasi-judicial manner and that he had failed in that duty in that he had not made available to the objectors the contents (alleged to be relevant to the consideration of the objections) of certain letters written to the Minister by the local authority before the order was made:—

Held: the confirmation of the order was essentially an administrative act, and the obligation of the Minister did not go beyond making available to both sides matter which had come into existence for the purpose of the quasi-lis, the inception of which was marked and constituted by the making of the objections. There was, therefore, no obligation on the Minister to make available material which came into his possession before that date.

Public health—Housing—Compulsory purchase order—Houses for "working classes"—Intended allocation outside those classes—Additional amenities serving beneficial purpose to residents in neighbouring areas—Housing Act, 1936 (c. 51), ss. 73, 80.

S. 73 of the Housing Act, 1936, gives a local authority power "to acquire any land . . . as a site for the erection of houses for the working classes," and s. 80 provides that, subject to the consent of the Minister of Health, the land may be used also for shops, recreation grounds and other buildings which "will serve a beneficial purpose in connection with the requirements of the persons for whom the housing accommodation is provided."

In 1938, a firm of builders acquired a plot of land with the idea of developing it for housing and they, or their predecessors, contributed to the cost of a main sewer that was put in by the local authority to drain part of that plot and other land. They prepared a lay-out plan and obtained a licence to develop the land. Preparatory to building, they put in systems of sewers and roads, and, in addition, in agreement with the local authority, they made two of the roads wider than they otherwise would be, so as to serve omnibus routes, and they put in a larger storm sewer than they otherwise would have done, so as to take away water from other areas. The outbreak of war, by which time they had built twenty-two houses, put a stop to further work, but the project and plan were kept afoot and in 1943 the licence to develop was renewed. After the war the local authority made a compulsory purchase order in respect of the land, in order to use it as a site for the erection of houses of a type suitable for the working classes, but then to allocate the houses to various applicants irrespective of actual occupation, according to a priority list, and to put up nurseries, a health centre and other amenities which would be available, not only to the residents on that particular area, but also to residents in neighbouring areas. The Minister of Health confirmed the order:—

Held: on a true interpretation of s. 73 of the Act, the local authority had power to acquire any land as a site for the erection of houses "of a type suitable for the occupation of the working classes," and there was no limitation as to the individuals who were eventually to occupy the houses; on a true interpretation of s. 80, the fact that the additional amenities would also serve a beneficial purpose for other persons did not make it any the less a beneficial purpose for the persons on the housing estate; and, consequently, the local authority had not exceeded their powers under the Act.

Per cur.: the use in statutes of the expression "working classes" is inappropriate to modern social conditions.—GREEN & SONS v. MINISTER OF HEALTH, [1947] 2 All E. R. 469; 111 J. P. 530. [1000]

S. R. & O., 1947, No. 429

March 12, 1947

In pursuance of the power conferred upon me by subsection (1) of section 90 of the Children and Young Persons Act, 1933, I, the Right Honourable

James Chuter Ede, one of His Majesty's Principal Secretaries of State, hereby make the following Regulations :—

1. The contributions to be made by the local authority named in an approved school order to the expenses of the managers of an approved school throughout the time during which the person to whom the order relates is under the care of the said managers and not out on licence or under supervision shall be at the rate of thirty-five shillings a week :

Provided that this Regulation shall not apply to a local authority named in an approved school order where the managers having under their care the person to whom the order relates are that local authority or a joint committee upon which that local authority is represented. [1001]

2. The Interpretation Act, 1889, shall apply to the interpretation of these Regulations as it applies to the interpretation of an Act of Parliament. [1002]

3.—(1) These Regulations may be cited as the Children and Young Persons (Contributions by Local Authorities) Regulations, 1947.

(2) These Regulations shall come into force on the first day of April, 1947.

(3) The Children and Young Persons (Contributions by Local Authorities) Regulations, 1946, are hereby revoked. [1003]

CASES

Licensing—General annual licensing meeting—Application for new licence—Bench equally divided—Adjournment of meeting—Application granted at adjourned meeting—Confirming authority—Jurisdiction to confirm licence.

On March 1, 1946, the appellant applied to the adjourned general annual licensing meeting of the licensing justices for the petty sessional division of Keynsham for a new licence. The bench consisted of six justices, and after they had conferred the chairman said : “ The bench being equally divided on this application, no order is made, and the case will be reheard ‘ by a reconstituted bench.’ ” The adjourned general licensing meeting is further adjourned until March 22, 1946.” On March 22 the justices held a further adjourned meeting, when eleven justices sat and granted the application. When the matter came before the confirming authority, objection was taken on behalf of certain local residents that the matter was not properly before the authority, it being contended that what happened on March 1, when the bench was equally divided, amounted to a decision, and that, therefore, the licence had been refused. The confirming authority upheld the objection, deciding that the application for confirmation of the licence was not properly before them, and refused to adjudicate on the matter. The appellant appealed :—

Held : that, although the justices might have refused the application on the ground that the bench was equally divided, they did not do so, but did what they were equally entitled to, namely, adjourn the application. The application having been granted at the adjourned hearing, the matter was properly before the confirming authority, and the case must be remitted to them with a direction to adjudicate on it.—FUSSELL v. SOMERSET LICENSING COMMITTEE JJ., [1947] K. B. 276; [1947] 1 All E. Intoxicating liquors—Licensing—Ordinary removal of licence—Removal from county licensing division to borough within same county—Jurisdiction of borough justices to hear the application—Licensing (Consolidation) Act, 1910 (c. 24), s. 24 (3).

The licensee of premises situated at N., in the county of W., applied to the justices for the borough of L., which was within the same county, for an order authorising the ordinary removal of his licence to premises within that borough. N. was in a county licensing district and L. was a borough having a separate commission of the peace, and was, accordingly, a licensing district within the Licensing (Consolidation) Act, 1910, s. 2 :—

Held: s. 24 (3) of the Act gave justices power to remove a licence from premises situated in one licensing district to premises in another licensing district provided that both districts were within the same county, and, therefore, the justices in the present case had power to authorise the removal of the licence.—*R. v. ## STATUTES

TOWN AND COUNTRY PLANNING ACT, 1947

(10 &amp; 11 Geo. 6, c. 51)

PRELIMINARY NOTE

Part V of the Town and Country Planning Act, 1947, with which this Note is concerned, is not restricted to the subject of planning proper, but amends the general law as to compensation on the compulsory acquisition of land by public authorities.

This Part of the Act, which extends only to England and Wales (s. 120 (3), (4)), came into operation on August 6, 1947, the date on which the Act received the Royal Assent (s. 120 (2), proviso (c)). The remainder of the Act, with the small exceptions specified in s. 120 (2), provisos (a), (b) and (c), is not to come into operation until the "appointed day," that is, July 1, 1948, the day appointed by the Minister of Town and Country Planning in exercise of his powers under s. 119 of the Act (Town and Country Planning Act, 1947 (Appointed Day) Order, 1948, S.I. 1948 No. 213, dated February 9, 1948).

The provisions of Part V are seen most clearly in the context of Part II of the Town and Country Planning Act, 1944 (37 Halsbury's Statutes 476 et seq.), which provided in substance that, where notice to treat was served on or after November 17, 1944, the compensation payable, inter alia, in respect of the compulsory purchase of land should be ascertained by reference to prices current at March 31, 1939. In addition, owner-occupiers of buildings were to be entitled to a reasonable supplement which, in the case of freeholders, was to be 30 per cent. of that value; this supplement, commonly known as "the owner-occupier supplement," was increased to 60 per cent. by the Acquisition of Land (Increase of Supplement) Order, 1946, S. R. & O., 1946, No. 1163 (39 Halsbury's Statutes 692). Special provision was made by Part II of the 1944 Act as to agricultural property, and a supplement was to be payable where either (a) new buildings had been erected, or (b) existing buildings had been improved, or (c) improvements had been made to agricultural land after March 31, 1939, but before service of the notice to treat, the amount of the supplement being based upon prices current at March 31, 1939.

Further provisions of the said Part II included details as to the assessment of compensation on the compulsory purchase of land valued under the War Damage Act, 1943 (36 Halsbury's Statutes 334). Power to pay interest at 4 per cent., or such other rate as might be prescribed by Treasury regulations, was substituted for the provision of the Lands Clauses Consolidation Act, 1845, s. 85 (2 Halsbury's Statutes 1142) requiring payment at 5 per cent. The rate of interest was reduced from 4 to 3½ per cent. as from May 1, 1947, by the Acquisition of Land (Rate of Interest on Entry) Regulations, 1947 (S. R. & O., 1947, No. 791), post.

As will be seen from the title TOWN AND COUNTRY PLANNING, post, the remainder of the present Act virtually takes away from owners the right to develop their land except with permission and on payment of such development charge as may be determined by the Central Land Board. Consequently, the whole of the land in England and Wales now falls to be valued, with minor reservations, on the basis of its present use.

In this context, apart from any intrinsic merit or demerit of Part II of the 1944 Act, the provisions of that Part required modification and Part V of the present Act lays down new rules to bring the position as to compensation on compulsory purchase into line with the rest of the statute. Accordingly, Part II of the 1944 Act is repealed as from the passing of the present Act (ss. 113, 120 and Sched. IX, Part I; see title TOWN AND COUNTRY PLANNING, post).

S. 50 (1) of the present Act provides that the provisions of the 1944 Act requiring compensation to be ascertained by reference to 1939 prices ("the 1939 standard") are not to apply to cases of compulsory acquisition where notice to treat was served on or after August 6, 1947, the date of passing of the Act.

Next, s. 50 (2), by applying retrospectively the provisions of Sched. VII to the present Act, is designed to eliminate an overlap between the "owner-occupier supplement" mentioned above and the increase in converted value payments under the War Damage Act, 1943 (36 Halsbury's Statutes 334). In addition to cases of compulsory acquisition, the provisions of Sched. VII are also applied to cases of acquisition by agreement by authorities having power to acquire compulsorily.

Having cleared away these preliminaries, the legislature then proceeds to apply the logical corollary to the provisions of the Act restricting the future use of land by providing that, where land has been acquired compulsorily by a government department or local or public authority in pursuance of a notice to treat served on or after the appointed day, the value of the land for purposes of compensation is to be ascertained on the assumption that planning permission would be granted for the minor classes of development specified in Sched. III to the Act, but would not be granted for any other type of development (s. 51 (2)). This assumption is to be made even in cases where permission for other development has been granted before service of the notice to treat (s. 51 (4)). In other words, no compensation is to be payable for development rights which an owner no longer possesses, and values will be ascertained on an "existing use" basis.

As a subsidiary to the preceding section, s. 52 seeks to prevent owners of interests in land from obtaining special values through being able to give immediate or early vacant possession in present abnormal circumstances, their interests being valued as if there were derived therefrom leases of the land for terms beginning on the date of the notice to treat and ending on January 1, 1954 (s. 52 (1), (2)). There is, however, a proviso to the latter subsection to the effect that (a) where the interest is subject to an actual lease, the "notional term" is to be deemed to begin on the first day after service of the notice to treat on which the owner of the interest would be entitled to vacant possession of the land; and (b) where the interest is a leasehold interest due to expire before January 1, 1954, the "notional term" is to be deemed to end on the day before the expiry of the lease.

Again subject to the general principle laid down, special provision is made for two cases where difficulty might otherwise arise in applying that principle: these are the cases of war-damaged land and requisitioned land. Where war-damaged land is the subject of a converted value payment, s. 53 (1) directs that the value of the land for present purposes is to be the value it would have had if the damage had been made good before the date of the notice to treat, the right to any value payment under the War Damage Act, 1943 (36 Halsbury's Statutes 334) vesting in the authority acquiring the land.

In the case of requisitioned land, on the other hand, compensation is, by s. 54, to be assessed as if the land were not requisitioned and, in addition, as if the interest in question carried the right to vacant possession (or the right to obtain such possession before January 1, 1954) if it would have carried that right had the land not been requisitioned. The same section makes detailed provision for other special cases of requisitioned land being acquired compulsorily.

The Act next proceeds to provide for what may be termed "interim cases"—cases where notice to treat is served after the passing of the Act, but before the appointed day. In such circumstances the general principles of the foregoing sections are to apply, values being ascertained on an "existing use" basis by reference to prices current immediately before the Act, as a Bill, was introduced in Parliament. In addition, special rules are laid down by s. 56 to meet cases where notice to treat is served on or after August 6, 1947, for the acquisition of war-damaged land which, but for the war damage, would be subject to r. 5 of the Acquisition of Land (Assessment of Compensation) Act, 1919, s. 2 (2 Halsbury's Statutes 1178).

The net result of the provisions as to compensation where land is acquired compulsorily (other than the provisions to meet special cases) can be seen from the following table:—

|---|--|
| (a) Notice to treat served before the passing of the Act; acquisition completed between the passing of the Act and the appointed day, July 1, 1948: | Old basis. No payment to vendor for depreciation in the value of the land under Part VI of the Act (s. 91 (1); see title TOWN AND COUNTRY PLANNING, post ). |
| (b) Notice to treat served before the passing of the Act; acquisition completed after the appointed day:  | The same.  |

(c) Notice to treat served between the passing of the Act and the appointed day; acquisition completed between the passing of the Act and the appointed day:

(d) Notice to treat served between the passing of the Act and the appointed day; acquisition completed after the appointed day:

(e) Notice to treat served after the appointed day:

New basis, by reference to prices current immediately before January 7, 1947. The right to receive payment (if any) for depreciation in the value of the land under Part VI of the Act vests in the vendor (see ss. 50 (1) and 55; and, under title TOWN AND COUNTRY PLANNING, post, ss. 91 and 64).

The same.

New basis, by reference to prices current at the date of the notice to treat; the right to receive payment (if any) for depreciation in the value of the land under Part VI of the Act vests in the vendor (see ss. 50 (1) and 51; and, under title TOWN AND COUNTRY PLANNING, post, s. 64).

The provisions of the Acquisition of Land (Assessment of Compensation) Act, 1919 (2 Halsbury's Statutes 1176), are to apply to acquisitions by the Central Land Board and any statutory undertakers (s. 57).

Finally, s. 57 (2) and (3), relate to the payment of interest: the rate payable between entry and the actual payment on completion is to remain the subject of Treasury regulation, the Acquisition of Land (Rate of Interest on Entry) Regulations, 1947 (S. R. & O., 1947, No. 791), post, being continued in force. The rate of interest prescribed by these regulations as from May 1, 1947 ( $3\frac{1}{2}$  per cent.) therefore continues to apply.

For the convenience of readers, the relevant parts of the Interpretation Section (s. 119) and the whole of s. 120, giving the short title, commencement and extent of the Act, are included in this title along with the relevant Scheds. III and VII.

It may be useful to note that on June 23, 1947, some weeks before the Bill became law, the Ministry of Health issued Circular 108/47 detailing the effect of the provisions here discussed, as they appeared in the Bill, on the transactions of local and public authorities. Again, on October 23, 1947, the Ministry of Town and Country Planning issued cyclostyled "Notes for the guidance of buyers and sellers of land for development purposes in the period between the passing of the Act and the Appointed Day" (P.R. 1). ## PART V

AMENDMENTS OF LAW RELATING TO COMPENSATION ON COMPULSORY ACQUISITION OF LAND

50. Abolition of the 1939 standard for compensation on compulsory acquisition.—(1) Section fifty-seven of the Act of 1944 (which provides for the assessment by reference to the prices current in 1939 of the value of interests in land which are compulsorily acquired) shall not apply to compensation in respect of a compulsory acquisition of land in pursuance of a notice to treat served after the passing of this Act. [1009]

(2) The provisions of the Seventh Schedule to this Act shall have effect and shall be deemed always to have had effect in relation to land compulsorily acquired in pursuance of a notice to treat served after the commencement of the Act of 1944 and before the passing of this Act, and in relation to land acquired by agreement during that period by an authority authorised to acquire it compulsorily. [1010]

Effect of section.—Sub-s. (1) of this section abolishes the 1939 standard for compensation on compulsory acquisition where notice to treat is served after the passing of the present Act. Sched. IX, Part I, repeals ss. 57–62 of the Town and Country Planning Act, 1944 (37 Halsbury's Statutes 476 et seq.), as from the passing of the present Act. Note the special provisions in s. 55, post, where notice to treat is served after the passing of the present Act and before the appointed day, July 1, 1948 (see S.I. 1948 No. 213).

The abolition of the 1939 standard will not, however, result in the owner obtaining the full or ordinary market value of his land: the next two sections enact provisions which will in most cases considerably reduce this value.

Sub-s. (2), ante, brings into operation the provisions of Sched. VII, post, where notice to treat has been served or land has been acquired by agreement after the commencement of the 1944 Act and before the passing of the present Act.

Act of 1944, s. 57.—The Town and Country Planning Act, 1944, s. 57; 37 Halsbury's Statutes 476.

Notice to treat.—See s. 18 of the Lands Clauses Consolidation Act, 1845 (2 Halsbury's Statutes 1120), incorporated in the Acquisition of Land (Authorisation Procedure) Act, 1946 (39 Halsbury's Statutes 52).

Commencement of the Act of 1944.—November 17, 1944.

Definition.—For the definition of "land," see s. 119 (1), post. Provisions as to notices to treat and compensation are contained in sub-ss. (3) and (4) respectively of the same section, post.

51. Compensation for compulsory acquisition after appointed day.—

(1) Any compensation payable in respect of the compulsory acquisition of an interest in land by a government department or a local or public authority within the meaning of the Acquisition of Land (Assessment of Compensation) Act, 1919, in pursuance of a notice to treat served on or after the appointed day (not being compensation which falls to be assessed in accordance with Rule (5) of the rules set out in section two of that Act) shall be assessed in accordance with the provisions of that Act as modified by the provisions of this and the three next following sections. [1011]

(2) The value of any such interest shall be ascertained on the assumption that planning permission would be granted under Part III of this Act for development of any class specified in the Third Schedule to this Act; but would not be so granted for any other development :

Provided that

(a) where at any time before the date of the notice to treat permission for development of the land of any class specified in Part II of the said Third Schedule has been refused or granted subject to conditions, or, having been granted, has been revoked or modified by the imposition of conditions, and compensation has become payable in respect of the refusal, revocation, or conditions, as the case may be, under section twenty of this Act, it shall be assumed for the purposes of the ascertainment of the value of the interest in question that such permission would not be granted, or, as the case may be, would not be granted otherwise than subject to those conditions ;

(b) where at any time before the said date an order has been made under section twenty-six of this Act requiring the removal of any building or the discontinuance of any use, and compensation has become payable in respect of that order under section twenty-seven of this Act, it shall be assumed for the purposes aforesaid that planning permission would not be granted for the rebuilding of that building or the resumption of that use. [1012]

(3) Without prejudice to any rule of law affecting the assessment of compensation in respect of the compulsory acquisition of land in pursuance of any enactment, no account shall be taken, in calculating the value of an interest in land designated by a development plan under this Act as subject to compulsory acquisition, of any depreciation in the value of that interest which is attributable to the designation. [1013]

(4) Where, at any time before the date of the notice to treat, planning permission has been granted under Part III of this Act for any development of the land, other than development of any class specified in the Third Schedule to this Act, or is deemed to have been so granted, then except where either—

(a) any sum has been paid under Part VII of this Act by way of development charge in respect of that development ; or

(b) no such charge is payable in respect of that development by virtue of the provisions of Part VIII of this Act ;

the value of the interest to which the notice to treat relates shall be calculated as if that permission had not been granted. [1014]

(5) Where the interest is acquired in pursuance of a purchase notice served under section nineteen of this Act, and it is certified by the Minister, on confirming the notice, that any building comprised in the land has become incapable of reasonably beneficial use, then if the purchase notice was served in consequence of the refusal of permission for development which would have involved the demolition of the whole or substantially the whole of the building, or in consequence of the revocation or modification of such permission, no account shall be taken for the purposes of this section of the value of the building except in so far as the value of any materials therein would exceed the cost of demolition. [1015]

(6) Where the interest is acquired in pursuance of a purchase notice served under the said section nineteen and directions have been given under paragraph (b) of subsection (2) of that section requiring that planning permission shall be granted for any development of other land to which the purchase notice relates, no account shall be taken for the purposes of this section of any increase or diminution in the value of the said interest which is attributable to the direction or to any permission granted in pursuance thereof. [1016]

Effect of section.—As a result of the provisions of the Act, the right to carry out development within the meaning of the Act is lost. The right to carry out certain specified development may be regained by applying for and obtaining permission (either conditional or unconditional) under Part III of the Act and paying a development charge under Part VII (see title TOWN AND COUNTRY PLANNING, post). The legislature has recognised, however, that there is certain development which normally it would be unreasonable not to allow and on which it would be unreasonable to levy a development charge: this type of development is described in Sched. III, post.

By sub-s. (2) of this section it is enacted that in assessing compensation it shall be assumed that permission would be granted under Part III of the Act for any class of development mentioned in Sched. III, but not for any other development. Thus, the basis of compensation in a normal case will be equivalent to the existing use value plus any further value due to the tolerance permitted by Sched. III. But see the provision for a "reduction factor" made by the next section. The provisos deal with special cases which form an exception to this general rule. The necessity for making these exceptions will be obvious.

The fact that land is designated in a development plan for compulsory acquisition would probably make it difficult to sell the land and so depreciate its ordinary market value calculated on the assumption mentioned in sub-s. (2), ante. Sub-s. (3), ante, accordingly provides that no account is to be taken of this depreciation.

The purport of sub-s. (4), ante, will be clear once the general principle stated in the first paragraph of this note has been grasped. If the right to develop in a certain way has been obtained, nothing is to be paid in respect of this right, unless the development charge has been paid. But there may be cases in which permission is granted and no charge is payable by virtue of the provisions of Part VII of the Act (see title TOWN AND COUNTRY PLANNING, post); in such event if the permission enhances the value of the land, then the owner gets the benefit of the enhanced value.

Acquisition of Land (Assessment of Compensation) Act, 1919.—2 Halsbury's Statutes 1176.

Appointed day.—July 1, 1948; see the Preliminary Note, ante.

Part III of this Act.—See title TOWN AND COUNTRY PLANNING, post. This Part of the Act, comprising ss. 12-36 (inclusive), deals with the control of development and, in particular, the obligation to obtain permission before land is developed.

Ss. 26 and 27 of this Act.—See title TOWN AND COUNTRY PLANNING, post. S. 26 authorises local planning authorities, in the interests of proper planning, to order the discontinuance of particular uses of land or the imposition of conditions on their continuance or the alteration or removal of buildings or works. S. 27 provides, inter alia, for payment of compensation in such cases.

Part VII of this Act.—See title TOWN AND COUNTRY PLANNING, post. This Part of the Act, comprising ss. 69-74 (inclusive), deals with the imposition of development charges in respect of certain development.

Part VIII of this Act.—See title TOWN AND COUNTRY PLANNING, post. This Part of the Act, comprising ss. 75-92 (inclusive), applies the general principles of the Act to a number of miscellaneous circumstances comprising special cases.

S. 19 of this Act.—See title TOWN AND COUNTRY PLANNING, post. This section provides machinery whereby owners who have been refused permission to develop their land may in stated circumstances serve notice on the local county borough council or county district council requiring the council to purchase their interests in the land.

Sub-s. (2) (b) of that section allows the Minister, instead of confirming a purchase notice, to direct that permission for other development shall, in certain cases, be granted in the event of application being made.

The Minister.—The Minister of Town and Country Planning.

Definitions.—As to "development plan," see ss. 5 and 119 (1); as to "development," see ss. 12 and 119 (1); and as to "purchase notice," see ss. 19 and 119 (1). For definitions of "land," "government department," "local authority," "appointed day," "building," "use" and "enactment," see s. 119 (1), post. Provisions as to the service of notices to treat are contained in s. 119 (3), post.

52. Temporary provisions for eliminating special value attributable to vacant possession.—(1) Where the notice to treat giving rise to the claim for compensation is served at any time before the first day of January, nineteen hundred and fifty-four, and the interest in land in respect of which the compensation is payable carries the right to vacant possession of the land or any part thereof, or the right to obtain such possession at any time before that date, then unless the land is agricultural property within the meaning of this section, the value of that interest shall be calculated as if there were derived therefrom a lease of the land, or of that part thereof, as the case may be, for the term, subject to the conditions and at the rent specified in this section. [1017]

(2) The term of any such lease as aforesaid shall be deemed to be a term beginning on the date of the notice to treat and ending on the first day of January, nineteen hundred and fifty-four :

Provided that—

- (a) where the interest in question is subject to an actual lease on the date of the service of the notice to treat, the said term shall be deemed to begin on the first date thereafter on which the owner of the said interest would be lawfully entitled to obtain vacant possession of the land ; and
- (b) where the interest in question is a leasehold interest which is limited to expire at any time before the first day of January, nineteen hundred and fifty-four, the said term shall be deemed to end on the day before the expiration of that interest. [1018]

(3) The conditions of any such lease as aforesaid shall be deemed to be conditions by virtue of which the tenant would be liable to pay all usual tenant's rates and taxes and to bear the cost of repairs and insurance and other expenses, if any, necessary to maintain the land in the state in which it was on the date of the notice to treat ; and the rent payable thereunder shall be deemed to be a sum equal to five per cent. of the capital value of the premises, or a sum equal to the rent which might reasonably be expected to be payable by a tenant in occupation of the premises, under a lease for the term and subject to the conditions aforesaid, whichever is the less. [1019]

(4) In this section the expression "agricultural property" means agricultural land or agricultural buildings as defined by the Rating and Valuation (Apportionment) Act, 1928, and includes a house used as a dwellinghouse by a person who is primarily engaged in carrying out or directing agricultural operations on land in the neighbourhood of the house ; and for the purposes of this section the capital value of any premises shall be deemed to be the value of a freehold interest therein (free from incumbrances but subject to any easement or other restriction affecting the land on the date of the notice to treat) calculated in accordance with the provisions of any enactment other than this section which would apply to the assessment of compensation on a compulsory acquisition thereof by a government department or a local or public authority within the meaning of the Acquisition of Land (Assessment of Compensation) Act, 1919. [1020]

(5) For the purposes of this section, an interest in land shall not be deemed to carry the right to obtain vacant possession of the land or any part thereof if at the time of the service of the notice to treat the land or that part thereof consists of a dwellinghouse which is subject to the Rent and Mortgage Interest Restrictions Acts, 1920 to 1939, or any future enactment amending or extending those Acts, and any person other than the person entitled to that interest is for the time being in possession thereof either by virtue of a tenancy or by virtue of the provisions of the said Acts. [1021]

(6) Compensation for disturbance in respect of an interest in land the value of which is calculated in accordance with the provisions of this section shall not be assessed at any greater or less amount than that at which it would have been assessed apart from the provisions of this section. [1022]

Effect of section.—The object of this provision is to prevent the owner of an interest in land from obtaining the high values due to the prevailing shortage of accommodation. The section provides that if the interest to be acquired carries the right to immediate or early vacant possession, then, except in the case of (a) agricultural property, and (b) property let on terms governed by the Rent Restrictions Acts, it will be valued as if it were subject to a lease terminating on January 1, 1954. If there is an active lease expiring before that date the notional lease will be held to cover the subsequent period to that date.

Where the Rent Restrictions Acts apply, there is no need for any further reduction factor; these Acts themselves depreciate the value of the property by restricting the right to vacant possession.

Notice to treat.—See note to s. 50, ante.

Notice to treat is served.—This includes constructive service (see s. 119 (3), post).

Compensation.—Note that, by s. 119 (4), post, compensation includes loss or damage through severance or disturbance.

Agricultural land and agricultural buildings.—These terms are defined by s. 2 (2) of the Rating and Valuation (Apportionment) Act, 1928 (14 Halsbury's Statutes 714 et seq.), as follows:—

“ ‘Agricultural land’ means any land used as arable meadow or pasture ground only, land used for a plantation or a wood or for the growth of saleable underwood, land exceeding one quarter of an acre used for the purpose of poultry farming, cottage gardens exceeding one quarter of an acre, market gardens, nursery grounds, orchards or allotments, including allotment gardens within the meaning of the Allotments Act, 1922, but does not include land occupied together with a house as a park, gardens (other than as aforesaid) pleasure grounds, or land kept or preserved mainly or exclusively for purposes of sport or recreation, or land owned as a race-course; and for the purpose of this definition the expression ‘cottage garden’ means a garden attached to a house occupied as a dwelling by a person of the labouring classes.”

“ ‘Agricultural buildings’ means buildings (other than dwelling houses) occupied together with agricultural land or being or forming part of a market garden, and in either case used solely in connection with agricultural operations thereon.”

The Allotments Act, 1922, s. 22 (1) (1 Halsbury's Statutes 315), defines an allotment garden and “an allotment not exceeding forty poles in extent which is wholly or mainly cultivated by the occupier for the production of vegetable or fruit crops for consumption by himself or his family.”

Glass-houses in or on a market garden have been held to be agricultural buildings, not land (Smith v. Richmond, [1899] A. C. 448). See, further, Purser v. Worthing Local Board of Health (1887), 18 Q. B. D. 818.

Acquisition of Land (Assessment of Compensation) Act, 1919.—2 Halsbury's Statutes 1176.

Rent and Mortgage Interest Restrictions Acts, 1920 to 1939.—These are the Increase of Rent and Mortgage Interest (Restrictions) Act, 1920 (10 Halsbury's Statutes 332); the Rent Restrictions (Notices of Increase) Act, 1923 (10 Halsbury's Statutes 361); the Rent and Mortgage Interest Restrictions Act, 1923 (10 Halsbury's Statutes 365); the Prevention of Eviction Act, 1924 (10 Halsbury's Statutes 373); the Rent and Mortgage Interest (Restrictions Continuation) Act, 1925 (10 Halsbury's Statutes 374); the Rent and Mortgage Interest Restrictions (Amendment) Act, 1933 (26 Halsbury's Statutes 266); the Increase of Rent and Mortgage Interest (Restrictions) Act, 1938 (31 Halsbury's Statutes 387); and the Rent and Mortgage Interest Restrictions Act, 1939 (32 Halsbury's Statutes 971).

Definitions.—For definitions of “land,” “lease,” “agricultural” (as in “agricultural operations”), “enactment,” “government department” and “local authority,” see s. 119 (1), post.

53. Compensation for compulsory acquisition of land attracting converted value payments.—(1) Where an interest in land the value of which is to be ascertained in accordance with the provisions of section fifty-one of this Act is an interest in a hereditament or part of a hereditament which has sustained war damage, and any of that damage has not been made good at the date of the notice to treat, then if the appropriate payment under the War Damage Act, 1943, would, apart from the compulsory purchase or apart from any direction given by the Treasury under paragraph (b) of subsection (2) of section twenty of that Act, be a payment of cost of works—

(a) the value of the interest for the purposes of the compensation payable in respect of the compulsory purchase shall, subject to the provisions of this section, be taken to be the value which it would have if the whole of the damage had been made good before the date of the notice to treat; and

- (b) the right to receive any value payment or share of a value payment which, under the War Damage Act, 1943, is payable in respect of the interest which is compulsorily acquired (including any interest payable thereon) shall, notwithstanding anything in that Act, vest in the person by whom the interest is so acquired. [1023]

(2) Where, under subsection (1) of this section, the value of any interest in land comprised in a hereditament is required to be taken to be the value which that interest would have if war damage sustained by that hereditament had been made good before the date of the notice to treat, and any works, other than works for making good the war damage, have been carried out on the land since the occurrence of the war damage, then if the making good of the war damage would involve the removal of those works, the value of the said interest shall be taken to be—

- (a) the value which it would have if the war damage had been made good and those works had been removed ; or
 (b) the value which it would have if the war damage had not been made good so far as the making good would have involved the removal of those works, whichever is the higher. [1024]

(3) Where an interest in land is acquired by agreement in pursuance of a contract made after the appointed day by a person authorised by virtue of any enactment to acquire it compulsorily, being an interest in a hereditament or part of a hereditament which has sustained war damage any of which has not been made good before the date of the contract, then if the appropriate payment under the War Damage Act, 1943, would, apart from the acquisition or apart from any direction given by the Treasury under paragraph (b) of subsection (2) of section twenty of that Act be a payment of cost of works, the right to receive any value payment or share of the value payment which, under that Act, is payable in respect of the interest so acquired (including any interest payable thereon) shall, notwithstanding anything in that Act, vest in the person by whom the interest is acquired as aforesaid. [1025]

(4) Where, by virtue of paragraph (b) of subsection (1) of this section or of the last foregoing subsection, the right to receive a value payment or share of a value payment becomes vested in the person by whom an interest in land is acquired, whether compulsorily or by agreement, the amount of that payment or share (including any interest thereon) shall not exceed the sum paid by that person by way of compensation or consideration in respect of the interest so acquired. [1026]

(5) Subsection (4) of section sixty-nine of the War Damage Act, 1943 (which makes special provision with respect to payments under that Act in respect of war damage sustained by hereditaments held for charitable purposes) shall not apply to any payment which, by virtue of this section, vests in the person by whom an interest in land is acquired. [1027]

Effect of section.—This section applies where (a) the value of an interest in land falls to be ascertained in accordance with s. 51, ante ; and (b) it is a hereditament which has sustained war damage ; and (c) any of that damage has not been made good at the date of the notice to treat ; and (d) the appropriate payment under the War Damage Act, 1943 (36 Halsbury's Statutes 334), would apart from the compulsory purchase or any direction given by the Treasury under s. 20 (2) (b) of the War Damage Act, 1943, be a cost of works payment.

If the above conditions are satisfied then the compensation for compulsory purchase will be assessed as though the damage had been made good before the date of the notice to treat. The converted value payment, plus the increase of 60 per cent. allowed by the War Damage (Increase of Value Payments) Order, 1947 (S. R. & O., 1947, No. 390 ; see title AIR-RAID PRECAUTIONS, ante), and interest from the date of the damage, will be diverted to the acquiring authority who will be able to recover it from the War Damage Commission.

In the case of property attracting an original value payment, the compensation will be based on the value of the property in its actual state at the date of the notice to treat.

Appointed day.—July 1, 1948 ; see the Preliminary Note, ante.
War Damage Act, 1943.—36 Halsbury's Statutes 334. This, the principal Act relating to war damage, was a consolidation of the War Damage Act, 1941 (34 Halsbury's Statutes 450), the War Damage (Amendment) Act, 1942 (35 Halsbury's Statutes 275), and the War Damage (Amendment) Act, 1943 (36 Halsbury's Statutes 331) which with minor exceptions were repealed on its passing.

The term "war damage" is defined by s. 2 of the War Damage Act, 1943, and this definition is applied to the present Act by s. 119 (1), post. "Hereditament" is defined by s. 5 of the Act of 1943.

As to cost of works and value payments, see ss. 7 et seq. of the same Act.

S. 20 (2) (b) of the Act of 1943 empowers the War Damage Commission to make value payments instead of cost of works payments where Treasury directions require that damage is not to be made good.

For s. 69 (4) of the Act of 1943, see 36 Halsbury's Statutes 395.

Definitions.—For definitions of "land," "appointed day" and "enactment," see s. 119 (1), post. Sub-s. (2) of the same section, post, contains provisions as to the service of notices to treat, and the following subsection deals with the construction of the term "compensation."

54. Compensation for compulsory acquisition of requisitioned land.—

(1) Except as otherwise provided by this section and Part VIII of the Requisitioned Land and War Works Act, 1945, the value of any interest in requisitioned land shall be assessed in accordance with the foregoing provisions of this Part of this Act as if the land were not requisitioned land; and in particular an interest in such land shall be deemed for the purposes of section fifty-two of this Act to carry the right to vacant possession of the land or the right to obtain such possession before the first day of January, nineteen hundred and fifty-four, if it would carry that right if the land were not requisitioned land. [1028]

(2) Where an interest in land the value of which falls to be ascertained in accordance with the foregoing provisions of this Part of this Act is acquired compulsorily in such circumstances that Part VIII of the Requisitioned Land and War Works Act, 1945, applies to the acquisition, then—

- (a) if the land is requisitioned land and the period of requisition had begun before the appointed day, subsection (2) of section fifty-one of this Act shall have effect as if for any reference to the appointed day in the Third Schedule to this Act there were substituted a reference to the beginning of the period of requisition;
- (b) where section fifty-three of this Act applies, the provisions of that section shall have effect in substitution for the provisions of section forty-one of the Requisitioned Land and War Works Act, 1945, so far as it relates to the war damage and to any work done for the making good of the war damage:

Provided that for the purposes of subsection (2) of the said section fifty-three no account shall be taken of any such works as are mentioned in paragraph (b) of subsection (1) of the said section forty-one. [1029]

(3) Where, by virtue of paragraph (a) of the last foregoing subsection, the Third Schedule to this Act applies in relation to the assessment of compensation for the compulsory acquisition of an interest in land being requisitioned land as if the beginning of the period of requisition were substituted therein for the appointed day, then if any buildings or works have been erected or constructed on the land during the period of requisition, and either—

- (a) a payment in respect of the value of those buildings or works has been made by any person interested in the land to a Minister under Part II of the Requisitioned Land and War Works Act, 1945, in pursuance of a report of the War Works Commission thereunder; or
- (b) any such payment or other consideration has been or is required to be made or given by any such person to a Minister in pursuance of an agreement between them; or
- (c) the buildings or works were otherwise erected or constructed wholly or partly at the expense of any such person, those buildings or works shall be treated for the purposes of the said Third Schedule as having been erected or constructed immediately before the beginning of the period of requisition. [1030]

Effect of section.—Requisitioned land is to be valued without regard to any diminution in value due to the fact that it is under requisition. For the basis of compensation for requisitioned property with "cost of works" war damage still unrepaired, see s. 53, ante.

Requisitioned Land and War Works Act, 1945, Part VIII.—38 Halsbury's Statutes 614 et seq. This Part deals with the compensation payable on the compulsory acquisition of land under the Act of 1945 and also on certain other purchases by public authorities. The compensation is to be assessed primarily by reference to the condition in which the land was before the erection of buildings or the doing of work by the authority concerned.

For s. 41 of the Act of 1945 (the principal section in Part VIII), see 38 Halsbury's Statutes 614, and for Part II of that Act, see 38 Halsbury's Statutes 586 et seq.

Requisitioned land.—Note that this term is not defined by reference to other legislation but, with "period of requisition," is independently defined by s. 89 (3) (see title TOWN AND COUNTRY PLANNING, post), for the purposes of that section, the definitions there given being applied to the Act as a whole by s. 119 (1), post.

Appointed day.—July 1, 1948; see the Preliminary Note, ante.

Works mentioned in s. 41 (1) (b) of the Act of 1945.—"Any work done at any time since the beginning of the war period on the land acquired or any contiguous or adjacent land by or by arrangement with a Minister or the acquiring authority or combination of authorities or in the exercise of emergency powers" (38 Halsbury's Statutes 614).

Definitions.—For definitions of "land," "appointed day," "war damage," "buildings or works," "erection" and "a Minister," see s. 119 (1), post.

55. Compensation for compulsory acquisition after passing of this Act and before appointed day.—(1) Subject to the provisions of this section, the foregoing provisions of this Part of this Act shall apply in relation to land compulsorily acquired in pursuance of a notice to treat served after the passing of this Act and before the appointed day as they apply in relation to land compulsorily acquired in pursuance of a notice to treat served after the appointed day; and subsections (3) and (4) of section fifty-three of this Act shall apply in relation to land acquired by agreement in pursuance of a contract made after the passing of this Act as they apply in relation to land acquired by agreement in pursuance of a contract made after the appointed day. [1031]

(2) The value of any interest in land which is compulsorily acquired as aforesaid shall be ascertained by reference to prices current immediately before the seventh day of January, nineteen hundred and forty-seven, and for that purpose the interest shall be deemed to have been subsisting immediately before that day subject to all incidents to which it is subject on the date of the notice to treat, and the land shall be deemed to have been immediately before the said seventh day of January in the same state as it is at the date of the notice to treat. [1032]

(3) Subsections (2) to (6) of section fifty-one of this Act shall not apply to any interest in land which is compulsorily acquired as aforesaid, but in calculating the value of any such interest it shall be assumed that the land was, at the time of the notice to treat, subject to a permanent restriction prohibiting the carrying out thereon of any development other than development of the classes specified in the Third Schedule to this Act; and for the purposes of this provision, section twelve of this Act and the said Third Schedule shall have effect as if for the references therein to the appointed day there were substituted references to the date of the notice to treat. [1033]

(4) Nothing in subsection (2) of this section shall be construed as affecting the operation of Part VIII of the Requisitioned Land and War Works Act, 1945, in any case to which that Part applies; and where any land the value of any interest in which falls to be ascertained in accordance with the provision of subsection (3) of this section is requisitioned land—

(a) the Third Schedule to this Act, as applied for the purposes of the said subsection (3), shall have effect as if for the references therein to the appointed day there were substituted references to the beginning of the period of requisition instead of references to the date of the notice to treat; and

(b) subsection (3) of section fifty-four of this Act shall apply as it applies in relation to the assessment of compensation in accordance with paragraph (a) of subsection (2) of that section. [1034]

Effect of section.—This section means, in substance, that where notice to treat is served after the passing of the Act and before the appointed day the basis of compensation is to be the same as where notice to treat is served after the appointed day, namely, the restricted market value. One of the modifications is that, instead of the land being valued by reference to prices current at the date of the notice to treat, the value is to be ascertained by reference to prices current at January 7, 1947. For another modification, see sub-s. (3), ante, under which the value is to be calculated as if the land were permanently restricted to development of the classes specified in Sched. III, post. For development value the owner must rely on s. 91 and Part VI of the Act (see title TOWN AND COUNTRY PLANNING, post).

Notice to treat.—See s. 18 of the Lands Clauses Consolidation Act, 1845 (2 Halsbury's Statutes 1120); as to the service of notices to treat, see s. 119 (3), post.

Appointed day.—July 1, 1948; see the Preliminary Note, ante.

S. 12 of this Act.—See title TOWN AND COUNTRY PLANNING, post. This section requires permission to be obtained in respect of most kinds of development carried out after the appointed day.

Requisitioned Land and War Works Act, 1945, Part VIII.—38 Halsbury's Statutes 614 et seq. See note to s. 54, ante.

Definitions.—As to "requisitioned land" and "period of requisition," see s. 89 (3), in title TOWN AND COUNTRY PLANNING, post; s. 119 (1), post; and note to s. 54, ante. For definitions of "land" and "appointed day," see s. 119 (1), post.

56. Special provisions as to war-damaged land where compensation assessed by reference to cost of equivalent reinstatement.—(1) Where an interest in land which is compulsorily acquired in pursuance of a notice to treat served after the passing of this Act is an interest in a hereditament or part of a hereditament which has sustained war damage, any of which has not been made good at the date of the notice to treat, then if—

- (a) the appropriate payment under the War Damage Act, 1943, would, apart from the compulsory acquisition or apart from any direction given by the Treasury under paragraph (b) of subsection (2) of section twenty of that Act, be a payment of cost of works; and
- (b) the land would, but for the occurrence of that war damage, be devoted to any such purpose as is mentioned in Rule (5) of the rules set out in section two of the Acquisition of Land (Assessment of Compensation) Act, 1919

the provisions of the said Rule (5) shall have effect for the purposes of the assessment of compensation payable in respect of the compulsory acquisition as if the land were so devoted as aforesaid. [1035]

(2) Where any such interest in land as is mentioned in the foregoing subsection is compulsorily acquired as therein mentioned, then if the conditions specified in paragraph (a) of that subsection are satisfied, and the compensation payable in respect of the acquisition falls (whether by virtue of that subsection or otherwise) to be assessed in accordance with the said Rule (5), the reasonable cost of equivalent reinstatement shall be ascertained for the purposes of the said Rule (5) by reference to the state of the land immediately before the occurrence of the war damage, and the right to receive any value payment or share of a value payment which, under the War Damage Act, 1943, is payable in respect of the interest which is compulsorily acquired (including interest thereon) shall, notwithstanding anything in that Act, vest in the person by whom the interest is so acquired. [1036]

(3) Where any such interest in land as aforesaid is acquired by agreement in pursuance of a contract after the passing of this Act by a person authorised by virtue of any enactment to acquire it compulsorily, then if the conditions specified in paragraph (a) of subsection (1) of this section are satisfied in relation to the land, and the compensation which would be payable in respect of the acquisition, if the acquisition were compulsory, would fall (whether by virtue of the said subsection (1) or otherwise) to be assessed in accordance with the said Rule (5), the right to receive any value payment or share of a value payment which, under the War Damage Act, 1943, is payable in respect of the interest acquired (including interest thereon) shall vest in the person by whom the interest is so acquired. [1037]

(4) Subsection (4) of section sixty-nine of the War Damage Act, 1943

(which makes special provision with respect to payments under that Act in respect of war damage sustained by hereditaments held for charitable purposes) shall not apply to any payment which by virtue of this section vests in the person by whom an interest in land is acquired. [1038]

Notice to treat.—See note to s. 55, ante.

War Damage Act, 1943.—36 Halsbury's Statutes 334. The term "war damage" is defined by s. 2 of this Act, the definition being applied to the present Act by s. 119 (1), post. "Hereditament" is defined by s. 5 of the Act of 1943. As to cost of works and value payments, see ss. 7 et seq. of the same Act.

S. 20 (2) (b) of the Act of 1943 empowers the War Damage Commission to make value payments instead of cost of work payments where Treasury directions require that damage should not be made good.

For s. 69 (4) of the Act of 1943, see 36 Halsbury's Statutes 395.

Acquisition of Land (Assessment of Compensation) Act, 1919, s. 2, r. (5).—2 Halsbury's Statutes 1178. This rule is as follows:—

"Where land is, and but for the compulsory acquisition would continue to be, devoted to a purpose of such a nature that there is no general demand or market for land for that purpose, the compensation may, if the official arbitrator is satisfied that reinstatement in some other place is bona fide intended, be assessed on the basis of the reasonable cost of equivalent reinstatement."

Definitions.—For definitions of "land" and "enactment," see s. 119 (1), post. As to the construction of "compensation," see s. 119 (4), post.

57. Amendments of 9 & 10 Geo. 5, c. 57, etc.—(1) The Acquisition of Land (Assessment of Compensation) Act, 1919, shall apply in relation to the compulsory acquisition of land under this or any other Act by the Central Land Board or any statutory undertakers as it applies in relation to the compulsory acquisition of land by a government department or a local or public authority, and references in this Act to any such department or authority shall be construed accordingly. [1039]

(2) The rate of interest for any period after the passing of this Act on compensation which fell or falls, in default of agreement, to be ascertained in accordance with the Acquisition of Land (Assessment of Compensation) Act, 1919 (whether as originally enacted or as amended by any subsequent enactment including this Act), in respect of land compulsorily purchased on which entry has been made before the payment of the compensation shall, in lieu of being the rate of five per cent. specified under section eighty-five of the Lands Clauses (Consolidation) Act, 1845, be such other rate as may from time to time be prescribed by regulations made by the Treasury under this Act. [1040]

(3) Any regulations made by the Treasury under section sixty-two of the Act of 1944 which are in force at the date of the passing of this Act shall continue in force and have effect as if they had been made under this Act and shall accordingly apply to any compensation which falls, in default of agreement, to be ascertained in accordance with the Acquisition of Land (Assessment of Compensation) Act, 1919, as amended by this Act. [1041]

Acquisition of Land (Assessment of Compensation) Act, 1919.—2 Halsbury's Statutes 1176. Central Land Board.—As to the establishment and constitution of this Board, see s. 2 of the Act, in title TOWN AND COUNTRY PLANNING, post.

Interest on Compensation.—By the Acquisition of Land (Rate of Interest on Entry) Regulations, 1947 (S. R. & O., 1947, No. 791), post, made by the Treasury under s. 62 of the Town and Country Planning Act, 1944 (37 Halsbury's Statutes 481), the rate of interest payable where entry was made before payment of compensation was reduced, as from May 1, 1947, from the 4 per cent. prescribed by s. 62 (1) of the Act of 1944 to 3½ per cent. These regulations are preserved by sub-s. (3) of the present section.

Lands Clauses Consolidation Act, 1845, s. 85.—2 Halsbury's Statutes 1142. It is not usual for the title of this Act to be printed with the word "Consolidation" in parentheses as it appears in the King's Printer's copy of the present Act.

Regulations.—For the general provisions applicable to regulations under the Act, see s. 111, in title TOWN AND COUNTRY PLANNING, post.

S. 62 of the Act of 1944.—The Town and Country Planning Act, 1944, s. 62; 37 Halsbury's Statutes 481.

Definitions.—For definitions of "land," "statutory undertakers," "government department," "local authority" and "enactment," see s. 119 (1), post. As to the construction of the term "compensation," see s. 119 (4), post.

119. Interpretation.—(1) In this Act, except so far as the contrary is provided or the context otherwise requires, the following expressions have the meanings hereby respectively assigned to them, that is to say :—

* * * * *

“ Act of 1944 ” means the Town and Country Planning Act, 1944 ;

* * * * *

“ agriculture ” includes horticulture, fruit growing, seed growing, dairy farming, the breeding and keeping of livestock (including any creature kept for the production of food, wool, skins or fur, or for the purpose of its use in the farming of land), the use of land as grazing land, meadow land, osier land, market gardens and nursery grounds, and the use of land for woodlands where that use is ancillary to the farming of land for other agricultural purposes, and “ agricultural ” shall be construed accordingly ;

“ appointed day ” means such day as the Minister may by order appoint ;

* * * * *

“ building ” includes any structure or erection and any part of a building as so defined, but does not include plant or machinery comprised in a building ;

“ buildings or works ” includes waste materials, refuse and other matters deposited on land, and references to the erection or construction of buildings or works shall be construed accordingly ;

“ building operations ” includes rebuilding operations, structural alterations of or additions to buildings, and other operations normally undertaken by a person carrying on business as a builder ;

* * * * *

“ development ” has the meaning assigned to it by section twelve of this Act, and “ develop ” shall be construed accordingly ;

“ development order ” has the meaning assigned thereto by section thirteen of this Act ;

“ development plan ” has the meaning assigned to it by section five of this Act, and includes a plan made under subsection (5) of that section ;

“ enactment ” includes an enactment in any local or private Act of Parliament and an order, rule, regulation, byelaw or scheme made under an Act of Parliament ;

“ engineering operations ” includes the formation or laying out of means of access to highways ;

“ erection ” in relation to buildings includes extension, alteration and re-erection ;

“ functions ” includes powers and duties ;

“ government department ” includes the Electricity Commissioners ;

* * * * *

“ land ” means any corporeal hereditament, including a building as defined by this section, and in relation to the acquisition of land under Part IV of this Act includes any interest or right in or over land ;

“ lease ” includes an underlease and an agreement for a lease or underlease, but does not include an option to take a lease or a mortgage, and “ leasehold interest ” means the interest of the tenant under a lease as so defined ;

“ local authority ” means the council of a county, county borough, metropolitan borough or county district, the Common Council of the City of London and any other authority being a local authority within the meaning of the Local Loans Act, 1875, and includes any drainage board and any joint board or joint committee if all the constituent authorities are such local authorities as aforesaid ;

* * * * *

"minerals" includes all minerals and substances in or under land of a kind ordinarily worked for removal by underground or by surface working: provided that it shall not include peat cut for purposes other than sale;

* * * * *

"Minister" includes the Treasury, the Admiralty, the Board of Trade and any other government department;

"the Minister" has the meaning assigned to it by section one of this Act;

* * * * *

"purchase notice" has the meaning assigned to it by section nineteen of this Act;

* * * * *

"requisitioned land," and "period of requisition" have the meanings assigned to them by section eighty-nine of this Act;

"statutory undertakers" means persons authorised by any enactment to carry on any railway, light railway, tramway, road transport, water transport, canal, inland navigation, dock, harbour, pier or lighthouse undertaking, or any undertaking for the supply of electricity, gas, hydraulic power or water, and "statutory undertaking" shall be construed accordingly;

* * * * *

"use," in relation to land, does not include the use of land by the carrying out of any building or other operations thereon;

"Valuation Office" means the Valuation Office of the Inland Revenue Department;

"war damage" has the same meaning as in the War Damage Act, 1943.

[1042]

(2) If any question arises, in relation to anything required or authorised to be done under this Act, which Minister was or is the appropriate Minister as defined by this section in relation to any statutory undertakers, that question shall be determined by the Treasury, and if any question so arises whether land of statutory undertakers is operational land as defined by this section, that question shall be determined by the Minister who is the appropriate Minister in relation to those undertakers. [1043]

(3) Words in this Act importing a reference to service of a notice to treat shall be construed as including a reference to the constructive service of such a notice which, by virtue of the Sixth Schedule to the Act of 1944, or of any other enactment, is to be deemed to be served. [1044]

(4) Any reference in this Act to the compensation payable in respect of the compulsory acquisition of land shall be construed as including a reference to compensation to be estimated, in connection with the acquisition, for damage sustained by reason of the severing of the land from other land held therewith or otherwise injuriously affecting such other land, and compensation to be so estimated for disturbance or any other manner not directly based on the value of the land. [1045]

(5) References in this Act to any enactment shall be construed as references to that enactment as amended by any subsequent enactment including, except where the context otherwise requires, this Act. [1046]

Town and Country Planning Act, 1944.—37 Halsbury's Statutes 420. This Act is modified by s. 50, ante, and Sched. VII, post, and by ss. 44 and 113, and Scheds. VIII and IX (see title TOWN AND COUNTRY PLANNING, post); and its unrepealed provisions, as amended by the present Act, form Sched. XI (ibid.). Note the provisions of sub-s. (5) of the present section whereby references to enactments in the present Act are to be construed as references to such enactments as amended by any subsequent enactment including, unless otherwise required by the context, the present Act. Hence references to "the Act of 1944" are, in effect, usually to that Act as it appears in Sched. XI.

Appointed day.—July 1, 1948; see the Preliminary Note, ante.

S. 12 of this Act.—For this section see the title TOWN AND COUNTRY PLANNING, post. Subject to a proviso of six paragraphs and to other qualifications, the expression “development” is there defined as “the carrying out of building, engineering, mining or other operations in, on, over or under land, or the making of any material change in the use of any buildings or other land.”

S. 13 of this Act.—For this section see the title TOWN AND COUNTRY PLANNING, post. Development orders are orders of the Minister providing for the grant of permission for the development of land under Part III of the present Act.

S. 5 of this Act.—For this section see the title TOWN AND COUNTRY PLANNING, post. A development plan is the plan which local planning authorities are required to submit to the Minister with a report of the survey of their area; such authorities are to indicate the manner in which they propose that land in their area is to be used and the stages by which any development is to be carried out. Sub-s. (5) of that section provides for the submission of separate development plans for parts of planning areas prior to the Minister's approval of the plans for the whole areas.

Electricity Commissioners.—The Electricity Commissioners were appointed by the Electricity (Supply) Act, 1919, s. 1 (7 Halsbury's Statutes 754), for promoting, regulating and supervising the supply of electricity. The Electricity Act, 1947 (see title ELECTRICITY SUPPLY, ante), provides for their dissolution under the nationalised system of electricity supply which that Act was designed to implement.

Part IV of this Act.—See the title TOWN AND COUNTRY PLANNING, post. This Part of the Act deals with the acquisition and disposal of land for planning purposes, powers in relation to highways, etc.

Local Loans Act, 1875.—12 Halsbury's Statutes 242. “Local authority” is defined by s. 34 of that Act as “the justices of any county, liberty, riding, parts, or division of a county in general or quarter sessions assembled, the council of any municipal borough, also any authority whatsoever having power to levy a rate, as in this Act defined, also any prescribed authority.” The terms “rate” and “prescribed” are defined by the same section.

S. 1 of this Act.—For this section, see the title TOWN AND COUNTRY PLANNING, post. “The Minister” is the Minister of Town and Country Planning.

S. 19 of this Act.—For this section see the title TOWN AND COUNTRY PLANNING, post. A purchase notice is the notice which an owner of land may, in certain circumstances, serve on the council of the appropriate county borough or county district requiring the council to purchase his interest in the land.

S. 89 of this Act.—For this section see the title TOWN AND COUNTRY PLANNING, post. In that section “requisitioned land” means “land of which possession has been taken on behalf of His Majesty in the exercise or purported exercise of emergency powers (that is to say powers conferred by regulations made under the Emergency Powers (Defence) Act, 1939, by section fifty-two of the Telegraph Act, 1863, or by section seven of the Air Navigation Act, 1920, or exercisable by virtue of the prerogative of the Crown.” For the Emergency Powers (Defence) Act, 1939, see 32 Halsbury's Statutes 920; for the Telegraph Act, 1863, s. 52, see 19 Halsbury's Statutes 238; and for the Air Navigation Act, 1920, s. 7, see 19 Halsbury's Statutes 195.

By the said s. 89, “period of requisition” in relation to requisitioned land means “the period during which possession of the land under such powers taken as aforesaid continues.”

War Damage Act, 1943.—36 Halsbury's Statutes 334. For the definition of “war damage,” see s. 2 thereof (36 Halsbury's Statutes 338).

Sixth Schedule to the Act of 1944.—Sched. VI to the Town and Country Planning Act, 1944 (37 Halsbury's Statutes 490 et seq.), as modified and amended by the present Act, is printed in Sched. XI to the present Act (see title TOWN AND COUNTRY PLANNING, post). The said Sched. VI lays down procedure for the completion of compulsory purchase under orders providing for expedited completion.

120. Short title, commencement and extent.—(1) This Act may be cited as the Town and Country Planning Act, 1947. [1047]

(2) This Act shall come into force on the appointed day :

Provided that—

- (a) sections two and three of this Act ; and
- (b) subsection (2) of section thirty-seven of this Act and subsection (2) of section thirty-eight of this Act, and any other provisions of Part IV of this Act which relate to the acquisition of land under either of those subsections ; and
- (c) Part V of this Act, so much of section ninety-one of this Act as relates to land acquired before the appointed day, subsection (2) of section one hundred and thirteen of this Act so far as it relates to Part I of the Ninth Schedule to this Act, and Part I of the said Ninth Schedule ;

shall come into force on the date of the passing of this Act. [1048]

(3) This Act (except section two and subsection (2) of section fifty-eight thereof) shall not extend to Scotland. [1049]

(4) This Act shall not extend to Northern Ireland. [1050]

Appointed day.—July 1, 1948 ; see the Preliminary Note, ante.
Ss. 2, 3, 37 (2), 38 (2), 58 (2), Part VI, ss. 91, 113 (2) and Sched. IX, Part I.—See title TOWN AND COUNTRY PLANNING, post.

THIRD SCHEDULE

EXCEPTED CLASSES OF DEVELOPMENT

PART I

DEVELOPMENT INCLUDED IN EXISTING USE FOR PURPOSES OTHER THAN COMPENSATION UNDER S. 20

1. The rebuilding, as often as occasion may require, of any building which was in existence on the appointed day and of any building which was in existence before that day but has been destroyed or demolished since the seventh day of January, nineteen hundred and thirty-seven (including the making good of war damage which has been sustained by any such building), so long as the cubic content of the original building is not exceeded in the case of a dwelling-house, by more than one-tenth or seventeen hundred and fifty cubic feet, whichever is the greater, and in any other case by more than one-tenth.

2. The use as two or more separate dwelling-houses of any building which on the appointed day was used as a single dwelling-house. [1051]

PART II

DEVELOPMENT INCLUDED IN EXISTING USE FOR ALL PURPOSES

3. The enlargement, improvement or other alteration, as often as occasion may require, of any such building as is mentioned in paragraph 1 of this Schedule, or any building substituted therefor by the carrying out of any such operations as are mentioned in that paragraph, so long as the cubic content of the original building is not increased or exceeded, in the case of a dwelling-house, by more than one-tenth or seventeen hundred and fifty cubic feet, whichever is the greater, and in any other case by more than one-tenth.

4. The carrying out, on land which was used for the purposes of agriculture or forestry on the appointed day, of any building or other operations required for the purposes of that use, other than operations for the erection, enlargement, improvement or alteration of dwelling-houses or of buildings used for the purposes of market gardens, nursery grounds or timber yards or for other purposes not connected with general farming operations or with the cultivation or felling of trees.

5. The winning and working, on land held or occupied with land used for the purposes of agriculture, of any minerals reasonably required for the purposes of that use, including the fertilisation of the land so used and the maintenance, improvement or alteration of buildings or works thereon which are occupied or used for the purposes aforesaid.

6. In the case of a building or other land which, on the appointed day, was used for a purpose falling within any general class specified in an order made by the Minister for the purposes of this paragraph, or which, being unoccupied on the appointed day, was last used (otherwise than before the seventh day of January, nineteen hundred and thirty-seven) for any such purpose, the use of that building or land for any other purpose falling within the same general class.

7. In the case of any building or other land which, on the appointed day, was in the occupation of a person by whom it was used as to part only for a particular purpose, the use for that purpose of any additional part of the building or land not exceeding one-tenth of the cubic content of the part of the building used for that purpose on the appointed day or, as the case may be, one tenth of the area of the land so used on that day.

8. The deposit of waste materials or refuse in connection with the working of minerals, on any land comprised in a site which, on the appointed day, was being used for that purpose, so far as may be reasonably required in connection with the working of those minerals. [1052]

Appointed day.—July 1, 1948; see the Preliminary Note, ante.

Compensation under s. 20.—For this section, which provides for the payment of compensation for the refusal of permission to carry out development in certain cases, see the title TOWN AND COUNTRY PLANNING, post.

Definitions.—For definitions of "building," "appointed day," "war damage," "use," "land," "agriculture," "building operations," "erection," "minerals" and "buildings or works," see s. 119 (1), ante.

Section 50

SEVENTH SCHEDULE

MODIFICATIONS OF PART II OF THE TOWN AND COUNTRY PLANNING ACT, 1944

Elimination of overlap between owner-occupier supplement and increase of converted value payment

1.—(1) Where an interest in land the value of which falls to be ascertained in accordance with the provisions of Part II of the Act of 1944 for the purposes of the compensation payable on a compulsory acquisition thereof is an interest in a hereditament or part of a hereditament which has sustained war damage, then if—

- (a) by virtue of section fourteen of the War Damage Act, 1943, or of any direction given by the Treasury under paragraph (b) of subsection (2) of section twenty of that Act, a value payment falls to be made in respect of the damage so far as not made good before the date of the acquisition; and
- (b) the amount of that payment falls to be increased by virtue of the War Damage (Increase of Value Payments) Order, 1947, or any subsequent order made by the Treasury under section eleven of the said Act; and
- (c) the person entitled to the compensation payable in respect of the compulsory acquisition of the interest in question is also entitled by virtue of section fifty-eight of the Act of 1944, either as originally enacted or as amended by the Acquisition of Land (Increase of Supplement) Order, 1946, or any subsequent order made by the Treasury under section sixty of that Act, to receive a supplement to that compensation, the amount of the compensation payable in respect of the compulsory acquisition shall be reduced in the manner provided by this paragraph by such sum as may be appropriate, not exceeding the amount by which the value payment is increased as aforesaid, or the amount of the supplement payable as aforesaid, whichever is the less.

(2) Any reduction required by virtue of this paragraph to be made in the compensation payable in respect of the compulsory acquisition of an interest in land shall be effected as follows: that is to say, the War Damage Commission shall, on a claim made to the Commission in that behalf within the time and in the manner prescribed by regulations made by the Treasury under this Act, pay to the Minister or authority by whom that interest is compulsorily acquired a sum equal to the amount of the reduction, together with interest thereon at the rate of two and a half per cent. per annum from the date of the acquisition, and shall deduct that amount (including interest thereon as aforesaid) from the amount of any value payment or share of the value payment (including interest on any such payment or share) payable by the Commission under the War Damage Act, 1943, to the person from whom that interest is acquired.

(3) Any sum payable by the War Damage Commission to a Minister or authority by virtue of the provisions of this paragraph in respect of the compulsory acquisition of any interest in land shall be paid at the time when the value payment or share of a value payment payable to the owner of that interest under the War Damage Act, 1943, is discharged.

(4) Any question arising under this paragraph as to what reduction is appropriate in the compensation payable in respect of the compulsory acquisition of an interest in land shall, in default of agreement, be referred to and determined by the War Damage Commission, whose decision shall be final; and paragraph 6 of the First Schedule to the War Damage Act, 1943 (which enables the Commission to regulate the procedure for the determination of questions subject to determination by them under that Act) shall have effect as if any question falling to be determined by the Commission under this paragraph were a question subject to determination by them under that Act.

(5) Where an interest in land which has been acquired by agreement before the commencement of this Act by a person authorised by virtue of any enactment to acquire it compulsorily is an interest in a hereditament or part of a hereditament which has sustained war damage, then if—

(a) the conditions specified in sub-paragraphs (1) (a) and (1) (b) of this paragraph are satisfied in relation thereto ; and

(b) the person to whom the purchase price is payable in respect of the acquisition of the interest in question would, if the interest had been acquired compulsorily, have been entitled to any such supplement as is mentioned in sub-paragraph (1) (c) of this paragraph ;

the amount of the purchase price payable in respect of the acquisition shall be reduced by such sum as may be appropriate, not exceeding the amount by which the value payment is increased as is mentioned in sub-paragraph (1) (b) of this paragraph, or the amount of the supplement which would have been payable as aforesaid, whichever is the less ; and sub-paragraphs (2), (3) and (4) of this paragraph shall apply in relation to the reduction required by virtue of this sub-paragraph to be made in the purchase price as if for any reference in those sub-paragraphs to the compulsory acquisition of an interest in land or to the amount of the compensation payable in respect of that acquisition there were substituted respectively a reference to the acquisition of an interest in land by agreement and to the purchase price payable in respect of that acquisition.

(6) The reference in sub-paragraph (2) of this paragraph to the date of acquisition of an interest in land shall be construed as a reference to the date of the completion of the acquisition or, if interest on the compensation, or on the purchase price, as the case may be, becomes payable before that date (whether by virtue of entry on the land or otherwise), as a reference to the date from which the interest becomes payable.

Assessment of compensation in case of certain agricultural land

2. In subsection (2) of section fifty-seven of the Act of 1944, and paragraph 4 of the Seventh Schedule to that Act, references to agricultural holdings and to holdings as defined for the purposes of the Agricultural Holdings Act, 1923, shall be construed as including references to any land which, if it were held by a tenant, would be a holding as so defined.

Extension of owner-occupier supplement to certain subsidiary companies

3.—(1) Where an interest in land the value of which falls to be ascertained in accordance with the provisions of Part II of the Act of 1944 for the purposes of the compensation payable on a compulsory acquisition thereof is an interest held by a company having among its objects the holding of land, and being related (as hereinafter defined) to another company which carries on business on land so held, then, without prejudice to the provisions of paragraph (a) of subsection (6) of section fifty-eight of the said Act, or of any regulation made thereunder, subsection (5) of that section shall have effect in relation to that interest as if references in paragraphs (a) to (d) of that subsection to the person entitled to compensation for the purchase of that interest included references to the last mentioned company.

(2) For the purposes of this paragraph a company shall be deemed to be related to another company if either of those companies is a subsidiary of the other (as defined by the Companies Act, 1947), or if both of them are subsidiaries (as so defined) of a third company.

Assessment of compensation by reference to after-damage value

4.—(1) Where under section sixty-one of the Act of 1944, the value of any land in a hereditament which has sustained war damage is for the purpose of a compulsory acquisition required to be ascertained, in accordance with the provisions of the Eighth Schedule to that Act, by reference to the certified after-damage value of the hereditament, then if—

- (a) the hereditament consists of premises in respect of which a justices' licence within the meaning of the Licensing (Consolidation) Act, 1910, was in force or in suspense at the time when the war damage occurred; and
- (b) between that time and the time when the notice to treat was served there had been any change in the circumstances of the licence, whether by extinction, removal or suspension by virtue of section ten of the Finance Act, 1942, or section twelve of the Finance Act, 1946, sub-paragraph (3) of paragraph (1) of the said Eighth Schedule shall have effect as if the change constituted a material difference in the state of the premises and the change shall be taken into account under the said sub-paragraph in determining the value of the premises under the War Damage Act, 1943, by reference to the state of the premises at the time when the notice to treat is served.

(2) Neither the right to land tax in respect of any land nor the right to a redemption annuity under the Tithe Act, 1936, in respect of any land shall be taken into account as interests in land under paragraph 2 of the Eighth Schedule to the Act of 1944, but such adjustments of the certified after-damage value of the hereditament shall be made for the purposes of that Schedule as are necessary to produce for those purposes the result which would have been produced therefor if liability to land tax or to any such annuity had been included among the burdens referred to in paragraph 1 (1) (c) of the Second Schedule to the War Damage Act, 1943. [1053]

Town and Country Planning Act, 1944, Part II.—37 Halsbury's Statutes 476 et seq. This Part, which comprises ss. 57 to 62 (inclusive) of the 1944 Act, has been repealed by Sched. IX, Part I, of the present Act (see the title TOWN AND COUNTRY PLANNING, post) as from August 6, 1947, the date of the Royal Assent (s. 120 (2), ante). Accordingly, the said sections do not appear in Sched. XI to the present Act.

For ss. 57 (2), 58, 60 and 61, and Schedules VII and VIII to the Act of 1944, see 37 Halsbury's Statutes 477, 480, 481, 493 and 494.

War Damage Act, 1943.—36 Halsbury's Statutes 334. For ss. 11, 14 and 20 (2) (b), and Sched. I, para. 6, and Sched. II, para. 1 (1) (c), see 36 Halsbury's Statutes 350, 353, 358, 433 and 434.

The term "war damage" is defined by s. 2 of the Act of 1943, the definition being applied to the present Act by s. 119 (1), ante. As to the constitution of the War Damage Commission, see s. 3 of the 1943 Act. "Hereditament" is defined by s. 5 thereof. As to cost of works and value payments, see ss. 7 et seq. of the same Act.

S. 20 (2) (b) of the Act of 1943 (36 Halsbury's Statutes 358) empowers the War Damage Commission to make value payments instead of cost of works payments where Treasury directions require that damage is not to be made good.

War Damage (Increase of Value Payments) Order, 1947.—S. R. & O., 1947, No. 390; see the title AIR-RAID PRECAUTIONS, ante. As its title indicates, this order provided for an increase in the value payments to be made under the War Damage Act, 1943.

Acquisition of Land (Increase of Supplement) Order, 1946.—S. R. & O., 1946, No. 1163. This order, made under s. 60 (3) of the Town and Country Planning Act, 1944 (37 Halsbury's Statutes 480), increased the maximum rate of supplement to be paid to owner-occupiers in respect of compensation calculated by reference to 1939 prices from 30 per cent. to 60 per cent. where notices to treat were served on or after July 22, 1946, the date of the order.

Agricultural Holdings Act, 1923.—1 Halsbury's Statutes 80. S. 57 (1) of that Act defines the term "holding" as follows:—

" 'Holding' does not include an allotment garden or include any land cultivated as a garden unless it is cultivated wholly or mainly for the purpose of the trade or business of market gardening, but, except as aforesaid, means any parcel of land held by a tenant, which is either wholly agricultural or wholly pastoral, or in part agricultural and as to the residue pastoral, or in whole or in part cultivated as a market garden, and which is not let to the tenant during his continuance in any office, appointment, or employment held under the landlord."

However, the Agriculture Act, 1947 (10 & 11 Geo. 6, c. 48), s. 45 and Sched. VII, paragraph 18, provides for a new definition of "holding" to be substituted as from March 1, 1948 (Agriculture Act, 1947 (Commencement) (No. 1) Order, 1948; S.I. 1948, No. 342).

Companies Act, 1947.—10 & 11 Geo. 6, c. 47. The meaning of "subsidiary" in this connection is explained in s. 18 of the Companies Act, 1947. Under that section one company is to be deemed a subsidiary of another only if—

- (a) that other either—
  - (i) is a member of it and controls the composition of its board of directors, or
  - (ii) holds more than half in nominal value of its equity share capital, or
- (b) the first mentioned company is a subsidiary of any company which is that other's subsidiary.

As to when the composition of a company's board of directors is to be deemed to be controlled by another company, see sub-s. (2) of the same section, and for the principles to be observed in applying the general conditions, referred to above, under which one company becomes a subsidiary of another, see sub-s. (3) thereof.

Certified after-damage value.—As to the meaning of this term, see the Town and Country Planning Act, 1944, s. 61 and Sched. VIII (37 Halsbury's Statutes 481, 494 et seq.).

Licensing (Consolidation) Act, 1910.—9 Halsbury's Statutes 985 et seq. This, the principal Act in relation to intoxicating liquors, provides, inter alia, that excise licences under which intoxicating liquor may be sold by retail are to be granted only to persons with justices' licences granted in accordance with the detailed provisions of the Act.

Finance Act, 1942, s. 10.—35 Halsbury's Statutes 180. This section provides for putting justices' licences for the sale of intoxicating liquors into "cold storage" in cases where, by reason of war conditions, there has been a temporary discontinuance of business.

Finance Act, 1946, s. 12.—39 Halsbury's Statutes 741. This section provides for putting justices' licences into "cold storage" in additional cases where business has been temporarily discontinued because of the compulsory acquisition, actual or proposed, of the licensed premises, removal being impossible or impracticable.

Land tax.—See 10 Halsbury's Statutes 171 et seq. The principal statute relating to the property chargeable with land tax and the payment thereof is still the Land Tax Act, 1797 (10 Halsbury's Statutes 174), though many of its provisions have been repealed. The tax was made permanent by the Land Tax Perpetuation Act, 1798 (10 Halsbury's Statutes 204); see also the Land Tax Act, 1813 (10 Halsbury's Statutes 266). A great number of redemptions have, however, been carried out under the Land Tax Redemption Acts, 1802, 1813 and 1817, and the Finance Act, 1896 (10 Halsbury's Statutes 205, 253, 273, 292).

Tithe Act, 1936.—29 Halsbury's Statutes 923. This Act abolished tithe rentcharge as from October 2, 1936, and substituted in its place redemption annuities calculated according to the provisions of the Act and payable for sixty years unless earlier redeemed in accordance with rules prescribed by the Treasury.

Definitions.—For definitions of "land," "Act of 1944," "a Minister," "enactment" and "agricultural land," see s. 110 (1), ante.

ORDERS, CIRCULARS AND MEMORANDA

COMPULSORY PURCHASE OF LAND AMENDMENT REGULATIONS, 1947

S. R. & O., 1947, No. 121

January 23, 1947

The Minister of Health, in exercise of the powers conferred on him by the first schedule to the Acquisition of Land (Authorisation Procedure) Act, 1946, and of all other powers enabling him in that behalf, hereby makes the following regulations:—

1. These regulations may be cited as the Compulsory Purchase of Land Amendment Regulations, 1947. [1054]

2.—(1) In the form of compulsory purchase order set out in Form No. 1 in the schedule to the Compulsory Purchase of Land Regulations, 1946, in article 1 before the word "schedule" there shall be inserted the word "[first]."

(2) After article 3 in the said form there shall be inserted the following article:—

"[3A. The land described in the second schedule to this order (being land as to which the Minister of [Agriculture and Fisheries] [Town and Country Planning] has certified in accordance with paragraph 11 of the first schedule to the Acquisition of Land (Authorisation Procedure) Act, 1946, that he is satisfied that it will be given in exchange for so much of the land described in the first schedule to this order as forms part of [a common] [an open space] [an allotment], that it is not less in area and is equally advantageous to the persons, if any, entitled to rights of common or other rights, and to the public, and that it will be vested in the persons in whom the [common] [open space] [allotment] was vested, and subject to the like rights, trusts and incidents as attach thereto) shall as from the date on which this order becomes operative or as from the date on which the said land shall be given in exchange, whichever shall be the later, vest in the persons in whom the land for which it is given in exchange is then vested, subject to the like rights, trusts and incidents as attach thereto, and the land for which it is given in exchange shall thereupon be discharged from all rights, trusts and incidents to which it was previously subject.]”

(This provision should be omitted if unnecessary.)

(3) For the heading of the schedule to the said form there shall be substituted the heading “[FIRST] SCHEDULE”.

(4) After the note to the said schedule there shall be inserted the following provision :—

“ [SECOND SCHEDULE.

(Here insert description of land to be given in exchange)] ”.

(This schedule should be omitted if article 3A is omitted.) [1055]

ACQUISITION OF LAND (RATE OF INTEREST ON ENTRY) REGULATIONS, 1947

S. R. & O., 1947, No. 791

April 28, 1947

The Treasury, in exercise of the powers conferred upon them by Section 62 of the Town and Country Planning Act, 1944 (hereinafter referred to as “ the Act ”), hereby make the following Regulations.

1. The rate of interest for any period after the date on which these Regulations come into force on compensation which fell, or falls, in default of agreement, to be ascertained in accordance with the Acquisition of Land (Assessment of Compensation) Act, 1919 (whether as originally enacted or as amended by the Act) in respect of land compulsorily purchased on which entry has been made before the payment of compensation shall, in lieu of being the rate of four per cent. specified in sub-section (1) of Section 62 of the Act, be the rate of three and a half per cent. per annum. [1056]

2.—(1) These Regulations may be cited as the Acquisition of Land (Rate of Interest on Entry) Regulations, 1947, and shall come into force on the first day of May, 1947.

(2) The Interpretation Act, 1889, applies to the interpretation of these Regulations as it applies to the interpretation of an Act of Parliament. [1057]

* * * * *

EXPLANATORY NOTE

(This Note is not part of the above Regulations, but is intended to indicate their general purport.)

The purpose of these Regulations is to reduce from the 4 per cent. specified in Section 62 (1) of the Town and Country Planning Act, 1944, to 3½ per cent., the rate of interest payable where entry is made, before payment of the compensation, on land in England and Wales which is being purchased compulsorily.

MINISTRY OF HEALTH,
WHITEHALL,
LONDON, S.W.1.
18th August, 1947.

SIR,

REPAIR AND MAINTENANCE OF REQUISITIONED PREMISES

1. I am directed by the Minister of Health to say that he has been considering the arrangements for the repair and maintenance of premises held under requisition for the inadequately housed, and has decided that in future the following procedure should be adopted :—

- (1) Repairs should be limited to the minimum necessary to provide reasonable accommodation for the occupants and to prevent deterioration of the structure.
- (2) Repairs may be carried out by local authorities without the prior approval of this Department where the estimated cost of the repairs does not exceed £50 per dwelling unit, the limit of £50 to relate to any individual complete job of repair undertaken at any time.
- (3) Where the estimated cost of any particular work of repair exceeds £50 prior approval by the Department will be necessary, but such approval will be issued without stipulation that the owner be approached to pay the whole or any portion of the expenditure. In this connection I am to request that, subject to the reservation in paragraph (2) local authorities should refrain from seeking to recover from owners contributions towards the cost of repairs which they carry out as this is likely to embarrass the District Valuer in his negotiations for the settlement of claims under section 2 of the Compensation (Defence) Act, 1939.
- (4) Records of works of repair should be kept so that the information will be available to the District Valuer when he has to consider claims under section 2 of the Compensation (Defence) Act. It is suggested that the records should give the date of the repairs, a detailed description of the work carried out, and a statement of the actual cost.

2. The foregoing paragraphs apply where compensation rental has been assessed in accordance with section 2 (1) (a) of the Compensation (Defence) Act, 1939. In some cases, however, District Valuers were empowered to conclude agreements under section 15 of the Act, providing for the payment of inclusive compensation, i.e., representing rates, repairs, maintenance and insurance. On this basis repairs and upkeep are the responsibility of the owner and ordinarily they will be done either by the owner or by the local authority with his consent on his behalf. There may be a small minority of cases where local authorities may experience considerable difficulty in getting the work done by the owner or in recovering the cost either directly or by deduction from future payments of rent. In such cases where the cost of the work does not exceed £10 per dwelling the local authority may carry out the work and include the cost in its claim for reimbursement. If the cost exceeds £10, or difficulty in obtaining payment is experienced with an owner of a number of requisitioned properties, the facts should first be reported to the District Valuer to consider if compensation should be re-assessed on the basis of section 2 (1) (a) of the Act.

3. The Minister hopes that these arrangements will reduce the amount of work required in connection with these repairs and will commend themselves to local authorities. [1058]

CASES

Acquisition of land—Compensation—Owner also a shareholder and director of tenant company—Possible depreciation of shares through notice to quit—Acquisition of Land (Assessment of Compensation) Act, 1919 (c. 57), s. 2.

The owner of land which was acquired compulsorily by a local authority was a director and shareholder of the company which was tenant and occupier of the land. She alleged that, if the company were dispossessed of the land, the value of her shares in it would be depreciated :—

Held : she could not claim as compensation under s. 2 of the Acquisition of Land (Assessment of Compensation) Act, 1919, a sum representing this depreciation in the value of her shares.—ROBERTS v. COVENTRY CORPN., [1947] 1 All E. R. 308 ; 111 J. P. 165 ; 63 T. L. R. 108 ; 91 Sol. Jo. 162 ; 45 L. G. R. 84, D. C. [1059]

Emergency legislation—Requisition of premises—Transfer of possession—Power of competent authority—Defence (General) Regulations, 1939 (S. R. & O., 1939, No. 927, as amended) regs. 49, 51.

A Minister of the Crown who, as a competent authority, requisitions property under the Defence (General) Regulations, 1939, holds the property on behalf of the Crown and its entitled to transfer possession of it to another competent authority.

By virtue of the Defence (General) Regulations, 1939, regs. 49 and 51 (which were amended in pursuance of the Supplies and Services (Transitional Powers) Act, 1945, s. 1 (1)), the Minister of Works requisitioned certain leasehold premises during the war to accommodate the American Red Cross Society. When the premises were vacated by the Society after the war, the Minister of Works transferred possession of the premises to the Minister of Health, who in turn transferred possession to the defendants, as the local housing authority, to provide housing accommodation :—

Held : the Minister of Works was entitled to transfer possession of the premises to the Minister of Health and the latter to the defendants.—PROGRESS BUILDING, LTD. v. WESTMINSTER CITY CORPN., [1947] 1 All E. R. 684 ; 111 J. P. 300 ; 45 L. G. R. 468. [1060]

Emergency legislation—Requisition—Land—Land charges—Need for registration of interest of requisitioning authority—"Right or privilege over or affecting land"—Defence (General) Regulations, 1939, reg. 51 (1)—Land Charges Act, 1925 (c. 22), s. 10 (1), Class D (iii).

A dwelling-house owned by Mrs. M. was requisitioned under reg. 51 (1) of the Defence (General) Regulations, 1939, by the town clerk of L. under powers delegated to him by the Minister of Health under reg. 51 (5). The house was adapted so as to constitute two living units, the lower of which was subsequently released to Mrs. M. who thereupon occupied that part. The son of Mrs. M. purchased the whole property, and despite a refusal of the plaintiffs to release the upper portion he took possession of it :—

Held : the words "right or privilege over or affecting land" in the Land Charges Act, 1925, s. 10 (1), Class D (iii), have a restricted meaning ejusdem generis with the word "easement", and do not extend to include the rights of possession and user arising on the exercise of powers of requisitioning under Defence Regulation 51, and, therefore, those rights do not require to be registered as a land charge to prevent their being void as against a purchaser of the land.—LEWISHAM BOROUGH COUNCIL v. MALONEY, [1947] 2 All E. R. 36 ; [1947] L. J. R. 991 ; 177 L. T. 175 ; 111 J. P. 454 ; 63 T. L. R. 330 ; 91 Sol. Jo. 368 ; 45 L. G. R. 388, C. A. [1061]

PRELIMINARY NOTE

S. 96 of this Act, which section came into force on October 1, 1947 (Agriculture Act, 1947 (Commencement) Order, 1947, S. R. & O., 1947, No. 1767; see title AGRICULTURE, ante), provides for the continuation of grants for drainage and supply of water to agricultural land pursuant to schemes inaugurated in 1940.

The Agriculture (Miscellaneous War Provisions) Act, 1940, s. 15 (33 Halsbury's Statutes 14), provided for the payment of grants towards the expenses of carrying out schemes approved by War Agricultural Executive Committees for the drainage of agricultural land by the mole drainage process, a system by which a round plug attached to a coulter is drawn by steam power, by tractor or by windlass, resulting in a shallow drain suitable for pasture land. The provision of s. 15 was, by s. 22 (4) of the same Act, limited to schemes approved before the end of the war period, which in accordance with s. 30 (1) (c) of that Act (as amended by the Emergency Laws (Transitional Provisions) Act, 1946, s. 3 ; 39 Halsbury's Statutes 882), ended on December 31, 1947.

The present section removes this time-limit, and allows the payment of grants in respect of approved schemes, application for approval of which is made before the expiration of five years from August 6, 1947, the date of passing of the Act, or before the expiration of seven years from such date if the Minister by Order, made with Treasury consent and the approval by resolution of both Houses, directs such extension. #### Continuation of contributions to cost of drainage, water supply and application of lime

96. Continuation of grants for drainage of, and supply of water to agricultural land.—(1) So much of the Agriculture (Miscellaneous War Provisions) Act, 1940, as limits the period during which schemes may be approved under section fifteen thereof (under which grants may be made by the Minister towards the cost of approved schemes for field drainage and the improvement of ditches and for the supply of water to agricultural land) shall cease to have effect, but no scheme shall be approved under that section unless application for the approval thereof has been made, in such form and manner as the Minister may with the approval of the Treasury determine, before the expiration of five years from the passing of this Act, or if the Minister by order made with the approval of the Treasury so directs, before the expiration of seven years from the passing of this Act. [1064]

(2) An order made under this section shall be of no effect unless approved by resolution of each House of Parliament. [1065]

Effect of section.—See the Preliminary Note, ante.

Agriculture (Miscellaneous War Provisions) Act, 1940.—33 Halsbury's Statutes 3.

The Minister.—The Minister of Agriculture and Fisheries.

Approved by resolution of each House.—This refers to the so-called "affirmative resolution procedure" to which ss. 4 to 7 of the Statutory Instruments Act, 1946 (39 Halsbury's Statutes 785 et seq.), do not apply.

ORDERS, CIRCULARS AND MEMORANDA

LONDON TRAFFIC (MISCELLANEOUS PROVISIONS) ORDER, 1947

S. R. & O., 1947, No. 850

May 6, 1947

The Minister of Transport, in exercise of the powers conferred upon him by Regulation 70 of the Defence (General) Regulations, 1939, as having effect by virtue of the Supplies and Services (Transitional Powers) Act, 1945, and of all other powers enabling him in that behalf, hereby makes the following Order :—

General

1. Regulations 38, 39, 40 and 41 of the London Traffic (Miscellaneous Provisions) Consolidation Provisional Regulations, 1934, dated April 13th, 1934, the London Traffic (Jermyn Street) Regulations, 1934, the London Traffic (Wigmore Street) Regulations, 1936, and the London Traffic (Wigmore Street) (Amendment) Regulations, 1938, are hereby suspended. [1069]

2. In this Order the following expressions have the meanings hereby assigned to them :—

“ Owner or driver of a vehicle ” means owner, driver or other person in charge of a vehicle,

“ Street ” means a highway and includes part of a highway,

“ Restricted Street ” means any highway specified in the Schedule to this Order (hereinafter referred to as “ a scheduled street ”) and the first 120 feet of every highway which joins a scheduled street on either side measured from its junction with the scheduled street,

“ The prescribed hours ” means the period of time between 11.30 a.m. and 6.30 p.m. on any day other than a Saturday or Sunday, and

“ Public Service Vehicle ” has the meaning assigned to it by the Road Traffic Act, 1930. [1070]

PART II

Street Trading

3. No person shall, on any day other than a Sunday, sell goods from a vehicle in any restricted street, unless—

(a) that [a] person is licensed or otherwise duly authorised by the Local Authority concerned to sell goods from a stationary pitch and sells goods from that pitch ; or

(b) the goods are immediately delivered at or taken into premises in close proximity to the vehicle from which the sale is effected. [1071]

Note.—The word placed in square brackets, supra, would appear to be surplusage.

PART III

Waiting, Loading and Unloading of Vehicles

4. Subject to the succeeding provisions of this Order no owner or driver of a vehicle (other than a person licensed or otherwise duly authorised to sell goods from a stationary pitch) shall cause or permit such vehicle to wait in any restricted street during the prescribed hours except for the purpose of :—

(a) enabling any person to board or alight from such vehicle or to load thereon or unload therefrom his personal luggage, or

- (b) delivering or collecting goods or merchandise or loading or unloading such vehicle at premises situate within such street if it is not reasonably practicable to load or unload the vehicle in any neighbouring street not being a restricted street ; or for any longer period than may be necessary for such purpose.

Provided that no vehicle engaged in delivering or collecting goods or merchandise or being loaded or unloaded shall in any restricted street wait for more than 20 minutes and that the driver of any vehicle waiting for such purpose shall move the vehicle on the instructions of a police officer in uniform whenever such moving may be reasonably necessary for the purpose of preventing obstruction. [1072]

5. Nothing in Article 4 of this Order shall apply :—

- (1) so as to restrict the loading or unloading of any vehicle while such vehicle is in actual use in connection with—
- (a) the removal of any obstruction to traffic ;
  - (b) any repairs that may be necessary to any restricted street or to any sewers, drains, gas, water or electricity or other pipes or mains or to the apparatus of any statutory undertaker laid under or erected over such street or to any public convenience in or under such street provided that such repairs cannot reasonably be carried out outside the prescribed hours ;
  - (c) building operations or excavations in connection with building operations or demolitions, if it is not reasonably practicable to load or unload the vehicle in any neighbouring street not being a restricted street ;
  - (d) the removal of furniture from one office or dwelling house to another ;
  - (e) the collection or delivery of goods which cannot reasonably be loaded or unloaded outside the prescribed hours or within the 20 minutes allowed provided that notice is given 48 hours in advance to the police, their consent is obtained and such reasonable conditions as they may impose are complied with.
- (2) to fire engines, ambulances or any vehicle in the service of a local authority or police force while such vehicle is being used as a matter of urgent necessity in a restricted street ;
- (3) to any public service vehicle, tram or trolley vehicle whilst waiting at an authorised stopping place or at a turning or terminal point ;
- (4) to any hackney carriage waiting upon any duly authorised cab rank ;
- (5) to any vehicle lawfully waiting upon any duly authorised parking place. [1073]

6. No owner or driver of a vehicle delivering or collecting goods or merchandise or person engaged in the course of or in connection with the loading or unloading of any article or goods whatsoever on to or from any vehicle within any restricted street shall, during the prescribed hours cause or permit :—

- (1) any such goods, merchandise or article to be deposited on the carriageway except immediately in rear of the vehicle or allow any goods, merchandise or article so deposited to remain on the carriageway before the arrival or after the departure of the vehicle ;
- (2) any such goods, merchandise or article to be deposited on the footway ;

- (3) to be used over or across any part of the carriageway or footway any ropes, chains, or other apparatus any part of which or any load suspended therefrom, if over the carriageway, is less than 16 feet in a vertical line from the surface of the carriageway, except when vertically over any vehicle to be loaded or unloaded, or if over the footway is less than 9 feet in a vertical line from the surface of the footway ;
- (4) any such goods, merchandise or article to be passed from hand to hand across any part of the carriageway or footway.

Provided :—

- (a) that nothing in this Article shall apply to any person having charge of, or engaged in the loading or unloading of, any vehicle while such vehicle is in actual use in connection with any of the purposes specified in sub-paragraphs (a) and (b) of paragraph (1) of Article 5 of this Order or in paragraph (2) of that Article ;
- (b) that nothing in paragraphs (1), (2) and (4) of this Article shall apply to any person engaged in the loading or unloading of any vehicle in connection with (i) building operations or excavations in connection with building operations or demolitions or (ii) the maintenance or redecoration of the exterior of premises or the erection or maintenance of signs ; and
- (c) that this Article shall not apply on Christmas Day, Good Friday, the day preceding Good Friday, Bank Holidays and days appointed by proclamation to be Bank Holidays. [1074]

7. This Order shall come into force on the twenty-seventh day of May, 1947, and may be cited as “ The London Traffic (Miscellaneous Provisions) Order, 1947.” [1075]

EXPLANATORY NOTE

(This Note is not part of the Order but is intended to indicate its general purport.)

This Order suspends certain regulations made by the Minister of Transport under Section 10 of the London Traffic Act, 1924, which impose restrictions on vehicles with regard to waiting, loading and unloading in the Piccadilly Circus, Oxford Street and Wigmore Street areas and in Jermyn Street. In place of the regulations so suspended, the Order reimposes the restrictions with amendments.

The principal changes are :—

1. The restrictions apply to a number of additional streets not included in the suspended Regulations.

2. The sale of goods from a vehicle in a street to which the Order applies at any time on weekdays is now prohibited except under licence from a local authority to sell goods from a stationary pitch or where the goods are immediately delivered at premises in close proximity to the vehicle from which they are sold.

3. The restrictions on waiting, loading and unloading apply from 11.30 a.m. to 6.30 p.m. on every weekday except Saturday. Under the suspended Regulations, the restrictions applied on Saturdays from 12 noon to 3 p.m. in all cases, on other weekdays from 12 noon to 6 p.m. in Jermyn Street and to 7 p.m. in other streets.

4. The maximum period for which vehicles delivering or collecting goods are permitted to wait notwithstanding the restrictions is increased from 10 and 15 minutes to 20 minutes.

5. Additional classes of vehicles are exempted from the restrictions on waiting. These classes are the following :—

- (a) vehicles on to or from which goods are being loaded or unloaded, where such goods cannot reasonably be so loaded or unloaded outside the prescribed hours provided that 48 hours previous notice has been given to the police, their consent obtained and such reasonable conditions as they may impose are complied with.
- (b) fire engines, ambulances and any vehicles in the service of a local or police authority whilst being used as a matter of urgent necessity.
- (c) public service vehicles, trams or trolley-vehicles waiting at authorised stopping places or at turning or terminal points.
- (d) vehicles lawfully waiting on any duly authorised parking place.

CASES

Street and aerial traffic—Public carriage—Fare—Metropolitan police area—Journey exceeding six miles—Agreed fare in excess of prescribed rates—London Hackney Carriage Act, 1853 (c. 33), s. 17 (1) (2)—Metropolitan Public Carriages Act, 1869 (c. 115), s. 9 (3), restriction (2)—London Cab Order, 1934 (S. R. & O., 1934, No. 1346).

A licensed taxicab driver, while plying for hire within the metropolitan police district, was hired by a passenger to convey her on a journey in excess of six miles, and it was orally agreed that the charge for the hire should be 12s. The amount shown on the meter at the end of the journey was 6s. 6d. The driver was convicted of demanding more than the proper fare, contrary to the London Hackney Carriage Act, 1853, s. 17 (1) :—

Held : in view of the terms of s. 17 of the London Hackney Carriage Act, 1853, of s. 9 of the Metropolitan Public Carriages Act, 1869, and of the London

Cab Order, 1934 (made by the Secretary of State under the Act of 1869), by which are fixed the fares for distance to be paid for hackney carriages within the metropolitan police district, those fares apply only to journeys not exceeding six miles, and, if a passenger wishes to be carried beyond that distance, the taxicab driver may make a bargain with regard to the fare, and, therefore, no offence had been committed by the driver in the present case, and the conviction should be quashed.

Per cur.: Section 44 of the London Hackney Carriage Act, 1831, may be regarded as obsolete.—GOODMAN v. SERLE, [1947] K. B. 808; [1947] 2 All E. R. 318; 177 L. T. 521; 111 J. P. 492; 63 T. L. R. 395; 91 Sol. Jo. 518; 45 L. G. R. 328, D. C. [1077]

NATIONAL HEALTH SERVICE (EXECUTIVE COUNCILS) REGULATIONS, 1947

S. R. & O., 1947, No. 889

May 12, 1947

The Minister of Health, in exercise of his powers under sections 41 and 79 of and the Fifth Schedule to the National Health Service Act, 1946, and of all other powers enabling him in that behalf, hereby makes the following regulations :—

PART I

General

1.—(1) These regulations may be cited as the National Health Service (Executive Councils) Regulations, 1947, and shall come into operation on the 15th day of May, 1947.

(2) These regulations shall not apply to the Isles of Scilly. [1078]

2.—(1) In these regulations, unless the context otherwise requires, the following expressions have the respective meanings hereby assigned to them :—

“ the Act ” means the National Health Service Act, 1946.

“ council ” means the Executive Council constituted for any area.

(2) The Interpretation Act, 1889, applies to the interpretation of these regulations as it applies to the interpretation of an Act of Parliament. [1079]

Appointment of members, term of office, casual vacancies, etc. .

3.—(1) A local health authority, local medical committee, local pharmaceutical committee, or local dental committee shall forthwith give notice in writing to the Minister of the name and address of any person appointed by them to be an original member of a council and to the clerk of the council of the name and address of any other member appointed by them.

(2) The clerk of the council shall forthwith inform the Minister of the names and addresses of any members so notified to him. [1080]

4.—(1) The first chairman of the council shall hold office until the 31st day of March, 1949.

(2) Of the original members of the council, other than the chairman, one third shall retire on the 31st day of March, 1949, one third on the 31st day of March, 1950, and the remainder on the 31st day of March, 1951.

(3) The order of retirement of the original members under the preceding paragraph of this regulation shall be determined by lot at a meeting of the council held as soon as conveniently may be after the constitution of the council, the lots being drawn under the direction of the person presiding at the meeting.

(4) Subject as aforesaid, the term of office of members shall be three years :

Provided that at the expiration of his term of office a member shall be eligible for re-appointment. [1081]

5.—A council shall appoint a member to be vice-chairman, and any person so appointed shall, so long as he remains a member of that council, hold office for such period as may be specified in the resolution under which he is appointed. [1082]

6.—(1) A member of the council who desires to resign his membership thereof shall give notice in writing to the clerk of the council, or, in the case of the chairman, to the Minister.

(2) If a member of the council has not attended any meeting of the council or of any committee for a period of six months, the clerk of the council shall inform the council, and unless the council is satisfied that his absence was due to illness or other reasonable cause it shall declare that his seat on the council has become vacant. [1083]

7. Subject to paragraphs (ii), (iii) and (v) of the proviso to subsection (1) of section 59 of the Local Government Act, 1933, the provisions of paragraphs (b) and (c) of that subsection (which disqualify a person for being elected or being a member of a local authority if he has been adjudged bankrupt or made a composition or arrangement with his creditors or has been sentenced to imprisonment for not less than three months without the option of a fine) shall apply as if the section related to membership of a council. [1084]

8.—(1) If a casual vacancy occurs by reason of the death, resignation or disqualification of any member of the council appointed by the Minister the clerk of the council shall forthwith inform the Minister, and if the person whose seat is vacated was other than one appointed by the Minister he shall inform the clerk or secretary of the appointing body.

(2) If a casual vacancy occurs amongst the persons appointed by the Minister, he shall inform the clerk of the council of the name and address of the person appointed to fill the vacancy.

(3) If a casual vacancy occurs amongst the persons appointed by one of the bodies specified in regulation 3, it shall be filled by the same body. [1085]

9. Any person appointed to fill a casual vacancy shall hold office for the remainder of the term of office of the person in whose place he is appointed. [1086]

PART II

Procedure of Executive Councils

General provisions

10.—(1) At every meeting of the council, the chairman, if present, shall preside.

(2) If the chairman is absent from any meeting, the vice-chairman shall, if present, preside, and if the chairman and vice-chairman are both absent the members present at the meeting shall elect from among themselves a person to act as chairman for that meeting.

(3) Every question at a meeting of the council shall be determined by a majority of the votes of the members of the council present and voting on the question, and, in case of an equal division of votes, the chairman of the meeting shall have a second or casting vote. [1087]

11. Minutes of the proceedings at every meeting of the council and a record of the attendance of the members of the council shall be duly kept by the clerk. [1088]

12.—(1) The council shall appoint a person approved by the Minister to act as clerk of the council and shall also appoint such other officers as may be necessary. The resolution appointing the clerk shall embody the terms on which the appointment is made.

(2) When an officer has attained the age of 65 years he shall cease to hold his office :

Provided that a council may in exceptional circumstances, with the consent of an officer and of the Minister, by resolution extend his period of service for one year or any less period, and so on from time to time.

(3) The council shall pay to the clerk and to their other officers remuneration in accordance with scales from time to time approved by the Minister, or such remuneration as the Minister may in special circumstances authorise.

(4) No member of the council or person who has at any time in the previous twelve months been a member of the council shall be appointed to the office of clerk or any other paid office under the council. [1089]

13.—(1) The council shall appoint a committee to be called the finance committee which shall consist wholly of members of the council and may appoint such further committees as they think fit which shall consist either wholly or partly of members of the council as the council may determine, provided that at least a majority of the members of the committee shall be members of the council.

(2) Subject to the provisions of any regulations relating to the finance committee, the council may delegate to any committee any of the powers and duties of the council, and any resolution of the council appointing a committee shall define the powers and duties delegated to them and the term of office of the members :

Provided that—

(i) No expenditure shall be incurred by any committee without the consent of the council ; and

(ii) Every committee shall report their proceedings to the council at such times and in such manner as the council may direct.

(3) Every committee shall appoint a chairman and subject as aforesaid and to any standing orders of the council relating to committees the provisions of these regulations relating to the duties of their chairman and the provisions relating to the vice-chairman, and proceedings of councils shall apply to committees as they apply to councils, with the substitution of the committee for the council. [1090]

14. The council may make, vary, and revoke standing orders for the regulation of the proceedings and business of the council and of the committees and in particular—

- (a) for the times and places of the meetings of the council or committee which in the case of the council shall be held not less often than once in every three months ;
- (b) for due notice of the time and place of each meeting of the council or any committee and, subject to any exceptions which may be mentioned in the standing orders, of the business to be transacted thereat, to be given to members ;
- (c) for the suspension of a member who is guilty of persistent disorder ;
- (d) for providing that, subject to such exceptions and qualifications as may be specified in the standing orders, if a member has any pecuniary interest, direct or indirect, in any contract or proposed contract or other matter (not being a contract for the provision of one of the services mentioned in Part IV of the Act) and is present at a meeting of the council or committee at which the contract or other matter is the subject of consideration, he shall at the meeting, as soon as practicable after the commencement thereof, disclose the fact, and shall not take part in the consideration or discussion of, or vote on any question with respect to, the contract or other matter ;
- (e) for such number of members of the council or committee, not being less than one-third of the whole number, as the standing order may specify to form a quorum. [1091]

15. Nothing in this part of these regulations shall apply (except so far as it may be specifically applied) to a committee constituted for any purpose for which a committee is authorised or required to be appointed by any other provisions for the time being in force. [1092]

16. The council may provide itself with offices and in the case of a joint committee established under subsection (4) of section 31 of the Act, the constituent councils may provide the joint committee with offices. [1093]

PART III

Supplementary ophthalmic services

17.—(1) Unless the Minister has by order made under subsection (4) of section 41 of the Act directed that that section shall cease to apply to the area of the council, the council shall appoint an ophthalmic services committee (in this part of these regulations referred to as “the committee”), which shall exercise on behalf of the council the duty of making arrangements for the testing of sight and for the supply of optical appliances.

(2) The committee shall make reports to the council at such times and in such manner as the council may direct. [1094]

18.—(1) The committee shall consist of sixteen members appointed as follows :—

- (a) eight members by the council from among the members of the council other than those appointed by the local medical committee ;

- (b) one medical practitioner by the council from among those members of the council appointed by the local medical committee ;
- (c) (i) three medical practitioners having the prescribed qualifications ;
- (ii) three ophthalmic opticians ; and
- (iii) one dispensing optician, appointed respectively by such organisations as the Minister may recognise as composed of members of the professions concerned :

Provided that the number and proportion of members appointed may be varied with the consent of the Minister to meet local conditions.

- (2) The committee shall appoint a member to be chairman. [1095]

19.—(1) For the purpose of Part IV of and the Seventh Schedule to the Act and these regulations the expression “ medical practitioner having the prescribed qualifications ” means a medical practitioner who has—

- (a) completed an academic or post graduate course in ophthalmology approved by the committee hereinafter in this paragraph mentioned and received a diploma or certificate in respect of such course ; or
- (b) held for a period of 2 years an appointment as an ophthalmic surgeon or assistant ophthalmic surgeon on the staff of an eye hospital or a hospital having a special eye department ; or
- (c) held any appointment for a period of 2 years affording special opportunities for acquiring the necessary skill and experience of the kind required for the services to be rendered, and who shall, to the satisfaction of the Minister acting on the advice of a committee to be recognised by him for the purpose of approving such qualifications, have had adequate, including recent, experience.

(2) The qualifications required by an ophthalmic optician for the purpose of Part IV of and the Seventh Schedule to the Act and these regulations shall be that—

- (a) he was in possession of one of the following diplomas or certificates :—
  - (i) The Fellowship Diploma of the British Optical Association ;

- (b) he was immediately before the appointed day an optician on the list of the Ophthalmic Benefit Approved Committee constituted under the National Health Insurance Act, 1936 ; or
- (c) he had been in practice as an ophthalmic optician, for fifteen out of the previous twenty years, including five years between the 1st day of October, 1930, and the 30th day of September, 1937.

and that he shall, to the satisfaction of the Minister acting on the advice of a committee to be recognised by him for the purpose of approving such qualifications, have had adequate, including recent, experience as an ophthalmic optician.

- (3) The qualifications required by a dispensing optician for the purpose of Part IV of and the Seventh Schedule to the Act and these regulations shall be that—

- (a) he was in possession of one of the following diplomas or certificates :—
  - (i) any of the diplomas or certificates mentioned in sub-paragraph (a) of paragraph (2) of this regulation or the dispensing certificate of any of the examining bodies referred to in the said sub-paragraph ;
  - (ii) The Associate Diploma or the Fellowship Diploma of the Association of Dispensing Opticians ; or
- (b) he has passed the practical side of the final dispensing examination of the Association of Dispensing Opticians and has been engaged as a dispensing optician for a period of five years ; or
- (c) he has been engaged as an optician for ten out of the previous fifteen years, and for five years between the 1st day of October, 1930, and the 30th day of September, 1937, and that he shall, to be satisfaction of the Minister acting on the advice of a committee to be recognised by him for the purpose of approving such qualifications, have had adequate, including recent, experience as a dispensing optician :

Provided that a person who is entitled to have his qualifications approved either under the last foregoing paragraph of this regulation or this paragraph shall only be entitled to have his qualifications approved either as an ophthalmic optician or as a dispensing optician. [1096]

20.—(1) A casual vacancy in the committee shall be filled by the appropriate body in accordance with the provisions of paragraph (1) of regulation 18.

(2) Any body other than the council filling a casual vacancy shall notify the clerk of the council of the name and address of the person appointed. [1097]

21. The clerk of the council shall act as clerk of the committee, and the council shall make available to the committee the services of such other officers as the committee may require. [1098]

22. The original members of the committee shall retire on the 31st day of March, 1949, and thereafter the term of office of members shall be one year :

Provided that at the expiration of his term of office a member shall be eligible for re-appointment. [1099]

23. Regulations 5, 6, 7, 9, 10 and 11 of these regulations shall apply to the ophthalmic services committee with the substitution in all cases of the committee for the council, and any standing orders made by the council under regulation 14 for the regulation of the proceedings and business of committees shall apply to the committee, with such modifications as the committee may with the council's approval consider necessary. [1100]

24. The council shall make available to the committee such office accommodation as the committee may require. [1101]

PART IV

Subscriptions to, and payment of expenses of members attending meetings of an association of Executive Councils

25. A council may pay any sum, not exceeding in respect of any year ten pounds or such higher amount as the Minister approves not exceeding twenty pounds, as a subscription to the funds of any association of councils whose objects are approved by the Minister, and also the travelling and subsistence expenses reasonably incurred by representatives not exceeding in any case four in attending any meetings of any such association in accordance with rates prescribed under and for the purposes of paragraph 3 (c) of the Fifth Schedule to the Act. [1102]

* * * * *

EXPLANATORY NOTE

(This Note is not part of the Regulations, but is intended to indicate their general purport.)

The regulations provide for the appointment and term of office of members of Executive Councils and for the procedure of the councils. They also provide for the setting up of an Ophthalmic Services Committee in the area of each Executive Council for the administration of the supplementary ophthalmic services, and prescribe the qualifications required to be held by doctors and ophthalmic and dispensing opticians who participate in those services.

NATIONAL HEALTH SERVICE ACT (APPOINTED DAY) ORDER, 1947

S. R. & O., 1947, No. 983

May 21, 1947

Whereas it is provided by the National Health Service Act, 1946, that certain provisions of that Act are to come into force on the appointed day, and the expression "appointed day" is defined by subsection (1) of section seventy-nine of that Act to mean such day as His Majesty may by Order in Council appoint, and it is provided by the said subsection that different days may be appointed for the purposes of different provisions of the said Act and for the repeal or amendment of different enactments by the said Act;

Now, therefore, His Majesty, in pursuance of the said subsection (1) of section seventy-nine of the said Act is pleased, by and with the advice of His Privy Council, to order, and it is hereby ordered, as follows :—

1. This Order may be cited as the National Health Service Act (Appointed Day) Order, 1947. [1103]

2. The following provisions of the National Health Service Act, 1946, and the following repeals and amendments made by that Act, shall come into force on the first day of July, nineteen hundred and forty-seven, that is to say :—

- (a) section forty-nine of the said Act ;
- (b) subsections (1) and (2) of section fifty of the said Act so far as they relate to such of the amendments and repeals specified in the Ninth Schedule to the said Act as are hereinafter mentioned ;
- (c) the following amendments and repeals specified in the said Ninth Schedule—

The Lunacy Act, 1890.
53 & 54 Vict. c. 5.

The amendments of subsections (3) and (6) of section thirty-nine, sections fifty-one and one hundred and seventy-seven, section one hundred and ninety-one (except the last amendment of that section) and subsection (3) of section two hundred and four, the general amendment of Part VIII substituting for references to the Board of Control references to the Minister, the first amendment of subsection (1) of section two hundred and seventeen, the amendments of sections two hundred and twenty-one, two hundred and twenty-six, two hundred and thirty-one, two hundred and thirty-seven and three hundred and twenty, the first amendment of subsection (1) of section three hundred and twenty-nine (which inserts after the words "Board of Control," in both places where they occur, the words "or the Minister"), the amendments of sections three hundred and thirty-two and three hundred and thirty-eight, and the amendment of section three hundred and forty-one inserting therein the definition of "the Minister";

The Lunacy Act, 1891.
54 & 55 Vict. c. 65.

The amendment of section twelve ;

The Mental Deficiency Act, 1913.
3 & 4 Geo. 5, c. 28.

The amendments of sections three and five, subsection (3) of section sixteen, sections twenty-one, twenty-three, twenty-four, subsection (1) of section twenty-five, section twenty-six, paragraph (h) of section thirty, sections thirty-six, forty-nine, fifty and fifty-eight, and the amendment in section seventy-one of the definition of "approved home"; and the repeal of paragraph (e) of subsection (1) of section twenty-five; and of section thirty-five;

The Mental Treatment Act, 1930.
20 & 21 Geo. 5, c. 23.

The amendments of section one, paragraph (iii) of subsection (1) of section five, subsection (3) of section five, the proviso to subsection (9) of section five, subsection (17) of section five and section eleven; and the repeal of section twelve;

(d) section seventy-six of the said National Health Service Act, 1946, so far as it relates to such of the amendments specified in the Tenth Schedule to the said Act as are hereinafter mentioned;

(e) the following amendments specified in the said Tenth Schedule—

The Children and Young Persons Act, 1933.
23 & 24 Geo. 5, c. 12.

The Adoption of Children (Regulation) Act, 1939.
2 & 3 Geo. 6, c. 27.

The amendment of section seven.

[1104]

3. Any reference in the last foregoing Article to amendments made by the National Health Service Act, 1946, in any provision of any enactment shall be construed as referring only to the amendments specifically directed by the said Act to be made in that provision, and not as referring to any general amendments directed by the said Act—

(a) to be made in all enactments relating to persons of unsound mind and mental defectives ;

(b) to be made throughout the Lunacy Act, 1890 ;

(c) to be made throughout the Mental Deficiency Act, 1913 ; or

(d) to be made throughout the Mental Treatment Act, 1930. [1105]

EXPLANATORY NOTE

(This Note is not part of the Order, but is intended to indicate its general purport.)

This Order brings into force on the 1st July, 1947, certain provisions of the National Health Service Act, 1946. The main provision is section 49 of the Act which transfers to the Minister of Health some of the administrative functions (set out in subsection (1) of the section) of the Board of Council under the Acts relating to mental treatment and mental deficiency. The section also provides for the transfer of officers and property, for the appointment to the Board of Control of an additional Medical Commissioner, and for certain minor administrative matters relating to the Board.

The Order also brings into force various amendments of the Acts relating to mental treatment and mental deficiency and a few other enactments. These amendments are made by sections 50 and 76 of the National Health Service Act, 1946, and the 9th and 10th Schedules to that Act. They are all consequential on the transfer of functions and other changes made by section 49 of the Act, which are referred to in the first paragraph of this Note.

NATIONAL HEALTH SERVICE (CONSTITUTION OF REGIONAL HOSPITAL BOARDS) ORDER, 1947

June 24, 1947

Whereas by section 11 (1) of the National Health Service Act, 1946, it is provided that the Minister of Health (hereinafter called "the Minister") shall by order constitute in accordance with Part I of the Third Schedule to that Act, boards, to be called Regional Hospital Boards, for such areas as he may by order determine ;

And whereas the Minister has by the National Health Service (Determination of Regional Hospital Areas) Order, 1946, determined that the areas set out in the schedule thereto and numbered respectively 1 to 14 shall be areas for which regional hospital boards shall be constituted :

Now therefore the Minister hereby orders as follows :—

1. This order may be cited as the National Health Service (Constitution of Regional Hospital Boards) Order, 1947, and shall come into operation on the date hereof. [1106]

2. A regional hospital board is hereby constituted for each of the said areas numbered 1 to 14 in the said schedule to the National Health Service (Determination of Regional Hospital Areas) Order, 1946, for the purpose of exercising functions with respect to the administration of hospital and specialist services. [1107]

3. The regional hospital board for each of the said areas numbered 1 to 14 in column (1) of the schedule to this order shall be known by the title set out in column (2) of the said schedule opposite the number in column (1). [1108]

4. Each board shall consist of a chairman appointed by the Minister and such number of other members as is shown in column (3) of the schedule hereto opposite the number of the area ; and the said members shall be appointed in accordance with the provisions of Part I of the Third Schedule to the National Health Service Act, 1946. [1109]

5. The original chairmen and members of the said boards appointed in accordance with article 4 of this order shall be the following :—

NATIONAL HEALTH SERVICE (REGIONAL HOSPITAL BOARDS, ETC.) REGULATIONS, 1947

June 24, 1947

The Minister of Health, in exercise of his powers under sections 11 and 74 of and the Third Schedule to the National Health Service Act, 1946, and of all other powers enabling him in that behalf hereby makes the following regulations :—

1. These regulations may be cited as the National Health Service (Regional Hospital Boards, etc.) Regulations, 1947, and shall come into operation on the date hereof. [1112]

2.—(i) In these regulations “ the Act ” means the National Health Service Act, 1946, “ the Minister ” means the Minister of Health, “ hospital board ” means a regional hospital board, “ management committee ” means a hospital management committee and “ board of governors ” means a board of governors of a teaching hospital.

(ii) The Interpretation Act, 1889, applies to the interpretation of these regulations as it applies to the interpretation of an Act of Parliament. [1113]

3.—(i) One third, as near as may be, of the original members of a hospital board shall be appointed for a period ending on the 31st day of March, 1949, another third, as near as may be, for a period ending on the 31st day of March, 1950 and the remainder for a period ending on the 31st day of March, 1951.

(ii) Paragraph (i) of this regulation shall apply to the appointment of the original members of a management committee or a board of governors save that for the years 1949, 1950 and 1951 mentioned therein there shall be substituted respectively the years 1950, 1951 and 1952.

(iii) Subject as aforesaid the term of office of members of the said bodies shall be three years expiring on the 31st day of March in any year.

(iv) A member may resign on giving notice in writing to the Minister, or in the case of a member of a management committee, to the hospital board.

(v) A person appointed to fill a casual vacancy shall hold office for the remainder of the period for which his predecessor was appointed.

(vi) A member shall on the expiration of his term of office be eligible for re-appointment.

(vii) If a member has not attended a meeting of the board or committee to which he belongs or a committee or sub-committee thereof for a period of six months the Minister, or in case of a management committee the appropriate hospital board, shall unless satisfied that the absence was due to illness or other reasonable cause declare that his seat on the board or committee has become vacant.

(viii) Subject to paragraphs (ii), (iii) and (v) of the proviso to subsection (1) of section 59 of the Local Government Act, 1933, the provisions of paragraphs (b) and (e) of that subsection (which disqualify a person for being elected or being a member of a local authority if he has been adjudged bankrupt or made a composition or arrangement with his creditors or has been sentenced to imprisonment for not less than three months without the option of a fine) shall apply as if the section related to membership of a hospital board, management committee or board of governors.

(ix) A member, being either—

(a) A person who has held any paid appointment or office, or other place of profit in the disposal of a hospital board, management committee, board of governors, or local health authority and who has been dismissed from such appointment, office or other place of profit, or

(b) a person whose name has been included in any list prepared under Part IV of the Act, and whose name has been removed from the list under the provisions of section 42 of the Act, shall forthwith cease to be a member.

(x) A member, being either—

(a) A person who has held any paid appointment or office, or other place of profit in the disposal of a hospital board, management committee, board of governors or local health authority, and who has resigned from such appointment, office or other place of profit, or

(b) a person whose name has been included in any list prepared under Part IV of the Act, and whose name has been withdrawn from the list on his own application, shall, if the Minister so directs, forthwith cease to be a member.

(xi) If a hospital board, management committee, or board of governors shall pass a resolution that in their opinion the conduct of a member is prejudicial to the effective performance of the functions of the board or committee, that member shall, if the Minister so directs, cease to be a member.

4.—(i) A hospital board or a board of governors may, and if so directed by the Minister shall, appoint committees, and a management committee may, and if so directed by the Minister or the hospital board concerned shall, appoint sub-committees, in either case consisting wholly or partly of members of those bodies, for the exercise on their behalf of any of their functions, subject to such restrictions or conditions as they may think fit or as the Minister, or in the case of a management committee, the hospital board concerned may direct.

(ii) A body appointing a committee or sub-committee under this regulation, may, subject to such directions as may be given by the Minister or, in the case of a management committee by the hospital board concerned, make, vary and revoke standing orders respecting the quorum, proceedings and place of meeting of the committee or sub-committee, but subject to any such standing order the quorum, proceedings and place of meeting shall subject as aforesaid be such as the committee or sub-committee may determine. [1115]

5. The meetings and proceedings of a hospital board, management committee or board of governors shall be conducted in accordance with the rules set out in the schedule to these regulations. [1116]

SCHEDULE

RULES AS TO MEETINGS AND PROCEEDINGS OF HOSPITAL BOARDS, MANAGEMENT COMMITTEES AND BOARDS OF GOVERNORS

1. The first meeting shall be held on such day and at such place as may be fixed by the chairman, and shall be convened by him.

2. A vice-chairman may be elected who shall continue in office until the expiration of his term of membership.

3.—(i) At any meeting the chairman, if present, shall preside.

(ii) If the chairman is absent from the meeting the vice-chairman, if present, shall preside.

(iii) If both the chairman and vice-chairman are absent, such member as the members present shall choose shall preside.

4.—(i) The chairman may call a meeting at any time.

(ii) If the chairman refuses to call a meeting after a requisition for that purpose, signed by six members, has been presented to him, or if, without so refusing, the chairman does not call a meeting within seven days after such requisition has been presented to him, any six members may forthwith call a meeting.

(iii) Three clear days at least before a meeting, a summons to attend the meeting, specifying the business proposed to be transacted thereat, and signed by the chairman or by the secretary or clerk, shall be left at or sent by post to the usual place of residence of every member :

Provided that want of service of the summons on any member shall not affect the validity of a meeting :

Provided also that in the case of a meeting called by members in default of the chairman, the summons shall be signed by those members and no business shall be transacted at the meeting other than that specified in the summons.

5. Every question at a meeting shall be determined by a majority of the votes of the members present and voting on the question and, in the case of an equality of votes, the person presiding at the meeting shall have a second or casting vote.

6. The names of the members present at a meeting shall be recorded.

7. No business shall be transacted at a meeting unless at least one-fourth of the whole number of members are present.

8. The minutes of the proceedings of a meeting shall be drawn up and entered in a book kept for that purpose and shall be signed at the same or next ensuing meeting by the person presiding thereat, and any minute purporting to be so signed shall be received in evidence without further proof.

Act, 1908, shall apply to the meetings of a hospital board as they apply to the meetings of a local authority as defined by that Act.

10. A hospital board, management committee or board of governors shall make, and may vary or revoke standing orders for the regulation of their proceedings and business, which shall in particular include provision that, subject to such exceptions and qualifications as may be specified in the standing orders, if a member has any pecuniary interest, direct or indirect, in any contract or proposed contract or other matter and is present at a meeting at which the contract or other matter is the subject of consideration he shall at the meeting as soon as practicable after the commencement thereof, disclose the fact and shall not take part in the consideration or discussion of, or vote on any question with respect to, the contract or other matter. [1117]

EXPLANATORY NOTE

(This Note is not part of the Regulations, but is intended to indicate their general purport.)

The regulations provide for the appointment and term of office of members of Regional Hospital Boards, Hospital Management Committees and Boards of Governors of teaching hospitals and for the proceedings of their meetings.

NATIONAL HEALTH SERVICE (TRAVELLING ALLOWANCES, ETC.) REGULATIONS, 1947

S. R. & O., 1947, No. 1330

June 26, 1947

The Minister of Health, in pursuance of his powers under the National Health Service Act, 1946, hereby makes the following regulations :—

1. These regulations may be cited as the National Health Service (Travelling Allowances, etc.) Regulations, 1947, and shall come into operation on the date hereof. [1118]

2.—(1) In these regulations, unless the context otherwise requires, the expression “Minister” means the Minister of Health, and the expression “the Act” means the National Health Service Act, 1946.

(2) The Interpretation Act, 1889, applies to the interpretation of these regulations as it applies to the interpretation of an Act of Parliament. [1119]

3.—(1) The following bodies constituted under the Act, namely the Regional Hospital Boards, the Hospital Management Committees, the Boards of Governors of Teaching Hospitals and the Executive Councils, may make to their members or to the members of any committee thereof, and in the case of an Executive Council to the members of the Ophthalmic Services Committee payments in respect of loss of remunerative time in accordance with the rules contained in Part I of the Schedule hereto, payments in respect of travelling expenses in accordance with the rules contained in Part II of the said Schedule and payments in respect of subsistence expenses in accordance with the rules contained in Part III of the said Schedule :

Provided that payments in respect of travelling and subsistence expenses shall not be made by a Regional Hospital Board, a Hospital Management Committee, or a Board of Governors of a Teaching Hospital, unless the Minister shall be of the opinion that the special circumstances of the Board or Committee justify such payments and notify the Board or Committee accordingly :

Provided further that payments in respect of travelling and subsistence expenses shall not be made by an Executive Council unless the Minister shall be of the opinion that the special circumstances of the area of the Council justify such payments and notify that Council accordingly.

(2) Any reference in this regulation and in the Schedule hereto to a committee of a body shall be deemed where that body is itself a committee to be a reference to a sub-committee thereof. [1120]

4.—(1) The Minister may pay to the members of the Tribunal constituted under section 42 of the Act, to the members of the Medical Practices Committee and to the members of the Dental Estimates Board such remuneration for their services as he may, with the consent of the Treasury, determine, and may make to such members payments in respect of travelling and subsistence allowances in accordance with the rules contained in Parts II and III of the Schedule hereto.

(2) The Minister may make to members of the Central Health Services Council or any committee thereof and of any Standing Advisory Committee or any sub-committee thereof, payments in respect of loss of remunerative time in accordance with the rules contained in Part I of the Schedule hereto, payments in respect of travelling expenses in accordance with the Rules contained in Part II of the said Schedule and payments in respect of subsistence expenses in accordance with the rules contained in Part III of the said Schedule. [1121]

5. The making of any payment under these regulations shall be conditional on—

(a) certification by the member—

- (i) that, so far as travelling and subsistence allowances are concerned, the expenses were actually and necessarily incurred whilst engaged on the business of the National Health Service, and
- (ii) that any claim for payment in respect of loss of remunerative time is in respect of actual financial loss sustained whilst engaged on the business of the National Health Service ;

and on—

(b) the observance of such conditions as the body authorised to make the payment may, in their discretion or on the Minister's direction, call for or impose. [1122]

SCHEDULE

PART I

Rules with respect to payments for loss of remunerative time

The sum paid shall not exceed such amount as is required to indemnify a member against loss of remunerative time in attending meetings of the body or any committee thereof or incurred on business approved by the body or committee to which the member belongs and shall in no case exceed 20s. for any one day of 24 hours. [1123]

PART II

Rules with respect to the payment of travelling expenses

1. The payment shall be made in respect of expenses incurred by a member in attending meetings of the body or committee to which the member belongs or in travelling on business approved by the body or committee.

2. Except as provided in paragraph 7 below the sum paid shall not exceed the amount disbursed by the member.

3. First-class fares shall be payable but members shall take the fullest possible advantage of any available cheap fares.

4. Subject as provided in the next following paragraph, taxi or car fares shall not be paid if an adequate public service is available but a member using a taxi or cab shall be entitled to claim the sum he would have been paid had he travelled by such a service.

5. Taxi or cab fares shall be payable in cases of urgency or in other cases in which transport is reasonably required and an adequate public service is not available.

6. A member making an overnight journey by rail and engaging sleeping car accommodation may receive the cost but any subsistence allowances payable to him for that night shall be reduced by one-third.

7. If the member uses his private motor vehicle in circumstances which involve a substantial saving in his time and are otherwise reasonable, or where it is in the interests of the body that the member should use his private motor vehicle in preference to a public service, the following mileage allowances shall be payable :—

Motors cars 6d. a mile for the first 2,880 miles in any year and thereafter 3d. a mile.

Tri-cars 3d. a mile for all mileage covered.

Motor cycles (with or without side-cars) 2½d. a mile.

Motor-assisted pedal cycles and vehicles of similar type 1½d. a mile.

If a member uses a private motor vehicle in circumstances where travel by a public service would be appropriate, a mileage allowance of 1½d. a mile shall be payable, irrespective of the type of vehicle.

Where other members are conveyed in the same vehicle on the business of the National Health Service, and where their fares by a public service would otherwise be payable under these regulations, an allowance of ½d. a mile for each passenger carried shall be payable.

8. In this part of this Schedule "public service" refers to railways, steamships, omnibuses and tramways. [1124]

PART III

Rules with respect to the payment of subsistence allowances

1. An allowance not exceeding 30s. shall be payable in respect of each night when a member is necessarily absent from his home or place of business on the business of the body or committee. The allowance shall be reduced to 25s. 6d. a night after the first seven nights at one place, and any case in which a member is likely to spend, or does spend, more than 28 nights in one place shall be reported to the Minister who shall fix a special rate in accordance with the circumstances.

2. A night allowance shall be deemed to cover a single period of absence of 24 hours.

3. A day allowance in respect of duties not involving a night's absence shall be payable at the rate of 3s. 6d. when a member is necessarily absent from his home or place of business for more than five hours but not more than eight hours and at the rate of 8s. 4d. when his absence exceeds eight hours. ## NATIONAL HEALTH SERVICE (MENTAL DEFICIENCY) AMENDMENT REGULATIONS, 1947

S. R. & O., 1947, No. 1359

June 30, 1947

The Minister of Health, in exercise of the powers conferred on him by the Mental Deficiency Acts, 1913 to 1938, hereby makes the following regulations :—

1.—(1) These regulations may be cited as the National Health Service

(Mental Deficiency) Amendment Regulations, 1947, and shall come into operation on the first day of July, 1947.

(2) The Interpretation Act, 1889, applies to the interpretation of these regulations as it applies to the interpretation of an Act of Parliament. [1126]

2. The Mental Deficiency Regulations, 1935, shall be amended in manner following :—

- (1) At the end of paragraph (1) of regulation 3 there shall be added the definition “ ‘ the Minister ’ means the Minister of Health ’.
- (2) The word “ Minister ” shall be substituted for the word “ Board ” in regulations 10, 12, 22, 23, 24, 25, 27, 29, 31, 32, 34, paragraphs (1) and (2) of 46, 54, 56, 58, 60, 80 and 86.
- (3) In paragraph (4) of regulation 46 the words “ the Minister ” shall be inserted immediately before the words “ the Board ” where the latter words first occur, and the words “ the Minister or ” shall be inserted immediately before the words “ the Board ” where those words occur elsewhere in the said paragraph.
- (4) The words “ the Minister or ” shall be inserted before the words “ the Board ” in regulation 79.
- (5) Sub-paragraph (h) of paragraph (1) of regulation 42 shall be rescinded and at the end of the regulation there shall be added the following paragraphs :—

“ (3) The superintendent of an institution or certified house shall, where weekly returns are not required by the Minister, send to him immediate notice of the outbreak of any infectious disease and its nature and, where weekly returns are required by the Minister, immediate notice of any outbreak of any infectious disease of exceptional severity or unusual character.

(4) The superintendent shall, if so required by the Minister, furnish him with copies of all entries or of any particular entry in any official book relative to a patient who is or has been resident.”

- (6) The words “ Minister of Health ” shall be substituted for the words “ Board of Control ” in Forms A1, A2, A3, C1, C2, C3, C4, C5, C6, P4 and P5 in the Schedule.
- (7) For the attestation clauses in Forms A2, C2 and C5, there shall be substituted the following clause :—
“ Given under the official seal of the Minister of Health this day of ”.
- (8) Words in the singular shall be substituted for words in the plural so far as may be necessary in consequence of the provisions of this regulation. [1127]

EXPLANATORY NOTE

(This Note is not part of the Regulations, but is intended to indicate their general purport.)

The Regulations make such amendment of the Mental Deficiency Regulations, 1935, as is required by reason of the transfer of functions from the Board of Control to the Minister of Health by Part V of the National Health Service Act, 1946.

NATIONAL HEALTH SERVICE (MENTAL TREATMENT) AMENDMENT RULES, 1947

S. R. & O., 1947, No. 1360

July 1, 1947

The Board of Control, in exercise of the powers conferred on them by subsection (1) of section 388 of the Lunacy Act, 1890, as extended by section 15 of the Mental Treatment Act, 1930, and amended by section 50 of the National Health Service Act, 1946, and with the approval of the Minister of Health, and the concurrence of the Lord Chancellor, hereby make the following rules :—

1.—(1) These rules may be cited as the National Health Service (Mental Treatment) Amendment Rules, 1947, and shall come into operation on the first day of July, 1947.

(2) The Interpretation Act, 1889, applies to the Interpretation of these rules as it applies to the interpretation of an Act of Parliament. [1128]

2. The Mental Treatment Rules, 1930, shall be amended in manner following :—

- (1) Immediately after the definition of “ medical officer ” in rule 2 there shall be inserted the following definition :—“ Minister ” means the Minister of Health ’.
- (2) The expression “ the Minister ” shall be substituted for the expression “ the Board ” wherever the latter occurs in rules 11, 92, 128, 129, 130, 131 and 132.
- (3) The words “ Minister or the ” shall be inserted immediately before the word “ Board ” wherever that word occurs in rules 78, 90 and 91.
- (4) The expression “ the Minister ” shall be substituted for the word “ them ” in paragraph (2) of rule 92.
- (5) The expression “ the Minister of Health ” shall be substituted for the expression “ the Board of Control ” in Forms 3, 4 (17th Column) and 5 in the Schedule. [1129]

SIR,

NATIONAL HEALTH SERVICE ACT, 1946

Health Services to be provided by Local Health Authorities under Part III of the Act

Ambulance Service (Section 27)

- (i) Combination with Fire Service
- (ii) Police Ambulances

1. With reference to paragraphs 17 and 19 of Circular 66/47 of 3rd April last, in which it was stated that further guidance would be given to Local Health Authorities about (i) the combination of the Ambulance Service with the Fire Service ; and (ii) Police Ambulances, I am directed by the Minister of Health to submit the following observations :—

2. Combination with Fire Service.—It is understood that, subject to the decision of Parliament on the Fire Services Bill which is now under consideration, the transfer of the Fire Service to County Councils and County Borough Councils will probably take effect before 5th July, 1948, which is likely to be the appointed day for the purposes of the National Health Service Act. As indicated in paragraph 17 of Circular 66/47, it is for the Local Health Authority to decide whether they will include complete or partial combination of the Ambulance Service with the Fire Service in the proposals they submit under Section 27 of the National Health Service Act. Whether such combination would make for the efficiency of the Ambulance Service will, no doubt, depend largely on local circumstances. There is an obvious similarity between the two services in that both require vehicles, stations and a call system which have to be manned day and night ; and complete or almost complete combination of the two services should normally result in a saving of manpower and, save in exceptional circumstances, in each service providing a useful reserve for the other. (It would of course be necessary that the total personnel establishment should be sufficient to cover the reasonable needs of both services.) On the other hand, complete combination would imply that the ambulance drivers and attendants would be members of the Fire Service and would thus have to satisfy the same physical requirements (which some existing ambulance personnel would be unable to do), undergo the same training, and be subject to the same conditions of employment as firemen ; and partial combination resulting in the use of the same officers, stations and call system for both services, but leaving the ambulance drivers and attendants as a separate establishment, might give rise to difficulties in control and discipline, especially if the ambulance drivers and attendants were subject to different conditions of employment from the firemen. It is for the Local Health Authority to determine, in the light of their local knowledge and experience, whether the advantages of combination (complete or partial) outweigh the disadvantages. For his part, the Minister will be prepared favourably to consider proposals involving combination if the Local Health Authority are satisfied that this would make for efficiency and would not lead to the Ambulance Service being regarded as a subsidiary of the Fire Service and, therefore, of secondary importance.

3. It is realised that the Local Health Authority's proposals under Section 27 are due to be submitted to the Minister before the Fire Services Bill becomes law, and that any suggested combination of the services must be expressed to be contingent on the transfer of the Fire Service to the County Council or County Borough Council ; it is also realised that until the constitution of the Fire Brigade Committee, and the appointment of a Chief Fire Brigade Officer, detailed arrangements for combination cannot be formulated. If, therefore, the Local Health Authority proposes to operate its Ambulance Service in combination with the Fire Service, it will be sufficient to indicate, in reply to paragraph 1 of Part II of Appendix B to Circular 66/47, that it is the Authority's intention to combine the services, and to give in broad outline the degree of combination proposed. It will, however, be necessary to state at which stations and in what numbers ambulances and sitting-case cars will be provided, and to this end the Council should at once consult with the Chief Regional Fire Officers of the National Fire Service to whom a communication is being sent from the Home Office. Subsequently, when the arrangements have been worked out in detail, full particulars will need to be communicated to the Minister.

4. If, however, the Local Health Authority desire to defer consideration of the question of combining the two services and, in the meantime, to organise existing resources into a separate Ambulance Service for an interim period, the submission of that part of the proposals which describes the Development Plan—paragraph 2 of Part II of Appendix B to Circular 66/47—may be deferred until a decision has been arrived at, provided that the interim period does not exceed twelve months from the appointed day for the purposes of the National Health Service Act.

5. Police Ambulances.—As foreshadowed in paragraph 19 of Circular 66/47, the Minister has agreed with the Secretary of State that it is desirable that all ambulances at present operated by the Police should be transferred to the Local Health Authority with effect from the appointed day for the purposes of the National Health Service Act. It will not be possible for the Police to transfer the staff at present operating these ambulances, except perhaps in cases where this staff are not members of the Police Force. In cases where non-Police Ambulance drivers and attendants are served by the employing authority with notice of dismissal it will be for the Local Health Authority to offer re-employment in their service as from the appointed day.

6. No financial adjustment, other than the transfer of outstanding loan debt, if any, in respect of ambulances and associated equipment transferred will be involved between the Police account and the Local Health Authority's account. [1130]

SIR,

NATIONAL HEALTH SERVICE ACT, 1946. ADMINISTRATION OF HOSPITAL SERVICES AFTER THE APPOINTED DAY—AGENCY ARRANGEMENTS WITH LOCAL AUTHORITIES

1. I am directed by the Minister of Health to inform you that he has been considering, in order to effect a smooth transition when responsibility for administering the hospital service is transferred to the Boards on the appointed day (5th July, 1948), what arrangements should be made in those cases where local authorities have wholly or partly centralised their hospital services. The Minister is aware that a number of local authorities have, to a greater or less extent, centralised arrangements for the provision of certain of these services, in particular such branches as supply, accounting and the maintenance of premises and land; and he understands that these authorities and the Regional Hospitals Boards would each welcome early information on the position likely to arise on the appointed day.

2. Responsibility for the control and management of the hospital services, including the kinds of services which may have been centralised as above, will—except in the case of teaching hospitals—rest on and from the appointed day with the Hospital Management Committees to be constituted under section 11 of the Act, as agents of the Regional Hospital Boards. But it is unlikely that the Management Committees will be appointed before the early part of next year and they would therefore find very considerable difficulty, in the short time then available before the appointed day, in completing arrangements for the provision on a different basis of services not hitherto localised in the hospitals themselves.

3. It is therefore proposed that the Regional Boards, or the Management Committee as their agents, and the local authorities should together arrange by agreement for the latter to continue to operate, on an agency basis, any existing centralised services for hospital purposes for an interim period (in the first instance for the nine months from the appointed day to the 31st March, 1949), whenever they find this the best and simplest course. The Minister would be glad if local authorities would then proceed on this basis in considering questions of staffing, the ordering of supplies, etc., and would assist Regional Hospital Boards or Management Committees wishing to make interim arrangements of this nature. The full cost of any agency services so provided, including overhead expenses, should of course be reimbursed, on the principle that there would be neither a loss nor a profit to the general rate or county fund.

4. Local authorities with whom agency arrangements are made will no doubt require to retain for the period the services of some of the staff due normally to be transferred to the Regional Boards under section 68 of the National Health Service Act. These officers, to protect their rights under that section, will be transferred on the appointed day to the employment of the Boards, but the Boards will be asked to arrange for them to remain for the time being seconded to the service of the local authorities. This arrangement will also no doubt assist the local authorities to complete their own accounts for the period to the appointed day and to wind up other transferred functions : but it will then entail, when officers are so employed, an apportionment of costs between the general rate or county fund and the Exchequer.

5. Joint Boards, including Mental Hospital Boards, are due to be dissolved on the appointed day by section 78 (1), but the Minister would be glad if they also would proceed on the basis that centrally provided services will continue to be provided by the present machinery under the control of the Regional Hospital Board or Boards to which their functions will be transferred, if those Boards so desire. S. 14 (1) of the same Act defines war service as service of specified kinds during the period of the present emergency.

In view of the changes of system introduced by the present Act, the Minister of Health is empowered to specify a limiting date, but it is important to note that the date in question is the date when a person's service in his civil capacity ceased ; that is to say, while pay may no longer be made up in the case of persons whose service in a civil capacity ceased after the specified date, there would appear to be no bar to continuing the make-up of pay after the specified date to persons ceasing to serve in a civil capacity before that date.

SIR,

REDUCTION OF LOCAL AUTHORITY STAFFS

I am directed by the Minister of Health to draw the attention of your authority to the Economic Survey for 1947 (Cmd. 7046), in which the Government sets out its conclusions on the economic state of the nation, and fixed targets and objectives for 1947. The White Paper pointed out that one of the main problems was to expand the nation's labour force, to increase its output per man-year and, above all, to get men and women where they were needed most. To carry out the national objectives set out in the White Paper, a reduction between December, 1946 and December, 1947 of 80,000 was assumed in the number employed in national and local government.

2. The Government are taking steps to reduce the increasing demands made by the civil staffs of Government Departments on national manpower, so far as possible without detriment to the discharge of the duties resulting from Government policy. They consider that similar action should be taken in the local government service.

3. The Minister accordingly invites your authority to undertake an immediate review of the organisation and staffing of all departments and services for the administration of which they are responsible, with the object of effecting all possible economies and making the fullest practicable reduction in the numbers employed. The Government have found that in the field of Central Government the need for action to improve management and organisation is continuous, and they are energetically pursuing administrative economies wherever practicable. They consider that, notwithstanding improvements already effected, there may be scope in the field of local government for similar action, e.g., in improved methods of working within departments, in inter-changeability of staffs between departments and in amalgamation of departments which had hitherto been organised as separate units. Other methods will no doubt occur to the authority according to the circumstances of the particular department or service. The recruitment of new staff to replace those retiring or resigning should not be undertaken unless and until it is clear beyond any doubt that the employment of new staff is essential.

4. The Government recognises that local authorities are being called upon to undertake a substantial amount of work in connection with the planning and execution of services which constitute essential parts of the national reconstruction programme, and that the amount of progress which can be made is largely conditioned by the availability of staff. Every endeavour will accordingly be made, in carrying out the Government's policy, to limit the demands made upon local authorities to what is reasonable, and it is the desire of the Government to simplify as far as possible the administrative arrangements as between the Departments and the local authorities in connection with these services. The Association of Local Authorities are being consulted as to the most effective means of securing this object.

5. The Minister will be glad to be informed as soon as possible, and in any case not later than 31st July next, of the result of your authority's review, and, in particular, to be furnished with a statement showing the total number of staff employed by them on the 31st March, 1947, and the total numbers they budget to employ on the 30th September, 1947, and the 31st March, 1948, respectively. Forestry Act, 1947

STATUTES

FORESTRY ACT, 1947

(10 & 11 Geo. 6, c. 21)

PRELIMINARY NOTE

The principal purpose of the Forestry Act, 1947, which received the Royal Assent on March 27, 1947, is to implement a scheme for the dedication of land for timber production. This Note and the annotation that follows sets out the position in England and Wales.

The importance to the country of its resources of growing timber became apparent as a result of the 1914-1918 war, during which very heavy felling operations took place. Replanting had not, however, replaced the serious depletion of our forests before further heavy felling began again in 1939. During the Second World War approximately 50 per cent. of the country's standing timber was felled, the greater proportion of which came from private woodlands, since the land planted by the Forestry Commission, established in 1919, had not had time to come into production to any large extent. As a result, there is a serious shortage of nationally-grown timber which threatens not only the post-war building programme, but also, in the event of future war, national security.

To deal with this situation, the Forestry Commissioners in their report on Post-War Forest Policy (Cmd. 6447) stated that they considered necessary a policy of large-scale and systematic forestry, which would gradually raise the acreage of woods and forests in Great Britain from the present two million acres to a total of five million acres by the end of the century. They proposed, as one of the methods of implementing such a policy, the adoption of a scheme for the dedication of private woodlands to timber production, the scheme being designed to encourage owners to replant their lands. Details of the proposed scheme were worked out by the Commissioners in consultation with representatives of the societies and associations interested in woodlands and are set out in the Supplementary Report presented by the Commissioners (Cmd. 6500) which was accepted by the Government.

The basis of the scheme is that, in return for an owner dedicating his land to the growing of timber and entering into certain undertakings, namely, to use the land primarily for timber production, to work to an approved plan, to employ skilled supervision and to keep adequate accounts, there should be State assistance both in the form of advice and of grants or loans. Preliminary inquiries made by the Commissioners to ascertain the number of woodland owners likely to enter into dedication covenants showed offers on behalf of 590 persons relating to a total of 329,500 acres, consisting of 205,000 acres in England, 113,000 acres in Scotland and 11,500 acres in Wales.

A legal essential of the scheme is that it should be possible for land to be dedicated in perpetuity for growing timber, and that the dedication should be enforceable against successors in title of the dedicating owner. This is effected by s. 1 of the present Act by an application of the law as to the enforcement of restrictive covenants. Limited owners, of course, may not have power to dedicate land in perpetuity, and accordingly s. 2 confers powers to do this on certain classes of limited owners.

The Act does not control the working of the plan of operations, although reference is made in s. 5 (1) to that plan. The intention is that an act of dedication by an owner shall include his entering into an undertaking "to work to a plan, to be approved by the forest authority, which will lay down the main operation to be undertaken" (Cmd. 6500, paragraph 8 (2)). Thus the mutual rights and obligations of the parties as to forestry work rest upon the undertaking by the dedicating owner and not upon the Act. These obligations are not made to run with the land, but failure to observe them may be followed by exercise of the power of compulsory acquisition conferred by the Forestry Act, 1945, s. 4 (38 Halsbury's Statutes 18). The effect of s. 5 (1) of the present Act is merely to except from the scope of the power of compulsory acquisition land subject to a forestry dedication covenant in respect of which the plan of operations is observed.

It is very material to owners to consider the deductions that are to be made from the compensation payable if the power of compulsory acquisition is exercised in relation to land subject to a forestry dedication covenant. These deductions extend to advances by way of grant, as distinct from loans, made by the Commissioners after the passing of the Act or within two years thereof, except any advances made more than thirty years before the date of service of the notice to treat. In addition to the capital amount of the advances, compound interest also is deductible, calculated from the date of the advance at 3 per cent. per annum with yearly rests. The method of recovery of these advances and interest is limited to deduction from compensation on compulsory purchase (s. 6). Provision is made for determining by arbitration any question as to whether or not there has been a breach of a plan of operation (s. 5 (2)).

The form of State assistance to be given to a dedicating owner was described by the Joint Parliamentary Secretary to the Ministry of Agriculture and Fisheries on the Second Reading of the Bill in the House of Lords, as follows :—

"The owner can choose between two forms of financial assistance. Under Basis I he would receive 25 per cent. of the approved net annual expenditure on the dedicated woodlands. This payment would stop when the woodlands were self-supporting. Under Basis II he would receive £10 per acre for every acre planted or replanted, whether with hardwoods or softwoods. This rate of grant for planting would come up for reconsideration in five years' time, according to the conditions then obtaining. In addition, under Basis II there would be a maintenance grant for fifteen years for new plantations. This would be at the rate of 3s. 4d. per acre per annum for five years from now, and it would be reconsidered in the light of the circumstances then obtaining. Further, a similar maintenance grant will be payable from the date of dedication in respect of all productive woodlands other than new plantations already mentioned. For these schemes of replanting a plan of operation would be drawn up by the owner and would be approved, if suitable, by the Forestry Commission. These plans would of course have to be followed. Loans can be made available on both bases up to an amount to be fixed with reference to individual circumstances. Each loan, with compound interest at 3 per cent. per annum, would be repayable by annual instalments over a fixed period"

An Act to provide for the dedication of land to forestry purposes; for the deduction from compensation of grants made by the Forestry Commissioners in the event of compulsory purchase of the land in respect of which the grants were made; and for the execution on behalf of the Secretary of State of instruments relating to land placed at the disposal of the Forestry Commissioners. [1138]

Forestry dedication covenants (England)

1. Forestry dedication covenants and enforcement thereof.—(1) In this Act the expression “forestry dedication covenant” means a covenant entered into with the Forestry Commissioners (in this Act referred to as “the Commissioners”) to the effect that land shall not, except with the previous consent in writing of the Commissioners or, in case of dispute, under direction of the Minister of Agriculture and Fisheries, be used otherwise than for the growing of timber (within the meaning of section three of the Forestry Act, 1919) in accordance with the rules or practice of good forestry or for purposes connected therewith, being a covenant not containing any expression of intention contrary to the application of section seventy-nine of the Law of Property Act, 1925 (which provides that, unless a contrary intention is expressed, a covenant relating to any land of a covenantor or capable of being bound by him shall be deemed to be made by the covenantor on behalf of himself or his successors in title and the persons deriving title under him or them). [1139]

(2) As respects the enforcement of a forestry dedication covenant against persons other than the covenantor the Commissioners shall have the like rights as if they had at all material times been the absolute owners in possession of ascertained land adjacent to the land in respect of which the covenant is sought to be enforced and capable of being benefited by the covenant, and the covenant had been expressed to be for the benefit of that adjacent land. [1140]

(3) Section eighty-four of the Law of Property Act, 1925 (which confers power to discharge or modify restrictive covenants) shall not apply to a forestry dedication covenant. [1141]

(4) This section shall not extend to Scotland. [1142]

Effect of section.—See Preliminary Note, ante.

Forestry Commissioners.—The Forestry Commissioners were originally appointed under the Forestry Act, 1919, s. 1 (3 Halsbury's Statutes 443), but since the passing of the Forestry Act, 1945 (38 Halsbury's Statutes 16), which provided for the reconstitution of the Forestry Commission, they have been appointed under s. 1 of that Act. They are appointed by His Majesty to a maximum number of ten, including the chairman. At least three of their number are to have special knowledge and experience of forestry and at least one is to have scientific attainments and a technical knowledge of forestry.

Direction of the Minister of Agriculture and Fisheries.—The words “or, in case of dispute, under direction of the Minister of Agriculture and Fisheries” were inserted by an amendment moved by the Government on the Report stage of the Bill in the House of Lords. This was done as a result of the views expressed in Committee that to provide that consent to the user of dedicated land for purposes other than the growing of timber might be granted only by the Forestry Commissioners was unduly restrictive. It was argued that since the interest of the Commissioners was confined to the growing of timber they would be unlikely to consent to a proposal for a change of user which, regarded from a wider aspect, might be highly desirable in the light of some other national or economic interest. The amendment accordingly provides that in the event of a dispute as to change of user the matter may be determined by a direction of the Minister of Agriculture and Fisheries. It may be noted that, by the Forestry Act, 1945, s. 2 (38 Halsbury's Statutes 17), the Commissioners are, in exercising their functions, to comply with any directions given by the Minister.

Sub-s. (2).—The effect of this subsection is to make forestry dedication covenants enforceable as if they were restrictive covenants the benefit and burden of which run with the land under the equitable doctrine of Tulk v. Moxhay (1848), 2 Ph. 774; 40 Digest 313, 2667. The subsection may be compared with other statutory provisions designed to make covenants run with the land; see the Town and Country Planning Act, 1932, s. 34 (2) (25 Halsbury's Statutes 506), the Town and Country Planning Act, 1944, s. 3 (4) (37 Halsbury's Statutes 428), and the Water Act, 1945, s. 15 (2) (38 Halsbury's Statutes 507). The essential elements necessary to the enforcement of restrictive covenants under the general law were stated by FARWELL, J., in Zetland (Marquis) v. Driver, [1939] Ch. 1, at p. 8; [1938] 2 All E. R. 158, at p. 161, as follows:—

"Firstly they must be negative covenants. No affirmative covenant requiring the expenditure of money, or the doing of some act, can ever be made to run with the land. Secondly, the covenant must be one that touches or concerns the land, by which is meant that it must be imposed for the benefit, or to enhance the value, of the land retained by the vendor, or some part of it, and no such covenant can ever be imposed if the sale comprises the whole of the vendor's land. Further, the land retained by the vendor must be such as to be capable of being benefited by the covenant at the time when it is imposed. Thirdly, the land which is intended to be so benefited must be so defined as to be easily ascertainable, and the fact that the covenant is imposed for the benefit of that particular land should be stated in the conveyance and the person or the class of persons entitled to enforce it should also be so stated. The fact that the benefit of the covenant is not intended to pass to all persons into whose hands the unsold land may come is not objectionable, so long as the class of persons intended to have the benefit of the covenants is clearly defined. Finally, it must be remembered that those covenants can only be enforced so long as the covenantee or his successor in title retains some part of the land for the benefit of which the covenant was imposed."

As to restrictive covenants generally, see 29 Halsbury's Laws (2nd Edn.) 441 and Cheshire's Modern Law of Real Property (5th Edn.), at pp. 301 et seq.

Forestry Act, 1919, s. 3.—3 Halsbury's Statutes 446. "Timber" is defined in that section as including all forest products.

Law of Property Act, 1925, ss. 79, 84.—15 Halsbury's Statutes 257, 260. S. 79 provides that "a covenant . . . be deemed to be made by the covenantor on behalf of himself his successors in title and the persons deriving title. . . ." The insertion of the word "or" between "himself" and "his" in the last sentence of sub-s. (1), ante, which summarises s. 79 is, presumably, an error. S. 84 empowers one or more of the Official Arbitrators appointed for the purposes of the Acquisition of Land (Assessment of Compensation) Act, 1919 (2 Halsbury's Statutes 1176), to discharge or modify a restrictive covenant where by reason of changes in the character of the property or of the neighbourhood or other material circumstances the covenant ought to be deemed obsolete or where its continued existence would impede the reasonable user of land for public or private purposes without securing practical benefits to other persons. As to restrictive covenants generally, see note to sub-s. (2), supra.

2. Power of tenants for life, etc., to enter into forestry dedication covenants.—(1) A tenant for life may enter into a forestry dedication covenant relating to the settled land or any part thereof either for consideration or gratuitously, and—

- (a) this subsection shall be construed as one with the Settled Land Act, 1925;
- (b) that Act, and section twenty-eight of the Law of Property Act, 1925 (which confers the powers of a tenant for life on trustees for sale), shall apply as if the power conferred by this subsection had been conferred by that Act; and
- (c) for the purposes of section seventy-two of that Act (which relates to the mode of giving effect to a disposition by a tenant for life and to the operation thereof) and of any other relevant statutory provision, entering into a forestry dedication covenant shall be treated as a disposition. [1143]

(2) A university or college to which the Universities and College Estates Act, 1925, applies may enter into a forestry dedication covenant relating to any land belonging to it either for consideration or gratuitously, and that Act shall apply as if the power conferred by this subsection had been conferred by that Act. [1144]

(3) Where land is glebe land or other land belonging to an ecclesiastical benefice, the incumbent of the benefice, and, where land is part of the endowment of any other ecclesiastical corporation, the ecclesiastical corporation, may with the consent of the Ecclesiastical Commissioners enter into a forestry dedication covenant relating to the land either for consideration or gratuitously, and the Ecclesiastical Leasing Acts shall apply as if the power conferred by this subsection had been conferred by those Acts, except that the consent of the patron of an ecclesiastical benefice shall not be requisite. [1145]

(4) This section shall not extend to Scotland. [1146]

Effect of section.—This section empowers certain classes of persons having only limited powers of disposal of land to enter into forestry dedication covenants.

Forestry dedication covenant.—For definition of this expression, see s. 1 (1), ante.

Settled Land Act, 1925.—17 Halsbury's Statutes 833. For s. 72 thereof, see 17 Halsbury's Statutes 904.

Law of Property Act, 1925, s. 28.—15 Halsbury's Statutes 203.

Universities and College Estates Act, 1925.—7 Halsbury's Statutes 87. By s. 1 of that Act the universities and colleges to which the Act applies are the Universities of Oxford, Cambridge and Durham, and the colleges or halls in those universities and the Colleges of Saint Mary of Winchester, near Winchester, and of King Henry the Sixth at Eton, and for the purposes of that Act the Cathedral or House of Christ Church in Oxford is to be considered a college in the University of Oxford. The Act of 1925 confers on the universities and colleges mentioned powers of dealing with land in many respects similar to those conferred on a tenant for life by the Settled Land Act, 1925.

Glebe land.—This expression is defined by the Glebe Lands Act, 1888, s. 12 (6 Halsbury's Statutes 910), as including any manor, land or tenement forming the endowment or part of the endowment of a benefice.

Ecclesiastical Leasing Acts.—These are the Ecclesiastical Leasing Acts of 1842 and 1858 (6 Halsbury's Statutes 833, 875); see s. 13 of the Act of 1858 (6 Halsbury's Statutes 880). They have been extended by the Cathedral (Houses of Residence) Measure, 1936, s. 2 (i) (29 Halsbury's Statutes 105), and extended and modified by the Ecclesiastical Commissioners (Powers) Measure, 1936, ss. 4–8 (29 Halsbury's Statutes 110–112).

Consent of the patron of an ecclesiastical benefice.—S. 20 of the Ecclesiastical Leasing Act, 1842 (6 Halsbury's Statutes 843) provides that leases and grants made under that Act, which by s. 12 of the Act of 1858 (6 Halsbury's Statutes 880) is to be construed with the latter Act, are to be made with the consent of the Ecclesiastical Commissioners and with such further consents as are mentioned in the said s. 20. These further consents are, in the case of a lease or grant by an incumbent of a benefice, the consent of the patron, and in the case of certain leases or grants of copyhold land, the consent of the lord of the manor. With the enfranchisement of copyholds, however, by the Law of Property Act, 1922, s. 128 (3 Halsbury's Statutes 633), the consent of the lord of the manor became no longer necessary (see Sched. XII to the Act of 1922). Sub-s. (3), ante, which empowers ecclesiastical corporations to enter into forestry dedication covenants as if they were so empowered by the Ecclesiastical Leasing Acts, retains the requirement that the consent of the Ecclesiastical Commissioners shall be given thereto, but expressly provides that the consent of the patron of a benefice shall not be required.

Ecclesiastical Commissioners.—On April 1, 1948, the day appointed by the Archbishop of Canterbury, the Ecclesiastical Commissioners were dissolved, and their functions, rights and privileges transferred to the Church Commissioners for England established under the Church Commissioners Measure, 1947 (see s. 2 thereof).

Forestry dedication agreements (Scotland)

3–4. Application to Scotland. [1147]

Miscellaneous, short title, etc.

5. Restriction on compulsory acquisition of dedicated land.—(1) Nothing in section four of the Forestry Act, 1945, shall authorise the compulsory acquisition of any land as to which a forestry dedication covenant or agreement is in force and which is being used and managed in accordance with the provisions and conditions of a plan of operations approved by the Commissioners. [1148]

(2) Any question arising under this section whether there has been a breach of any of the provisions and conditions of a plan of operations shall be referred to the determination of an arbitrator appointed by the President for the time being of the Royal Institution of Chartered Surveyors, and such a breach shall not be treated as having occurred by virtue of any act or omission capable of remedy unless there has been default in remedying it within a reasonable time after notice given by the Commissioners requiring the remedy thereof. [1149]

(3) In the application of this section to Scotland there shall be substituted, for the reference to an arbitrator appointed by the President of the Royal Institution of Chartered Surveyors, a reference to an arbiter appointed by the Chairman of the Scottish Committee of the said Institution. [1150]

Forestry Act, 1945, s. 4.—38 Halsbury's Statutes 18. This section empowers the Minister of Agriculture and Fisheries to purchase, either by agreement or compulsorily, any land in England or Wales which is in the Minister's opinion suitable for afforestation or for purposes connected with forestry or which must necessarily be acquired together with any such land. This power of compulsory acquisition has never been exercised. All the land transferred to the Minister, which, together with land in Scotland transferred to the Secretary of State concerned with agriculture in Scotland, amounts to some 1,250,000 acres, was acquired by agreement with the owners thereof. The power of compulsory acquisition is, however, available for exercise in appropriate cases. The Minister of Agriculture and Fisheries stated on the Second Reading of the Bill in the House of Commons that the power would be exercised only in cases where an owner who was unwilling to enter into a forestry dedication covenant permitted his land to grow nothing and to run riot (433 H. of C. Official Report 1209).

Forestry dedication covenant.—For definition of this expression, see s. 1 (1), ante.

Forestry dedication agreement.—This is the expression which in relation to Scotland corresponds to the expression forestry dedication covenant, which relates only to England and Wales.

Plan of operations.—The Forestry Commissioners in para. 8 of their Supplementary Report on Post-War Forest Policy (Cmd. 6500), which was accepted by the Government, proposed that the act of dedication should include an undertaking by the owner to work to a plan approved by the Forest Authority, which would lay down the main operations to be undertaken. See, further, the Preliminary Note, ante.

Notice given by the Commissioners.—Compare with this provision the notice required to be given by a lessor under s. 146 (1) of the Law of Property Act, 1925 (15 Halsbury's Statutes 325), before he can enforce a right of re-entry or forfeiture for breach of any covenant or condition in a lease. See also cases decided under that subsection at 31 Digest 483.

6. Deduction of grants from compensation in case of compulsory acquisition.—If the power of compulsory purchase conferred by subsection (2) of section four of the Forestry Act, 1945, falls to be exercised in relation to land in respect of which advances by way of grant have been made by the Commissioners after the passing of this Act or within two years before the passing thereof, the advances, other than any made more than thirty years before the date of service of notice to treat in exercise of that power, shall become repayable by the person entitled to the compensation for the compulsory purchase, together with compound interest on each advance repayable, calculated from the date of the making thereof to the date on which the compensation is paid at the rate of three pounds per cent. per annum with yearly rests, and shall be recoverable by deduction from the compensation and not otherwise ;

Provided that, in the case of compensation for the compulsory purchase of one of several interests in such land, the amount repayable shall be a part only of the advances and interest proportionate to the value of the purchased interest as compared with the value of the land. [1151]

Effect of section.—See Preliminary Note, ante.

Forestry Act, 1945, s. 4 (2).—38 Halsbury's Statutes 18. See note to s. 5, ante.

Advances by way of grant.—By the Forestry Act, 1919, s. 3 (3) (d) (3 Halsbury's Statutes 445), as amended by the Forestry Act, 1945, s. 10 and Sched. II (38 Halsbury's Statutes 22, 24), the Forestry Commissioners are empowered to make advances by way of grant or by way of loan to persons in respect of the afforestation (including the re-planting) of land belonging to those persons. In exercising this power the Commissioners are to comply with any directions given to them by the appropriate Minister (see s. 2 of the Act of 1945). As to the advances which may be made in connection with the scheme for the dedication of woodlands to timber production, see Preliminary Note, ante.

Interest at 3 per cent. per annum.—The rate of interest on advances repayable under this section is the same as the rate of interest on loans which may be made to owners of land entering into forestry dedication covenants.

7. Execution of certain instruments on behalf of Secretary of State. [1152]

General note.—This section applies to Scotland.

8. Short title, construction, citation, and extent.—(1) This Act may be cited as the Forestry Act, 1947, and shall be construed as one with the Forestry Acts, 1919 to 1945, and this Act and those Acts may be cited together as the Forestry Acts, 1919 to 1947. [1153]

(2) This Act shall not extend to Northern Ireland. [1154]

Forestry Acts, 1919 to 1945.—These Acts are the Forestry Act, 1919 (3 Halsbury's Statutes 443), the Forestry (Transfer of Woods) Act, 1923 (3 Halsbury's Statutes 459), the Forestry Act, 1927 (8 Halsbury's Statutes 464) and the Forestry Act, 1945 (38 Halsbury's Statutes 16).

Construed as one.—Accordingly, this Act must be construed as if it were contained in the Forestry Acts, 1919 to 1945 (see supra), unless there is in this Act some manifest discrepancy, which shows that it has modified something to be found in the earlier Acts; see Canada Southern Rly. Co. v. International Bridge Co. (1883), 8 App. Cas. 723, at p. 727 ; 42 Digest 664, 745 ; Hart v. Hudson Brothers, Ltd., [1928] 2 K. B. 629, at p. 634 ; Phillips v. Parnaby, [1934] 2 K. B. 299, at p. 302 ; Digest Supp. Thus, words defined in the earlier Acts will bear the like meaning in this Act, unless it is clear from the context that their construction in this Act is to be different.

ORDERS, CIRCULARS AND MEMORANDA

POLICE AND FIREMEN (WAR SERVICE) ACTS (END OF EMERGENCY) ORDER, 1947

S. R. &amp; O., 1947, No. 152

January 29, 1947

Whereas certain provisions of the Police and Firemen (War Service) Acts, 1939 and 1944, are limited in their effect by reference to the "period of the present emergency," and that expression is defined by section fourteen of the Act of 1939 as the period beginning with the first day of September, nineteen hundred and thirty-nine, and ending with such day as His Majesty may by Order in Council declare to be the date on which the emergency that was the occasion of the passing of that Act came to an end :

Now, therefore, His Majesty in pursuance of the said section is pleased, by and with the advice of His Privy Council to order, and it is hereby ordered, as follows :—

1. This Order may be cited as the Police and Firemen (War Service) Acts (End of Emergency) Order, 1947. [1155]

2. It is hereby declared that the thirty-first day of December, nineteen hundred and forty-six, is the date on which the emergency that was the occasion of the passing of the Police and Firemen (War Service) Act, 1939, came to an end. [1156]

POLICE AMALGAMATION (SURREY) ORDER, 1947

S. R. & O., 1947, No. 539March 26, 1947

In pursuance of the powers conferred upon me by subsection (3) of section thirteen of the Police Act, 1946, I [i.e. the Secretary of State] hereby order as follows :—

1. The Police Amalgamation (Surrey) Order, 1943, is hereby revoked. [1157]

2. All members of the joint force established by the said Order shall be transferred to the Surrey county police force. [1158]

3. Joseph Simpson, Esq., O.B.E., shall be the chief constable of Surrey. [1159]

4. Notwithstanding the revocation of the said Order any payments or credits under the Schedule to the said Order which if the said Order had continued to be in force would have been due in respect of the period during which it was in force shall continue to be due and shall be paid as soon as possible after the amounts have been ascertained. [1160]

5.—(1) This Order may be cited as the Police Amalgamation (Surrey) Order, 1947.

(2) This Order shall come into force immediately before the first day of April, 1947. [1161]

POLICE AMALGAMATION (SUSSEX) ORDER, 1947S. R. & O., 1947, No. 566March 28, 1947*

In pursuance of the powers conferred upon me by subsection (3) of section thirteen of the Police Act, 1946, I [i.e. the Secretary of State] hereby order as follows :—

1. The Police Amalgamation (Sussex) Order, 1943 (hereafter in this Order referred to as the "principal Order"), the Police Amalgamation (Sussex)

Order, 1944, and the Police Amalgamation (Sussex) Order, 1946, which Orders are hereafter in this Order referred to together as the "Amalgamation Orders," are hereby revoked. [1173]

2.—(1) Every member of the Sussex police force who—

- (a) was transferred by the principal Order to that force from a continuing force and is not named in the First Schedule hereto is hereby transferred to the continuing force from which he was transferred by the principal Order ;
- (b) was transferred by the principal Order to that force from the Hove borough police force and is not named in the First Schedule hereto is hereby transferred to the East Sussex county police ;
- (c) is named in any of the first five Parts of the First Schedule hereto is hereby transferred to the force named at the head of that Part of the said Schedule in which the member is named.

(3) In relation to each of the persons named in the first column of Part VI of the First Schedule hereto (who are persons who have engaged in accordance with the provisions of section 2 of the Police (Overseas Service) Act, 1945, for a period of overseas service) the police area set opposite to his name in the second column of the said Part of the said Schedule is the police area prescribed by this Order for the purposes of sub-paragraph (b) of paragraph 10 of the Third Schedule to the Police Act, 1946. [1174]

3.—(1) Where any grant under the Police Pensions Act, 1921, was made before the principal Order came into force—

- (a) in respect of a member of the Hove borough police force, any payments in respect of that grant due after this Order comes into force and any further grants under the said Act in respect of that man shall be payable and made as if that man had been a member of the East Sussex county police ;
- (b) in any other case, any payments in respect of that grant due after this Order comes into force and any further grants under the said Act in respect of the constable in question shall be payable and made as if the Amalgamation Orders had not been made.

(2) Where any grant under the Police Pensions Act, 1921, has been made by the Sussex police authority :—

- (a) in respect of a member of the Sussex police force who was transferred thereto from the Hove borough police force, any payments in respect of that grant due after this Order comes into force and any further grants under the said Act in respect of that man shall be payable and made as if that man had been a member of the East Sussex county police ;
- (b) in any other case, any payments in respect of that grant due after this Order comes into force and any further grants under the said Act in respect of the constable in question shall be payable and made by the police authority of the continuing force from which he was transferred to the Sussex police force by the principal Order. [1175]

4. Each officer of the Sussex police authority who is not named in the Second Schedule hereto is hereby transferred to and becomes an officer of the council of the county or, as the case may be, county borough in which he is stationed immediately before this Order comes into force and shall hold office by the same tenure and on the same conditions as immediately before this Order comes into force and, while performing similar duties shall, in respect thereof, receive no less salary or remuneration than the salary or remuneration to which he would have been entitled if he had not been transferred. [1176]

5.—(1) Any interest in land of the Sussex police authority is hereby transferred to that contributing authority in the area of which the land in question is situate to be held for police purposes.

For the more convenient registration of title to land hereby transferred either to the mayor, aldermen and burgesses of the county borough of Eastbourne or to the West Sussex county council the numbers of the titles to the said land are set out in Parts I and II of the Third Schedule hereto.

(2) Any contract to which the Sussex police authority is a party for the construction, improvement or repair of any building or other works shall be of full force and effect in favour of and against the council having an interest in the land on which the building or other works are situate.

(3) The contract described in Part III of the Third Schedule hereto shall be of full force and effect in favour of and against the West Sussex county council.

(4) The Compulsory Purchase Order described in Part IV of the Third Schedule hereto shall be of full force and effect in favour of and against the East Sussex county council and all proceedings in respect of and under the said Order may be carried on as if it had been made by the said county council and as if at the time it was made, East Sussex had been a separate police area. [1177]

6.—(1) Any vehicles belonging to the Sussex police authority are hereby transferred to that one of the contributing authorities in the area of which the vehicle is stationed at the time when this Order comes into force to be held by that contributing authority for police purposes.

(2) Any wireless equipment belonging to the Sussex police authority is hereby transferred to that one of the contributing authorities in the area of which the wireless equipment is placed when this Order comes into force to be held by that contributing authority for police purposes.

(3) Any consumable stores belonging to the Sussex police authority are hereby transferred to that one of the contributing authorities in the area of which they are placed when this Order comes into force to be held by that contributing authority for police purposes. [1178]

7.—(1) No action or cause of action which immediately before this Order comes into force is pending or existing by or against the Sussex police authority shall be prejudicially affected by reason of this Order.

(2) Any such action may be carried on by or against and any such cause of action shall survive for the benefit of or against—

(a) in the case of an action or cause of action arising out of an interest in land transferred by Article 5 or a contract the benefit of which is so transferred or the Compulsory Purchase Order the benefit of which is so transferred, the council to which it is so transferred, and

(b) in the case of any other action or cause of action, the East Sussex county council.

(3) All such actions may be amended in such manner as may be necessary or proper in consequence of this Order.

(4) In this Article "action" includes all proceedings of whatever nature in or before any court or other tribunal. [1179]

8. All property, rights and liabilities of the Sussex police authority other than those referred to above are hereby transferred to the East Sussex county council. [1180]

9.—(1) The East Sussex county council shall maintain and administer a fund to be known as the Sussex police liquidation fund (hereafter in this Order referred to as the "liquidation fund") which shall be subject to audit by a district auditor.

(2) The East Sussex county council may for the purpose of administering the liquidation fund make arrangements with any contributing authority for the use by the said county council of the services of officers of the contributing authority and the making of contracts and payments on behalf of the said county council by the contributing authority.

(3) Notwithstanding the revocation of the principal Order any payments or credits under the Second Schedule to the said Order which would have been due in respect of each financial year during the period for which the said Order was in force shall continue to be due but shall be payable or credited to or out of the liquidation fund instead of to or out of the Sussex police fund as soon as may be after the amounts have been ascertained.

(4) Each contributing authority shall make or receive into or out of the liquidation fund the payments described in the Fourth Schedule hereto.

(5) The East Sussex county council shall pay into the liquidation fund all money coming into their possession under Article 7 (2) (b) or 8 and shall dispose of all property and rights other than money so coming into their possession unless the contributing authorities otherwise agree, in such manner as may best realise their full value and shall pay the proceeds thereof into the liquidation fund.

(6) The East Sussex county council shall, out of the liquidation fund, pay all the expenses of the maintenance and administration of that fund and satisfy all liabilities transferred to them by Article 7 (2) (b) or 8 and all expenditure of whatever nature incurred by them in relation to such liabilities.

(7) The East Sussex county council shall, after making the payments thereout prescribed by the preceding paragraph, distribute the residue of the liquidation fund to the contributing authorities in the proportions, unless the contributing authorities otherwise agree, set out in the Table subjoined to sub-paragraph (1) of paragraph 5 of the Second Schedule to the principal Order. [1181]

10.—(1) In this Order the following expressions have the meanings hereby respectively assigned to them, that is to say:—

"continuing force" means each of the following, namely:—the East Sussex county constabulary, the West Sussex county constabulary, the Brighton borough police force, the Eastbourne borough police force and the Hastings borough police force;

"contributing authority" has the same meaning as in the principal Order;

"grant" means any pension, allowance or gratuity;

"officer" includes a servant.

(2) The Interpretation Act, 1889, applies to the interpretation of this Order as it applies to the interpretation of an Act of Parliament. [1182]

11.—(1) This Order may be cited as the Police Amalgamation (Sussex) Order, 1947.

(2) This Order shall come into force immediately before the first day of April, 1947. [1183]

HAMPSHIRE POLICE (AMALGAMATION) ORDER, 1947

S. R. & O., 1947, No. 567

March 28, 1947

Whereas the police authorities for the following police areas, namely, the county of Southampton and the county of the Isle of Wight, have submitted to me a Scheme for the amalgamation of the said Police areas :

Now, therefore, in pursuance of the powers conferred upon me by subsection (1) of section 3 of the Police Act, 1946, I [i.e. the Secretary of State], by this Order, approve the said Scheme which is set out in the Schedule hereto.

This Order may be cited as the Hampshire Police (Amalgamation) Order, 1947. [1196]

* * * * *

SCHEDULE

THE HAMPSHIRE POLICE (AMALGAMATION) SCHEME, 1947

1. At the following time (hereafter in this Scheme referred to as the "time of transfer"), namely, immediately before the first day of April, 1947, the police areas consisting of the counties of Southampton (which includes the county borough of Bournemouth) and the Isle of Wight shall be amalgamated for police purposes and become one combined police area which shall be called the Hampshire police area.

2.—(1) At the time of transfer there shall be established for the Hampshire police area a combined police force which shall be called the Hampshire constabulary.

(2) All members of the Hampshire joint police force (being the force established under the Police Amalgamation (Hampshire) Order, 1948) shall at the time of transfer be transferred to the Hampshire constabulary.

(3) Richard Dawnay Lemon, Esquire, who is chief constable of the Hampshire joint police force, is hereby appointed first chief constable of the Hampshire constabulary.

3.—(1) The Hampshire constabulary shall be maintained by a combined police authority which shall be called the Hampshire police authority.

(2) The Hampshire police authority shall be constituted in accordance with the provisions of the First Schedule hereto.

(3) At the time of transfer the police functions of the joint standing joint committee of the county of Southampton and the county borough of Bournemouth and the standing joint committee of the county of the Isle of Wight shall be transferred to the Hampshire police authority.

4. The expenses of the Hampshire constabulary and of the Hampshire police authority shall be paid out of the combined police fund which shall be called the Hampshire police fund, and shall be constituted and administered in accordance with the provisions of the Second Schedule hereto.

5. Subject to the provisions of paragraph 11, at the time of transfer there shall be transferred to the Hampshire police authority, all property, rights and liabilities of the county councils of the county of Southampton and of the Isle of Wight and of the Bournemouth county borough council and the joint standing joint committee of the county of Southampton and the county borough of Bournemouth and the standing joint committee of the Isle of Wight held or incurred for police purposes.

6.—(1) The Hampshire police authority shall appoint a clerk of the authority and a treasurer of the Hampshire police fund and may appoint a deputy clerk of the authority and a deputy treasurer of the fund for the purpose of acting in the place of the officer of whom he is deputy whenever the office is vacant or the holder thereof for any reason is unable to act, and any person so appointed deputy, when acting as such and subject to the terms of his appointment, shall have all the functions of the holder of the office.

(2) All officers and servants employed in a civilian capacity immediately before the time of transfer by the county council of the county of Southampton or by the standing joint committee of that county solely for police purposes shall be transferred to and become officers or servants of the Hampshire police authority and shall be employed by that authority upon the terms and conditions upon which they were employed immediately before that time.

(3) The Hampshire police authority may appoint such other officers and servants as they think necessary for the efficient discharge of their functions.

(4) The provisions of the Third Schedule hereto shall have effect in relation to officers and servants of the Hampshire police authority.

7. The Hampshire police authority may delegate to the standing joint committee of the county of Southampton or the county of the Isle of Wight or to the Bournemouth county borough council in respect of matters relating to the county of Southampton or the county of the Isle of Wight or the county borough of Bournemouth, as the case may be, any of their functions under section 5 of the Police, Factories, etc. (Miscellaneous Provisions) Act, 1916, or under the House to House Collections Act, 1939.

8. The Hampshire county council superannuation fund shall be the appropriate superannuation fund for the purposes of the Local Government Superannuation Act, 1937, in relation to contributory employees of the Hampshire police authority.

9. The Hampshire police authority may make arrangements with the county council of the county of Southampton, the county council of the Isle of Wight and the Bournemouth county borough council or any of them for the use by the Hampshire police authority of the services of officers and servants of those authorities and for the making of contracts and payments on behalf of the Hampshire police authority by those authorities.

10. The appropriate authority for the purposes of the Police Act, 1946, section 10 (Compensation of officers prejudicially affected) shall be the Hampshire police authority.

11.—(1) The Police Amalgamation (Hampshire) Order, 1943, and the Police Amalgamation (Hampshire) Order, 1944, are hereby revoked.

(2) The police account of the county of Southampton relating to the Hampshire joint police force shall be made up to the time of transfer and any moneys due or payable in connection therewith shall not be transferred under the provisions of this Scheme.

(3) Notwithstanding the revocation of the said Orders any payments or credits under the Schedule to the Police Amalgamation (Hampshire) Order, 1943, as amended by the Police Amalgamation (Hampshire) Order, 1944, which if the said Orders had continued to be in force would have been due in respect of the period during which they were in force shall continue to be due and shall be paid as soon as possible after the amounts have been ascertained.

12. This Scheme shall come into operation immediately before the first day of April, 1947.

FIRST SCHEDULE

HAMPSHIRE POLICE AUTHORITY

1. The Hampshire police authority shall consist of thirty-one members.

2. In accordance with the provisions of this Schedule the undermentioned bodies shall appoint the number of representatives set out against each from among its members to be members of the Hampshire police authority :

County of Southampton standing joint committee	..	..	20
County of the Isle of Wight standing joint committee	..	..	5
Bournemouth county borough council	..	..	6

3.—(1) Each member of the Hampshire police authority first appointed shall come into office on the first day of April, 1947, or so soon thereafter as he shall be appointed, and subject to the provisions of paragraphs 4 and 6 hereof, shall hold office until the thirty-first day of March, 1949.

(2) On or before the first day of April, 1949, and in every third year thereafter, being the year in which county councillors are elected, each appointing authority shall appoint its representatives on the Hampshire police authority each of whom shall come into office on the first day of April in the year of his appointment, and subject to the provisions of paragraphs 4 and 6 hereof, shall hold office for three years.

4. If a member of the Hampshire police authority dies, resigns or becomes disqualified the appointing authority shall appoint a successor who shall come into office on the date of his appointment and unless he dies, resigns or becomes disqualified shall hold office for the remainder of the period for which his predecessor would have held office had he not died, resigned or become disqualified.

5. A member of the Hampshire police authority may resign his membership by giving the clerk of that authority notice in writing of his intention to do so, who shall forthwith notify the vacancy to the clerk of the appointing authority.

6.—(1) A member of the Hampshire police authority who ceases to be a member of the appointing authority shall cease to be a member of the Hampshire police authority unless on or before the date on which he ceases to be a member of the appointing authority he has been re-elected a member of the appointing authority.

(2) A member of the Hampshire police authority shall be disqualified from being a member of that authority if he holds any paid office, or other place of profit in the gift or disposal of the authority.

7. The Hampshire police authority from among its members shall elect annually a chairman and a vice-chairman.

8. The first meeting of the Hampshire police authority shall be convened by the chairman of the county of Southampton standing joint committee within two weeks after this Scheme comes into operation, and subsequent meetings shall be convened in such manner as the Hampshire police authority shall determine.

9. At a meeting of the Hampshire police authority seven or such greater number as the authority may by standing orders determine shall be a quorum.

10. The following provisions of the Local Government Act, 1933, namely, sections 58, 60, 76, subsections (1) and (2) of section 294 and Part V of the Third Schedule shall apply to the Hampshire police authority and the members thereof as if references in the said provisions to a local authority, other than references to a parish council, were references to the Hampshire police authority and references to that Act were references to this Scheme.

SECOND SCHEDULE

HAMPSHIRE POLICE FUND

1.—(1) In respect of each financial year each contributing authority shall pay to the Hampshire police fund in accordance with sub-paragraphs (2) and (3) of this paragraph a sum equal to its appropriate contribution in respect of that year.

(2) On the first day of each month in each financial year each contributing authority shall make a monthly interim payment into the Hampshire police fund on account of its contribution payable under sub-paragraph (1) of this paragraph in respect of that year of an amount equal to one-twelfth of the amount of that contribution as estimated by the Hampshire police authority :

Provided that the Hampshire police authority may, from time to time, revise the said estimate and the monthly interim payments payable during that year after all the contributing authorities have been notified of the revision shall be so increased or reduced as to adjust the difference.

(3) Any difference between the total of the monthly interim payments made in respect of any financial year and the contribution payable in respect of that year shall be adjusted at the interim payment date next after the date on which the contribution payable in respect of that year has been ascertained, by a payment by, or a credit to, the contributing authority which has made the payments.

2.—(1) The appropriate contribution in the case of the Bournemouth county borough shall be the actual cost of the police in the county borough less any Government grant attributable to the cost together with a contribution to overhead police expenditure common to the county borough and any other part of the Hampshire police area proportionate to the average number of constables stationed in the county borough as compared with the total force in the part of the area to which that overhead expenditure relates less any Government grant attributable to that expenditure.

(2) The appropriate contribution in the case of the county of Southampton and the county of the Isle of Wight shall be the amount represented by the net expenses of the Hampshire police authority after deducting the appropriate contribution of the Bournemouth county borough council calculated in accordance with sub-paragraph (1) of this paragraph divided between the Southampton county council and the Isle of Wight county council in the proportion that the rateable value of the respective administrative counties bears to the aggregate rateable value of the two administrative counties combined as shown in the valuation list in force two months before the commencement of the financial year.

General

3. In addition to the contributions payable under paragraph 1 of this Schedule each contributing authority—

- (a) with all convenient speed shall pay to the Hampshire police fund any income which has not been brought into account before the time of transfer and but for the operation of this Scheme would have been credited to its police account, not being income received from the investment of financial adjustment funds ;
- (b) shall within 14 days after this Scheme comes into operation pay into the Hampshire police fund the sums set opposite to its name in the subjoined table :—

PETERBOROUGH POLICE (AMALGAMATION) ORDER, 1947

March 28, 1947

Whereas on the thirtieth day of June, 1939, the population of the city of Peterborough as estimated by the Registrar General exceeded one half of the population as so estimated of the administrative county comprising the said city :

And whereas by subsection (1) of section seventeen of the Police Act, 1946, the provisions of the said Act apply to the said city as if it were a county borough and references in the said Act to county boroughs are to be construed accordingly :

And whereas the police authorities for the police areas consisting of the said city and of the Liberty of Peterborough have submitted to me a scheme for the amalgamation of the said police areas :

Now, therefore, in pursuance of the powers conferred upon me by subsection (1) of section three of the Police Act, 1946, I [i.e. the Secretary of State], by this Order, approve the said Scheme which is set out in the Schedule hereto.

This Order may be cited as the Peterborough Police (Amalgamation) Order, 1947. [1198]

SCHEDULE

THE PETERBOROUGH POLICE AMALGAMATION SCHEME, 1947

Made by the City of Peterborough and the Standing Joint Committee for the Liberty of Peterborough under section 3 of the Police Act, 1946

This Scheme (hereinafter referred to as the "Amalgamation Scheme") is made in pursuance of section 3 of the Police Act, 1946, inasmuch as the police authorities of the city of Peterborough and the Liberty of Peterborough deem it expedient that the two areas should be amalgamated for police purposes.

1. On the first day of April, 1947 (hereafter in this Scheme referred to as the "date of transfer"), the police areas consisting respectively of the city of Peterborough and the area of the administrative county of the Soke of Peterborough exclusive of the said city shall be amalgamated for police purposes and become one combined police area which shall be called the "Peterborough combined police area."

2.—(1) On the date of transfer there shall be established for the Peterborough combined police area a combined police force which shall be called the "Peterborough combined police force."

(2) All members of the city of Peterborough police force and the Liberty of Peterborough police force shall, on the date of transfer, be transferred to the Peterborough combined police force.

(3) Francis George Markin, Esquire, the present chief constable of both the city of Peterborough and the Liberty of Peterborough police forces, is hereby appointed the first chief constable of the Peterborough combined police force.

3.—(1) The Peterborough combined police force shall be maintained by a combined police authority which shall be called the "Peterborough combined police authority" and which shall be constituted in accordance with the provisions of the First Schedule hereto.

(2) On the date of transfer the police functions of the watch committee of the Peterborough city council and of the standing joint committee for the Liberty of Peterborough respectively shall be transferred to the Peterborough combined police authority.

4. The expenses of the Peterborough combined police force and of the Peterborough combined police authority shall be paid out of the combined police fund, which shall be called the "Peterborough combined police fund" and which shall be constituted and administered in accordance with the provisions of the Second Schedule hereto.

5.—(1) Subject to the provisions of sub-paragraphs (2) and (3) of this paragraph, there shall be transferred on the date of transfer to the Peterborough combined police authority all property, rights and liabilities of the Peterborough city council and of the Soke of Peterborough county council and the watch committee of the city of Peterborough and the standing joint committee for the Liberty of Peterborough insofar as such property, rights and liabilities are held or incurred in connection with the city of Peterborough police force and the Liberty of Peterborough police force respectively.

(2) The property described in Parts I and II of the Third Schedule hereto shall not be transferred to the Peterborough combined police authority.

(3) The Soke of Peterborough county council shall permit the use of the property described in Part II of the Third Schedule hereto by the Peterborough combined police authority in such manner and on such terms as may, from time to time, be agreed between the said police authority and the county council or, in default of agreement, as may from time to time be determined by the Secretary of State.

6.—(1) The Peterborough combined police authority shall appoint a clerk of the authority and a treasurer of the Peterborough combined police fund and may appoint a deputy clerk of the authority and a deputy treasurer of the fund for the purpose of acting in the place of the officer of whom he is deputy whenever the office is vacant or the holder thereof for any reason is unable to act, and any person so appointed deputy, when acting as such and subject to the terms of his appointment, shall have all the functions of the holder of the office.

(2) The Peterborough combined police authority may appoint such other officers and servants as they think necessary for the efficient discharge of their functions.

(3) There shall be transferred on the date of transfer to the Peterborough combined police authority the officers and servants of the Peterborough city council and the Soke of Peterborough county council whose names appear in Part I of the Fourth Schedule hereto, and such officers and servants shall be employed by the Peterborough combined police authority upon the terms and conditions upon which they were respectively employed by the said city council or county council immediately before the date of transfer. The Peterborough combined police authority may make arrangements with either the Peterborough city council or the Soke of Peterborough county council, as the case may be, for the use by the Peterborough combined police authority of the services of officers and servants of such councils and the making of contracts and payments on behalf of the Peterborough combined police authority by such councils.

(4) Any compensation payable in pursuance of section 10 of the Police Act, 1946, to an officer or servant prejudicially affected in consequence of the coming into operation of this Scheme shall be awarded and paid by the Peterborough combined police authority, and the claim for compensation shall be made by the officer or servant accordingly and the Peterborough combined police authority shall be the "appropriate authority" for the purposes of the said section.

(5) The provisions of Part II of the Fourth Schedule hereto shall have effect in relation to officers and servants of the Peterborough combined police authority.

7. The Peterborough combined police authority may delegate to the watch committee of the Peterborough city council or the standing joint committee for the Liberty of Peterborough, so far as their respective areas are concerned, any of the functions of the said combined police authority under section 5 of the Police, Factories, etc. (Miscellaneous Provisions) Act, 1916, or under the House to House Collections Act, 1939.

FIRST SCHEDULE

CONSTITUTION OF PETERBOROUGH COMBINED POLICE AUTHORITY

1. The Peterborough combined police authority shall consist of sixteen members.
2. In accordance with the provisions of this Schedule, the Peterborough city council shall appoint ten representatives from among its members and the standing joint committee for the Liberty of Peterborough shall appoint six representatives (three of whom shall be members of the Soke of Peterborough county council and the remaining three of whom shall be Justices for the Liberty of Peterborough) to be members of the Peterborough combined police authority. If the same person is appointed a member of the combined police authority by both the appointing authorities referred to that person shall select the appointment which he desires to accept and the other appointing authority shall thereupon make a further appointment.
3. Subject to the provisions of paragraph 5 hereof each member of the Peterborough combined police authority shall come into office on the first day of April next after his appointment and unless he dies, resigns or becomes disqualified shall hold office for three years or until his successor comes into office, whichever is the longer period.
4. The clerk of each appointing authority shall forthwith after the appointment of the first members of the Peterborough combined police authority notify the names, addresses and descriptions of the said members to the mayor of the city of Peterborough, and in the case of every subsequent appointment of members the said clerks shall furnish similar particulars to the clerk of the combined police authority.
- 5.—(1) If a member of the Peterborough combined police authority dies, resigns or becomes disqualified the appointing authority shall appoint a successor who shall come into office on the date of his appointment and unless he dies, resigns or becomes disqualified shall hold office for the remainder of the period for which his predecessor would have held office had he not died, resigned or become disqualified :

Provided that if a member dies, resigns or becomes disqualified within three months before the end of a period of three years from the date on which he came into office, the member appointed as his successor unless he in turn dies, resigns or becomes disqualified shall hold office from the date of his appointment either until the expiry of three years from the first day of April next after his appointment, or until his successor comes into office, whichever is the longer period.

(2) Each of the first representatives of each appointing authority shall come into office on the date of his appointment if after the first day of April, 1947, and unless he dies, resigns or becomes disqualified shall hold office from the date of his appointment either until the thirty-first day of March, 1949, or until his successor comes into office, whichever is the longer period. Future appointments shall be made by the appointing authorities on or before the thirty-first day of March, 1949, and in every third year thereafter being the year in which county councillors are elected.

6. A member of the Peterborough combined police authority may resign his membership by giving notice in writing of his intention to do so to the clerk of that authority who shall thereupon notify the vacancy as soon as possible to the appropriate appointing authority.

7. A member of the Peterborough combined police authority who ceases to be a member of the appointing authority shall cease to be a member of the combined police authority unless on or before the date on which he ceases to be a member of the appointing authority he has been re-appointed a member of the appointing authority.

8. The first meeting of the Peterborough combined police authority shall be convened by the mayor of the city of Peterborough as soon as possible after the date of the appointment of the first members of the combined police authority and shall be held at such place as may be fixed by him.

9.—(1) The combined police authority shall in every year hold an annual meeting and at least three other meetings which shall be as near as may be at regular intervals for the transaction of their business.

(2) The annual meeting of the combined police authority shall be held on such day in the month of January as the combined police authority may determine.

10.—(1) The combined police authority at their annual meeting shall elect one of their number to be chairman and the chairman shall, unless he resigns his office or ceases to be a member of the combined police authority, continue in office until his successor is elected.

(2) The combined police authority at their annual meeting shall elect one of their number to be vice-chairman who shall, unless he resigns his office or ceases to be a member of the combined police authority, continue in office until immediately after the election of the chairman at the next annual meeting.

11.—(1) On a casual vacancy occurring in the office of chairman or vice-chairman of the combined police authority the vacancy shall be filled by the election by the combined police authority of one of their number at a meeting held as soon as possible after the vacancy occurs, and where the vacancy is in the office of chairman the meeting may be convened by the clerk of the combined authority.

(2) The person elected under the foregoing sub-paragraph to fill a casual vacancy shall hold office until the day upon which the person in whose place he is elected would ordinarily have retired.

12.—(1) At every meeting of the combined police authority the chairman, if present, shall preside.

(2) If the chairman is absent from any meeting of the combined police authority the vice-chairman, if present, shall preside.

(3) If both the chairman and vice-chairman of the combined police authority are absent from any meeting such member of the combined police authority as the members present shall determine shall preside.

13.—(1) The chairman of the combined police authority may call a meeting of the combined police authority at any time.

(2) If the chairman refuses to call a meeting of the combined police authority after a request for that purpose signed by three members of the combined police authority has been presented to him or if, without so refusing, the chairman does not call a meeting within seven days after such a request has been presented to him, any three members of the combined police authority on that refusal or on the expiration of the seven days, as the case may be, may forthwith call a meeting of the combined police authority.

(3) Three clear days at least before a meeting of the combined police authority :—

- (a) notice of the time and place of the intended meeting shall be published at the offices of the combined police authority and, where the meeting is called by members of the combined police authority, the notice shall be signed by those members and shall specify the business proposed to be transacted thereat ; and
- (b) a summons to attend a meeting, specifying the business proposed to be transacted thereat and signed by the clerk of the combined police authority, shall be left at or sent by post to the usual place of residence of every member of the combined police authority, provided that omission to serve the said summons on any member of the combined police authority shall not invalidate the meeting and provided also that no business shall be transacted at any meeting called by members of the combined police authority other than that specified in the notice thereof.

14. At a meeting of the combined police authority four or such greater number as the authority may by standing orders determine shall be a quorum.

15. A copy of the minutes of proceedings at each meeting of the combined police authority shall be sent to the clerks of the appointing authorities within twenty-one days after the date of the meeting.

16. The accounts of the combined police authority shall be open at all reasonable times to inspection and transcription without payment by any member of an appointing authority or of the Soke of Peterborough county council or by any officer of an appointing authority authorised by that authority for the purpose.

17. A copy of the abstract of the accounts of the combined police authority and of any report to the combined police authority made by the district auditor shall be sent by the combined police authority to each of the appointing authorities and to the Soke of Peterborough county council as soon as may be practicable after the completion of the audit.

18. The following provisions of the Local Government Act, 1933, namely, sections 58, 59, 60, 63, 76, subsections (1) and (2) of section 294 and Part V of the Third Schedule shall apply to the combined police authority and the members thereof as if references in the said provisions to a local authority, other than references to a parish council, were references to the combined police authority and as if references to the said Act were references to this Scheme.

SECOND SCHEDULE

THE PETERBOROUGH COMBINED POLICE FUND

1.—(1) In respect of each financial year each contributing authority shall pay to the Peterborough combined police fund as hereinafter mentioned a contribution equal to its appropriate proportion of the net expenses of the combined police authority in respect of that year ; and notices accordingly shall be given by the combined police authority in respect of each financial half-year to each contributing authority requiring payment of such contributions within a time limited by the notices.

(2) In order to enable each contributing authority to comply with the provisions of paragraph (e) of subsection (2) of section 9 of the Rating and Valuation Act, 1925, any notice as hereinbefore mentioned given by the combined police authority shall be so given not less than forty-two days before the beginning of the financial half-year in which the rate required to meet the contributions required by such notice is to be levied.

2.—(1) Before the commencement of each financial year the combined police authority shall cause to be prepared and submitted to them an estimate of the whole of the income and expenditure of the combined police authority during that financial year and shall estimate the amount which will be required to be raised by means of notices as aforesaid in the first half-year and in the second half-year of the financial year respectively.

(2) If before the expiration of the first half-year of the financial year it appears to the combined police authority that the amounts estimated at the commencement of the year will be larger than is necessary, or will be insufficient, the combined police authority may revise the estimate and alter the said amounts accordingly.

(3) Copies of the before-mentioned estimates or revised estimates when approved by the combined police authority shall, within seven days thereafter, be transmitted to the clerk of each contributing authority.

3. Each contributing authority shall on or before the fifteenth day of April, 1947, pay into the combined police fund the sum set opposite to its name in the following table, namely :—

Peterborough city council .. .. .	900	0	0
Soke of Peterborough county council .. .. .	100	0	0

4. In addition to the contributions payable as hereinbefore mentioned, each contributing authority with all convenient speed shall pay into the combined police fund any income which has not been brought into account before the date of transfer and, but for the operation of this Scheme, would have been credited to its police account, not being income received from the investment of financial adjustment funds.

5.—(1) All payments to and out of the combined police fund shall be made to and by the treasurer.

(2) All payments out of the combined police fund shall be made in pursuance of an order on the combined police authority signed by at least two members thereof and countersigned by the clerk or by such other officer as the combined police authority may authorise for the purpose, and the same order may include several payments.

6.—(1) In this Schedule the following expressions have the meanings hereafter respectively assigned to them, that is to say :—

“contributing authority” means each of the following, namely, the Peterborough city council and the Soke of Peterborough county council.

“appropriate proportion” means the proportion which (a) in the case of the Peterborough city council the aggregate rateable value of all the hereditaments in the area of the said city and (b) in the case of the Soke of Peterborough county council the aggregate rateable value of all the hereditaments in the area of the administrative county of the Soke of Peterborough exclusive of the said city bears to the aggregate rateable value of all the hereditaments in the combined police area as shown in the valuation list in force at the commencement of the half-year immediately preceding the financial half-year which is the subject of the notice aforesaid.

“financial year” means the period of twelve months ending on the thirty-first day of March.

(2) For the purposes of this Schedule the net expenses of the combined police authority in respect of any financial year shall be the amount of its expenditure in respect of that year less all income (including government grant) which is credited to the combined police fund in respect of that year, other than contributions payable under paragraphs 1 and 3 of this Schedule into the combined police fund.

SCHEDULE

THE CORNWALL AND ISLES OF SCILLY POLICE AMALGAMATION SCHEME, 1947

1. At the following time (hereinafter in this Scheme referred to as the "time of transfer"), namely, immediately before the first day of April, 1947, the police areas consisting of the administrative county of Cornwall and the Isles of Scilly shall be amalgamated for police purposes and become one combined police area which shall be called the Cornwall and Isles of Scilly combined police area.

2.—(1) At the time of transfer there shall be established for the Cornwall and Isles of Scilly combined police area a combined police force which shall be called the Cornwall county constabulary (hereafter in this Scheme referred to as the "combined force").

(2) All members of the present Cornwall county constabulary shall, at the time of transfer, be transferred to the combined force.

(3) Major Edgar Hare, M.C., who is the chief constable of Cornwall, is hereby appointed the first chief constable of the combined force.

3.—(1) The combined force shall be maintained by a combined police authority which shall be called the Cornwall and Isles of Scilly combined police authority (hereafter in this Scheme referred to as the "combined police authority").

(2) The combined police authority shall be constituted in accordance with the provisions of the First Schedule hereto.

(3) At the time of transfer the police functions of the standing joint committee of Cornwall and the joint police committee of the Isles of Scilly shall be transferred to the combined police authority.

4. The expenses of the combined force and combined police authority shall be paid out of a combined police fund which shall be called the Cornwall and Isles of Scilly combined police fund and shall be constituted and administered in accordance with the provisions of the Second Schedule hereto.

5. There shall be transferred at the time of transfer to the combined police authority all property, rights and liabilities of the county council and the standing joint committee of Cornwall and the council and joint police committee of the Isles of Scilly held or incurred for police purposes.

6.—(1) The combined police authority shall appoint the clerk of the authority and treasurer of the Cornwall and Isles of Scilly combined police fund, and may appoint a deputy clerk of the authority and a deputy treasurer of the fund for the purpose of acting in the place of the officer of whom he is deputy whenever the office is vacant or the holder thereof for any reason is unable to act; and any person so appointed deputy, when acting as such and subject to the terms of his appointment, shall have all the functions of the holder of the office.

(2) The combined police authority may appoint such other officers and servants as they think necessary for the efficient discharge of their functions.

(3) At the time of transfer there shall be transferred to the service of the combined police authority anyone who immediately before that time was employed by the Cornwall county council solely or mainly for the purposes of the exercise by the council or the standing joint committee of the county of any functions connected with the police and has not before the said time notified the county council in writing of his refusal to be so transferred.

(4) The provisions of the Third Schedule hereto shall have effect in relation to officers and servants of the combined police authority.

7. The combined police authority may delegate to the standing joint committee of Cornwall or the joint police committee of the Isles of Scilly in respect of matters relating to Cornwall or, as the case may be, to the Isles of Scilly any of their functions under section 5 of the Police, Factories, etc. (Miscellaneous Provisions) Act, 1916, or under the House to House Collections Act, 1939.

8. The combined police authority may make arrangements with either the Cornwall county council or the council of the Isles of Scilly for the use by the combined police authority of the services of officers and servants of the said councils and the making of contracts and payments on behalf of the combined police authority by the said councils.

9. In relation to contributory employees of the combined police authority under the Local Government Superannuation Act, 1937, the appropriate superannuation fund for the purposes of that Act shall be the superannuation fund maintained under Part I of that Act by the Cornwall county council.

10. The "appropriate authority" for the purposes of section 10 of the Police Act, 1946, shall be the combined police authority.

FIRST SCHEDULE

Cornwall and Isles of Scilly Combined Police Authority

1. The Cornwall and Isles of Scilly combined police authority (hereafter in this Schedule referred to as "the authority") shall, subject to paragraph 5 hereof, consist of all the members for the time being of the standing joint committee of Cornwall and such members of the joint police committee of the Isles of Scilly as are appointed to be members of the authority in accordance with the provisions of paragraph 2 of this Schedule.

2.—(1) The justices who are members of the joint police committee and the members of the council of the Isles of Scilly who are members of the joint police committee shall each appoint one of their number to be a member of the authority for such period as may be determined by the said committee.

(2) In addition to the two members of the authority appointed under sub-paragraph (1), for each alternate period of three years beginning with the first day of April, 1947, the said justices shall appoint one of their number to be a member of the authority, and for each alternate period of three years beginning with the first day of April, 1950, the said members of the council shall appoint one of their number to be a member of the authority.

(3) As often as a member of the authority appointed under sub-paragraph (2) may die, resign or become disqualified, a successor to him shall be appointed in the same manner as the member who has died, resigned or become disqualified for the remainder of the current period of three years.

3. A member of the authority appointed under paragraph 2 may resign his membership by giving the clerk of the authority notice in writing of his intention to do so.

4. A member of the authority appointed under paragraph 2 who ceases to be a member of the joint police committee shall cease to be a member of the authority unless, on or before the date on which he ceases to be a member of the said committee, he has been reappointed a member of that committee.

5. A member of the authority shall be disqualified from being such a member if he holds any paid office or other place of profit in the gift or disposal of the authority.

6.—(1) The authority from among its members shall elect a chairman and may elect a vice-chairman.

(2) The tenure of office of the chairman and of a vice-chairman shall be such as the authority by standing orders may determine.

7. At a meeting of the authority ten, or such greater number as the authority by standing orders may determine, shall be a quorum.

8. The following provisions of the Local Government Act, 1933, namely, sections 58, 60, 76, subsections (1) and (2) of section 294 and Part V of the Third Schedule, shall apply to the authority and the members thereof as if references in the said provisions to a local authority, other than references to a parish council, were references to the authority, and references to that Act were references to this Scheme.

SECOND SCHEDULE

Cornwall and Isles of Scilly Combined Police Fund

1.—(1) In respect of each financial year each contributing authority shall pay to the Cornwall and Isles of Scilly combined police fund (hereafter called the "combined police fund") in accordance with sub-paragraphs (2) and (3) of this paragraph a contribution equal to its appropriate proportion of the net expenses of the combined police authority in respect of that year.

(2) The Cornwall county council on the first day of each month and the council of the Isles of Scilly on each of the four usual quarter days shall make a monthly or quarterly, as the case may be, interim payment into the combined police fund on account of its contributions payable under sub-paragraph (1) of this paragraph in respect of that year of an amount equal to one-twelfth or one-quarter, as the case may be, of that contribution as estimated by the treasurer of the combined police fund :

Provided that the treasurer of the combined police fund may, from time to time, revise his said estimate and the monthly or quarterly, as the case may be, interim payments payable during the remainder of that year after all the contributing authorities have been notified of the revision shall be so increased or reduced as to adjust the difference.

(3) Any difference between the total of the monthly or quarterly, as the case may be, interim payments made in respect of any financial year and the contribution payable in respect of that year shall be adjusted at the first respective interim payment dates next after the date on which the contribution payable in respect of that year has been ascertained by a payment by or a credit to the contributing authority which has made the payments.

2. In addition to the contributions payable under paragraph 1 of this Schedule each contributing authority with all convenient speed shall pay into the combined police fund any income which has not been brought into account before the commencement of this Scheme and, but for the operation of this Scheme, would have been credited to its police account, not being income received from the investment of financial adjustment funds.

3.—(1) In this Schedule the following expressions have the meanings hereafter respectively assigned to them, that is to say :—

"appropriate proportion" means, in the case of each contributing authority, the proportion which the aggregate rateable value of all the hereditaments in the area of the contributing authority bears to the aggregate rateable value of all the hereditaments in the Cornwall and Isles of Scilly combined police area as shown in the valuation list in force two months before the commencement of the financial year ;

"contributing authority" means the Cornwall county council and the council of the Isles of Scilly ;

"financial year" means the period of twelve months ending on the thirty-first day of March.

(2) For the purposes of this Schedule the net expenses of the combined police authority in respect of any financial year shall be the amount of its expenditure in respect of that year less all income (including Government grant) which is credited to the combined police fund in respect of that year, other than contributions payable under paragraph 1, and the said net expenses may, if the combined police authority so resolve, include sums which the said authority think it desirable to raise, although the liability which those sums are intended to satisfy will not, or may not, fall due during the financial year.

THIRD SCHEDULE

Officers and servants of the Cornwall and Isles of Scilly Combined Police Authority

1. The clerk of the Cornwall and Isles of Scilly combined police authority and the treasurer of the Cornwall and Isles of Scilly combined police fund shall hold office during the pleasure of the authority so however that neither of them shall be dismissed from his office without the consent of the Secretary of State.

2. The offices of clerk of the Cornwall and Isles of Scilly combined police authority and of treasurer of the Cornwall and Isles of Scilly combined police fund shall not be held by the same person, or by persons who stand in relation to one another as partners or as employer and employee.

3. Subject to paragraph 1 every officer and servant of the Cornwall and Isles of Scilly combined police authority shall hold office during the pleasure of the authority.

4. The following provisions of the Local Government Act, 1933, namely, subsections (1), (2) and (4) of section 119, and sections 120, 121, 122 and 123 shall apply to the officers and servants of the Cornwall and Isles of Scilly combined police authority as if references in those provisions to a local authority, other than references to a parish council, were references to the Cornwall and Isles of Scilly combined police authority, and references to that Act were references to this Scheme. ## KENT POLICE (AMALGAMATION) ORDER, 1947

March 31, 1947

Whereas the police authorities for the following police areas, namely, the administrative county of Kent except that part thereof that is within the Metropolitan Police District and the county borough of Canterbury, have submitted to me a Scheme for the amalgamation of the said police areas :

Now, therefore, in pursuance of the powers conferred upon me by subsection (1) of section three of the Police Act, 1946, I [i.e. the Secretary of State], by this Order, approve the said Scheme which is set out in the Schedule hereto.

This Order may be cited as the Kent Police (Amalgamation) Order, 1947. [1202]

SCHEDULE

THE KENT POLICE AMALGAMATION SCHEME, 1947

1. At the following time (hereafter in this Scheme referred to as the "time of transfer") namely, immediately before the first day of April, 1947, the police areas consisting of the administrative county of Kent except that part thereof that is within the Metropolitan Police District and the county borough of Canterbury shall be amalgamated for police purposes and become one combined police area which shall be called the Kent police area.

2.—(1) At the time of transfer there shall be established for the Kent police area a combined police force which shall be called the Kent police force.

(2) With the exception of Superintendent George Thomas Hall who, prior to the coming into force of the Police Amalgamation (Kent) Order, 1943, was chief constable of Canterbury, all members of the present Kent county police force shall at the time of transfer be transferred to the Kent police force.

(3) Major John Frederick Ferguson, who is chief constable of Kent, is hereby appointed the first chief constable of the Kent police force.

3.—(1) The Kent police force shall be maintained by a combined police authority which shall be called the Kent police authority.

(2) The Kent police authority shall be constituted in accordance with the provisions of the First Schedule hereto.

(3) At the time of transfer the police functions of the standing joint committee of Kent and the county borough council and the watch committee of Canterbury shall be transferred to the Kent police authority.

4. The expenses of the Kent police force and of the Kent police authority shall be paid out of the combined police fund which shall be called the Kent police fund, and shall be constituted and administered in accordance with the provisions of the Second Schedule hereto.

5. There shall be transferred at the time of transfer to the Kent police authority all property, rights and liabilities of the county council and the standing joint committee of Kent and the county borough council and the watch committee of Canterbury held or incurred in connection with the police forces of Kent or Canterbury or the joint police force which was established under the Police Amalgamation (Kent) Order, 1943.

6.—(1) The Kent police authority shall appoint a clerk of the authority and a treasurer of the Kent police fund and may appoint a deputy clerk of the authority and a deputy treasurer of the fund for the purpose of acting in the place of the officer of whom he is deputy, whenever the office is vacant or the holder thereof for any reason is unable to act and any person so appointed deputy, when acting as such and subject to the terms of his appointment, shall have all the functions of the holder of the office.

(2) The Kent police authority may appoint such other officers and servants as they think necessary for the efficient discharge of their functions.

(3) At the time of transfer there shall be transferred to the service of the Kent police authority the civilian officers and servants who immediately before that time were employed by the county council or standing joint committee of Kent to perform duties in or with the police force but the provisions of this sub-paragraph shall not apply to professional, technical, administrative or clerical officers employed by the Kent county council mainly or partly for the purposes of the exercise by the council or the standing joint committee of the county of any functions connected with the police.

(4) The provisions of the Third Schedule hereto shall have effect in relation to officers and servants of the Kent police authority.

7. The Kent police authority may delegate to the standing joint committee of Kent or the watch committee of Canterbury in respect of matters relating to Kent or, as the case may be, Canterbury any of their functions under section 5 of the Police, Factories, etc. (Miscellaneous Provisions) Act, 1916, or under the House to House Collections Act, 1939.

8. The Kent police authority may make arrangements with either the Kent county council or the Canterbury county borough council for the use by the Kent police authority of the services of officers and servants of that council and the making of contracts and payments on behalf of the Kent police authority by the said council.

9. In relation to contributory employees of the Kent police authority under the Local Government Superannuation Act, 1937, the appropriate superannuation fund for the purposes of that Act shall be the superannuation fund maintained under Part I of that Act by the Kent county council.

10. The "appropriate authority" for the purpose of section 10 of the Police Act, 1946, shall be the Kent police authority.

FIRST SCHEDULE

Kent police authority

1. The Kent police authority shall consist of eighteen members.

2. In accordance with the provisions of this Schedule the Kent standing joint committee shall appoint sixteen representatives being members of the committee and the Canterbury watch committee shall appoint two representatives from among its members to be members of the Kent police authority.

3.—(1) Each member of the Kent police authority first appointed shall come into office on the first day of April, 1947, or so soon thereafter as he shall be appointed and, subject to the provisions of paragraphs 4 and 6 hereof, shall hold office until the first day of April, 1949.

(2) On or before the thirty-first day of March, 1949, and in every third year thereafter, being the year in which county councillors are elected, each appointing authority shall appoint its representatives on the Kent police authority each of whom shall come into office on the first day of April in the year of his appointment and, subject to the provisions of paragraphs 4 and 6 hereof, shall hold office for three years.

4.—(1) If a member of the Kent police authority dies, resigns, becomes disqualified or ceases under paragraph 6 (1) hereof to be a member of the Kent police authority the appointing authority shall appoint a successor who shall come into office on the date of his appointment and unless he dies, resigns, becomes disqualified or ceases under paragraph 6 (1) hereof to be a member of the Kent police authority shall hold office for the remainder of the period for which his predecessor would have held office had he not died, resigned, become disqualified or ceased to be a member :

Provided that if, within six months before the end of the period for which he was appointed, a member dies, resigns, becomes disqualified or ceases under paragraph 6 (1) hereof to be a member of the Kent police authority it shall not be necessary for the appointing authority to appoint a successor to such member for the remainder of such period.

5. A member of the Kent police authority may resign his membership by giving the clerk of that authority notice in writing of his intention so to do.

6.—(1) A member of the Kent police authority who ceases to be a member of the appointing authority shall cease to be a member of the Kent police authority unless on or before the date on which he ceases to be a member of the appointing authority he has been re-appointed a member of the appointing authority.

(2) A member of the Kent police authority shall be disqualified from being a member of that authority if he holds any paid office, or other place of profit in the gift or disposal of the authority.

7.—(1) The Kent police authority from among its members shall elect a chairman and may elect a vice-chairman.

(2) The tenure of office of the chairman and of a vice-chairman shall be such as the authority may determine.

8. The first meeting of the Kent police authority shall be convened on the instructions of the chairman of the Kent standing joint committee within four weeks after this Scheme comes into operation, and subsequent meetings shall be convened in such manner as the Kent police authority shall determine.

9. At a meeting of the Kent police authority two or such greater number as the authority may determine shall be a quorum.

10. The following provisions of the Local Government Act, 1933, namely, sections 58, 60, 76, subsections (1) and (2) of section 294 and Part V of the Third Schedule shall apply to the Kent police authority and the members thereof as if references in the said provisions to a local authority, other than references to a parish council, were references to the Kent police authority and references to that Act were references to this Scheme.

SECOND SCHEDULE

Kent police fund

1.—(1) In respect of each financial year each contributing authority shall pay to the Kent police fund in accordance with sub-paragraphs (2) and (3) of this paragraph a contribution equal to its appropriate proportion of the net expenses of the Kent police authority in respect of that year.

(2) On the first day of each month in each financial year each contributing authority shall make a monthly interim payment into the Kent police fund on account of its contribution payable under sub-paragraph (1) of this paragraph in respect of that year of an amount equal to one-twelfth of the amount of that contribution as estimated by the Kent police authority :

Provided—

(a) that the Kent police authority may, from time to time, revise the said estimate and the monthly interim payments payable during that year after the contributing authorities have been notified of the revision shall be so increased or reduced as to adjust the difference, and

(b) that, in the event of the Kent police authority making arrangements with the Kent county council under paragraph 8 of this Scheme for the making of payments on behalf of the Kent police authority by the said council, the interim payments to be made by the said council under sub-paragraph (2) of this paragraph shall be such as may be agreed between the Kent police authority and the said council taking into account payments made by the said council on behalf of the Kent police authority, so however that such interim payments shall be sufficient at all times to enable all financial obligations of the police authority to be met.

(3) Any difference between the total of the monthly interim payments and in the case of the Kent county council the payments taken into account under proviso (b) to the last preceding sub-paragraph, made in respect of any financial year and the contribution payable in respect of that year shall be adjusted at the interim payment date next after the date on which the contribution payable in respect of that year has been ascertained, by a payment by, or a credit to, the contributing authority which has made the payments.

2. Each contributing authority shall with all convenient speed pay into the Kent police fund any income which has not been brought into account before the time of transfer and but for the operation of this Scheme would have been credited to its police account, not being income received from the investment of financial adjustment funds.

3.—(1) In this Schedule the following expressions have the meanings hereafter respectively assigned to them, that is to say :—

“ appropriate proportion ” means in the case of each contributing authority, the proportion which the aggregate rateable value of all the hereditaments in the area of the contributing authority bears to the aggregate rateable value of all the hereditaments of the Kent police area as shown in the valuation list in force at the commencement of the financial year ;

“ contributing authority ” means each of the following, namely, the Kent county council and the Canterbury county borough council ;

“ financial year ” means the period of twelve months ending on the thirty-first day of March.

(2) For the purposes of this Schedule the net expenses of the Kent police authority in respect of any financial year shall be the amount of its expenditure in respect of that year less all income (including Government grant) which is credited to the Kent police fund in respect of that year other than contributions payable under paragraph 1 of this Schedule and the said net expenses may, if the Kent police authority so resolve, include sums which the said authority think it desirable to raise, although the liability which those sums are intended to satisfy will not or may not fall due during the financial year.

THIRD SCHEDULE

Officers and servants of the Kent police authority

1. The clerk of the Kent police authority and the treasurer of the Kent police fund shall hold office during the pleasure of the authority so however that neither of them shall be dismissed from his office without the consent of the Secretary of State :

Provided that, if such clerk be the present clerk of the standing joint committee for Kent, he shall hold office on the terms of the Local Government (Clerks) Act, 1931.

2. The offices of clerk of the Kent police authority and of treasurer of the Kent police fund shall not be held by the same person, or by persons who stand in relation to one another as partners or as employer and employee.

3. Subject to paragraph 1 above every officer and servant of the Kent police authority shall hold office during the pleasure of the authority.

4. The following provisions of the Local Government Act, 1933, namely, subsections (1), (2) and (4) of section 119, and sections 120, 121, 122 and 123 shall apply to the officers and servants of the Kent police authority as if references in those provisions to a local authority, other than references to a parish council, were references to the Kent police authority and references to that Act were references to this Scheme. [1203]

METROPOLITAN POLICE (PENSION) REGULATIONS, 1947S. R. & O., 1947, No. 730April 23, 1947*

In pursuance of the power conferred upon me as the police authority for the metropolitan police force (hereinafter referred to as "the force") by section twenty-three of the Police Pensions Act, 1921, I [i.e. the Secretary of State], hereby make the following Regulations :—

1. In reckoning the approved service of a member of the force there shall be deducted any period of absence from duty occasioned by sickness if the chief medical officer of the force certifies that the member of the force has brought about or contributed to such sickness by his or her own default or vicious habits, unless the Commissioner of Police for special reasons decides that no deduction shall be made. [1204]

2. In reckoning the approved service of a member of the force there shall be deducted any period during which the member of the force (after due allowance has been made for any period of reinstatement with pay) has been absent from duty for seven days or longer on account of his or her suspension for misconduct. [1205]

3. In reckoning the approved service of a woman member of the force there shall be deducted any period of unpaid maternity leave and in this Regulation the expression "unpaid maternity leave" has the same meaning as in the Police (Women) Regulations. [1206]

4. These Regulations may be cited as the Metropolitan Police (Pension) Regulations, 1947. [1207]

SPECIAL CONSTABLES ORDER, 1947S. R. & O., 1947, No. 1010May 21, 1947*

Whereas by the Special Constables Act, 1914, as amended by the Special Constables Act, 1923, power is conferred on His Majesty, by Order in Council, to make Regulations with respect to the appointment and position of special constables appointed under the Special Constables Act, 1831, or under section one hundred and ninety-six of the Municipal Corporations Act, 1882, and by these Regulations to make such provisions as are mentioned in the said Special Constables Act, 1914, as so amended :

Now, therefore, His Majesty is pleased, by and with the advice of His Privy Council, to order, and it is hereby ordered, as follows :—

1. For clause (b) of subsection (2) of paragraph 11 of the Special Constables Order, 1923, as amended by the Special Constables Order (No. 2) 1945 (which clause relates to the notional rates of pay of special constables for the purpose of reckoning compensation for injuries received or illness contracted on duty), there shall be substituted the following clause :—

"(b) The pay shall be reckoned as at the rate of 105s. weekly with an addition of 1s. 6d. weekly for each completed year (other than the first two) for which the special constable has held the office since his last appointment, subject, however, to a maximum of 132s. weekly." [1208]

2. This Order may be cited as the Special Constables Order, 1947. [1209]

POLICE (OVERSEAS SERVICE) (GERMANY) REGULATIONS, 1947

S. R. & O., 1947, No. 1088

May 29, 1947

In pursuance of the powers conferred on me by section one of the Police (Overseas Service) Act, 1945, I, the Right Honourable Ernest Bevin, His Majesty's Principal Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, hereby make the following Regulations :—

PART I

Government and Discipline

1. The function of the special police corps of the Control Commission for Germany (British Element) (hereafter in these Regulations referred to as "the Corps") is to perform under the control of the Secretary of State, police duties in Germany, and the Corps shall consist of those persons who are appointed to be members of it in accordance with the provisions of these Regulations or who are members of it when these Regulations come into force. [1210]

2.—(1) The members of the Corps shall be appointed by the Secretary of State and any member of the Austrian Corps transferred by the Secretary of State to the Corps shall be deemed to have been so appointed.

(2) An appointment made without any definite period of overseas service having been fixed shall operate as an appointment for a period expiring at the end of three months from the coming into force of these Regulations.

(3) A period of overseas service may, in the case of a reversionary member, of a home police force, with his consent and that of the appropriate authority, be varied.

(4) A member of the Corps may be appointed on terms which permit of his transfer to the Austrian Corps by the Secretary of State.

(5) In these Regulations "period of overseas service" means the period of overseas service for which a member of the Corps has engaged with the consent, in the case of a reversionary member of a home police force, of the appropriate authority and of the Secretary of State or, as the case may be, the period fixed by the operation of paragraph (2) above, and if such a period of overseas service has been varied under paragraph (3) above or has been varied by being terminated by discharge under the provisions of paragraph (1) or (2) of Regulation 5 means the period as so varied. [1211]

3.—(1) The Chief Officer of the Corps shall be the Inspector-General.

(2) The ranks in the Corps below that of Inspector-General shall be, in order of seniority, the following :—

- Deputy Inspector-General.
- Assistant Inspector-General.
- Deputy Assistant Inspector-General.
- Police Staff Officer Grade I.
- Police Staff Officer Grade II.
- Police Staff Officer Grade III.
- Police Staff Officer Grade IV.

(3) The number of members of the Corps to hold each rank below that of Inspector-General shall be that specified from time time time by the Secretary of State. [1212]

4.—(1) A member of the Corps may be promoted to any rank by the Secretary of State.

(2) A person may be appointed a member of the Corps with any rank.

(3) Any member of the Corps, without being promoted, may be ordered by the Inspector-General to assume for a period not exceeding three months the functions, title and insignia of a rank higher than that which he holds.

(4) A member of the Corps shall not be reduced in rank except—

(a) under the provisions of these Regulations relating to discipline, or

(b) by the Secretary of State, to a rank not lower than that which he held immediately after he was appointed a member of the Corps on the ground either that the number of members holding his rank is reduced under the provisions of paragraph (3) of Regulation 3 above or that he is unsuitable to hold his rank. [1213]

5.—(1) A member of the Corps, not being a reversionary member of a home police force, may be discharged from the Corps by the Secretary of State before the end of his period of overseas service.

(2) A member of the Corps shall be on probation for the first six months of his service as such a member and, while he is on probation, may be discharged by the Secretary of State if, in the opinion of the Inspector-General, he is not likely to be an efficient member of the Corps :

Provided that a member of the Corps who has been transferred thereto from the Austrian Corps shall not be on probation after the expiry of six months from the beginning of his period of overseas service. [1214]

6. Subject to any direction of the Secretary of State, any function of the Inspector-General may be performed, while he is absent from Germany or is incapacitated for duty or during a vacancy in that office, by such one of the Deputy Inspectors-General as may be designated either generally or for any particular purpose or on any particular occasion by the Secretary of State. [1215]

7.—(1) Every member of the Corps shall be subject to the provisions of the First Schedule hereto, which relates to discipline.

(2) A member of the Corps shall, by virtue of this paragraph and without more, be suspended during any period of penal servitude or imprisonment to which he has been sentenced by any court having jurisdiction in the United Kingdom or, unless the Inspector-General otherwise orders, during any period of detention inflicted as a punishment by a competent authority acting outside the United Kingdom. [1216]

PART II

Pensions, Allowances and Gratuities

8.—(1) There shall be paid to or in respect of persons who are or have been members of the Corps—

(a) in the case of those who immediately before ceasing to be members of the Corps were reversionary members of a home police force, such grants in respect of length of service, of death or of incapacity, and

(b) in all other cases, such grants in respect of death or incapacity by reason of infirmity of mind or body occasioned by an injury received in the execution of duty, as are prescribed by the Second Schedule hereto.

(2) The Act of 1921 shall apply in relation to members of the Corps and persons who, after being such members, serve in a home police force or in any such capacity as is mentioned in section 10 of the Act of 1921, with the adaptations and modifications specified in the Second Schedule hereto, as if, while members of the Corps, they were members of a home police force and as if the Secretary of State were the police authority for that force. [1217]

9. All payments which are payable under the provisions of the Second Schedule hereto or under the Act of 1921 as applied by that Schedule shall, unless under the provisions of that Schedule they fall to be paid out of the police fund of a home police force, be paid out of moneys provided by Parliament. [1218]

PART III

General

10. Any function of the Secretary of State under these Regulations may be performed by any person acting under his authorisation in that behalf. [1219]

11.—(1) In these Regulations the following expressions have the meanings hereby respectively assigned to them, that is to say :—

“ the Act ” means the Police (Overseas Service) Act, 1945 ;

“ the Act of 1921 ” means the Police Pensions Act, 1921, as amended by the Police Pensions Act, 1926 ;

“ appropriate authority ” has the same meaning as in the Act ;

“ the Austrian Corps ” means the public safety branch of the Allied Commission for Austria (British Element) ;

“ grant ” includes a pension, allowance or gratuity ;

“ home police force ” has the same meaning as in the Act ;

“ overseas service ” has the same meaning as in the Act ;

“ period of overseas service ” has the meaning assigned to it by paragraph (5) of Regulation 2 ;

“ reversion ” means reversion to a home police force in exercise of the right of reversion conferred by subsection (1) of section 2 of the Act or by that subsection as applied either by subsection (2) of section 14 of the Police Act, 1946, or by subsection (2) of section 9 of the Police (Scotland) Act, 1946 ;

“ reversionary member of a home police force ” means a member of the Corps who has been a member of a home police force and has not lost his right of reversion and includes—

(i) a person who has transferred to the Corps from being either a civil servant within the meaning of the Superannuation Act, 1887, or an officer of the staff of the metropolitan police within the meaning of the Metropolitan Police Staff (Superannuation) Act, 1875, and

(ii) in relation to grants under the Act of 1921, any person who, immediately before he ceased to be a member of the Corps, was a reversionary member.

(2) The Interpretation Act, 1889, shall apply to the interpretation of these Regulations as it applies to the interpretation of an Act of Parliament. [1220]

12.—(1) These Regulations may be cited as the Police (Overseas Service) (Germany) Regulations, 1947.

(2) These Regulations shall come into force on the first day of June, 1947. [1221]

FIRST SCHEDULE

- (13) if he lends money to any superior, or borrows from or accepts any present from any inferior in rank.

2. Any member of the Corps also commits an offence against discipline if he is convicted of any offence by any court having jurisdiction in the United Kingdom, or is convicted of any offence by any competent authority other than a disciplinary board acting outside the United Kingdom. [1222]

PART II

Rules of Procedure and Punishments

1.—(1) Where on consideration of a complaint or otherwise the Inspector-General decides that a member of the Corps should be charged with an offence against discipline he shall, as soon as possible, cause the member to be informed in writing of the charge, together with such particulars, including details as to time and place, as will leave him under no misapprehension regarding the allegations made against him.

(2) As soon as possible the accused shall be given copies of any complaints or reports relating to the charge against him.

2.—(1) The accused shall state in writing whether he admits or denies the charge, and shall be allowed to give in writing any explanation which he may wish to offer.

(2) The accused may state the names and addresses of any witnesses to material facts whom he may desire to give evidence at the hearing of the charge.

(3) The Inspector-General shall take all reasonable steps within his power to secure that any such witnesses shall be available to give evidence at the hearing of the charge.

(4) If the accused denies the charge he shall, unless the Inspector-General is satisfied with the explanation which he has offered, be ordered to appear before a disciplinary board at the hearing of the charge, and be entitled to hear the evidence given against him and to have an opportunity of cross-examining the witness and of calling witnesses in his defence.

(5) If the accused so desires he shall be entitled to have a member of the Corps selected by himself to assist him in presenting his case who shall be of a rank inferior to that of the president of the disciplinary board.

3. An offence against discipline may be punished by—

- (i) dismissal ;
- (ii) being required to retire as an alternative to dismissal ;
- (iii) reduction in rank ;
- (iv) reduction in rate of pay ;
- (v) fine ;
- (vi) reprimand ;
- (vii) caution :

Provided that—

(a) a punishment of reduction in rate of pay shall be for a period to be stated in the sentence of the disciplinary board which shall not exceed twelve months, and at the end of the stated period the member shall receive the rate of pay to which he would have been entitled but for the punishment awarded him ;

(b) a fine shall not exceed one-fifty-second of the member's annual pay.

4.—(1) The disciplinary board shall, as soon as may be after the determination by them of a charge, cause their decision to be notified in writing to the Inspector-General and to the accused.

(2) No punishment inflicted by a disciplinary board, except that of reprimand or caution, shall take effect unless confirmed by the Inspector-General.

(3) On receiving the notification of a punishment other than that of reprimand or caution, the Inspector-General may decide either to confirm the punishment or to substitute some lesser punishment.

(4) If the Inspector-General decides to confirm the punishment it shall take effect, unless he otherwise orders, from the date specified in the sentence of the disciplinary board.

(5) If the Inspector-General decides to substitute a lesser punishment, it shall take effect from such date as he orders.

5.—(1) Any member of the Corps who is punished by dismissal, requirement to retire as an alternative to dismissal, reduction in rank or reduction in rate of pay may appeal to the Secretary of State, and the Secretary of State may make rules as to the procedure on such appeals.

(2) The Secretary of State may allow such an appeal, dismiss such an appeal or vary the punishment by substituting some other punishment whether more or less severe which is set out in this Part of this Schedule.

6.—(1) A disciplinary board shall consist of three members of the Corps appointed for that purpose, whether generally or in any particular case, by the Inspector-General.

(2) The members of the board shall not be of a rank inferior to that of the accused, and that one of the members who is appointed by the Inspector-General to be president shall be of a rank superior to that of the accused :

Provided that where the accused is a Deputy Inspector-General the president and members of the board shall be persons of his own rank.

7.—(1) If the accused cannot be found or refuses or neglects to admit or deny the charge or to appear before the disciplinary board, or is serving a sentence of penal servitude or imprisonment inflicted by a court having jurisdiction in the United Kingdom, or is undergoing detention inflicted as a punishment by a competent authority acting outside the United Kingdom, he shall be deemed to have denied the charge.

(2) In the circumstances described in sub-paragraph (1) of this paragraph the Inspector-General shall cause such steps to be taken as may be reasonably practicable to carry out as near as may be the disciplinary procedure set out in paragraphs 1 and 2 of this Part of this Schedule but, subject to the foregoing provisions of this sub-paragraph, the case may be decided in the absence of the accused.

8. If on consideration of a complaint or otherwise the Secretary of State decides that the Inspector-General should be charged with an offence against discipline, the procedure shall be such as the Secretary of State may direct, except that paragraph 5 above shall apply. [1223]

PART III

Provisions as to Suspension

1. The Inspector-General, if it appears to him that an offence against discipline or a criminal offence may have been committed by a member of the Corps, may suspend that member from duty.

2. Where a member of the Corps is suspended from duty under this Part of this Schedule on the ground of absence from duty, the period of suspension shall, if the Inspector-General so directs, begin with the date which appears to him to be the date on which that offence had been committed, and where the absence from duty is combined with absence from Germany may, if he so directs, begin with the date on which, in his opinion, the member should have commenced to return to Germany.

3. Where a member of the Corps is suspended from duty under this Part of this Schedule the period of suspension shall, unless previously brought to an end by the Inspector-General, continue until disciplinary proceedings in respect of that offence have been concluded or until he has decided that such proceedings shall not be taken or shall be discontinued.

4. The Inspector-General may delegate all or any of his powers under this Part of this Schedule to any member or members of the Corps of a rank not lower than that of Deputy Assistant Inspector-General. [1224]

SECOND SCHEDULE

Pensions, Allowances and Gratuities

1.—(1) The following provisions of the Act of 1921, namely, section 1, subsections (2), (3) and (4) of section 2, section 6, subsection (3) of section 8, paragraph (iii) of subsection (1) of section 10 and sections 22, 27, 30 and 32, shall not apply to the Corps or to service therein.

(2) The following provisions of the Act of 1921, namely, paragraphs (a), (b) and (d) of subsection (1) of section 2, paragraphs (a) and (c) of section 3, paragraphs (a) and (c) of section 4 (except the provisions of the last-mentioned paragraphs which deal with death from the effects of an injury received in the execution of duty), subsections (1) and (2) of section 8, section 9 and paragraphs (i), (ii) and (iv) of subsection (1) and section (2) of section 10, shall not apply to service in the Corps other than service as a reversionary member of a home police force.

2.—(1) Where a member of the Corps is transferred thereto from the Austrian Corps, for the purposes of any right in respect of a grant or the repayment of rateable deductions, the Austrian Corps shall be treated as though it were part of the Corps.

(2) Where a member of the Corps is transferred to the Austrian Corps any rights or obligations of his or in respect of him under Part II of these Regulations or this Schedule shall cease and be replaced by such rights and obligations as may be conferred or imposed upon or in respect of him by any Regulations relating to the Austrian Corps made under subsections (2) and (3) of section 1 of the Act.

3.—(1) Where a member of the Corps leaves the Corps without claiming to be entitled to a pension under paragraph (c) of subsection (1) of section 2 of the Act of 1921 and it is claimed afterwards that he is disabled by infirmity of mind or body occasioned by an injury received in the execution of his duty as a member of the Corps without his own default or has died from the effects of an injury so received without his own default and such claim is established, there shall be payable, subject to the succeeding provisions of this paragraph, the same pension to him as if, while still a member of the Corps, he had been incapacitated for the performance of his duty by infirmity of mind or body occasioned by such an injury and the same grants to his widow, children and dependants as if he had died from the effects of such an injury after being granted a pension in respect of it.

(2) A grant under sub-paragraph (1) shall be based on the approved service which the member was entitled to reckon when he left the Corps and his rank and annual pay at that date, but shall be payable, where the right is in respect of death, as from the time of death and, where the right is in respect of permanent disablement, as from the time of the disablement or, where that time cannot be ascertained, from the time when the claim is made to the Secretary of State.

(3) A claim under sub-paragraph (1) shall not affect the right to any other grant or any repayment of rateable deductions under the Act of 1921 unless and until the said claim is established, and thereupon the said right shall cease.

(4) Any payment of a grant or repayment of rateable deductions which has been made and the right to which has ceased under sub-paragraph (3) shall be irrecoverable.

(5) Any payment of a pension or allowance to a person whose right to it has ceased under sub-paragraph (3) which is made after the time from which a pension or allowance under sub-paragraph (1) becomes payable to that person shall be treated as a payment on account of the latter pension or allowance.

(6) Any payment of a gratuity or repayment of rateable deductions which, under sub-paragraph (4), has become irrecoverable, shall be treated as a payment on account of any grant payable under sub-paragraph (1) to the person to whom the irrecoverable payment or repayment was made except where an irrecoverable gratuity was paid under those provisions of the Act of 1921 which are mentioned below, in which case it shall be treated as such a payment on account only to the extent by which it exceeds the sum of the payments that would have been made if the person to whom it was paid had been in receipt—

- (i) where the irrecoverable gratuity was paid under paragraph (d) of subsection (1) of section 2 of the Act of 1921, of a pension at a rate equal to a sixtieth of his annual pay for each year of approved service ;
- (ii) where the irrecoverable gratuity was paid under paragraph (c) of section 3 of the Act of 1921, of a widow's ordinary pension on scale (i) in paragraph 6 of the First Schedule to the Act of 1921 ;
- (iii) where the irrecoverable gratuity was paid under paragraph (d) of section 3 or paragraph (b) of section 4 of the Act of 1921, of the pension or allowance that would have been paid if the irrecoverable gratuity had not been granted.

(7) Where a member of the Corps serves in a home police force after leaving the Corps and a right to a grant under sub-paragraph (1) to or in respect of him is established, the police authority of that force shall pay to the Secretary of State any grant or any rateable deductions which they would have been liable to pay or repay after the date when the right is so established if the right to them had not ceased under sub-paragraph (3).

(8) In determining a claim under sub-paragraph (1) infirmity shall be deemed to be occasioned by, or a death to be due to, the effects of an injury, notwithstanding that events after leaving the Corps have aggravated the effects of the injury.

4. References in the Act of 1921 to a Chief Officer of Police shall have effect in relation to the Corps as references to the Inspector-General.

5.—(1) A reversionary member of a home police force shall not be entitled to retire from the Corps under paragraph (a) of subsection (1) of section 2 of the Act of 1921 at a date earlier than the date of the conclusion of his period of overseas service.

(2) A reversionary member of a home police force who, on or before the date of the conclusion of his period of overseas service, attains the age of sixty, but on that date will not have or has not completed twenty-five years' approved service, shall be entitled, on giving to the Secretary of State notice of his intention so to do, to retire on the said date and receive such ordinary pension or gratuity as he would have been entitled to receive had he retired on that date on a medical certificate.

6.—(1) Subsection (1) of section 8 of the Act of 1921 shall have effect in relation to the engagement of a member of a home police force, with the consent of the appropriate authority and of the Secretary of State, as a member of the Corps, and to his reversion under either subsection (1) of section 2 of the Act or that subsection as applied either by subsection (2) of section 14 of the Police Act, 1946, or by subsection (2) of section 9 of the Police (Scotland) Act, 1946, as if such engagement and reversion were removals with the sanction described in the said subsection (1) of section 8.

(2) A reversionary member of a home police force shall not be deemed to have removed from the Corps within the meaning of subsection (1) of section 8 of the Act of 1921 to a police force other than the force to which he has a right of reversion unless he has obtained the written sanction of the appropriate authority to such removal.

(3) Subsection (2) of section 8 of the Act of 1921 shall have effect as if any payment by a police authority to the Secretary of State under sub-paragraph (7) of paragraph 3 of this Schedule were a grant referred to in the said subsection.

7.—(1) Section 12 of the Act of 1921 shall not apply to a member of the Corps.

(2) A member of the Corps or a person who has been such a member shall not be entitled to a pension or gratuity in respect of incapacity unless—

- (i) either he obtains a certificate under sub-paragraph (5) (i) and (ii) of this paragraph or it is deemed under sub-paragraph (9) of this paragraph that he is disabled and that the disablement is likely to become permanent ; and
- (ii) where the claim is for a special pension he obtains a certificate under sub-paragraph (5) (iii), (iv) and (v) of this paragraph.

(3) If a member of the Corps claims to be entitled to receive a grant under paragraph (b), (c) or (d) of subsection (1) of section 2 of the Act of 1921 or under sub-paragraph (1) of paragraph 3 of this Schedule, the Secretary of State shall appoint a qualified medical practitioner to examine him.

(4) The Inspector-General shall give the appointed medical practitioner all necessary information as to the claimant's history and, where the claimant is still a member of the Corps, as to what his future duties would be if he remains such a member.

(5) After examining the claimant and considering all relevant information the appointed medical practitioner—

- (i) if he is satisfied that the claimant is incapacitated for the performance of his duty by infirmity of mind or body, shall so certify, and
- (ii) if he is satisfied that the incapacity is likely to be permanent, shall so certify :

where the appointed medical practitioner certifies as in (ii) above or it is deemed under sub-paragraph (9) of this paragraph that the claimant is disabled and that his disablement is likely to be permanent, the appointed medical practitioner—

- (iii) if he is satisfied that the infirmity producing the incapacity or disablement was occasioned by the causes alleged by the claimant, shall so certify,
- (iv) if he is satisfied that the injury occasioning the infirmity was received without the claimant's own default, shall so certify, and
- (v) shall certify the degree of incapacity or disablement.

(6) A copy of the certificate under sub-paragraph (5) shall be given to the claimant.

(7) If the claimant is dissatisfied with the certificate of the appointed medical practitioner and, within twenty-one days of the receipt by the claimant of the copy of the certificate, applies to the Secretary of State to appoint a medical referee, the Secretary of State shall appoint a medical referee.

(8) The medical referee after examining the claimant and considering all relevant information, whether or not it was information available to the appointed medical practitioner, shall issue whatever certificate under sub-paragraph (5) of this paragraph would be in his opinion proper.

(9) Where a person who after leaving the Corps and serving in a home police force and having been given by the police authority of that force a grant under paragraph (b), (c) or (d) of subsection (1) of section 2 of the Act of 1921 claims a pension under sub-paragraph (1) of paragraph 3 of this Schedule, it shall be deemed that he is disabled and that the disablement is likely to be permanent.

(10) The decision of an appointed medical practitioner to certify or to refuse to certify under sub-paragraph (5) of this paragraph shall, unless there is an appeal to a medical referee, be final on all questions within his consideration under the said sub-paragraph.

(11) The decision of the medical referee to certify or to refuse to certify under sub-paragraph (5) of this paragraph shall, unless a claim is referred to him by an appeal tribunal, be final on all questions within his consideration under the said sub-paragraph, and his decision on such a reference shall, subject to any further reference, be final.

(12) Where a person is in receipt of a special pension granted to him by the Secretary of State, the Secretary of State may, as often as he thinks it desirable within five years of the date of the grant of the pension, require him to be examined by an appointed medical practitioner and, on such requirement, sub-paragraphs (5), (6), (7) and (8) of this paragraph shall apply.

(13) The Secretary of State on receipt of the certificate of the appointed medical practitioner or, as the case may be, of the medical referee under sub-paragraph (12) above may, if the pensioner's degree of disablement has altered, reassess the amount of the pension accordingly subject to the limits prescribed by paragraph 4 of the First Schedule to the Act of 1921 and, if the pensioner's incapacity has permanently ceased, reduce the pension of a reversionary member of a home police force to the pension that would have been payable to him on Scale No. 6 in the Table subjoined to Part I of the First Schedule to the Act of 1921 and may end the pension of any other person.

(14) If a claimant or, as the case may be, a pensioner refuses or wilfully or negligently fails to submit himself for examination by an appointed medical practitioner or a medical referee under this paragraph or refuses or wilfully or negligently fails in connection with such examination to supply the practitioner or referee with any information, the Secretary of State may deal with him in all respects as if certificates under sub-paragraphs (5) and (8) of this paragraph of such a nature as the Secretary of State may determine had been issued.

8.—(1) Subsection (1) of section 17 of the Act of 1921 shall not apply to a grant payable or claimed to be payable by the Secretary of State under these Regulations.

(2) Where—

- (a) a pension or allowance granted by the Secretary of State under these Regulations is subsequently, in pursuance of the Act of 1921 as applied by these Regulations, declared by him to have been forfeited,
- (b) any person claims as of right from the Secretary of State a grant under these Regulations and the Secretary of State does not admit the claim, or
- (c) any person claims as of right from the Secretary of State a grant under these Regulations larger than that granted to that person, the person aggrieved may apply to the Secretary of State for a reconsideration of the case and, if aggrieved by his decision upon such reconsideration, may appeal to an appeal tribunal.

(3) An appeal tribunal shall be appointed by the Secretary of State if any person notifies him of his desire to appeal to such a tribunal under sub-paragraph (2) and may be appointed either to hear all appeals under the said sub-paragraph or to hear any particular appeal or class or description of appeal.

(4) An appeal tribunal shall consist of three members who are respectively a barrister, advocate or solicitor of not less than seven years' standing, a duly qualified medical practitioner of not less than seven years' standing and a retired member of the Corps, of the Austrian Corps or of a home police force who either held a rank in the Corps or the Austrian Corps not lower than that of Deputy Assistant Inspector-General or held a rank in the force not lower than that of superintendent.

(5) If the appeal tribunal decide that the evidence before the appointed medical practitioner or, if there has been an appeal to a medical referee, before that referee was inaccurate or inadequate, they may refer the matter again to the practitioner or, as the case may be, the referee to consider the matter again and issue any amended certificate he thinks proper.

(6) Subject to any general or special directions of the Secretary of State an appeal tribunal shall determine its own procedure.

(7) The provisions of subsection (2) of section 17 of the Act of 1921 shall have effect in relation to any decision of an appeal tribunal with the substitution for references to quarter sessions of references to the appeal tribunal.

9.—(1) Section 18 of the Act of 1921 shall not apply to a person in receipt of a pension granted by the Secretary of State under these Regulations.

(2) Where a person in receipt of a pension granted by the Secretary of State under these Regulations takes service in any police force other than as a member of the first class of the police reserve or as an ex-member of a police force who joins a force for service in an emergency, the said pension shall cease forthwith and all rights in respect of that person to a grant shall cease.

(3) Where a person who was in receipt of a special pension which has ceased under the provisions of sub-paragraph (2) above subsequently becomes incapacitated for the performance of his duty or dies, his rights under the Act of 1921 and the rights of any other person in respect of him under that Act against the police authority of any force of which he was a member after ceasing to be a member of the Corps shall be determined as if the injury on account of which he received the special pension which has ceased had been received otherwise than in the execution of his duty.

10. The references in subsection (3) of section 29 and in section 31 of the Act of 1921 to the provisions of that Act shall have effect in relation to the Corps and service in the Corps as references to the provisions of that Act as applied by these Regulations.

11.—(1) For the purposes of paragraphs 6 and 10 of the First Schedule to the Act of 1921 the ranks of Police Staff Officer Grade III and Police Staff Officer Grade IV shall be deemed to be the rank of inspector, and all higher ranks in the Corps shall be deemed to be ranks higher than that of inspector.

(2) For the purpose of proviso (i) to sub-paragraph (a) of paragraph 20 of the First Schedule to the Act of 1921 an appointment to the Corps shall, in the case of a reversionary member of a home police force, be deemed to be a promotion.

(3) Sub-paragraph (b) of the said paragraph 20 shall not apply to the Corps.

12. In this Schedule the expression "disabled" means disabled by infirmity of mind or body to such an extent as would incapacitate a member of the Corps for the performance of his duty, and "disablement" has a corresponding meaning. [1225]

POLICE (OVERSEAS SERVICE) (AUSTRIA) REGULATIONS, 1947

S. R. & O., 1947, No. 1188

June 8, 1947

In pursuance of the powers conferred on me by section one of the Police (Overseas Service) Act, 1945, I, the Right Honourable Ernest Bevin, His Majesty's Principal Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, hereby make the following Regulations :—

PART I

Government and Discipline

1. The function of the public safety branch of the Allied Commission for Austria (British Element) (hereafter in these Regulations referred to as "the Corps") is to perform, under the control of the Secretary of State, police duties in Austria, and the Corps shall consist of those persons who are appointed to be members of it in accordance with the provisions of these Regulations or who are members of it when these Regulations come into force. [1226]

2.—(1) The members of the Corps shall be appointed by the Secretary of State and any member of the German Corps transferred by the Secretary of State to the Corps shall be deemed to have been so appointed.

(2) An appointment made without any definite period of overseas service having been fixed shall operate as an appointment for a period expiring at the end of three months from the coming into force of these Regulations.

(3) A period of overseas service may, in the case of a reversionary member of a home police force, with his consent and that of the appropriate authority, be varied.

(4) A member of the Corps may be appointed on terms which permit of his transfer to the German Corps by the Secretary of State.

(5) In these Regulations "period of overseas service" means the period of overseas service for which a member of the Corps has engaged with the consent, in the case of a reversionary member of a home police force, of the appropriate authority and of the Secretary of State or, as the case may be, the period fixed by the operation of paragraph (2), and if such period of overseas service has been varied under paragraph (3) or has been varied by being terminated by discharge under the provisions of paragraph (1) or (2) of Regulation 5 means the period as so varied. [1227]

3.—(1) There shall be a Chief Officer of the Corps who shall, unless the Secretary of State otherwise directs, be denominated the Inspector-General.

(2) The ranks in the Corps may include, in order of seniority, the following :—

- Deputy Inspector-General.
- Assistant Inspector-General.
- Deputy Assistant Inspector-General.
- Police Staff Officer Grade I.
- Police Staff Officer Grade II.
- Police Staff Officer Grade III.

(3) The number of members of the Corps to hold each rank shall be that specified from time to time by the Secretary of State. [1228]

4.—(1) A member of the Corps may be promoted to any rank by the Secretary of State.

(2) A person may be appointed a member of the Corps with any rank.

(3) Any member of the Corps, without being promoted, may be ordered by the Chief Officer to assume for a period not exceeding three months the functions, title and insignia of a rank higher than that which he holds.

(4) A member of the Corps shall not be reduced in rank except—

- (a) under the provisions of these Regulations relating to discipline, or
- (b) by the Secretary of State, to a rank not lower than that which he held immediately after he was appointed a member of the Corps on the ground either that the number of members holding his rank is reduced under the provisions of paragraph (3) of Regulation 3 above or that he is unsuitable to hold his rank. [1229]

5.—(1) A member of the Corps, not being a reversionary member of a home police force, may be discharged from the Corps by the Secretary of State before the end of his period of overseas service.

(2) A member of the Corps shall be on probation for the first six months of his service as such a member and, while he is on probation, may be discharged by the Secretary of State if, in the opinion of the Chief Officer, he is not likely to be an efficient member of the Corps :

Provided that a member of the Corps who has been transferred thereto from the German Corps shall not be on probation after the expiry of six months from the beginning of his period of overseas service. [1230]

6. Subject to any direction of the Secretary of State, any function of the Chief Officer may be performed, while he is absent from Austria or is incapacitated for duty or during a vacancy in that office, by such one of the members of the Corps holding the senior rank as may be designated either generally or for any particular purpose or on any particular occasion by the Secretary of State. [1231]

7.—(1) Every member of the Corps shall be subject to the provisions of the First Schedule hereto, which relates to discipline.

(2) A member of the Corps shall, by virtue of this paragraph and without more, be suspended during any period of penal servitude or imprisonment to which he has been sentenced by any court having jurisdiction in the United Kingdom or, unless the Chief Officer otherwise orders, during any period of detention inflicted as a punishment by a competent authority acting outside the United Kingdom. [1232]

PART II

Pensions, Allowances and Gratuities

8.—(1) There shall be paid to or in respect of persons who are or have been members of the Corps—

- (a) in the case of those who immediately before ceasing to be members of the Corps were reversionary members of a home police force, such grants in respect of length of service, of death or of incapacity, and
- (b) in all other cases, such grants in respect of death or incapacity by reason of infirmity of mind or body occasioned by an injury received in the execution of duty, as are prescribed by the Second Schedule hereto.

(2) The Act of 1921 shall apply in relation to members of the Corps and persons who, after being such members, serve in a home police force or in any such capacity as is mentioned in section 10 of the Act of 1921, with the adaptations and modifications specified in the Second Schedule hereto, as if, while members of the Corps, they were members of a home police force and as if the Secretary of State were the police authority for that force. [1233]

9. All payments which are payable under the provisions of the Second Schedule hereto or under the Act of 1921 as applied by that Schedule shall, unless under the provisions of that Schedule they fall to be paid out of the police fund of a home police force, be paid out of moneys provided by Parliament. [1234]

PART III

General

10. Any function of the Secretary of State under these Regulations may be performed by any person acting under his authorisation in that behalf. [1235]

11.—(1) In these Regulations the following expressions have the meanings hereby respectively assigned to them, that is to say :—

“ the Act ” means the Police (Overseas Service) Act, 1945 ;

“ the Act of 1921 ” means the Police Pensions Act, 1921, as amended by the Police Pensions Act, 1926 ;

“ appropriate authority ” has the same meaning as in the Act ;

“ the German Corps ” means the special police corps of the Control Commission for Germany (British Element) ;

“ grant ” includes a pension, allowance or gratuity ;

“ home police force ” has the same meaning as in the Act ;

“ overseas service ” has the same meaning as in the Act ;

“ period of overseas service ” has the meaning assigned to it by paragraph (5) of Regulation 2 ;

“ reversion ” means reversion to a home police force in exercise of the right of reversion conferred by subsection (1) of section 2 of the Act or by that subsection as applied either by subsection (2) of section 14 of the Police Act, 1946, or by subsection (2) of section 9 of the Police (Scotland) Act, 1946 ;

“ reversionary member of a home police force ” means a member of the Corps who has been a member of a home police force and has not lost his right of reversion and includes—

(i) a person who has transferred to the Corps from being either a civil servant within the meaning of the Superannuation Act, 1887, or an officer of the staff of the metropolitan police within the meaning of the Metropolitan Police Staff (Superannuation) Act, 1875, and

(ii) in relation to grants under the Act of 1921, any person who, immediately before he ceased to be a member of the Corps, was a reversionary member.

(2) The Interpretation Act, 1889, shall apply to the interpretation of these Regulations as it applies to the interpretation of an Act of Parliament. [1236]

12.—(1) These Regulations may be cited as the Police (Overseas) Service (Austria) Regulations, 1947.

(2) These Regulations shall come into force on the ninth day of June, 1947. [1237]

Note.—There is a slight discrepancy between the title as it appears here and in the heading to the regulations.

FIRST SCHEDULE

PART I

Code of Offences against Discipline

1. A member of the Corps commits an offence against discipline if he is guilty of—

- (1) discreditable conduct, that is to say, if he acts in a disorderly manner or in any manner prejudicial to discipline or likely to bring discredit on the reputation of the Corps ;
- (2) insubordinate or oppressive conduct, that is to say, if he—
  - (a) is insubordinate by word, act or demeanour,
  - (b) is guilty of oppressive or tyrannical conduct towards an inferior in rank,
  - (c) uses obscene, abusive or insulting language to any other member of the Corps,
  - (d) wilfully or negligently makes any false complaint or statement against any member of the Corps,
  - (e) assaults any member of the Corps, or
  - (f) overholds any complaint or report against any member of the Corps ;
- (3) disobedience to orders, that is to say, if he disobeys or, without good and sufficient cause, omits or neglects to carry out any lawful order whether in writing or not ;
- (4) neglect of duty, that is to say, if he—
  - (a) neglects or, without good and sufficient reason, omits promptly and diligently to attend to or carry out anything which is his duty as a member of the Corps,
  - (b) by carelessness or neglect permits a prisoner to escape,
  - (c) fails, when knowing where any offender is to be found, to report the same or to make due exertions for making him amenable to justice,
  - (d) fails to report any matter which it is his duty to report,
  - (e) fails to disclose any evidence which he or any person within his knowledge can give for or against any prisoner or defendant to a criminal charge or suspect,
  - (f) omits to make any necessary entry in any official document or book, or
  - (g) while absent from duty on account of sickness is guilty of any act or conduct calculated to retard his return to duty ;
- (5) falsehood or prevarication, that is to say, if he—
  - (a) knowingly makes or signs any false statement in any official document or book,
  - (b) wilfully or negligently makes any false, misleading or inaccurate statement, or
  - (c) without good and sufficient cause destroys or mutilates any official document or record or alters or erases any entry therein ;
- (6) breach of confidence, that is to say, if he—
  - (a) divulges any matter which it is his duty to keep secret,
  - (b) gives notice directly or indirectly to any suspect that any proceedings are likely to be taken against him except in pursuance of his duty,
  - (c) without proper authority communicates to the press or to any unauthorised person any matter connected with the Corps,
  - (d) without proper authority shows to any person not a member of the Corps any book or document made or issued for the use or information of the members of the Corps,
  - (e) signs or circulates any petition or statement with regard to any matter concerning the Corps except through the proper channel of correspondence to the Chief Officer or the Secretary of State, or
  - (f) calls or attends any unauthorised meeting to discuss any matter concerning the Corps ;

- (7) corrupt practice, that is to say, if he—
- (a) receives any bribe,
  - (b) fails to account for or to make a prompt and true return of any money or property received by him in his official capacity,
  - (c) directly or indirectly solicits or receives any gratuity, present, subscription or testimonial without the consent of the Chief Officer,
  - (d) improperly uses his character and position as a member of the Corps for his private advantage, or
  - (e) in his capacity as a member of the Corps writes, signs or gives, without the sanction of the Chief Officer, any testimonial of character or other recommendation with the object of obtaining employment for any person ;
- (8) unlawful or unnecessary exercise of authority, that is to say, if he—
- (a) without good and sufficient cause makes any unlawful or unnecessary arrest, or
  - (b) uses any unnecessary violence to any prisoner or other person with whom he may be brought into contact in the execution of his duty ;
- (9) malingering, that is to say, if he feigns or exaggerates any sickness or injury with a view to evading duty ;
- (10) absence without leave or being late for duty, that is to say, if he, without reasonable excuse, is absent without leave from or is late for duty ;
- (11) uncleanness, that is to say, if he, while on duty or while off duty in uniform in a public place, is improperly dressed or is dirty or untidy in his person, clothing or accoutrements ;
- (12) drunkenness, that is to say, if he while on or off duty is unfit for duty through drink ;
- (13) if he lends money to any superior, or borrows from or accepts any present from any inferior in rank.

2. Any member of the Corps also commits an offence against discipline if he is convicted of any offence by any court having jurisdiction in the United Kingdom, or is convicted of any offence by any competent authority other than a disciplinary board acting outside the United Kingdom. [1238]

PART II

Rules of Procedure and Punishments

1.—(1) Where on consideration of a complaint or otherwise the Chief Officer decides that a member of the Corps should be charged with an offence against discipline he shall, as soon as possible, cause the member to be informed in writing of the charge, together with such particulars, including details as to time and place, as will leave him under no misapprehension regarding the allegations made against him.

(2) As soon as possible the accused shall be given copies of any complaints or reports relating to the charge against him.

2.—(1) The accused shall state in writing whether he admits or denies the charge, and shall be allowed to give in writing any explanation which he may wish to offer.

(2) The accused may state the names and addresses of any witnesses to material facts whom he may desire to give evidence at the hearing of the charge.

(3) The Chief Officer shall take all reasonable steps within his power to secure that any such witnesses shall be available to give evidence at the hearing of the charge.

(4) If the accused denies the charge he shall, unless the Chief Officer is satisfied with the explanation which he has offered, be ordered to appear before a disciplinary board at the hearing of the charge, and be entitled to hear the evidence given against him and to have an opportunity of cross-examining the witnesses and of calling witnesses in his defence.

(5) If the accused so desires he shall be entitled to have a member of the Corps selected by himself to assist him in presenting his case who shall be of a rank inferior to that of the president of the disciplinary board.

3. An offence against discipline may be punished by—

- (i) dismissal ;
- (ii) being required to retire as an alternative to dismissal ;
- (iii) reduction in rank ;
- (iv) reduction in rate of pay ;
- (v) fine ;
- (vi) reprimand ;
- (vii) caution :

Provided that—

(a) a punishment of reduction in rate of pay shall be for a period to be stated in the sentence of the disciplinary board which shall not exceed twelve months, and at the end of the stated period the member shall receive the rate of pay to which he would have been entitled but for the punishment awarded him ;

(b) a fine shall not exceed one-fifty-second of the member's annual pay.

4.—(1) The disciplinary board shall, as soon as may be after the determination by them of a charge, cause their decision to be notified in writing to the Chief Officer and to the accused.

(2) No punishment inflicted by a disciplinary board, except that of reprimand or caution, shall take effect unless confirmed by the Chief Officer.

(3) On receiving the notification of a punishment other than that of reprimand or caution, the Chief Officer may decide either to confirm the punishment or to substitute some lesser punishment.

(4) If the Chief Officer decides to confirm the punishment it shall take effect, unless he otherwise orders, from the date specified in the sentence of the disciplinary board.

(5) If the Chief Officer decides to substitute a lesser punishment, it shall take effect from such date as he orders.

5.—(1) Any member of the Corps who is punished by dismissal, requirement to retire as an alternative to dismissal, reduction in rank or reduction in rate of pay may appeal to the Secretary of State, and the Secretary of State may make rules as to the procedure on such appeals.

(2) The Secretary of State may allow such an appeal, dismiss such an appeal or vary the punishment by substituting some other punishment whether more or less severe which is set out in this Part of this Schedule.

6.—(1) A disciplinary board shall consist of three members appointed for that purpose, whether generally or in any particular case, by the Chief Officer.

(2) The Board shall consist of members of the Corps of a rank not inferior to that of the accused, and that one of the members who is appointed by the Chief Officer to be president shall be of a rank superior to that of the accused :

Provided that where by reason of the high rank of the accused it is not possible to appoint a board of equal rank and a president of senior rank, the board shall be composed of such persons including persons not members of the Corps as the Chief Officer with the consent of the Secretary of State may appoint.

7.—(1) If the accused cannot be found or refuses or neglects to admit or deny the charge or to appear before the disciplinary board, or is serving a sentence of penal servitude or imprisonment inflicted by a court having jurisdiction in the United Kingdom, or is undergoing detention inflicted as a punishment by a competent authority acting outside the United Kingdom, he shall be deemed to have denied the charge.

(2) In the circumstances described in sub-paragraph (1) of this paragraph the Chief Officer shall cause such steps to be taken as may be reasonably practicable to carry out as near as may be the disciplinary procedure set out in paragraphs 1 and 2 of this Part of this Schedule but, subject to the foregoing provisions of this sub-paragraph, the case may be decided in the absence of the accused.

8. If on consideration of a complaint or otherwise the Secretary of State decides that the Chief Officer should be charged with an offence against discipline, the procedure shall be such as the Secretary of State may direct, except that paragraph 5 above shall apply. [1239]

PART III

Provisions as to Suspension

1. The Chief Officer, if it appears to him that an offence against discipline or a criminal offence may have been committed by a member of the Corps, may suspend that member from duty.

2. Where a member of the Corps is suspended from duty under this Part of this Schedule on the ground of absence from duty, the period of suspension shall, if the Chief Officer so directs, begin with the date which appears to him to be the date on which that offence had been committed, and where the absence from duty is combined with absence from Austria may, if he so directs, begin with the date on which, in his opinion, the member should have commenced to return to Austria.

3. Where a member of the Corps is suspended from duty under this Part of this Schedule the period of suspension shall, unless previously brought to an end by the Chief Officer, continue until disciplinary proceedings in respect of that offence have been concluded or until he has decided that such proceedings shall not be taken or shall be discontinued.

4. The Chief Officer may delegate all or any of his powers under this Part of this Schedule to any member or members of the Corps of a rank not lower than that of Deputy Assistant Inspector-General. [1240]

SECOND SCHEDULE

Pensions, Allowances and Gratuities

1.—(1) The following provisions of the Act of 1921, namely, section 1, subsections (2), (3) and (4) of section 2, section 6, subsection (3) of section 8, paragraph (iii) of subsection (1) of section 10 and sections 22, 27, 30 and 32, shall not apply to the Corps or to service therein.

(2) The following provisions of the Act of 1921, namely, paragraphs (a), (b) and (d) of subsection (1) of section 2, paragraphs (a) and (c) of section 3, paragraphs (a) and (c) of section 4 (except the provisions of the last-mentioned paragraphs which deal with death from the effects of an injury received in the execution of duty), subsections (1) and (2) of section 8, section 9 and paragraphs (i), (ii) and (iv) of subsection (1) and subsection (2) of section 10, shall not apply to service in the Corps other than service as a reversionary member of a home police force.

2.—(1) Where a member of the Corps is transferred thereto from the German Corps, for the purposes of any right in respect of a grant or the repayment of rateable deductions, the German Corps shall be treated as though it were part of the Corps.

(2) Where a member of the Corps is transferred to the German Corps any rights or obligations of his or in respect of him under Part II of these Regulations or this Schedule shall cease and be replaced by such rights and obligations as may be conferred or imposed upon or in respect of him by any Regulations relating to the German Corps made under subsections (2) and (3) of section 1 of the Act.

3.—(1) Where a member of the Corps leaves the Corps without claiming to be entitled to a pension under paragraph (c) of subsection (1) of section 2 of the Act of 1921 and it is claimed afterwards that he is disabled by infirmity of mind or body occasioned by an injury received in the execution of his duty as a member of the Corps without his own default or has died from the effects of any injury so received without his own default and such claim is established, there shall be payable, subject to the succeeding provisions of this paragraph, the same pension to him as if, while still a member of the Corps, he had been incapacitated for the performance of his duty by infirmity of mind or body occasioned by such an injury and the same grants to his widow, children and dependants as if he had died from the effects of such an injury after being granted a pension in respect of it.

(2) A grant under sub-paragraph (1) shall be based on the approved service which the member was entitled to reckon when he left the Corps and his rank and annual pay at that date, but shall be payable, where the right is in respect of death, as from the time of death and, where the right is in respect of permanent disablement, as from the time of the disablement or, where that time cannot be ascertained, from the time when the claim is made to the Secretary of State.

(3) A claim under sub-paragraph (1) shall not affect the right to any other grant or any repayment of rateable deductions under the Act of 1921 unless and until the said claim is established, and thereupon the said right shall cease.

(4) Any payment of a grant or repayment of rateable deductions which has been made and the right to which has ceased under sub-paragraph (3) shall be irrecoverable.

(5) Any payment of a pension or allowance to a person whose right to it has ceased under sub-paragraph (3) which is made after the time from which a pension or allowance under sub-paragraph (1) becomes payable to that person shall be treated as a payment on account of the latter pension or allowance.

(6) Any payment of a gratuity or repayment of rateable deductions which, under sub-paragraph (4), has become irrecoverable, shall be treated as a payment on account of any grant payable under sub-paragraph (1) to the person to whom the irrecoverable payment or repayment was made except where an irrecoverable gratuity was paid under those provisions of the Act of 1921 which are mentioned below, in which case it shall be treated as such a payment on account only to the extent by which it exceeds the sum of the payments that would have been made if the person to whom it was paid had been in receipt—

- (i) where the irrecoverable gratuity was paid under paragraph (d) of subsection (1) of section 2 of the Act of 1921, of a pension at a rate equal to a sixtieth of his annual pay for each year of approved service ;
- (ii) where the irrecoverable gratuity was paid under paragraph (c) of section 3 of the Act of 1921, of a widow's ordinary pension on scale (i) in paragraph 6 of the First Schedule to the Act of 1921 ;
- (iii) where the irrecoverable gratuity was paid under paragraph (d) of section 3 or paragraph (b) of section 4 of the Act of 1921, of the pension or allowance that would have been paid if the irrecoverable gratuity had not been granted.

(7) Where a member of the Corps serves in a home police force after leaving the Corps and a right to a grant under sub-paragraph (1) to or in respect of him is established, the police authority of that force shall pay to the Secretary of State any grant or any rateable deductions which they would have been liable to pay or repay after the date when the right is so established if the right to them had not ceased under sub-paragraph (3).

(8) In determining a claim under sub-paragraph (1) infirmity shall be deemed to be occasioned by, or a death to be due to, the effects of an injury, notwithstanding that events after leaving the Corps have aggravated the effects of the injury.

4. References in the Act of 1921 to a Chief Officer of Police shall have effect in relation to the Corps as references to the Chief Officer.

5.—(1) A reversionary member of a home police force shall not be entitled to retire from the Corps under paragraph (a) of subsection (1) of section 2 of the Act of 1921 at a date earlier than the date of the conclusion of his period of overseas service.

(2) A reversionary member of a home police force who, on or before the date of the conclusion of his period of overseas service, attains the age of sixty, but on that date will not have or has not completed twenty-five years' approved service, shall be entitled, on giving to the Secretary of State notice of his intention so to do, to retire on the said date and receive such ordinary pension or gratuity as he would have been entitled to receive had he retired on that date on a medical certificate.

6.—(1) Subsection (1) of section 8 of the Act of 1921 shall have effect in relation to the engagement of a member of a home police force, with the consent of the appropriate authority and of the Secretary of State, as a member of the Corps, and to his reversion under either subsection (1) of section 2 of the Act or that subsection as applied either by subsection (2) of section 14 of the Police Act, 1946, or by subsection (2) of section 9 of the Police (Scotland) Act, 1946, as if such engagement and reversion were removals with the sanction described in the said subsection (1) of section 8.

(2) A reversionary member of a home police force shall not be deemed to have removed from the Corps within the meaning of subsection (1) of section 8 of the Act of 1921 to a police force other than the force to which he has a right of reversion unless he has obtained the written sanction of the appropriate authority to such removal.

(3) Subsection (2) of section 8 of the Act of 1921 shall have effect as if any payment by a police authority to the Secretary of State under sub-paragraph (7) of paragraph 3 of this Schedule were a grant referred to in the said subsection.

7.—(1) Section 12 of the Act of 1921 shall not apply to a member of the Corps.

(2) A member of the Corps or a person who has been such a member shall not be entitled to a pension or gratuity in respect of incapacity unless—

(i) either he obtains a certificate under sub-paragraph (5) (i) and (ii) of this paragraph or it is deemed under sub-paragraph (9) of this paragraph that he is disabled and that the disablement is likely to become permanent; and

(ii) where the claim is for a special pension he obtains a certificate under sub-paragraph (5) (iii), (iv) and (v) of this paragraph.

(3) If a member of the Corps claims to be entitled to receive a grant under paragraph (b), (c) or (d) of subsection (1) of section 2 of the Act of 1921 or under sub-paragraph (1) of paragraph 3 of this Schedule, the Secretary of State shall appoint a qualified medical practitioner to examine him.

(4) The Chief Officer shall give the appointed medical practitioner all necessary information as to the claimant's history and, where the claimant is still a member of the Corps, as to what his future duties would be if he remains such a member.

(5) After examining the claimant and considering all relevant information the appointed medical practitioner—

(i) if he is satisfied that the claimant is incapacitated for the performance of his duty by infirmity of mind or body, shall so certify, and

(ii) if he is satisfied that the incapacity is likely to be permanent, shall so certify:

where the appointed medical practitioner certifies as in (ii) above or it is deemed under sub-paragraph (9) of this paragraph that the claimant is disabled and that his disablement is likely to be permanent, the appointed medical practitioner—

(iii) if he is satisfied that the infirmity producing the incapacity or disablement was occasioned by the causes alleged by the claimant, shall so certify,

(iv) if he is satisfied that the injury occasioning the infirmity was received without the claimant's own default, shall so certify, and

(v) shall certify the degree of incapacity or disablement.

(6) A copy of the certificate under sub-paragraph (5) shall be given to the claimant.

(7) If the claimant is dissatisfied with the certificate of the appointed medical practitioner and, within twenty-one days of the receipt by the claimant of the copy of the certificate, applies to the Secretary of State to appoint a medical referee, the Secretary of State shall appoint a medical referee.

(8) The medical referee after examining the claimant and considering all relevant information, whether or not it was information available to the appointed medical practitioner, shall issue whatever certificate under sub-paragraph (5) of this paragraph would be in his opinion proper.

(9) Where a person who after leaving the Corps and serving in a home police force and having been given by the police authority of that force a grant under paragraph (b), (c) or (d) of subsection (1) of section 2 of the Act of 1921 claims a pension under sub-paragraph (1) of paragraph 3 of this Schedule, it shall be deemed that he is disabled and that the disablement is likely to be permanent.

(10) The decision of an appointed medical practitioner to certify or to refuse to certify under sub-paragraph (5) of this paragraph shall, unless there is an appeal to a medical referee, be final on all questions within his consideration under the said sub-paragraph.

(11) The decision of the medical referee to certify or to refuse to certify under sub-paragraph (5) of this paragraph shall, unless a claim is referred to him by an appeal tribunal, be final on all questions within his consideration under the said sub-paragraph, and his decision on such a reference shall, subject to any further reference, be final.

(12) Where a person is in receipt of a special pension granted to him by the Secretary of State, the Secretary of State may, as often as he thinks it desirable within five years of the date of the grant of the pension, require him to be examined by an appointed medical practitioner and, on such requirement, sub-paragraphs (5), (6), (7) and (8) of this paragraph shall apply.

(13) The Secretary of State on receipt of the certificate of the appointed medical practitioner or, as the case may be, of the medical referee under sub-paragraph (12) above may, if the pensioner's degree of disablement has altered, reassess the amount of the pension accordingly subject to the limits prescribed by paragraph 4 of the First Schedule to the Act of 1921 and, if the pensioner's incapacity has permanently ceased, reduce the pension of a reversionary member of a home police force to the pension that would have been payable to him on Scale No. 6 in the Table subjoined to Part I of the First Schedule to the Act of 1921 and may end the pension of any other person.

(14) If a claimant or, as the case may be, a pensioner refuses or wilfully or negligently fails to submit himself for examination by an appointed medical practitioner or a medical referee under this paragraph or refuses or wilfully or negligently fails in connection with such examination to supply the practitioner or referee with any information, the Secretary of State may deal with him in all respects as if certificates under sub-paragraphs (5) and (8) of this paragraph of such a nature as the Secretary of State may determine had been issued.

8.—(1) Subsection (1) of section 17 of the Act of 1921 shall not apply to a grant payable or claimed to be payable by the Secretary of State under these Regulations.

(2) Where—

(a) a pension or allowance granted by the Secretary of State under these Regulations is subsequently, in pursuance of the Act of 1921 as applied by these Regulations, declared by him to have been forfeited,

(b) any person claims as of right from the Secretary of State a grant under these Regulations and the Secretary of State does not admit the claim, or

(c) any person claims as of right from the Secretary of State a grant under these Regulations larger than that granted to that person, the person aggrieved may apply to the Secretary of State for a reconsideration of the case and, if aggrieved by his decision upon such reconsideration, may appeal to an appeal tribunal.

(3) An appeal tribunal shall be appointed by the Secretary of State if any person notifies him of his desire to appeal to such a tribunal under sub-paragraph (2) and may be appointed either to hear all appeals under the said sub-paragraph or to hear any particular appeal or class or description of appeal.

(4) An appeal tribunal shall consist of three members who are respectively a barrister, advocate or solicitor of not less than seven years' standing, a duly qualified medical practitioner of not less than seven years' standing and a retired member of the Corps, of the German Corps or of a home police force who either held a rank in the Corps or the German Corps not lower than that of Deputy Assistant Inspector-General or held a rank in the force not lower than that of superintendent.

(5) If the appeal tribunal decide that the evidence before the appointed medical practitioner or, if there has been an appeal to a medical referee, before that referee was inaccurate or inadequate, they may refer the matter again to the practitioner or, as the case may be, the referee to consider the matter again and issue any amended certificate he thinks proper.

(6) Subject to any general or special directions of the Secretary of State an appeal tribunal shall determine its own procedure.

(7) The provisions of subsection (2) of section 17 of the Act of 1921 shall have effect in relation to any decision of an appeal tribunal with the substitution for references to quarter sessions of references to the appeal tribunal.

9.—(1) Section 18 of the Act of 1921 shall not apply to a person in receipt of a pension granted by the Secretary of State under these Regulations.

(2) Where a person in receipt of a pension granted by the Secretary of State under these Regulations takes service in any police force other than as a member of the first class of the police reserve or as an ex-member of a police force who joins a force for service in an emergency, the said pension shall cease forthwith and all rights in respect of that person to a grant shall cease.

(3) Where a person who was in receipt of a special pension which has ceased under the provisions of sub-paragraph (2) above subsequently becomes incapacitated for the performance of his duty or dies, his rights under the Act of 1921 and the rights of any other person in respect of him under that Act against the police authority of any force of which he was a member after ceasing to be a member of the Corps shall be determined as if the injury on account of which he received the special pension which has ceased had been received otherwise than in the execution of his duty.

10. The references in subsection (3) of section 29 and in section 31 of the Act of 1921 to the provisions of that Act shall have effect in relation to the Corps and service in the Corps as references to the provisions of that Act as applied by these Regulations.

11.—(1) For the purposes of paragraphs 6 and 10 of the First Schedule to the Act of 1921 the rank of Police Staff Officer Grade III shall be deemed to be the rank of inspector, and all higher ranks in the Corps shall be deemed to be ranks higher than that of inspector.

(2) For the purpose of proviso (i) to sub-paragraph (a) of paragraph 20 of the First Schedule to the Act of 1921 an appointment to the Corps shall, in the case of a reversionary member of a home police force, be deemed to be a promotion.

(3) Sub-paragraph (b) of the said paragraph 20 shall not apply to the Corps.

12. In this Schedule the expression "disabled" means disabled by infirmity of mind or body to such an extent as would incapacitate a member of the Corps for the performance of his duty, and "disablement" has a corresponding meaning.

POLICE REGULATIONS, 1947

July 28, 1947

I, the Right Honourable James Chuter Ede, one of His Majesty's Principal Secretaries of State, in pursuance of the powers conferred on me by section four of the Police Act, 1919, hereby make the following Regulations :—

RANK AND DESIGNATIONS

1. The ranks of a police force shall be known by the following designations :—

Chief Constable (except when the title Head Constable is used) Superintendent
Inspector
Sergeant
Constable. [1242]

2. In forces where varying degrees of responsibility render intermediate ranks necessary, one or more of the following ranks may be retained or adopted as the case may be, subject, in each case, to the approval of the Secretary of State :—

Assistant Chief Constable
Chief Superintendent
Chief Inspector
Sub-divisional Inspector
Sub-Inspector
Station Sergeant
Acting Sergeant. [1243]

3. An officer in a borough police force duly appointed by the watch committee to act as deputy chief constable shall, in the absence or incapacity of the chief constable or during any vacancy in that rank, have all the powers and duties of the chief constable not specifically excluded by resolution of the committee. [1244]

4. The area within the jurisdiction of each police force shall be known as a police district.

The area to which a constable is assigned for duty either generally (as in the case of a detached constable of a county force) or for a particular period of hours (as is normally the case in an urban area) shall be known as a beat, or may, in a county force, be called a sub-section.

A number of beats grouped for supervision by a sergeant or an inspector shall be known as a section.

If a number of sections is grouped for supervision by an inspector, the area shall be known as a sub-division.

A number of sections, or sub-divisions, grouped for control by a superintendent or, in a borough force, by an officer of other rank directly responsible to the chief officer of police, shall be known as a division.

The same terms "division", "sub-division" and "section" shall be applicable to the body of men acting under the direction of the superintendent, inspector or sergeant, as the case may be, as well as to the areas in which they respectively act. [1245]

STRENGTH

5. The authorised establishment of the several ranks and any changes thereof in every police force shall be subject to the approval of the Secretary of State. [1246]

6. The numbers shall be sufficient to provide men for the carrying out of patrol, station, reserve and any other appointed police duties under responsible supervision in each tour of duty. [1247]

APPOINTMENT

7. A candidate for appointment to a police force—

- (1) must produce satisfactory references as to character, and, if he has served in any branch of His Majesty's naval, military or air forces, or in the Civil Service, or in any police force, produce satisfactory proof of his good conduct while in such service or force : a person dismissed from any such service or force shall not be eligible for appointment ;
- (2) must be under thirty years of age, or in the case of an appointment as chief officer of police, forty years of age :

Provided that a candidate over the specified age limit may be appointed—

- (a) if he has had previous service in a police force otherwise than as an auxiliary or is otherwise entitled to reckon previous service as approved service for purposes of pension, or
- (b) in other special circumstances approved by the Secretary of State upon the recommendation of the appointing authority, that is to say, the chief officer of police or the police authority, as the case may be ;
- (3) must, save for special reasons approved by the Secretary of State, be not less in height than 5 feet 8 inches ;
- (4) must be certified by the medical officer of the force to be in good health, of sound constitution and fitted both physically and mentally to perform the duties of his office ;
- (5) must satisfy the chief officer of police that he is sufficiently educated by passing a written or oral examination in reading, writing and arithmetic (addition, subtraction, multiplication and division), or an examination of a higher standard, as may be prescribed by the chief officer of police, or by producing evidence that he has passed another examination which, in the opinion of the chief officer of police, is of an equivalent or higher standard ;

- (6) must give such information as may be required as to his previous history or employment or any other matter relating to his appointment to the police force, and if any candidate makes in, or in connection with, his application for appointment any false statement and is subsequently appointed to a police force, the making of such false statement shall be an offence against discipline within the meaning of these Regulations and paragraph (5) of the Discipline Code contained in the First Schedule to these Regulations, and shall be punishable accordingly. [1248]

8. No person shall be eligible for appointment to, or shall be retained in, a police force to which these Regulations apply, if—

- (a) he carries on any business or without the consent of the chief officer of police holds any other office or employment for hire or gain, or
- (b) he resides, without the consent of the chief officer of police, at any premises where his wife or any member of his family keeps a shop or carries on any like business, or
- (c) he holds, or his wife or any member of his family living with him holds, any licence granted in pursuance of the liquor licensing laws or the laws regulating places of public entertainment in the district of the police force in which he seeks appointment or to which he has been appointed, as the case may be, or has any pecuniary interest in any such licence, or
- (d) his wife, without the consent of the chief officer of police, keeps a shop or carries on any like business in the district of the police force in which he seeks appointment or to which he has been appointed, as the case may be :

Provided that, in case of refusal of consent, there shall, in a borough police force, be an appeal to the watch committee, whose decision shall be final.

For the purpose of this Regulation, the expression " member of his family " shall include parent, son, daughter, brother and sister. [1249]

9. Every appointment to the post of chief officer of police of any county or borough police force shall be subject to the approval of the Secretary of State, and no person without previous police experience shall be appointed to any such post unless he possesses some exceptional qualification or experience which specially fits him for the post, or there is no candidate from the police service who is considered sufficiently well qualified. [1250]

10. A constable shall be on probation for the period of the first two years of his service in the force since his last appointment thereto :

Provided that the chief officer of police may at his discretion—

- (a) reduce the period of probation to a period of not less than one year, if the constable has served for a period of not less than one year either in the same force on a previous appointment thereto or in any other force to which the Police Act, 1919, applies or applied :
- (b) dispense with the period of probation if the constable has transferred with the written consent of the chief officer of police from another force to which the Police Act, 1919, applies or applied after having completed the required period of probation in that force ; or
- (c) dispense with the period of probation if the constable has served as an auxiliary for a period of not less than two years. [1251]

11. During the period of probation the services of any constable may be dispensed with at any time if the chief officer of police considers that he is not fitted, physically or mentally, to perform the duties of his office, or that he is not likely to become an efficient and well conducted constable :

Provided that a constable whose services are dispensed with under this Regulation shall be entitled to receive one week's notice or one week's pay in lieu thereof. [1252]

DISCIPLINE

12. In every police force to which these Regulations apply there shall be published to the force a code of offences against discipline. The code for each force shall contain the provisions of the Discipline Code contained in the First Schedule to these Regulations, with any additions thereto made by the police authority and approved by the Secretary of State :

Provided that such approval shall be provisional until the addition has been laid before the Police Council. [1253]

13. Every member of the force against whom a report or complaint suggesting the commission of an offence against discipline is made shall, as soon as possible, be informed in writing of the exact charge against him. [1254]

14. The written charge must disclose an offence against discipline as defined in the code of offences against discipline of the force, with such details of time and place as will leave the accused under no misapprehension as to the offence with which he is charged. [1255]

15. The written charge, which shall be entered on a form provided for the purpose (hereinafter referred to as the misconduct form), together with the report or complaint on which the charge is founded, and all reports thereon (whether confidential or otherwise) or copies thereof, shall be handed or sent as soon as practicable to the accused, who shall initial them to show that he has seen them. He shall either be allowed to retain for purposes of his defence the copies of the reports which are handed to him or shall be given a reasonable opportunity to make copies of the reports for that purpose. [1256]

16. The accused shall be directed to state in writing upon the misconduct form whether he admits or denies the charge and shall be allowed to give any explanation which he may wish to offer in writing. He shall also be allowed to state whether he desires to offer his explanation personally to the chief officer of police and shall, if he desires it, be given an opportunity of so doing. [1257]

17. The accused shall also be allowed to state the names of any witnesses to material facts whom he desires to be present when the charge is heard. Any such witnesses who are members of the police force shall be ordered to attend, and any witnesses who are not members of the force shall be given due notice that their attendance is desired and of the place and time of the hearing. [1258]

18. If the accused denies the charge, he shall, unless the chief officer of police is satisfied with the explanation he has offered, be ordered to appear before the chief officer of police and shall have an opportunity of hearing the evidence against him and of cross-examining the witnesses and of calling witnesses in his defence. [1259]

19. The decision of the chief officer of police shall be written upon the misconduct form and at once notified to the accused, who shall write on the misconduct form his acknowledgment of his having read the decision. [1260]

20.—(1) In the case of the metropolitan police the procedure in discipline cases shall be as specially approved by the Secretary of State and published in the General Orders of that force.

(2) In the case of a borough police force, the decision of the chief officer of police shall, subject to any general directions of the watch committee, be either—

- (i) to dismiss the case, or
- (ii) to remit the case to the watch committee for further hearing, or
- (iii) to award a punishment as provided in Regulation 21 :

Provided that any punishment other than a caution shall be subject to confirmation by the watch committee, and any member of the force who feels aggrieved by a decision of the chief officer of police awarding a punishment shall be entitled to appear before the watch committee upon giving notice in writing to the chief officer of police forthwith or at any later date not less than three clear days before his case is to be laid before the committee. [1261]

20A. The following provisions shall have effect with respect to disciplinary proceedings before the chief officer of police and also to proceedings before the watch committee :—

- (1) if the accused so desires, he shall be allowed to have another serving member of the force, selected by himself, to assist him in presenting his case :
- (2) if the accused absconds or refuses or neglects without good and sufficient cause to attend the proceedings at the time and place appointed, or is serving a sentence of imprisonment or penal servitude, the case may be decided in his absence. [1262]

20B.—(1) The chief officer of police may suspend from duty a member of the force against whom a report or complaint suggesting the commission of an offence against discipline is made. Such suspension from duty may continue until the disciplinary proceedings arising out of the said report or complaint have been concluded.

(2) Subject to the provisions of this Regulation, these Regulations shall continue to apply to a member of the force who is suspended from duty.

(3) A member of the force who is suspended from duty shall not be entitled in respect of the period of suspension to pay or to uniform allowance, plain clothes allowance, detective allowance, extra duty allowance or temporary duty allowance, but shall be paid a suspension allowance at such rate not less than one-half and not exceeding two-thirds of his pay as the chief officer of police may determine :

Provided that in the case of a member of the force who has been convicted of an offence summarily or on indictment no suspension allowance shall be payable in respect of any period of imprisonment or penal servitude.

(4) A member of the force who, having been suspended from duty, returns to duty without having been found guilty of any offence shall receive, as from the date of his suspension from duty, his pay and any of the said allowances of which he was in receipt immediately prior to his suspension from duty, less any amount paid to him by way of suspension allowance. [1263]

21. An offence against discipline may be punished by—

- (1) dismissal ;
- (2) being required to resign forthwith, or at such date as may be ordered (as an alternative to dismissal) ;
- (3) reduction in rank ;
- (4) reduction in rate of pay ;
- (5) forfeiture of merit or good conduct badges (except such as have been granted for an act of courage or bravery) ;
- (6) fine ;
- (7) reprimand ;
- (8) caution.

Every punishment, except a caution, shall be entered on the man's personal record. A caution shall not be so entered. [1264]

22. A reduction in pay, without reduction in rank, shall be limited to a definite period, which shall be stated in the order by which the punishment is inflicted and shall not exceed twelve months, and at the end of the stated period the man shall be advanced to the rate of pay to which he would have been entitled but for the punishment awarded him, unless the period of reduction has in the meantime been extended by way of punishment for a further offence against discipline. [1265]

23. The infliction of a fine shall not cause any advance in pay (except any additional or any special increment which is subject to good conduct as provided in the Regulations relating to pay) to be retarded or withheld. [1266]

24. The amount of a fine imposed by way of punishment for any one offence shall not exceed one week's pay and shall be recovered by stoppage of pay in amounts not exceeding one day's pay in any week, except in the event of a man leaving the force, when the whole amount of any fine then unpaid may be deducted from any pay then due. [1267]

25. There shall be kept in the office of the chief officer of police a disciplinary report book in which he shall cause to be entered, directly it comes to his knowledge, every report or complaint alleging the commission of any offence against discipline by any member of his force (other than an anonymous allegation unsupported by evidence) together with the result of his inquiry and any disciplinary action taken in consequence. [1268]

26. There shall be kept in the headquarters office of each division a divisional disciplinary report book in which the superintendent or other officer in charge of the division shall enter, directly it comes to his knowledge, every report or complaint alleging the commission of any offence against discipline by any member of his division (other than an anonymous allegation unsupported by evidence) together with particulars of any action taken and, in particular, whether he has dealt with the matter by warning or has reported it to the chief officer of police. [1269]

PROMOTION

27. Promotion up to the rank of inspector shall, subject to qualifying examinations in police duties and educational subjects, be by selection, and every member of a police force who is promoted to the rank of sergeant or inspector shall be on probation in that rank for a period of one year. [1270]

27A.—(1) A member of a police force who is required to perform the duties of a higher rank may be promoted temporarily to that rank.

(2) A member of a police force who is promoted substantively or temporarily and has, less than two years before the date of promotion, held the same rank on a temporary promotion thereto shall, for the purpose of increments in the scale of pay for that rank, be entitled to aggregate all his former service in that rank on temporary promotion.

(3) This Regulation shall not apply to a case where a deputy chief constable performs the duties of chief constable. [1271]

28.—(1) No member of a police force shall be promoted to the rank of sergeant or inspector, unless—

(a) if a constable, he has completed five years' service, and has for the last two years been free from punishment other than reprimand or caution, and if a sergeant, he has completed two years in that rank free from punishment other than reprimand or caution ;

- (b) he has passed, after having completed not less than four years' service, an examination in educational subjects and an examination in police duties ;
- (c) he has had not less than one year's service in the performance of ordinary outside police duty :

Provided that—

- (i) a member of a police force may be promoted before he has completed five years' service, or may be permitted to take the qualifying examinations before he has completed four years' service if the chief officer of police, or, in the case of a borough police force, the watch committee, is satisfied that he possesses special qualifications for the performance of the particular duties on which he is to be employed ;
- (ii) the chief officer of police may dispense with the examination in educational subjects if he is satisfied that the sergeant or constable has passed an examination of an equivalent or higher standard ;
- (iii) where members of a police force are engaged wholly or mainly on specialised duties of a technical character the examination in police duties may, subject to the approval of the Secretary of State, be replaced in their case by an alternative technical examination.

(2) In this Regulation "service" means "approved service" as defined by section 7 of the Police Pensions Act, 1921, and service as an auxiliary, and the expression "ordinary outside police duty" includes detective duty.
[1272]

29. The examinations shall be conducted by means of written papers or oral examinations, or both, upon the following subjects :—

- (1) Examination in educational subjects, including—

- (a) reading aloud ;
- (b) writing, including handwriting, spelling, punctuation, and the writing and composition of reports ;
- (c) arithmetic, for promotion to sergeant, first four rules, simple and compound, including imperial weights and measures, and simple fractions ; for promotion to inspector, first four rules, simple and compound, including imperial weights and measures, reduction, vulgar fractions and decimals (excluding recurring decimals), ratio and proportion, averages and percentages ;
- (d) geography, especially the geography of the British Isles ;
- (e) general knowledge and intelligence ; and
- (f) any special subject or subjects which may be required in the circumstances of a particular force or forces.

- (2) Examination in police duties, including—

- (a) criminal law ;
- (b) evidence and procedure ;
- (c) general statutes, regulations and orders ;
- (d) local regulations and byelaws ;
- (e) extra duties performed by the particular force concerned ; and
- (f) principles of local government.

- (3) The papers on the educational subjects (b), (c), (d) and (e) shall be set and marked by a central examining authority approved by the Secretary of State, or such other competent examining body as the police authority of the force may select. The examinations in police duties and, where necessary, the educational subjects (a) and (f) shall be conducted by the chief officer of police or, where the size of the force permits, a board of officers acting under his directions.

- (4) The examinations shall be held in large forces periodically, at least once in each year, and in smaller forces as often as may be required, and, subject to the provisions of Regulation 32, any sergeant or constable who has completed four years' service and has given due notice to the chief officer of police shall be entitled to sit for the respective examinations for these ranks. [1273]

30. The object of the required examinations is to test the educational and theoretical knowledge of the candidate, and the fact that he has passed them shall not entitle him to promotion or to promotion before another member of the force who has passed the examination at a later date. [1274]

31. After each examination a list giving the names of the candidates who have passed shall be published to the force or forces concerned. The result of each examination shall be marked on the record of each candidate so as to show that, on the date in question, he passed or failed to pass, and a list shall be kept of all members of the force who have passed the respective examinations. [1275]

32. A candidate who fails to pass the examination in educational subjects or police duties shall be informed of the subject or subjects in which he has failed to pass, and failure to pass shall not disqualify a candidate from presenting himself at a future examination after an interval of not less than one year. [1276]

HOURS OF DUTY

33. Every member of a police force shall carry out all lawful orders and shall at all times punctually and promptly perform all appointed duties and attend to all matters within the scope of his office as a constable. [1277]

34. The normal daily period for which constables, sergeants and inspectors (other than inspectors in sole charge of a sub-division, or members of the force normally employed in duties specially excepted by the Secretary of State) shall be required to perform their appointed police duties shall be eight hours, exclusive of time occupied in parading for relief, waiting for relief and returning to station after relief. Where the duties are performed in one tour of eight hours an interval of thirty minutes for refreshment shall be allowed. [1278]

35. The normal period of duty may be extended by or under the directions of the chief officer of police on any particular day or for a specified period as respects any member or members of the force; and nothing in these Regulations shall affect the obligation of any constable to carry out any lawful orders or to attend at any time to any matter to which it is his duty as a constable to attend. [1279]

36. When the normal period of duty of any member of a police force is so extended, or he is recalled to do duty after his normal hours, so that in any week the aggregate of any periods of duty in excess of the normal period of duty amounts to half an hour or more, he shall be granted, if and as soon as the exigencies of duty will permit, time off from duty equal to the said aggregate:

Provided that when a man after returning home is recalled for any specific duty (including attendance at court) the period allowed as "time-off" shall cover, in addition to the actual period of duty, the time occupied in going from and returning to his home, not exceeding such reasonable limit as may be fixed by the chief officer of police; and in the case of a man who has worked a full tour on night duty and is summoned from his home to do duty before 3.30 p.m., the period allowed as "time-off" under this Regulation shall be not less than four hours.

In this Regulation "week" means that period of seven days beginning and ending at the same times as those on which the pay of constables in the force in question is normally calculated. [1280]

37.—(1) Where, in the opinion of the chief officer of police, the exigencies of duty do not permit of any sergeant or constable being granted the whole period of "time-off" from duty under the preceding Regulation within such reasonable period (not exceeding three months) as the chief officer of police may fix, the man shall be granted in lieu of so much of the period of "time-off" as has not been granted to him, being not less than one hour, a non-pensionable payment at the rate of 4s. 3d. an hour for a sergeant and 3s. 6d. an hour for a constable.

(2) Where a sergeant or constable is engaged on duty involving his employment for irregular periods beyond the normal duty period so that the extension thereof cannot be definitely assessed and "time-off" cannot be granted, he may be granted, in lieu of all payments under paragraph (1) of this Regulation, a non-pensionable commuted payment at the rate provided in Regulation 72. [1281]

38. The provisions of Regulations 36 and 37 shall not apply—

- (a) if a man is warned to be in readiness for duty if required, but is not actually recalled to duty ;
- (b) if he is paid in respect of the same incident of duty a detective allowance, a detachment duty allowance, an extra duty allowance, or any other allowance granted in respect of his being engaged beyond the ordinary duty period :

Provided that the hours of duty of a detective shall be subject to such adjustments as may be approved by the chief officer of police to meet occasions when exceptionally long hours of duty have been worked ;

- (c) if he is engaged on casual escort duty. [1282]

39. Where a member of a police force to whom the Police (Weekly Rest Day) Act, 1910, applies is required to perform duty on a day which would otherwise have been a rest day, he shall be granted another rest day in lieu if and as soon as the exigencies of duty will permit ; and if, in the opinion of the chief officer of police, the exigencies of duty do not permit of the grant of another rest day within such reasonable period (not exceeding three months) as he may fix, the man shall be granted a non-pensionable payment at the rate prescribed by paragraph (1) of Regulation 37, or, in any case to which that paragraph does not apply, at the rate of one-sixth of his pay in respect of the week in which the rest day on which he was required to do duty fell. [1283]

40. On any occasion or occasions of emergency within the meaning of the Police (Weekly Rest Day) Act, 1910, the Secretary of State may direct that the provisions of Regulations 36, 37, 38 and 39 shall apply only to such extent and under such conditions as he may prescribe. [1284]

LEAVE OF ABSENCE

41. Every member of a police force of the rank of chief inspector or any lower rank shall, so far as the exigencies of duty permit, be granted leave of absence (hereinafter referred to as annual leave) in addition to the days upon which he is not required to perform police duties in compliance with the Police (Weekly Rest Day) Act, 1910, so that the members of the several ranks shall be granted annual leave in each complete calendar year as follows :—

	Days
Chief Inspectors .. .. .	27
Sub-divisional Inspectors and Station Inspectors in the Metropolitan Police .. .. .	25
Inspectors .. .. .	24
Sub-Inspectors .. .. .	22
Metropolitan Police Station Sergeants and Metropolitan Police First Class Sergeants (Criminal Investigation Department)	22
Sergeants .. .. .	20
Constables .. .. .	18

Provided that a member of a police force, in the calendar year in which he is appointed and in that in which he retires in pursuance of a notice of intention to retire, shall, so far as the exigencies of duty permit, be granted annual leave at the rate of one-twelfth of the period hereinbefore specified for his rank for each complete month of service in that year, a fraction of a day being reckoned as one day. [1285]

42. Chief Officers of police, superintendents and any other officers not entitled to a weekly rest day shall, so far as the exigencies of duty permit, be granted in each complete calendar year leave of absence of not less than forty-two days, with an additional six days in each year after completing ten years' service in the rank, and shall also be allowed leave for one day and a half in each calendar month. [1286]

43. Inspectors, sergeants and constables shall, if the exigencies of duty permit, be allowed to take their annual leave in one period continuous with the weekly rest days of the weeks in which the leave is taken. [1287]

PERSONAL RECORDS

44.—(1) The chief officer of police shall cause a personal record of each member of the police force to be kept and, if that member becomes a member of another police force, shall, on demand by the chief officer of police of that other force, transmit to him a copy thereof.

(2) The personal record shall contain entries of the man's description, particulars of his birth place and date of birth, his family, any service in the Royal Navy, the Army, the Royal Air Force, the Civil Service or in any other police force or as an auxiliary, the date of his appointment, all postings, transfers and removals, all changes in pay, all promotions, all injuries received, all periods of sickness and of leave, all absence (if records of sickness and leave are not kept separately), all commendations, rewards and punishments and the date of his ceasing to be a member of the force, with the reason, cause or manner thereof. [1288]

45.—(1) On leaving the force (except in case of transfer, with the written consent of the chief officer of police, to another force) every man shall be given a certificate showing his rank and setting out the period of his service and the reason, cause or manner of his leaving the force, together with particulars of his personal description :

Provided that, where the man was required to resign or was dismissed, the certificate shall not contain any description of the circumstances in which he was required to resign or was dismissed.

(2) The chief officer of police may append to the certificate any recommendation which he feels justified in giving, such as—

His conduct was exemplary

His conduct was very good

His conduct was good. [1289]

PAY

47.—(1) The pay of members of a police force holding the rank of sergeant or constable shall be in accordance with the provisions of these Regulations.

(2) Subject to Regulation 27A, the pay of all other ranks shall be in accordance with the scale of pay of the force, which shall be subject to the approval of the Secretary of State.

(3) No pensionable payment other than those above referred to shall be made. [1290]

Scales of pay

48. Subject to the provisions of Regulations 27A and 63, the scales of pay for sergeants and constables shall be as follows :—

Scale of pay for sergeants

						s.	d.
On promotion	..	..	..	..	..	150	0 weekly
After one year from promotion	..	..	..	..	..	153	0 "
„ two years	„	„	..	..	..	156	0 "
„ three	„	„	..	..	..	159	0 "
„ four	„	„	..	..	..	162	0 "
„ five	„	„	..	..	..	165	0 "

Scale of pay for constables

						s.	d.
On appointment	..	..	..	..	..	105	0 weekly
After two years from appointment	..	..	..	..	..	108	0 "
„ three	„	„	..	..	..	111	0 "
„ four	„	„	..	..	..	114	0 "
„ five	„	„	..	..	..	117	0 "
„ six	„	„	..	..	..	120	0 "
„ seven	„	„	..	..	..	123	0 "
„ eight	„	„	..	..	..	126	0 "
„ nine	„	„	..	..	..	129	0 "
„ ten	„	„	..	..	..	132	0 "

49. One day's pay shall be calculated for all purposes at the rate of one-seventh of the weekly rate. [1292]

51.—(1) All increments in the scale of pay for constables (except any increments granted under special conditions as provided in Regulations 53 to 61) and all increments in the scales of pay for the higher ranks shall be granted automatically upon completion of the stated periods of service, reckoned from the constable's appointment to the force or his promotion to the higher rank, as the case may be, and the grant of any increment shall not be retarded or withheld on account of any offence or other cause except on a specific order of reduction in rank or pay by way of punishment of an offence as provided in the Regulations relating to discipline.

(2) Where a member of a police force is promoted, having served for three years or more in the same force with pay not less than the minimum pay appropriate to the rank to which he is promoted, he may be granted on promotion one increment in the scale of pay appropriate to that rank. [1293]

52.—(1) If a member of a police force transfers with the written consent of the chief officer of police (or, in the case of transfer of a chief officer of police, with the sanction of the police authority) to the same rank in another force, previous service which he is entitled to reckon for purposes of pay in the force from which he transfers shall (unless otherwise agreed upon) count for purposes of reckoning his pay in the force which he joins as follows :—

- (a) if he transfers to a force with the same or a lower scale of pay for his rank, the whole of his previous service in that rank shall count ;
- (b) if he transfers to a force with a higher scale of pay for his rank, such portion of his previous service in that rank shall count as will bring his pay in the force which he joins up to the amount he was receiving in the force from which he transfers.

(2) Where a constable who has resigned from a police force subsequently joins the same or any other force, the police authority may, if they think fit, allow his service which he was entitled to reckon for purposes of pay in the force from which he resigned to be reckoned in whole or part for the purposes of pay in the force which he joins. [1294]

53. Subject to Regulations 60 and 63, a constable who has passed the qualifying examinations for promotion in police duties and educational subjects, may, at any time after he has served for five years, be granted a special increment in his scale of pay if the chief officer of police is satisfied that he shows special zeal, intelligence and proficiency in the performance of his duties and that he is well conducted. [1295]

54. A constable who is in receipt of a special increment under Regulation 53 may, at any time after he has served for one year from the date of the grant of the special increment, be granted a second special increment in his scale of pay if the chief officer of police is satisfied that he shows special zeal, intelligence and proficiency in the performance of his duties and is well conducted :

Provided that a second special increment may be granted under this Regulation immediately on the grant of a special increment under Regulation 53 if the chief officer of police is satisfied that the constable would by then have qualified for a second special increment if he had not ceased to serve as a constable in such circumstances that section 1 of the Police and Firemen (War Service) Act, 1939, applied to him. [1296]

55. A constable who has been granted a special increment or increments shall be paid at the rate at which he would be paid on the scale in Regulation 48, if he had been appointed, in the case of a grant of one special increment, one year and, in the case of a grant of two special increments, two years before he was appointed. [1297]

Grant of additional increments of pay for constables

56.—(1) Subject to Regulations 60 and 63, a constable who either has served for seventeen years or, having been granted a special increment which has not been withdrawn, has served for sixteen years or, having been granted two special increments which have not been withdrawn, has served for fifteen years may at any time after he has completed the appropriate qualifying period be granted an additional increment of 4s. a week in his pay if the chief officer of police is satisfied that he shows zeal and proficiency in the performance of his duties and that he is well conducted :

Provided that a constable may be granted an additional increment at any time after he has served for fifteen years, notwithstanding that he is not in receipt of the requisite number of special increments if—

- (a) the chief officer of police is satisfied that he would be in receipt of the requisite number of special increments if he had not ceased to serve as a constable in such circumstances that section 1 of the Police and Firemen (War Service) Act, 1939, applied to him, and

(b) he has passed the qualifying examination for promotion not later than two years after resuming service as a constable.

(2) For the purposes of this Regulation a constable shall be deemed to have served during any period which, by virtue of subsection (1) of section 2 of the Police and Firemen (War Service) Act, 1939, is to be treated as a period of approved service or would be so treated if the proviso to the said subsection did not apply. [1298]

57. A constable who is in receipt of an additional increment may, at any time after he has served for five years from the date when an additional increment was first granted to him exclusive of any period during which the additional increment was withdrawn from him, be granted a second additional increment of 4s. a week in his pay if the chief officer of police is satisfied that he shows zeal and proficiency in the performance of his duties and is well conducted :

Provided that—

- (a) a constable who has previously held a higher rank and has served for twenty-two years (including service as an auxiliary) may be granted a second additional increment after he has served for one year, instead of five years, from the date of the grant of the additional increment ;
- (b) a second additional increment shall not be granted to a constable from whom an additional increment has been withdrawn until a period of one year has elapsed from the date when an additional increment has last been granted to him. [1299]

58.—(1) As soon as a constable has served for the appropriate qualifying period under Regulation 56 or Regulation 57, the chief officer of police shall consider whether an additional increment or, as the case may be, a second additional increment should be granted to him.

(2) A constable who has acquired a right under paragraph (1) of this Regulation to have the question considered whether a grant should be made to him may apply to the chief officer of police, as soon as may be after the end of each period of one or more complete years from the date when he acquired the right, again to consider the question, and it shall accordingly again be considered.

(3) A constable from whom an additional increment or increments has or have been withdrawn under Regulation 59 may apply to the chief officer of police at the end of each period of one or more complete years from the date of the withdrawal to consider whether an additional increment should be granted to him, and it shall accordingly be considered.

(4) If on consideration under paragraph (1) or (2) of this Regulation no grant is made, the constable shall, if he applies for the information, be informed in writing why no grant was made. [1300]

General provisions as to grant and withdrawal of special and additional increments of pay for constables

59. If the chief officer of police is of opinion—

- (a) that a constable in receipt of a special increment or increments is not showing special zeal, intelligence or proficiency in the performance of his duties or that he is well conducted, or
- (b) that a constable in receipt of an additional increment or increments is not showing zeal or proficiency in the performance of his duties or that he is not well conducted,

the constable shall be given a written warning of the opinion of the chief officer of police and if, at the end of a period of two months from the date of the warning or of such longer period as may be specified in the warning, the chief officer of police is still of the same opinion, the increment or increments shall be withdrawn :

Provided that if after the latest grant to the constable under Regulation 53, 54, 56 or 57—

- (a) the constable is guilty of any default for which he is punished by a fine of 20s. or any greater punishment, or
- (b) the constable is guilty, during any period of twelve months, of two defaults for which he is punished by punishments other than cautions, or
- (c) the constable is guilty of more than three defaults for which he is punished by punishments other than cautions,

the increment or increments may be withdrawn without warning. [1301]

60. No special or additional increment shall be granted to a constable from whom an increment or increments has or have been withdrawn under Regulation 59 until a period of one year has elapsed from the date of the withdrawal. [1302]

61. The grant or withdrawal of any increment under Regulations 53 to 60 inclusive to or from a constable in a borough police force shall be subject to confirmation by the watch committee. [1303]

Auxiliary service

63. For the purpose of applying the scale of pay for constables and of reckoning the qualifying period for the grant of a special or an additional increment there shall be added to the constable's service any period of service as an auxiliary. [1304]

ALLOWANCES

64. All allowances shall be non-pensionable and the amounts and conditions of payment shall be subject to the approval of the Secretary of State, and no allowances shall be paid except such as are prescribed in these Regulations or approved by the Secretary of State. [1305]

Rent allowance and supplementary allowance

65.—(1) A police authority shall provide each member of a police force with a house or quarters free of rent and rates or shall pay him a rent allowance :

Provided that a man to whom Regulation 65A applies who is provided with quarters shall be paid a rent allowance in addition.

(2) Subject to the provisions of Regulation 65A, a rent allowance shall be either—

- (a) a "flat-rate allowance" for married and single men of each rank respectively, the amount to be fixed so as to cover a reasonable average rent (with rates) for members of the rank in question to pay, or
- (b) a "maximum limit allowance" equal to the actual amount paid in rent and rates by the individual members of the force, subject to a maximum limit to be fixed for married and single men of each rank respectively.

(3) A rent allowance at the married men's rate—

- (a) shall be paid to a married member of the force not separated from his wife ;

- (b) if the police authority think fit, may be paid to a married member of the police force separated from his wife, to a single member of the police force who has a dependent relative living with him and, whether or not he has a dependent relative living with him, to a member of the police force who has divorced, or been divorced by, his wife or is a widower ; and in all other cases a rent allowance at the single men's rate shall be paid :

Provided that a married member of the police force separated from his wife or a member of the police force who has divorced, or been divorced by, his wife and who regularly makes periodic payments to her or for her benefit may be granted an addition to his rent allowance equal to whichever is the lesser of the two following amounts, namely, the amount by which his former allowance exceeds his present allowance or the amount paid by him to or for the benefit of his wife or former wife.

(4) In this Regulation—

(a) the expression “ his former allowance ” means—

- (i) in relation to a man who, immediately before his wife commenced to live apart from him, was being provided with a house or quarters free of rent and rates, a sum fixed as the value for the time being of that house or those quarters ; and
- (ii) in relation to any other man, the rent allowance which would for the time being be payable to him if his wife or former wife were living with him and he were paying the rent and rates which he was paying immediately before his wife commenced to live apart from him ;

(b) the expression “ his present allowance ” means the rent allowance which is being paid to the member of the police force or, as the case may be, a sum fixed as the value for the time being of the house or quarters with which under this Regulation he is provided ;

(c) the expression “ rates ” means—

- (i) any rate as defined by section 68 of the Rating and Valuation Act, 1925 ; and
- (ii) any rate for a supply of water for domestic purposes determined by reference to net annual value independently of the quantity of water consumed. [1306]

65A.—(1) This Regulation shall apply to a member of a police force who—

- (a) is a married man or a widower with a child or children to whom the police authority have decided to grant a rent allowance at the married men's rate,
- (b) is not living with his family, and
- (c) satisfies the chief officer of police that the only reason why he is not so living is that he is unable to find suitable accommodation for his family at a reasonable cost within a reasonable distance of his place of duty.

(2) Notwithstanding the provisions of Regulation 65, the rent allowance to be paid to a member of a police force to whom this Regulation applies shall be that which would be payable to him under Regulation 65 if he were a member of the force of the police area in which his family are for the time being living and he were living with his family.

(3) A member of a police force to whom this Regulation applies shall be paid a supplementary allowance at the following rate :—

- (a) if he is provided by the police authority with quarters free of rent and rates, 17s. 6d. a week ;
- (b) if he is not so provided, 25s. 0d. a week.

(4) The supplementary allowance payable under paragraph (3) of this Regulation may be reduced or withdrawn by the police authority in respect of any period consisting of one or more complete weeks throughout which the member in question is absent from his usual place of duty and is either—

- (a) on leave of absence, or
- (b) in receipt of a subsistence and lodging allowance under Regulation 70.

(5) This Regulation shall cease to have effect on the thirty-first day of December, 1948. [1307]

Compensatory grant

65B.—(1) In the year commencing on the sixth day of April, 1947, and in each subsequent year, a member of a police force who has during the preceding year paid income tax in respect of a rent allowance or any compensatory grant mentioned in this paragraph paid or made to him in respect of his service in the force shall be paid a compensatory grant.

(2) The amount of the compensatory grant shall be equal to the amount by which the income tax in fact deducted during the preceding year according to the tax tables prepared or prescribed by the Commissioners of Inland Revenue from the member's emoluments in respect of his service in the force is increased by virtue of the inclusion in such emoluments of a rent allowance or any compensatory grant mentioned in this Regulation paid or made to him.

(3) The compensatory grant may, except in the circumstances described in paragraph (4) of this Regulation, be paid by such instalments throughout the year in which it is payable as the police authority may determine.

(4) Where a member of a police force leaves the force or dies whilst serving in the force he or his personal representatives, as the case may be, shall be paid the whole of the compensatory grant due to the member during that year and, in addition, shall be paid a further compensatory grant of an amount which bears the same proportion to the compensatory grant payable during that year as the period during which he has served during that year bears to the period during which he has served in the force during the preceding year.

(5) For the purposes of this Regulation—

- (a) the word “ year ” means the year commencing on the sixth day of April and ending on the following fifth day of April ; and
- (b) where a member of a police force has served more than once in the same force, references in this Regulation to service in the force shall be construed as references to his service therein since his last appointment thereto. [1308]

Uniform allowance

66. A member of a police force of or above the rank of inspector who does duty in uniform but is not supplied with uniform by the police authority shall be paid in lieu a uniform allowance at a rate calculated to cover the cost of supplying and maintaining the required uniform. [1309]

Boot allowance

67. A member of a police force who is not supplied with boots by the police authority shall be paid in lieu a boot allowance at the rate of 2s. weekly. [1310]

Plain clothes allowance

68. A member of a police force who is required to do duty in plain clothes for a period of not less than one week shall be paid a plain clothes allowance at that one of the following rates which is appropriate to his rank, namely—

Superintendent	..	..	..	..	£22 10s per annum
Inspector	..	..	..	..	£20 per annum
Sergeant or constable	..	..	..	..	7s. 6d. a week :

Provided that a sergeant or constable—

- (a) who is required to do duty in plain clothes for not less than six days in any period of three months shall be paid a plain clothes allowance in respect of each day at a rate equal to one-sixth of the weekly rate ;
- (b) who is provided with overalls when doing duty in plain clothes or for any other reason is, in the opinion of the Secretary of State, put to substantially less or substantially more than the normal expense caused by wearing his own clothes on duty may be paid a plain clothes allowance at a rate approved by the Secretary of State. [1811]

Detective allowance

69. A member of a police force who is engaged in detective duties continuously for a period of one or more complete weeks shall be paid a detective allowance at the rate of—

Superintendents and inspectors	..	..	..	15s. 0d. weekly
Sergeants and constables	..	..	..	12s. 6d. weekly

or such higher or lower rate as may be approved in special circumstances by the Secretary of State. This allowance shall be payable in addition to a plain clothes allowance. [1312]

Subsistence and lodging allowance

70.—(1) A member of a police force of or below the rank of superintendent who, being retained on duty beyond his normal period of duty or being engaged on duty away from his usual place of duty, necessarily incurs additional expense to obtain food or lodging, shall—

- (a) if the period for which he is so retained or engaged exceeds one hour but does not exceed five hours, be paid a refreshment allowance ;
- (b) if the period for which he is so retained or engaged exceeds five hours, be paid a subsistence allowance ;
- (c) if the said expense includes expense of obtaining lodging, be paid a lodging allowance.

(2) Notwithstanding anything in the preceding paragraph a member of a police force of or below the rank of superintendent who satisfies the chief officer of police that during his normal period of duty he was, although not away from his usual place of duty, unable by reason of the exigencies of duty to obtain his meals in his usual way and that he necessarily incurred additional expense for the purpose may be paid a refreshment allowance.

(3) The amount of the said allowances shall be according to the following scale :—

Description of Allowance	Super-intendents	Inspectors	Sergeants and Constables
Refreshment Allowance—
(i) for one meal .. ..	3s. 6d.	3s. 0d.	2s. 6d.
(ii) for two meals .. ..	5s. 0d.	4s. 6d.	4s. 0d.
Subsistence Allowance : Period of retention or engagement—
(i) over 5 hours and not exceeding 8 hours ..	5s. 0d.	4s. 6d.	4s. 0d.
(ii) over 8 hours and not exceeding 12 hours ..	7s. 6d.	6s. 6d.	5s. 6d.
(iii) over 12 hours and not exceeding 24 hours ..	10s. 6d.	9s. 0d.	8s. 0d.
(iv) over 24 hours—at the rate under (iii) above for each complete period of 24 hours retention or engagement, together with whichever is the appropriate amount under the preceding provisions of this scale for any excess over the aggregate of such complete periods.
Lodging Allowance—
For each night .. ..	10s. 6d.	9s. 6d.	8s. 6d.

Provided that—

- (a) if a lodging allowance is payable as well as a subsistence allowance in respect of a total period of retention or engagement of sixteen hours or less, the subsistence allowance shall be of the amount appropriate to a retention or engagement for a period exceeding eight hours and not exceeding twelve hours ;
- (b) if the chief officer of police is satisfied in any particular case that the amount of the allowances specified above is not sufficient to cover the actual expenses necessarily incurred, he may authorise payment of the difference ;
- (c) if the chief officer of police is satisfied in any particular case that the amount of the allowances specified above would be excessive having regard to the additional expenses necessarily incurred, he may direct that the amount of the allowances shall be reduced to such an amount as he determines, not being less than the amount of such expenses ;
- (d) if a member of a police force is so retained or engaged for a period exceeding one week, he may, if the chief officer of police is satisfied that the allowances specified above would be excessive, be granted in lieu thereof a weekly allowance at such lower rate as may be necessary to cover his reasonable expenses.

(4) Where the place of duty of a member of a police force has been temporarily changed the expression in this Regulation “usual place of duty” shall, after such period from the date of change as the chief officer of police may determine, mean the temporary place of duty. [1313]

71. Where a member of a police force of or below the rank of inspector is required to do duty away from his usual place of duty he shall be given an advance to cover, as far as practicable, any expenses which he will probably incur. [1314]

Detachment duty allowance

72.—(1) Where a member of a police force is employed as part of a detachment lent in aid of another police force in circumstances that involve his sleeping away from home, a detachment duty allowance shall be payable in consideration of such duty at the rate of—

8s. 0d.	daily for a superintendent
6s. 6d.	„ „ an inspector
5s. 6d.	„ „ a sergeant
4s. 6d.	„ „ a constable

during the period of absence. When lodging and meals are not provided by the aided police authority, this allowance shall be payable in addition to any subsistence or lodging allowance to which the man may be entitled.

(2) A detachment duty allowance at the foregoing rates may be paid where members of the metropolitan police or any county police force are employed for a period of three or more complete days on detachment duty within the police district of the force to which they belong, i.e. as part of a detachment reinforcing another division, sub-division or section, in circumstances that involve their sleeping away from home. [1315]

Extra duty allowance

73.—(1) Where the police are required to undertake any of the following duties, a member of the force so engaged may receive an extra duty allowance, to be payable by the authority for which the duties are undertaken, if the police authority are satisfied that the performance of such extra duties causes, either regularly or on recurring occasions, a material addition to his normal hours of duty as a constable :—

- (i) duties of inspector under the Diseases of Animals Acts, 1894 to 1937, and making of returns in relation thereto ;
- (ii) inspection of weights and measures ;
- (iii) inspection and procuring samples under the Food and Drugs Act, 1938, and the Fertilizers and Feeding Stuffs Act, 1926 ;
- (iv) inspection of premises for the purposes of the Explosives Acts, 1875 and 1923, and the Petroleum (Consolidation) Act, 1928 ;
- (v) duties of inspector under the Shops Acts, 1912 to 1938 ;
- (vi) duties on behalf of the local authority in respect of local taxation licences, i.e. enforcement of the requirements as to licences for male servants, carriages and armorial bearings.

(2) In respect of the following duties no allowance shall be payable other than the allowance or payment (if any) to which the constable would normally be entitled in respect of extended hours of police duty as provided in these Regulations :—

- (i) enforcement of the Cinematograph Act, 1909, and the Celluloid and Cinematograph Film Act, 1922 ;
- (ii) enforcement of borough bye-laws ;
- (iii) billeting ;
- (iv) issue of pedlars' certificates ;

nor in respect of any of the following duties where undertaken by the police :—

- (i) inspection of domestic servants' registries ;
- (ii) inspection of common lodging houses ;
- (iii) inspection of hackney carriages ;
- (iv) inspection of licensed boats ;
- (v) inspection of beach trading ;
- (vi) inspection of markets ;
- (vii) inspection of fire appliances ;
- (viii) inspection of street lamps ;
- (ix) duties as assistant relieving officer :

Provided that nothing in this Regulation shall be deemed to prevent a member of a police force who acts as assistant relieving officer from receiving an annual allowance in lieu of any other payments in respect of extended hours of duty, if the chief officer of police, or, in the case of a chief constable, the police authority, is satisfied that the performance of the duty causes a material addition to his normal work.

(3) The following are duties which the police shall not be required to perform :—

- (i) collection and recovery of monies due under affiliation orders ;
- (ii) collection and recovery of monies due under maintenance orders under the Summary Jurisdiction (Separation and Maintenance) Acts, 1895 to 1925 ;
- (iii) collection of market tolls ;
- (iv) Mayor's attendant ;
- (v) town crier ;
- (vi) any other work not connected with police duty which, in the opinion of the Secretary of State, the police may not properly be required to perform :

Provided that nothing in this Regulation shall preclude the collection of monies by a member of a police force appointed, with the consent of the police authority, collecting officer under the Affiliation Orders Act, 1914, or under the Criminal Justice Administration Act, 1914, or the receipt of monies tendered at a police station, or shall affect the duties of the police in the execution of any warrant. [1316]

Temporary duty allowance

74. Where a constable is required to perform the duties of a sergeant, or a sergeant is required to perform the duties of a station sergeant, sub-inspector or inspector, or a station sergeant or sub-inspector is required to perform the duties of an inspector, either to fill a temporary vacancy or for some other special purpose and for a continuous period exceeding two weeks, he shall be granted in respect of such service, after the first two weeks, an allowance in addition to his pay, at a rate equal to the difference between his ordinary rate of pay and the lowest rate of pay of the rank in which he is temporarily acting. [1317]

Miscellaneous provisions as to allowances

75. An allowance may be paid, of such amount and under such conditions as may be approved by the Secretary of State on the recommendation of the police authority, in respect of recurring escort duty or other specific duties involving recurring detention on duty beyond the normal period and not covered by any other payment. [1318]

76. A member of a police force employed at the expense of a private person or persons shall be entitled to such payments as are provided in these Regulations by way of subsistence or lodging allowance or refreshment allowance or as payment in respect of extended hours of duty, but shall not receive any special allowance in consideration of the purpose for which he is employed. All payments so due shall be made by the police authority and recovered from the person or persons for whose benefit the constable is employed. [1319]

77. If a man who is regularly in receipt of a plain clothes allowance or detective allowance or any other allowance to meet an expense which ceases during his absence from duty is placed upon the sick list, the allowance shall be payable during his absence from duty up to a period of one month, but thereafter, during the remainder of his absence from duty, payment may be suspended at the discretion of the chief officer of police, subject, in a borough police force, to the approval of the watch committee :

Provided that the boot allowance shall not cease to be payable during a period of sickness. [1320]

CLOTHING, EQUIPMENT AND NECESSARIES

78. Every member of a police force shall provide himself with clothing which is sufficient for his health and suitable to a person employed in the police service, and shall be in possession of two pairs of boots suitable for duty. [1321]

79. All articles of uniform, clothing and equipment necessary for the performance of police duty shall be provided by the police authority for all ranks free of cost to the individual member of the force, provided that officers of and above the rank of inspector may be paid a money allowance in lieu. [1322]

80. Issues of uniform shall, so far as circumstances permit, be made at stated periods, but where particular duties, or the duties of a particular man, entail greater or less wear of all articles or of any particular article of uniform, the issue to a particular man, or the issue of any particular garment, may be made on requisition approved by the chief officer of police. Clothing for particular duties such as mounted duty, cycling, driving of horsed or motor vehicles, stable duty or station cleaning, may be issued on requisition. [1323]

81. Subject to any modifications approved by the Secretary of State, the issues of articles of uniform and equipment for sergeants and constables shall be as follows :—

Article	Issue	Period of Wear	Number in Possession
Body Coat ( i.e. tunic, frock coat, patrol jacket, winter jacket, summer jacket, summer serge, as the case may be)	Annual	Two years or four years (according to whether one, two or more patterns of coat are supplied)	Two of each
(If tunics or other full dress coats are reserved for ceremonial duty only, their issue shall be on requisition over and above the periodical issue.)
Trousers .. .. .	Two pairs annually	Two years	Four pairs
(Where more than one material is provided, the issue shall be alternated to meet the demands of use.)
Greatcoat .. .. .	Every two years	Four years	Two
Cape .. .. .	Every four or five years	Eight or ten years	Two
Headdress .. .. .	Issue to be as required		Two

(Where a second pattern of headdress is supplied, the issue shall be alternated to meet the demands of use.)

Where boots are provided by the police authority for the purposes of duty, the issue shall be at the rate of two pairs annually, or as may be approved by the Secretary of State. [1324]

82. The following articles of equipment shall be supplied as circumstances require :—

Armlet and buckle
 Button brushes and button stick
 Cape strap and sling
 Gloves
 Handcuffs
 Haversack or kit bag
 Lamp
 Leggings
 Overalls
 Pocket note-book
 Truncheon
 Waist-belt
 Warrant card
 Waterproof coat or cape
 Whistle and chain. [1325]

83. All clothing and articles of equipment issued are for use in the performance of duty; they shall not become the property of the individual member of the force and must be delivered up by him on his leaving the force. [1326]

84. All garments supplied by the police authority (but not boots) shall be returned to store on being replaced at the expiry of the prescribed period of wear, and the amounts realised by their sale shall be paid to the police fund :

Provided that, if the police authority so directs, cast garments may be retained upon a payment to be fixed by the police authority, the amount of which, except in the case of trousers, shall be assessed according to the amount likely to be realised by the sale of the garments. [1327]

85. Replacement of lost, damaged, faulty or ill-fitting garments, and repairs (other than minor repairs which the man can satisfactorily do himself) shall be made or done at the expense of the police authority, except in the case of loss or damage caused by the man's default. [1328]

86. Part-worn clothing returned to store shall not be issued to another man until it has been properly cleaned and is in serviceable condition. [1329]

MEDICAL ATTENDANCE AND STOPPAGES FROM PAY

87. A member of a police force shall not be entitled to be absent from duty on account of injury or illness except on the authority of a medical officer for the force or other medical practitioner appointed or approved by the police authority :

Provided that where, owing to the absence of the man on leave or for other unavoidable cause, the authority of a medical officer for the force cannot be given, the certificate of some other medical practitioner may be accepted in lieu by the police authority. [1330]

87A. Where a member of a police force, who is not incapacitated for duty by illness, is relieved of duty on account of his having been in contact with infectious disease, without his own default, he shall not be liable to any deduction from pay or from annual or other leave in respect of such absence from duty. [1331]

88.—(1) The police authority shall provide for every member of the police force when incapacitated for duty by injury or illness without his own default free medical attendance by a medical officer for the force or other medical practitioner appointed or approved by the police authority, such attention to include the supply of necessary medicines and drugs :

Provided that—

- (i) nothing in this paragraph shall prevent a man who receives treatment in a hospital from being required to contribute towards the cost of his maintenance in the hospital, and any such contribution may be deducted from his pay ;
  - (ii) if a member of a police force is certified by a medical officer for the force or other medical practitioner appointed or approved by the police authority to require special treatment, it shall be provided without cost to him if his incapacity was due to an injury received in the execution of his duty without his own default, and otherwise the provision of such special treatment shall be at the discretion of the police authority.
- (2) Where a member of a police force has been granted a pension in respect of an injury received in the execution of his duty without his own default, the police authority may provide, without cost to the pensioner, such medical attendance, by a medical officer for the force or other medical practitioner appointed or approved by the police authority, as the pensioner may require by reason of the injury in respect of which he retired or such special treatment as he may require as a result of the injury aforesaid.

(3) The police authority shall provide free dental treatment, including the provision of a denture or dentures where necessary, for every member of the police force in whose case a medical officer for the force or other medical practitioner or registered dentist appointed or approved by the police authority certifies that such treatment or denture is necessary for the man's health and continued efficiency in the police service and that the necessity does not arise from the man's own neglect or default. [1832]

89A. In reckoning the approved service of a member of a police force no deduction from service shall be made in respect of duly authorised absence from duty occasioned by sickness, unless a medical officer for the force or other medical practitioner certifies that the man has brought about or contributed to the sickness by his own default or vicious habits. [1833]

MISCELLANEOUS PROVISIONS

89B.—(1) Subject to the provisions of paragraph (3) hereof, a member of a county police force or a combined police force who, having been a member of the police force of a borough comprised in the county or the combined area, has been transferred to the county police force or the combined police force by or under the provisions of the Police Act, 1946, shall not be assigned to duties which in the opinion of the Secretary of State make it necessary for him to establish his home outside the borough.

(2) This Regulation shall apply in relation to a member of a county police force or a combined police force who has been a member of the police force of a borough comprised in the county or the combined area and either reverts to the county police force or the combined police force under subsection (1) of section 2 of the Police (Overseas Service) Act, 1945, as applied by subsection (2) of section 14 of the Police Act, 1946, or, having been a person to whom section 1 of the Police and Firemen (War Service) Act, 1939, applied, became a member of the county police force or the combined police force without having been deemed under subsection (2) of section 2 of the last-named Act to have retired, in the same manner as it applies to a member of a county police force or a combined police force who has been transferred thereto by or under the provisions of the Police Act, 1946.

(3) This Regulation shall not apply to such a member of a county police force or combined police force as is described above if, since he became a member of the police force of the borough—

- (a) he has been a chief officer of police ;
- (b) he has retired, resigned or been dismissed from a police force, has been deemed to have retired from a police force under subsection (2) of section 2 of the Police and Firemen (War Service) Act, 1939, or has engaged for a period of overseas service in such a manner that he has not acquired, under subsection (1) of section 2 of the Police (Overseas Service) Act, 1945, a right of reverter or, having acquired the said right of reverter, has lost or not availed himself of the said right or has removed, within the meaning of subsection (1) of section 8 of the Police Pensions Act, 1921, from one police force to another ;
- (c) the police force of the borough has become subject to a consolidation agreement under section 14 of the County Police Act, 1840 ; or
- (d) he has given written notice to the chief officer of police of any county police force or combined police force of which he was at the time a member of his desire that this Regulation should cease to apply to him.

(4) Where a member of a county police force or combined police force has been a member of the police force of more than one borough comprised in the county or combined area references in this Regulation to the police force of such a borough shall, in relation to him, be construed as references to the police force of such a borough of which he was last a member. [1334]

89c. For the purposes of these Regulations service in a police force from which a constable is transferred by or under the Police Act, 1946, and service in the force to which he is so transferred shall be treated as if it were service in the same force. [1335]

90.—(1) In these Regulations a reference to service as an auxiliary is to be taken as a reference to all whole-time paid service after the third day of September, 1939, as a police war reservist, as a special constable whose pay was granted under the Special Constables Order, 1940, or, while the constable in question was not in receipt of a pension under the Police Pensions Acts, 1921 and 1926, as a member of the first class of the police reserve, including all leave with full pay and any period of leave without full pay not exceeding seven days in duration, but excluding any period of leave without full pay exceeding seven days in duration and any period of absence or suspension without full pay or the equivalent of full pay ; and for the purpose of this paragraph leave shall not be taken to be leave without full pay by reason only that there was deducted from the man's pay the amount of benefits under the National Health Insurance Acts, 1936 to 1941, of payments made under any scheme made by the Minister of Pensions under the Personal Injuries (Emergency Provisions) Act, 1939, or of any weekly payments under the Workmen's Compensation Acts, 1925 to 1945, and in connection with any reference to service as an auxiliary a reference to service as an auxiliary in a force shall be taken to include a reference to service as an auxiliary with that force.

(2) Any reference in these Regulations to a county police force, a borough police force or a watch committee shall, except in Regulation 89B, include a reference respectively to a combined force constituted by a county scheme, a combined force constituted by a borough scheme or a police authority constituted by a borough scheme. [1336]

91.—(1) In these Regulations a reference to a Regulation shall, unless the contrary intention appears, be construed as a reference to a Regulation contained in these Regulations.

(2) The Interpretation Act, 1889, shall apply to the interpretation of these Regulations as it applies to the interpretation of an Act of Parliament. [1337]

94. These Regulations shall apply to all police forces in England and Wales to which the Police Act, 1919, applies, and in their application to the metropolitan police force they shall apply subject to the following modifications :—

- (a) ranks other than those specified in Regulation 2 may be adopted with the approval of the Secretary of State ;
- (b) Regulations 28 to 32 (which relate to promotion) and Regulations 34 to 40 (which relate to hours of duty) shall not apply except to members of the force in the ranks of inspector, sergeant (including station sergeant and first class sergeant, Criminal Investigation Department) and constable ;
- (c) Regulations 68 to 72 and Regulation 74 (which relate to allowances) shall not apply except to members of the force in the ranks of inspector, sergeant (including station sergeant and first class sergeant, Criminal Investigation Department) and constable. [1338]

95.—(1) The Regulations set out in the Second Schedule to these Regulations are hereby revoked.

(2) Section 38 of the Interpretation Act, 1889, shall apply as if these Regulations were an Act of Parliament and as if any Regulations revoked by these Regulations were Acts of Parliament repealed by an Act of Parliament.

(3) Any appointment, grant, withdrawal of a grant or publication made or approval, certificate, consent or notice given or any record kept or other thing done under any Regulation revoked by these Regulations shall not be invalidated by the revocation effected by paragraph (1) of this Regulation, but shall, in so far as it could have been made, given, kept or done under a provision of these Regulations, have effect as if it had been made, given, kept or done under that provision.

(4) Any proceedings initiated, suspension from duty ordered or punishment imposed in respect of an offence or alleged offence against a code of offences against discipline for any police force shall be deemed to have been initiated, ordered or imposed under these Regulations.

(5) Any reference in any document to any Regulations revoked by these Regulations or any provision thereof shall, unless the contrary intention appears, be construed as a reference to these Regulations or the corresponding provision of these Regulations. [1339]

96.—(1) These Regulations may be cited as the Police Regulations, 1947.

(2) These Regulations shall come into force on the first day of August, 1947. [1340]

FIRST SCHEDULE

DISCIPLINE CODE

Any member of a police force commits an offence against discipline if he is guilty of :—

- (1) Discreditable conduct, that is to say, if he acts in a disorderly manner or any manner prejudicial to discipline or likely to bring discredit on the reputation of the force or of the police service.

- (2) Insubordinate or oppressive conduct, that is to say, if he—
- (a) is insubordinate by word, act or demeanour, or
  - (b) is guilty of oppressive or tyrannical conduct towards an inferior in rank, or
  - (c) uses obscene, abusive or insulting language to any other member of the force, or
  - (d) wilfully or negligently makes any false complaint or statement against any member of the force, or
  - (e) assaults any other member of the force, or
  - (f) overholds any complaint or report against any member of the force.
- (3) Disobedience to orders, that is to say, if he disobeys or without good and sufficient cause omits or neglects to carry out any lawful order, written or otherwise.
- (4) Neglect of duty, that is to say, if he—
- (a) neglects, or without good and sufficient cause omits, promptly and diligently to attend to or carry out anything which is his duty as a constable, or
  - (b) idles or gossips while on duty, or
  - (c) fails to work his beat in accordance with orders, or leaves his beat, point, or other place of duty to which he has been ordered, without due permission or sufficient cause, or
  - (d) by carelessness or neglect permits a prisoner to escape, or
  - (e) fails, when knowing where any offender is to be found, to report the same, or to make due exertions for making him amenable to justice, or
  - (f) fails to report any matter which it is his duty to report, or
  - (g) fails to report anything which he knows concerning a criminal charge, or fails to disclose any evidence which he, or any person within his knowledge, can give for or against any prisoner or defendant to a criminal charge, or
  - (h) omits to make any necessary entry in any official document or book, or
  - (i) neglects, or without good and sufficient cause omits, to carry out any instructions of a medical officer of the force, or, while absent from duty on account of sickness, is guilty of any act or conduct calculated to retard his return to duty.
- (5) Falsehood or prevarication, that is to say, if he—
- (a) knowingly makes or signs any false statement in any official document or book, or
  - (b) wilfully or negligently makes any false, misleading or inaccurate statement, or
  - (c) without good and sufficient cause destroys or mutilates any official document or record, or alters or erases any entry therein.
- (6) Breach of confidence, that is to say, if he—
- (a) divulges any matter which it is his duty to keep secret, or
  - (b) gives notice, directly or indirectly, to any person against whom any warrant or summons has been or is about to be issued, except in the lawful execution of such warrant or service of such summons, or
  - (c) without proper authority communicates to the public press, or to any unauthorised person, any matter connected with the force, or
  - (d) without proper authority shows to any person outside the force any book or written or printed document the property of the police authority, or
  - (e) makes any anonymous communication to the police authority or the chief officer of police or any superior officer, or
  - (f) canvasses any member of the police authority or of any county, city or borough council with regard to any matter concerning the force, or
  - (g) signs or circulates any petition or statement with regard to any matter concerning the force, except through the proper channel of correspondence to the chief officer of police or the police authority, or in accordance with the constitution of the Police Federation, or
  - (h) calls or attends any unauthorised meeting to discuss any matter concerning the force.

- (7) Corrupt practice, that is to say, if he—
- (a) receives any bribe, or
  - (b) fails to account for or to make a prompt and true return of any money or property received by him in his official capacity, or
  - (c) directly or indirectly solicits or receives any gratuity, present, subscription or testimonial, without the consent of the chief officer of police or the police authority, or
  - (d) places himself under pecuniary obligation to any publican, beer-retailer, spirit-grocer, or any person who holds a licence concerning the granting or renewal of which the police may have to report or give evidence, or
  - (e) improperly uses his character and position as a member of the force for his private advantage, or
  - (f) in his capacity as a member of the force, writes, signs or gives, without the sanction of the chief officer of police, any testimonial of character or other recommendation with the object of obtaining employment for any person or of supporting an application for the grant of a licence of any kind, or
  - (g) without the sanction of the chief officer of police, supports an application for the grant of a licence of any kind.
- (8) Unlawful or unnecessary exercise of authority, that is to say, if he—
- (a) without good and sufficient cause makes any unlawful or unnecessary arrest, or
  - (b) uses any unnecessary violence to any prisoner or other person with whom he may be brought into contact in the execution of his duty, or
  - (c) is uncivil to any member of the public.
- (9) Malingering, that is to say, if he feigns or exaggerates any sickness or injury with a view to evading duty.
- (10) Absence without leave or being late for duty, that is to say, if he without reasonable excuse is absent without leave from, or is late for, parade, court, or any other duty.
- (11) Uncleanliness, that is to say, if he while on duty or while off duty in uniform in a public place is improperly dressed or is dirty or untidy in his person, clothing or accoutrements.
- (12) Damage to clothing or other articles supplied, that is to say, if he—
- (a) wilfully or by carelessness causes any waste, loss or damage to any article of clothing or accoutrement, or to any book, document or other property of the police authority, served out to him or used by him or entrusted to his care, or
  - (b) fails to report any loss or damage as above however caused.
- (13) Drunkenness, that is to say, if he, while on or off duty, is unfit for duty through drink.
- (14) Drinking on duty or soliciting drink, that is to say, if he—
- (a) without the consent of his superior officer, drinks, or receives from any other person, any intoxicating liquor while he is on duty, or
  - (b) demands, or endeavours to persuade any other person to give him, or to purchase or obtain for him, any intoxicating liquor while he is on duty.
- (15) Entering licensed premises, etc., while on duty, that is to say, if he enters, while on duty, any premises licensed under the liquor licensing laws, or any other premises where liquors are stored or distributed, when his presence there is not required in the execution of his duty.
- (16) If he lends money to any superior or borrows from or accepts any present from any inferior in rank.
- (17) Any member of a police force also commits an offence against discipline, and shall be liable to punishment as provided in these Regulations, if he is guilty of an offence which is punishable on conviction, whether summarily or on indictment, or if he connives at or is knowingly an accessory to any offence against discipline under this code. ## EXPLANATORY NOTE

(This Note is not part of the Regulations, but is intended to indicate their general purport.)

These Regulations consolidate, with amendments, the Regulations set out in the Second Schedule. The principal amendments are in Regulations 36 and 37 (which relate to "time-off" for excess duty and payments in lieu of "time-off"), 56 and 57 (which relate to additional increments of pay), 65 (which relates to rent allowance) and 72 (which relates to detachment duty allowance).

POLICE (WOMEN) REGULATIONS, 1947

S. R. &amp; O., 1947, No. 1604

July 28, 1947

I, the Right Honourable James Chuter Ede, one of His Majesty's Principal Secretaries of State, in pursuance of the powers conferred on me by section four of the Police Act, 1919, hereby make the following Regulations :—

RANKS AND DESIGNATIONS

1. The ranks of women members of a police force shall be known by such of the following designations as the police authority may adopt :—

Inspector
 Sergeant
 Constable

Provided that intermediate or other ranks may be adopted by the police authority, subject to the approval of the Secretary of State. [1343]

STRENGTH

2.—(1) The authorised strength of women employed in the several ranks in any police force and any changes thereof shall be subject to the approval of the Secretary of State.

(2) The numbers shall be sufficient to provide women for the carrying out of such of the duties mentioned in the First Schedule to these Regulations as may be assigned to women members of the force by the chief officer of police with the approval of the police authority.

(3) Nothing in these Regulations shall be deemed to prevent women members of a police force being required by proper authority to perform extra duties connected with the police. [1344]

APPOINTMENT

3. A candidate for appointment as a woman member of a police force—

(1) must produce satisfactory references as to character, and if she has served in any branch of His Majesty's naval, military or air forces, or in the Civil Service, or in any police force, produce satisfactory proof of her good conduct while in such service or force : a person dismissed from such service or force shall not be eligible for appointment ;

(2) must not be under twenty-two or over thirty-five years of age or less than 5 feet 4 inches in height :

Provided that a candidate who does not comply with the requirements of this paragraph may be appointed—

(a) if she has had previous service in a police force otherwise than in a relevant auxiliary capacity, or

(b) in other special circumstances approved by the Secretary of State ;

(3) must be certified by the medical officer of the force to be in good health, of sound constitution and fitted both physically and mentally to perform the duties of her office ;

(4) must satisfy the chief officer of police that she is sufficiently educated by passing a written or oral examination in reading, writing and arithmetic (addition, subtraction, multiplication and division) or an examination of a higher standard, as may be prescribed by the chief officer of police, or by producing evidence that she has passed another examination which, in the opinion of the chief officer of police, is of an equivalent or higher standard ;

(5) must give such information as may be required as to her previous history or employment or any other matter relating to her appointment to the police force, and if any candidate makes in, or in connection with, her application for appointment any false statement and is subsequently appointed to a police force, the making of such false statement shall be an offence against discipline within the meaning of these Regulations and shall be punishable accordingly. [1345]

4. No person shall be eligible for appointment to, or shall be retained in, a police force to which these Regulations apply, if—

(a) she carries on any business or without the consent of the chief officer of police holds any other office for hire or gain, or

- (b) she resides, without the consent of the chief officer of police, at any premises where her husband or any member of her family keeps a shop or carries on any like business, or
- (c) she holds, or her husband or any member of her family living with her holds, any licence granted in pursuance of the liquor licensing laws or the laws regulating places of public entertainment in the district of the police force in which she seeks appointment or to which she has been appointed, as the case may be, or has any pecuniary interest in any such licence, or
- (d) her husband, without the consent of the chief officer of police, keeps a shop or carries on any like business in the district of the police force in which she seeks appointment or to which she has been appointed, as the case may be :

Provided that, in case of refusal of consent, there shall, in a borough police force, be an appeal to the watch committee, whose decision shall be final.

For the purpose of this Regulation, the expression "member of her family" shall include parent, son, daughter, brother and sister. [1346]

5. A constable shall be on probation for the period of the first two years of her service in the force since her last appointment thereto :

Provided that the chief officer of police may at his discretion—

- (a) reduce the period of probation to a period of not less than one year, if the constable has served for a period of not less than one year either in the same force on a previous appointment thereto or in any other force to which the Police Act, 1919, applies or applied ;
- (b) dispense with the period of probation if the constable has transferred with the written consent of the chief officer of police from another force to which the Police Act, 1919, applies or applied after having completed the required period of probation in that force, or
- (c) dispense with the period of probation if the constable has served in a relevant auxiliary capacity for a period of not less than two years. [1347]

6. During the period of probation the services of any constable may be dispensed with at any time if the chief officer of police considers that she is not fitted, physically or mentally, to perform the duties of her office, or that she is not likely to become an efficient and well conducted constable :

Provided that a constable whose services are dispensed with under this Regulation shall be entitled to receive one week's notice or one week's pay in lieu thereof. [1348]

DISCIPLINE

7. Every woman member of the force against whom a report or complaint suggesting the commission of an offence against discipline is made shall, as soon as possible, be informed in writing of the exact charge against her. [1349]

8. The written charge must disclose an offence against discipline as defined in the code of offences against discipline of the force, with such details of time and place as will leave the accused under no misapprehension as to the offence with which she is charged. [1350]

9. The written charge, which shall be entered on a form provided for the purpose (hereinafter referred to as the misconduct form), together with the report or complaint on which the charge is founded, and all reports thereon (whether confidential or otherwise) or copies thereof, shall be handed or sent as soon as practicable to the accused, who shall initial them to show that she has seen them. She shall either be allowed to retain for purposes of her defence the copies of the reports which are handed to her or shall be given a reasonable opportunity to make copies of the reports for that purpose. [1351]

10. The accused shall be directed to state in writing upon the misconduct form whether she admits or denies the charge and shall be allowed to give any explanation which she may wish to offer in writing. She shall also be allowed to state whether she desires to offer her explanation personally to the chief officer of police and shall, if she desires it, be given an opportunity of so doing. [1352]

11. The accused shall also be allowed to state the names of any witnesses to material facts whom she desires to be present when the charge is heard. Any such witnesses who are members of the police force shall be ordered to attend, and any witnesses who are not members of the force shall be given due notice that their attendance is desired and of the place and time of the hearing. [1353]

12. If the accused denies the charge, she shall, unless the chief officer of police is satisfied with the explanation she has offered, be ordered to appear before the chief officer of police and shall have an opportunity of hearing the evidence against her and of cross-examining the witnesses and of calling witnesses in her defence. [1354]

13. The decision of the chief officer of police shall be written upon the misconduct form and at once notified to the accused, who shall write on the misconduct form her acknowledgment of her having read the decision. [1355]

14.—(1) In the case of the metropolitan police the procedure in discipline cases shall be as specially approved by the Secretary of State and published in the General Orders of that force.

(2) In the case of a borough police force, the decision of the chief officer of police shall, subject to any general directions of the watch committee, be either—

- (i) to dismiss the case, or
- (ii) to remit the case to the watch committee for further hearing, or
- (iii) to award a punishment as provided in Regulation 15 :

Provided that any punishment other than a caution shall be subject to confirmation by the watch committee, and any woman member of the force who feels aggrieved by a decision of the chief officer of police awarding a punishment shall be entitled to appear before the watch committee upon giving notice in writing to the chief officer of police forthwith or at any later date not less than three clear days before her case is to be laid before the committee. [1356]

14A. The following provisions shall have effect with respect to disciplinary proceedings before the chief officer of police and also to proceedings before the watch committee :—

- (1) if the accused so desires, she shall be allowed to have another serving member of the force, selected by herself, to assist her in presenting her case ;
- (2) if the accused absconds or refuses or neglects without good and sufficient cause to attend the proceedings at the time and place appointed, or is serving a sentence of imprisonment or penal servitude, the case may be decided in her absence. [1357]

14B.—(1) The chief officer of police may suspend from duty a woman member of the force against whom a report or complaint suggesting the commission of an offence against discipline is made. Such suspension from duty may continue until the disciplinary proceedings arising out of the said report or complaint have been concluded.

(2) Subject to the provisions of this Regulation, these Regulations shall continue to apply to a woman member of the force who is suspended from duty.

(3) A woman member of the force who has been suspended from duty shall not be entitled in respect of the period of suspension to pay or to uniform allowance, plain-clothes allowance, detective allowance, extra duty allowance or temporary duty allowance, but shall be paid a suspension allowance at such rate not less than one-half and not exceeding two-thirds of her pay as the chief officer of police may determine :

Provided that in the case of a member of the force who has been convicted of an offence summarily or on indictment no suspension allowance shall be payable in respect of any period of imprisonment or penal servitude.

(4) A member of the force who, having been suspended from duty, returns to duty without having been found guilty of any offence shall receive, as from the date of her suspension from duty, her pay and any of the said allowances of which she was in receipt immediately prior to her suspension from duty, less any amount paid to her by way of suspension allowance. [1358]

15. An offence against discipline may be punished by—

- (1) dismissal ;
- (2) being required to resign forthwith, or at such date as may be ordered (as an alternative to dismissal) ;
- (3) reduction in rank ;
- (4) reduction in rate of pay ;
- (5) forfeiture of merit or good conduct badges (except such as have been granted for an act of courage or bravery) ;
- (6) fine ;
- (7) reprimand ;
- (8) caution.

Every punishment, except a caution, shall be entered on the woman's personal record. A caution shall not be so entered. [1359]

16. A reduction in pay, without reduction in rank, shall be limited to a definite period, which shall be stated in the order by which the punishment is inflicted and shall not exceed twelve months, and at the end of the stated period the woman shall be advanced to the rate of pay to which she would have been entitled but for the punishment awarded her, unless the period of reduction has in the meantime been extended by way of punishment for a further offence against discipline. [1360]

17. The infliction of a fine shall not cause any advance in pay (except any additional or any special increment which is subject to good conduct as provided in the Regulations relating to pay) to be retarded or withheld. [1361]

18. The amount of a fine imposed by way of punishment for any one offence shall not exceed one week's pay and shall be recovered by stoppage of pay in amounts not exceeding one day's pay in any week, except in the event of a woman leaving the force when the whole amount of any fine then unpaid may be deducted from any pay then due. [1362]

19. Every report or complaint alleging the commission of any offence against discipline by a woman member of the force (other than an anonymous allegation unsupported by evidence) shall be duly entered, together with particulars of the action taken thereon, in the disciplinary report book of the force or the divisional disciplinary report book, as the case may be. [1363]

PROMOTION

20. Promotion up to the rank of inspector shall, subject to qualifying examinations in police duties and educational subjects, be by selection, and every woman member of a police force who is promoted to the rank of sergeant or inspector shall be on probation in that rank for a period of one year. [1364]

20A.—(1) A woman member of a police force who is required to perform the duties of a higher rank may be promoted temporarily to that rank.

(2) A woman member of a police force who is promoted substantively or temporarily and has, less than two years before the date of promotion, held the same rank on a temporary promotion thereto shall, for the purpose of increments in the scale of pay for that rank, be entitled to aggregate all her former service in that rank on temporary promotion. [1365]

21.—(1) No woman member of a police force shall be promoted to the rank of sergeant or inspector, unless—

- (a) if a constable, she has completed 'five years' service and has for the last two years been free from punishment other than reprimand or caution, and if a sergeant, she has completed two years in that rank free from punishment other than reprimand or caution ;
- (b) she has passed, after having completed not less than four years' service, an examination in educational subjects and an examination in police duties :

Provided that—

- (i) a woman member of a police force may be promoted before she has completed five years' service, or may be permitted to take the qualifying examinations before she has completed four years' service, if the chief officer of police, or in the case of a borough police force the watch committee, is satisfied that she possesses special qualifications for the performance of the particular duties on which she is to be employed ;
- (ii) the chief officer of police may dispense with the examination in educational subjects if he is satisfied that the sergeant or constable has passed an examination of an equivalent or higher standard.

(2) For the purposes of this Regulation, the expression " years' service " means, subject to the provisions of paragraph (4) of Regulation 80A, years of approved service as defined by section 7 of the Police Pensions Act, 1921, and service in a relevant auxiliary capacity. [1366]

22. The examinations shall be conducted by means of written papers or oral examinations, or both, upon the following subjects :—

(1) Examination in educational subjects, including—

- (a) reading aloud ;
- (b) writing, including handwriting, spelling, punctuation, and the writing and composition of reports ;
- (c) arithmetic, for promotion to sergeant, first four rules, simple and compound, including imperial weights and measures, and simple fractions ; for promotion to inspector, first four rules, simple and compound, including imperial weights and measures, reduction, vulgar fractions and decimals (excluding recurring decimals), ratio and proportion, averages and percentages ;
- (d) geography, especially the geography of the British Isles ;
- (e) general knowledge and intelligence ; and
- (f) any special subject or subjects which may be required in the circumstances of a particular force or forces.

(2) Examination in police duties, including—

- (a) criminal law ;
  - (b) evidence and procedure ;
  - (c) general statutes, regulations and orders ;
  - (d) local regulations and byelaws ;
  - (e) extra duties performed by the particular force concerned ; and
  - (f) principles of local government.
- (3) The papers on the educational subjects (b), (c), (d) and (e) shall be set and marked by a central examining authority approved by the Secretary of State, or such other competent examining body as the police authority of the force may select. The examinations in police duties and, where necessary, the educational subjects (a) and (f) shall be conducted by the chief officer of police or, where the size of the force permits, a board of officers acting under his directions.
- (4) The examinations shall be held as often as may be required, and, subject to the provisions of Regulation 25, any sergeant or constable who has completed four years' service and has given due notice to the chief officer of police shall be entitled to sit for the respective examinations for these ranks. [1367]

23. The object of the required examinations is to test the educational and theoretical knowledge of the candidate, and the fact that she has passed them shall not entitle her to promotion or to promotion before another member of the force who has passed the examination at a later date. [1368]

24. After each examination a list giving the names of the candidates who have passed shall be published to the force or forces concerned. The result of each examination shall be marked on the record of each candidate so as to show that, on the date in question, she passed or failed to pass, and a list shall be kept of all members of the force who have passed the respective examinations. [1369]

25. A candidate who fails to pass the examination in educational subjects or police duties shall be informed of the subject or subjects in which she has failed to pass, and failure to pass shall not disqualify a candidate from presenting herself at a future examination after an interval of not less than one year. [1370]

HOURS OF DUTY

26. Every woman member of a police force shall carry out all lawful orders and shall at all times punctually and promptly perform all appointed duties and attend to all matters within the scope of her office as a constable. [1371]

27.—(1) The normal daily period for which constables, sergeants and inspectors shall be required to perform their appointed police duties, shall be eight hours, exclusive of time occupied in parading for relief, waiting for relief and returning to station after relief :

Provided that where the duties performed are wholly or mainly patrol duty, the police authority may prescribe a period of seven hours or seven and a half hours as the normal daily duty period.

(2) Where the duties are performed in one tour an interval for refreshment shall be allowed which shall be one hour if the duties are wholly or mainly patrol duty and the duty period is seven and a half hours or more and otherwise shall be thirty minutes. [1372]

28. The normal period of duty may be extended by or under the directions of the chief officer of police on any particular day or for a specified period, as respects any woman member or members of the force ; and nothing in these Regulations shall affect the obligation of any constable to carry out any lawful orders or to attend at any time to any matter to which it is her duty as a constable to attend. [1373]

29. When the normal period of duty of any woman member of a police force is so extended, or she is recalled to do duty after her normal hours, so that in any week the aggregate of any periods of duty in excess of the normal period of duty amounts to half an hour or more, she shall be granted, if and as soon as the exigencies of duty will permit, time off from duty equal to the said aggregate :

Provided that when a woman after returning home is recalled for any specific duty (including attendance at court) the period allowed as "time-off" shall cover, in addition to the actual period of duty, the time occupied in going from and returning to her home, not exceeding such reasonable limit as may be fixed by the chief officer of police ; and in the case of a woman who has worked a full tour of night duty and is summoned from her home to do duty before 3.30 p.m., the period allowed as "time-off" under this Regulation shall be not less than four hours.

In this Regulation "week" means that period of seven days beginning and ending at the same times as those on which the pay of constables in the force in question is normally calculated. [1374]

30.—(1) Where, in the opinion of the chief officer of police, the exigencies of duty do not permit of any sergeant or constable being granted the whole period of "time-off" from duty under the preceding Regulation within such reasonable period (not exceeding three months) as the chief officer of police may fix, the woman shall be granted in lieu of so much of the period of "time-off" as has not been granted to her, being not less than one hour, a non-pensionable payment at the rate of 3s. 9d. an hour for a sergeant and 3s. 3d. an hour for a constable.

(2) Where a sergeant or constable is engaged on duty involving her employment for irregular periods beyond the normal duty period so that the extension thereof cannot be definitely assessed and "time-off" cannot be granted, she may be granted, in lieu of all payments under paragraph (1) of this Regulation, a non-pensionable commuted payment at the rate provided in Regulation 63. [1375]

31. The provisions of Regulations 29 and 30 shall not apply—

- (a) if a woman is warned to be in readiness for duty if required, but is not actually recalled to duty ;
- (b) if she is paid in respect of the same incident of duty a detective allowance, a detachment duty allowance, an extra duty allowance, or any other allowance granted in respect of her being engaged beyond the normal duty period :

Provided that the hours of duty of a detective shall be subject to such adjustments as may be approved by the chief officer of police to meet occasions when exceptionally long hours of duty have been worked ;

- (c) if she is engaged on casual escort duty. [1376]

32. Where a woman member of a police force to whom the Police (Weekly Rest Day) Act, 1910, applies, is required to perform duty on a day which would otherwise have been a rest day, she shall be granted another rest day in lieu if and as soon as the exigencies of duty will permit ; and if, in the opinion of the chief officer of police, the exigencies of duty do not permit of the grant of another rest day within such reasonable period (not exceeding three months) as he may fix, the woman shall be granted a non-pensionable payment at the rate prescribed by paragraph (1) of Regulation 30 or, in any case to which that paragraph does not apply, at the rate of one-sixth of her pay in respect of the week in which the rest day on which she was required to do duty fell. [1377]

32A. On any occasion or occasions of emergency within the meaning of the Police (Weekly Rest Day) Act, 1910, the Secretary of State may direct that the provisions of Regulations 29, 30, 31 and 32 shall apply only to such extent and under such conditions as he may prescribe. [1378]

LEAVE OF ABSENCE

33. Every women member of a police force of the rank of chief inspector or sub-divisional inspector (if such ranks are adopted under Regulation 1) or of the rank of inspector or any lower rank shall, so far as the exigencies of duty permit, be granted leave of absence (hereinafter referred to as annual leave) in addition to the days upon which she is not required to perform police duties in compliance with the Police (Weekly Rest Day) Act, 1910, so that the members of the several ranks shall be granted annual leave in each complete calendar year as follows :—

	Days
Chief Inspectors in the Metropolitan Police .. .. .	27
Sub-divisional Inspectors in the Metropolitan Police .. .. .	25
Inspectors .. .. .	24
Sergeants .. .. .	20
Constables .. .. .	18

Provided that a woman member of a police force, in the calendar year in which she is appointed and in that in which she retires in pursuance of a notice of intention to retire, shall, so far as the exigencies of duty permit, be granted annual leave at the rate of one-twelfth of the period hereinbefore specified for her rank for each complete month of service in that year, a fraction of a day being reckoned as one day. [1379]

34. Any officers not entitled to a weekly rest day shall, so far as the exigencies of duty permit, be granted in each complete calendar year leave of absence of not less than forty-two days, with an additional six days in each year after completing ten years' service in the rank, and shall also be allowed leave for one day and a half in each calendar month. [1380]

35. Inspectors, sergeants and constables shall, if the exigencies of duty permit, be allowed to take their annual leave in one period continuous with the weekly rest days of the weeks in which the leave is taken. [1381]

PERSONAL RECORDS

36.—(1) The chief officer of police shall cause a personal record of each woman member of the police force to be kept and, if that member becomes a member of another police force, shall, on demand by the chief officer of police of that other force, transmit to him a copy thereof.

(2) The personal record shall contain entries of the woman's description, particulars of her birth place and date of birth, her family, any service in the Women's Royal Naval Service, the Auxiliary Territorial Service, the Women's Auxiliary Air Force, the Civil Service, and any other police force, or the Women's Auxiliary Police Corps, the date of her appointment, all postings, transfers and removals, all changes in pay, all promotions, all injuries received, all periods of sickness and of leave, all absence (if records of sickness and leave are not kept separately), all commendations, rewards and punishments, and the date of her ceasing to be a member of the force with the reason, cause or manner thereof. [1382]

37.—(1) On leaving the force (except in case of transfer with the written consent of the chief officer of police to another force) every woman shall be given a certificate showing her rank and stating the period of her service and the reason, cause or manner of her leaving the force, together with particulars of her personal description :

Provided that where the woman was required to resign or was dismissed the certificate shall not contain any description of the circumstances in which she was required to resign or was dismissed.

(2) The chief officer of police may append to the certificate any recommendation which he feels justified in giving, such as—

Her conduct was exemplary

Her conduct was very good

Her conduct was good. [1383]

PAY

39.—(1) The pay of women members of a police force holding the rank of sergeant or constable shall be in accordance with the provisions of these Regulations.

(2) Subject to Regulation 20A, the pay of all other ranks shall be in accordance with the scale of pay of the force, which shall be subject to the approval of the Secretary of State.

(3) No pensionable payment other than those above referred to shall be made. [1384]

Scales of pay

40. Subject to the provisions of Regulations 20A and 54, the scales of pay for sergeants and constables shall be as follows :—

Scale of pay for sergeants

	s.	d.
On promotion .. .. .	135	0 weekly
After one year from promotion .. .. .	137	6 "
.. two years .. .. .	140	0 "
.. three .. .. .	142	6 "
.. four .. .. .	145	0 "
.. five .. .. .	148	0 "

Scale of pay for constables

	s.	d.
On appointment .. .. .	94	0 weekly
After two years from appointment .. .. .	96	6 "
.. three .. .. .	99	0 "
.. four .. .. .	101	6 "
.. five .. .. .	104	0 "
.. six .. .. .	106	6 "
.. seven .. .. .	109	0 "
.. eight .. .. .	111	6 "
.. nine .. .. .	114	0 "
.. ten .. .. .	117	0 "

41. One day's pay shall be calculated for all purposes at the rate of one-seventh of the weekly rate. [1386]

42.—(1) All increments in the scale of pay for constables (except any increments granted under special conditions as provided in Regulations 44 to 52) and all increments in the scales of pay for the higher ranks shall be granted automatically upon completion of the stated periods of service, reckoned from the constable's appointment to the force or her promotion to higher rank, as the case may be, and the grant of any increment shall not be retarded or withheld on account of any offence or other cause except on a specific order of reduction in rank or pay by way of punishment for an offence as provided in the Regulations relating to discipline.

(2) Where a woman member of a police force is promoted, having served for three years or more in the same force with pay not less than the minimum pay appropriate to the rank to which she is promoted, she may be granted on promotion one increment in the scale of pay appropriate to that rank. [1387]

43.—(1) If a woman member of a police force transfers with the written consent of the chief officer of police to the same rank in another force, previous service which she is entitled to reckon for purposes of pay in the force from which she transfers shall (unless otherwise agreed upon) count, for purposes of reckoning her pay in the force which she joins, as follows :—

- (a) if she transfers to a force with the same or a lower scale of pay for her rank, the whole of her previous service in that rank shall count ;
- (b) if she transfers to a force with a higher scale of pay for her rank, such portion of her previous service in that rank shall count as will bring her pay in the force which she joins up to the amount she was receiving in the force from which she transfers.

(2) Where a woman member of a police force who has resigned from a police force subsequently joins the same or any other force, the police authority may, if they think fit, allow her service which she was entitled to reckon for purposes of pay in the force from which she resigned to be reckoned in whole or part for the purposes of pay in the force which she joins. [1388]

44. Subject to Regulations 51 and 54, a constable who is in receipt of pay according to the scale prescribed by these Regulations and who has passed the qualifying examinations for promotion in police duties and educational subjects, may, at any time after she has served for five years, be granted a special increment in her scale of pay if the chief officer of police is satisfied that she shows special zeal, intelligence and proficiency in the performance of her duties and that she is well conducted. [1389]

45. A constable who is in receipt of a special increment under Regulation 44 may, at any time after she has served for one year from the date of the grant of the special increment, be granted a second special increment in her scale of pay if the chief officer of police is satisfied that she shows special zeal, intelligence and proficiency in the performance of her duties and is well conducted :

Provided that a second special increment may be granted under this Regulation immediately on the grant of a special increment under Regulation 44 if the chief officer of police is satisfied that the constable would by then have qualified for a second special increment if she had not ceased to serve as a constable in such circumstances that section 1 of the Police and Firemen (War Service) Act, 1939, applied to her. [1390]

46. A constable who has been granted a special increment or increments shall be paid at the rate at which she would be paid on the scale in Regulation 40, if she had been appointed, in the case of a grant of one special increment, one year and, in the case of a grant of two special increments, two years before she was appointed. [1391]

47.—(1) Subject to Regulations 51 and 54, a constable who has served for seventeen years or, having been granted a special increment which has not been withdrawn, has served for sixteen years or, having been granted two special increments which have not been withdrawn, has served for fifteen years, may at any time after she has completed the appropriate qualifying period be granted an additional increment of 4s. a week in her pay if the chief officer of police is satisfied that she shows zeal and proficiency in the performance of her duties and that she is well conducted :

Provided that a constable may be granted an additional increment at any time after she has served for fifteen years, notwithstanding that she is not in receipt of the requisite number of special increments, if—

- (a) the chief officer of police is satisfied that she would be in receipt of the requisite number of special increments if she had not ceased to serve as a constable in such circumstances that section 1 of the Police and Firemen (War Service) Act, 1939, applied to her, and
- (b) she has passed the qualifying examination for promotion not later than two years after resuming service as a constable.

(2) For the purposes of this Regulation a constable shall be deemed to have served during any period which, by virtue of subsection (1) of section 2 of the Police and Firemen (War Service) Act, 1939, is to be treated as a period of approved service or would be so treated if the proviso to the said subsection did not apply. [1392]

48. A constable who is in receipt of an additional increment may, at any time after she has served for five years from the date when an additional increment was first granted to her exclusive of any period during which the additional increment was withdrawn from her, be granted a second additional increment of 4s. a week in her pay if the chief officer of police is satisfied that she shows zeal and proficiency in the performance of her duties and is well conducted :

Provided that—

- (a) a constable who has previously held a higher rank and has served for twenty-two years (including service in a relevant auxiliary capacity) may be granted a second additional increment after she has served for one year, instead of five years, from the date of the grant of the additional increment ;
- (b) a second additional increment shall not be granted to a constable from whom an additional increment has been withdrawn until a period of one year has elapsed from the date when an additional increment has last been granted to her. [1393]

49.—(1) As soon as a constable has served for the appropriate qualifying period under Regulation 47 or Regulation 48, the chief officer of police shall consider whether an additional increment or, as the case may be, a second additional increment should be granted to her.

(2) A constable who has acquired a right under paragraph (1) of this Regulation to have the question considered whether a grant should be made to her may apply to the chief officer of police, as soon as may be after the end of each period of one or more complete years from the date when she acquired the right, again to consider the question, and it shall accordingly again be considered.

(3) A constable from whom an additional increment or increments has or have been withdrawn under Regulation 50 may apply to the chief officer of police at the end of each period of one or more complete years from the date of the withdrawal to consider whether an additional increment should be granted to her, and it shall accordingly be considered.

(4) If on consideration under paragraph (1) or (2) of this Regulation no grant is made, the constable shall, if she applies for the information, be informed in writing why no grant was made. [1394]

General provisions as to grant and withdrawal of special and additional increments of pay for constables

50. If the chief officer of police is of opinion—

- (a) that a constable in receipt of a special increment or increments is not showing special zeal, intelligence or proficiency in the performance of her duties or that she is not well conducted, or
- (b) that a constable in receipt of an additional increment or increments is not showing zeal or proficiency in the performance of her duties or that she is not well conducted,

the constable shall be given a written warning of the opinion of the chief officer of police, and if, at the end of a period of two months from the date of the warning or of such longer period as may be specified in the warning, the chief officer of police is still of the same opinion, the increment or increments shall be withdrawn :

Provided that if after the latest grant to the constable under Regulation 44, 45, 47 or 48—

- (a) the constable is guilty of any default for which she is punished by a fine of 20s. or any greater punishment, or
- (b) the constable is guilty, during any period of twelve months, of two defaults for which she is punished by punishments other than cautions, or
- (c) the constable is guilty of more than three defaults for which she is punished by punishments other than cautions,

the increment or increments may be withdrawn without warning. [1395]

51. No special or additional increment shall be granted to a constable from whom an increment or increments has or have been withdrawn under Regulation 50 until a period of one year has elapsed from the date of the withdrawal. [1396]

52. The grant or withdrawal of any increment under Regulations 44 to 51 inclusive to or from a constable in a borough police force shall be subject to confirmation by the watch committee. [1397]

Service in a relevant auxiliary capacity

54. For the purpose of applying the scale of pay for constables and of reckoning the qualifying period for the grant of a special or an additional increment there shall be added to the constable's service any period of service in a relevant auxiliary capacity. [1398]

ALLOWANCES

56. All allowances shall be non-pensionable and the amounts and conditions of payment shall be subject to the approval of the Secretary of State, and no allowances shall be paid except such as are prescribed in these Regulations or approved by the Secretary of State. [1399]

Rent allowance

56A.—(1) A police authority shall provide each woman member of a police force with a house or quarters free of rent and rates or shall pay her a rent allowance :

Provided that this paragraph shall not apply to a woman member of a police force who—

- (a) is married to a member of a police force and is living with him ; or
- (b) is on unpaid maternity leave.

(2) The rent allowance shall be paid at the same rate as that provided under Regulation 65 of the Police Regulations, 1947, for single men who are members of the same police force and of the same rank :

Provided that a police authority may, in special circumstances, authorise payment to an individual woman member of the police force of a rent allowance at the rate provided by the said Regulation 65 for married men of the same rank. [1400]

Compensatory grant

56B.—(1) In the year commencing on the sixth day of April, 1947, and in each subsequent year, a woman member of a police force who has during the preceding year paid income tax in respect of a rent allowance or any compensatory grant mentioned in this paragraph paid or made to her in respect of her service in the force shall be paid a compensatory grant.

(2) The amount of the compensatory grant shall be equal to the amount by which the income tax in fact deducted during the preceding year according to the tax tables prepared or prescribed by the Commissioners of Inland Revenue from the member's emoluments in respect of her service in the force is increased by virtue of the inclusion in such emoluments of a rent allowance or any compensatory grant mentioned in this Regulation paid or made to her.

(3) The compensatory grant may, except in the circumstances described in paragraph (4) of this Regulation, be paid by such instalments throughout the year in which it is payable as the police authority may determine.

(4) Where a woman member of a police force leaves the force or dies whilst serving in the force she or, as the case may be, her personal representatives shall be paid the whole of the compensatory grant due to the member during that year and, in addition, shall be paid a further compensatory grant of an amount which bears the same proportion to the compensatory grant payable during that year as the period during which she has served during that year bears to the period during which she has served in the force during the preceding year.

(5) For the purposes of this Regulation—

- (a) the word “ year ” means the year commencing on the sixth day of April and ending on the following fifth day of April ; and
- (b) where a woman member of a police force has served more than once in the same force, references in this Regulation to service in the force shall be construed as references to her service therein since her last appointment thereto. [1401]

Uniform allowance

57. A woman member of a police force of or above the rank of inspector who does duty in uniform but is not supplied with uniform by the police authority shall be paid in lieu a uniform allowance at a rate calculated to cover the cost of supplying and maintaining the required uniform. [1402]

Boot allowance

58. A woman member of a police force who is not supplied with boots by the police authority shall be paid in lieu a boot allowance at the rate of 2s. weekly. [1403]

Plain clothes allowance

59. A woman member of a police force who is required to do duty in plain clothes for a period of not less than one week shall be paid a plain clothes allowance at that one of the following rates which is appropriate to her rank, namely—

Inspector .. .. .	£20 per annum
Sergeant or constable .. .. .	7s. 6d. a week :

Provided that a sergeant or constable—

- (a) who is required to do duty in plain clothes for not less than six days in any period of three months shall be paid a plain clothes allowance in respect of each day at a rate equal to one-sixth of the weekly rate ;
- (b) who is provided with overalls when doing duty in plain clothes or for any other reason is, in the opinion of the Secretary of State, put to substantially less or substantially more than the normal expense caused by wearing her own clothes on duty may be paid a plain clothes allowance at a rate approved by the Secretary of State. [1404]

Detective allowance

60. A woman member of a police force who is engaged in detective duties continuously for a period of one or more complete weeks shall be paid a detective allowance at the rate of—

Superintendents (where such a rank is adopted under Regulation 1) and inspectors .. .. .	15s. 0d. weekly
Sergeants and constables .. .. .	12s. 6d. weekly

or such higher or lower rate as may be approved in special circumstances by the Secretary of State. This allowance shall be payable in addition to a plain clothes allowance. [1405]

Subsistence and lodging allowance

61.—(1) A woman member of a police force of or below the rank of superintendent who, being retained on duty beyond her normal period of duty or being engaged on duty away from her usual place of duty, necessarily incurs additional expense to obtain food or lodging, shall—

- (a) if the period for which she is so retained or engaged exceeds one hour but does not exceed five hours, be paid a refreshment allowance ;
- (b) if the period for which she is so retained or engaged exceeds five hours, be paid a subsistence allowance ;
- (c) if the said expense includes expense of obtaining lodging, be paid a lodging allowance.

(2) Notwithstanding anything in the preceding paragraph a woman member of a police force of or below the rank of superintendent who satisfies the chief officer of police that during her normal period of duty she was, although not away from her usual place of duty, unable by reason of the exigencies of duty to obtain her meals in her usual way and that she necessarily incurred additional expense for the purpose, may be paid a refreshment allowance.

(3) The amount of the said allowances shall be according to the following scale :—

Description of Allowance	Super-intendents	Inspectors	Sergeants and Constables
Refreshment Allowance—
(i) for one meal .. ..	3s. 6d.	3s. 0d.	2s. 6d.
(ii) for two meals .. ..	5s. 0d.	4s. 6d.	4s. 0d.
Subsistence Allowance : Period of retention or engagement—
(i) over 5 hours and not exceeding 8 hours ..	5s. 0d.	4s. 6d.	4s. 0d.
(ii) over 8 hours and not exceeding 12 hours ..	7s. 6d.	6s. 6d.	5s. 6d.
(iii) over 12 hours and not exceeding 24 hours ..	10s. 6d.	9s. 0d.	8s. 0d.
(iv) over 24 hours—at the rate under (iii) above for each complete period of 24 hours retention or engagement, together with whichever is the appropriate amount under the preceding provisions of this scale for any excess over the aggregate of such complete periods.
Lodging Allowance—
For each night .. ..	10s. 6d.	9s. 6d.	8s. 6d.

Provided that—

- if a lodging allowance is payable as well as a subsistence allowance in respect of a total period of retention or engagement of sixteen hours or less, the subsistence allowance shall be of the amount appropriate to a retention or engagement for a period exceeding eight hours and not exceeding twelve hours ;
- if the chief officer of police is satisfied in any particular case that the amount of the allowances specified above is not sufficient to cover the actual expenses necessarily incurred, he may authorise payment of the difference ;
- if the chief officer of police is satisfied in any particular case that the amount of the allowances specified above would be excessive having regard to the additional expenses necessarily incurred, he may direct that the amount of the allowances shall be reduced to such an amount as he determines, not being less than the amount of such expenses ;
- if a woman member of a police force is so retained or engaged for a period exceeding one week, she may, if the chief officer of police is satisfied that the allowances specified above would be excessive, be granted in lieu thereof a weekly allowance at such lower rate as may be necessary to cover her reasonable expenses.

(4) Where the place of duty of a woman member of a police force has been temporarily changed, the expression in this Regulation “usual place of duty” shall, after such period from the date of change as the chief officer of police may determine, mean the temporary place of duty. [1406]

62. Where a woman member of a police force of or below the rank of inspector is required to do duty away from her usual place of duty she shall be given an advance to cover, as far as practicable, any expenses which she will probably incur. [1407]

Detachment duty allowance

63.—(1) Where a woman member of a police force is employed as part of a detachment lent in aid of another police force in circumstances that involve her sleeping away from home, a detachment duty allowance shall be payable in consideration of such duty at the rate of—

- 8s. 0d. daily for a superintendent
- 6s. 6d. „ „ an inspector
- 5s. 6d. „ „ a sergeant
- 4s. 6d. „ „ a constable

during the period of absence. When lodging and meals are not provided by the aided police authority, this allowance shall be payable in addition to any subsistence or lodging allowance to which the woman may be entitled.

(2) A detachment duty allowance at the foregoing rates may be paid where women members of the metropolitan police or any county police force are employed for a period of three or more complete days on detachment duty within the police district of the force to which they belong, i.e. as part of a detachment reinforcing another division, sub-division or section, in circumstances that involve their sleeping away from home. [1408]

Temporary duty allowance

64. Where a constable is required to perform the duties of a sergeant, or a sergeant is required to perform the duties of an inspector, either to fill a temporary vacancy or for some other special purpose and for a continuous period exceeding two weeks, she shall be granted in respect of such service, after the first two weeks, an allowance in addition to her pay at a rate equal to the difference between her ordinary rate of pay and the lowest rate of pay of the rank in which she is temporarily acting. [1409]

Miscellaneous provisions as to allowances

65. An allowance may be paid, of such amount and under such conditions as may be approved by the Secretary of State on the recommendation of the police authority, in respect of recurring escort duty or other specific duties involving recurring detention on duty beyond the normal period and not covered by any other payment. [1410]

66. A woman member of a police force employed at the expense of a private person or persons shall be entitled to such payments as are provided in these Regulations by way of subsistence or lodging allowance or refreshment allowance or as payment in respect of extended hours of duty, but shall not receive any special allowance in consideration of the purpose for which she is employed. All payments so due shall be made by the police authority and recovered from the person or persons for whose benefit the woman is employed. [1411]

67. If a woman who is regularly in receipt of a plain clothes allowance or detective allowance or any other allowance to meet an expense which ceases during her absence from duty is placed upon the sick list or is on maternity leave, the allowance shall be payable during her absence from duty up to a period of one month, but thereafter, during the remainder of her absence from duty, payment may be suspended at the discretion of the chief officer of police, subject, in a borough police force, to the approval of the watch committee :

Provided that the boot allowance shall not cease to be payable during a period of sick leave. [1412]

CLOTHING, EQUIPMENT AND NECESSARIES

68. Every woman member of a police force shall provide herself with clothing which is sufficient for her health and suitable to a person employed in the police service, and shall be in possession of two pairs of boots suitable for duty. [1413]

69. All articles of uniform, clothing and equipment necessary for the performance of police duty shall be provided by the police authority for all ranks free of cost to the individual member of the force, provided that officers of and above the rank of inspector may be paid a money allowance in lieu. [1414]

70. Issues of uniform shall, so far as circumstances permit, be made at stated periods, but where particular duties, or the duties of a particular woman, entail greater or less wear of all articles or of any particular article of uniform, the issue to a particular woman, or the issue of any particular garment, may be made on requisition approved by the chief officer of police. Clothing for particular duties may be issued on requisition. [1415]

71. Subject to any modifications approved by the Secretary of State, the issues of articles of uniform and equipment for sergeants and constables shall be as follows :—

Article	Issue	Period of Wear	Number in Possession
Body Coat ( i.e. tunic, frock coat, patrol jacket, winter jacket, summer jacket, summer serge, as the case may be)	Annual	Two years or four years (according to whether one, two or more patterns of coat are supplied)	Two of each
(If tunics or other full dress coats are reserved for ceremonial duty only, their issue shall be on requisition over and above the periodical issue.)
Skirt .. .. .	Annual	Four years	Four
(Where more than one material is provided, the issue shall be alternated to meet the demands of use.)
Greatcoat .. .. .	Every two years	Four years	Two
Headdress .. .. .	Issue to be as required		Two

(Where a second pattern of headdress is supplied, the issue shall be alternated to meet the demands of use.)

Where boots are provided by the police authority for the purposes of duty, the issue shall be at the rate of two pairs annually, or as may be approved by the Secretary of State. [1416]

72. The following articles of equipment shall be supplied as circumstances require :—

Armlet and buckle
 Button brushes and button stick
 Cap strap and sling
 Gloves
 Handcuffs
 Haversack or kit bag
 Lamp
 Leggings
 Overalls
 Pocket notebook
 Shirts, collars and ties
 Truncheon
 Waist-belt
 Waterproof coat or cape
 Warrant card
 Whistle and chain. [1417]

73. All clothing and articles of equipment issued are for use in the performance of duty; they shall not become the property of the individual member of the force and must be delivered up by her on her leaving the force. [1418]

74. All garments supplied by the police authority (but not boots) shall be returned to store on being replaced at the expiry of the prescribed period of wear, and the amounts realised by their sale shall be paid to the police fund :

Provided that, if the police authority so direct, cast garments may be retained upon a payment to be fixed by the police authority, the amount of which shall be assessed according to the amount likely to be realised by the sale of the garments. [1419]

75. Replacement of lost, damaged, faulty or ill-fitting garments, and repairs (other than minor repairs which the woman can satisfactorily do herself) shall be made or done at the expense of the police authority, except in the case of loss or damage caused by the woman's default. [1420]

76. Part-worn clothing returned to store shall not be issued to another woman until it has been properly cleaned and is in serviceable condition. [1421]

MEDICAL ATTENDANCE AND STOPPAGES FROM PAY

77. A woman member of a police force shall not be entitled to be absent from duty on account of injury or illness except on the authority of a medical officer for the force or other medical practitioner appointed or approved by the police authority :

Provided that where, owing to the absence of the woman on leave or for other unavoidable cause, the authority of a medical officer for the force cannot be given, the certificate of some other medical practitioner may be accepted in lieu by the police authority. [1422]

78. Where a woman member of a police force who is not incapacitated for duty by illness is relieved of duty on account of her having been in contact with infectious disease, without her own default, she shall not be liable to any deduction from pay or from annual or other leave in respect of such absence from duty. [1423]

79.—(1) The police authority shall provide for every woman member of the police force when incapacitated for duty by injury or illness without her own default free medical attendance by a medical officer for the force or other medical practitioner appointed or approved by the police authority, such attention to include the supply of necessary medicines and drugs :

Provided that—

- (i) nothing in this paragraph shall prevent a woman who receives treatment in a hospital from being required to contribute towards the cost of her maintenance in the hospital and any such contribution may be deducted from her pay ;
- (ii) if a woman member of a police force is certified by a medical officer for the force or other medical practitioner appointed or approved by the police authority to require special treatment, it shall be provided without cost to her if her incapacity was due to an injury received in the execution of her duty without her own default, and otherwise the provision of such special treatment shall be at the discretion of the police authority ;
- (iii) nothing in this paragraph shall compel a police authority to provide medical attendance during a period of unpaid maternity leave or, during a period of paid maternity leave, to provide medical attendance in respect of injury or illness which is solely or mainly due to pregnancy or childbirth or their after effects.

(2) Where a woman member of a police force has been granted a pension in respect of an injury received in the execution of her duty without her own default, the police authority may provide, without cost to the pensioner, such medical attendance, by a medical officer for the force or other medical practitioner appointed or approved by the police authority, as the pensioner may require by reason of the injury in respect of which she retired or such special treatment as she may require as a result of the injury aforesaid.

(3) The police authority shall provide free dental treatment, including the provision of a denture or dentures where necessary, for every woman member of the police force in whose case a medical officer for the force or other medical practitioner or registered dentist appointed or approved by the police authority certifies that such treatment or denture is necessary for the woman's health and continued efficiency in the police service and that the necessity does not arise from her own neglect or default :

Provided that nothing in this paragraph shall compel a police authority to provide dental treatment during a period of unpaid maternity leave or, during a period of paid maternity leave, to provide dental treatment which is rendered necessary or desirable solely or mainly by pregnancy or childbirth or their after effects. [1424]

80A.—(1) During the maternity period a married woman member of a police force shall not be entitled to any sick leave in respect of any injury, illness or incapacity for duty which is solely or mainly due to pregnancy or childbirth or their after effects but shall be entitled to take maternity leave for the whole or any part or parts of the period of which, subject to paragraph (2) of this Regulation, three months shall be paid maternity leave and the remainder unpaid maternity leave.

(2) A married woman member of a police force shall not be entitled to more than three months' paid maternity leave during any period of twelve months or to any paid maternity leave before the end of her period of probation.

(3) No deductions in respect of any period or periods of paid maternity leave shall be made from the service of a married woman member of a police force in calculating her period of approved service for the purposes of the Police Pensions Act, 1921.

(4) In calculating the service of a married woman member of a police force for the purposes of probation, promotion or increments in pay any period or periods of unpaid maternity leave shall be disregarded.

(5) In this Regulation the maternity period means, in relation to a married woman member of a police force who is certified by a medical practitioner approved by the police authority to be pregnant, the period beginning six months before the date which is estimated by the said medical practitioner as being the probable date of birth and ending nine months after the birth of the child. [1425]

81. In reckoning the approved service of a woman member of a police force no deduction from service shall be made in respect of duly authorised absence from duty occasioned by sickness, unless a medical officer for the force or other medical practitioner certifies that the woman has brought about or contributed to the sickness by her own default or vicious habits or unless she is already absent on unpaid maternity leave. [1426]

MISCELLANEOUS PROVISIONS

81A.—(1) Subject to the provisions of paragraph (3) hereof, a woman member of a county police force or a combined police force who, having been a member of the police force of a borough comprised in the county of the combined area, has been transferred to the county police force or the combined police force by or under the provisions of the Police Act, 1946, shall not be assigned to duties which in the opinion of the Secretary of State make it necessary for her to establish her home outside the borough.

(2) This Regulation shall apply in relation to a woman member of a county police force or a combined police force who has been a member of the police force of a borough comprised in the county or the combined area and either reverts to the county police force or the combined police force under subsection (1) of section 2 of the Police (Overseas Service) Act, 1945, as applied by subsection (2) of section 14 of the Police Act, 1946, or, having been a person to whom section 1 of the Police and Firemen (War Service) Act, 1939, applied, became a member of the county police force or, as the case may be, the combined police force without having been deemed under subsection (2) of section 2 of the last-named Act to have retired, in the same manner as it applies to a member of a county police force or a combined police force who has been transferred thereto by or under the provisions of the Police Act, 1946.

(3) This Regulation shall not apply to such a woman member of a county police force or combined police force as described above if, since she became a member of the police force of the borough—

- (a) she has retired, resigned or been dismissed from a police force, has been deemed to have retired from a police force under subsection (2) of section 2 of the Police and Firemen (War Service) Act, 1939, or has engaged for a period of overseas service in such a manner that she has not acquired, under subsection (1) of section 2 of the Police (Overseas Service) Act, 1945, a right of reverter or, having acquired the said right of reverter, has lost or not availed herself of the said right or has removed, within the meaning of subsection (1) of section 8 of the Police Pensions Act, 1921, from one police force to another ;
- (b) the police force of the borough has become subject to a consolidation agreement under section 14 of the County Police Act, 1840 ; or
- (c) she has given written notice to the chief officer of police of any county police force or combined police force of which she was at the time a member of her desire that this Regulation should cease to apply to her.

(4) Where a woman member of a county police force or combined police force has been a member of the police force of more than one borough comprised in the county or combined area references in this Regulation to the police force of such a borough shall, in relation to her, be construed as references to the police force of such borough of which she was last a member. [1427]

81B. For the purposes of these Regulations service in a police force from which a constable is transferred by or under the Police Act, 1946, and service in the force to which she is so transferred shall be treated as if it were service in the same force. [1428]

82.—(1) (a) In these Regulations a reference to service in a relevant auxiliary capacity is to be taken as a reference to all service as a member of Class A of the Women's Auxiliary Police Corps and, while the constable in question was not in receipt of a pension under the Police Pensions Acts, 1921 and 1926, to all whole-time paid service after the third day of September, 1939, as a member of the first class of the Police Reserve and while the constable in question was assigned to duties which were wholly or mainly street patrol duties, motor patrol duties or outside detective duties, to whole-time paid service as a member of the Women's Auxiliary Police Corps, after the third day of September, 1939, and before the first day of April, 1945 :

Provided that for the purpose of reckoning the length of such whole-time paid service account shall only be taken of each complete calendar month during the whole of which the constable in question was assigned to such duties.

(b) In connection with any reference to service in a relevant auxiliary-capacity a reference to service in a force shall be taken to include a reference to service as a member of the Women's Auxiliary Police Corps under the directions of the chief officer of police of that force.

(c) In this paragraph whole-time paid service includes all leave with pay, any period of leave without full pay not exceeding seven days in duration and any period of absence or suspension with full pay or the equivalent of full pay and for this purpose leave shall not be taken to be leave without full pay by reason only that there is deducted from the constable's pay the amount of benefits under the National Health Insurance Acts, 1936 to 1941, of payments made under any scheme made by the Minister of Pensions under the Personal Injuries (Emergency Provisions) Act, 1939, or for any weekly payments under the Workmen's Compensation Acts, 1925 to 1945.

(2) Any reference in these Regulations to a county police force, a borough police force or a watch committee shall, except in Regulation 81A, include a reference respectively to a combined force constituted by a county scheme, a combined force constituted by a borough scheme or a police authority constituted by a borough scheme. [1429]

84.—(1) In these Regulations a reference to a Regulation shall, unless the contrary intention appears, be construed as a reference to a Regulation contained in these Regulations.

(2) The Interpretation Act, 1889, shall apply to the interpretation of these Regulations as it applies to the interpretation of an Act of Parliament. [1430]

86. These Regulations shall apply to all police forces in England and Wales to which the Police Act, 1919, applies, and in which women are employed as members of the force. [1431]

87.—(1) The Regulations set out in the Second Schedule to these Regulations are hereby revoked.

(2) Section 38 of the Interpretation Act, 1889, shall apply as if these Regulations were an Act of Parliament and as if any Regulations revoked by these Regulations were Acts of Parliament repealed by an Act of Parliament.

(3) Any appointment, grant, withdrawal of a grant or publication made or approval, certificate, consent or notice given or any record kept or other thing done under any Regulation revoked by these Regulations shall not be invalidated by the revocation effected by paragraph (1) of this Regulation, but shall, in so far as it could have been made, given, kept or done under a provision of these Regulations, have effect as if it had been made, given, kept or done under that provision.

(4) Any proceedings initiated, suspension from duty ordered or punishment imposed in respect of an offence or alleged offence against the code of offences against discipline for any police force shall be deemed to have been initiated, ordered or imposed under these Regulations.

(5) Any reference in any document to any Regulations revoked by these Regulations or any provision thereof shall, unless the contrary intention appears, be construed as a reference to these Regulations or the corresponding provisions of these Regulations. [1432]

88.—(1) These Regulations may be cited as the Police (Women) Regulations, 1947.

(2) These Regulations shall come into force on the first day of August, 1947. [1433]

EXPLANATORY NOTE

(This Note is not part of the Regulations, but is intended to indicate their general purport.)

These Regulations consolidate, with amendments, the Regulations set out in the Second Schedule. The principal amendments are in Regulations 4 (which relates to disqualification from membership of a police force in connection with the carrying on of a business), 29 and 30 (which relate to "time-off" for excess duty and payments in lieu of "time-off"), 47 and 48 (which relate to additional increments of pay) and 63 (which relates to detachment duty allowance).

METROPOLITAN POLICE STAFFS SUPERANNUATION (UNESTABLISHED SERVICE) ORDER, 1947

August 6, 1946

Whereas under the Metropolitan Police Staff (Superannuation) Acts, 1875 to 1931, both as originally enacted and as applied by section five of the Metropolitan Police Courts Act, 1897, and as extended by the Superannuation (Various Services) Act, 1938, the Secretary of State is authorised to make by Order regulations respecting the grant to officers to whom those Acts apply and to their legal personal representatives, widows and dependants of superannuation allowances, compensations, gratuities or other allowances on the like principles and conditions as are for the time being in force with respect to persons in the Civil Service of the State :

Now, therefore, I, the Right Honourable James Chuter Ede, one of His Majesty's Principal Secretaries of State, in pursuance of the said Acts, do, by this Order, make the following regulations :—

1. This Order may be cited as the Metropolitan Police Staffs Superannuation (Unestablished Service) Order, 1947. [1436]

2.—(1) In this Order—

- (i) the expression “ police service ” means service, the salary in respect of which is paid out of the Metropolitan Police Fund,
  - (a) under the Commissioner of Police of the Metropolis or under the Receiver for the Metropolitan Police District, otherwise than as a constable ; or
  - (b) as a member of the staff of the Metropolitan Police Courts ;
- (ii) the expression “ service in an established capacity ” means police service in a pensionable situation ;
- (iii) the expression “ service in an unestablished capacity ” means police service otherwise than in a pensionable situation, being service to which the person serving is required to devote his whole time ;
- (iv) the expression “ the Orders ” means the Orders, other than this Order, made by the Secretary of State in pursuance of the powers conferred on him by the Metropolitan Police Staff (Superannuation) Act, 1875, both as originally enacted and as amended, applied and extended by any other Acts ; and any reference to “ the Order ” means that one of the Orders made on the date specified.

(2) The Interpretation Act, 1889, shall apply to the interpretation of this Order as it applies to the interpretation of an Act of Parliament. [1437]

3. Subject to the provisions of this Order, where any person at the time of his appointment to service in an established capacity is or was in service in an unestablished capacity and his continuous service in an unestablished capacity immediately before his said appointment began before the eighth day of April, 1943, so much of his said continuous service in an unestablished capacity as was performed after the thirty-first day of December, 1918, shall, as to one-half of the period thereof, be reckoned as service in an established capacity for the purposes of the Orders :

Provided that—

- (i) for the purpose of computing, in the case of any person, the service to be reckoned as aforesaid, no account shall be taken of any period for which that person has served before attaining the age of eighteen years ; and

- (ii) this Article shall not apply to any person in respect of whose service the Secretary of State, by virtue of Article 2 of the Metropolitan Police Staffs Superannuation (Unestablished Service) Order, 1943, has made or makes an award more favourable than an award that he would, but for this proviso, have been empowered to make under this Article. [1438]

4.—(1) Subject to the provisions of this Order, any person to whom the provisions of the Metropolitan Police Staffs Superannuation (Unestablished Service) Order, 1943, or of Article 3 of this Order would have applied but for the fact that he was not appointed to service in an established capacity solely on the ground that by reason of his age he would not, if so appointed, have become eligible to receive a superannuation allowance on retirement at the retiring age, shall be treated for the purposes of the Orders as if he had been appointed to service in an established capacity on the day when, but for the existence of that ground, he would have been so appointed, and the said Metropolitan Police Staffs Superannuation (Unestablished Service) Order, 1943, or, as the case may be, Article 3 of this Order shall apply to that person accordingly.

(2) Any award under the Orders to a person referred to in paragraph (1) of this Article, being a woman who, under that paragraph, falls to be treated as if she had been appointed to service in an established capacity on a date before the fourteenth day of June, 1939, shall be calculated in accordance with the provisions of the Order made on the 1st January, 1876 :

Provided that if any such person elects, within three months of the sending to her of a notice of election, that the said award shall be calculated in accordance with the provisions of the Order made on the 22nd March, 1910, the award shall be so calculated, and the amount of additional allowance payable on retirement shall be increased by one-half per cent. in respect of each completed year before the said fourteenth day of June, 1939, which may be reckoned, for the purposes of the Orders, as service in an established capacity.

(3) No election under this Article shall be made in respect of the service of a deceased person. [1439]

5.—(1) Directions of the Secretary of State issued under Article 4 of the Metropolitan Police Staffs Superannuation (Unestablished Service) Order, 1943, shall apply for the purposes of computing the service in an unestablished capacity of any person to whom this Order applies.

(2) The method of computing awards set out in Part II of the Order made on the 14th June, 1939, shall apply to awards granted by virtue of this Order other than awards under the Order made on the 1st January, 1876, to persons referred to in paragraph (2) of Article 4 of this Order. [1440]

6. Elections made under this Order shall be made in the manner approved by the Secretary of State for that purpose or in a manner similar thereto. [1441]

7.—(1) Subject to the provisions of this Order, payment of any sum awarded by virtue of this Order shall be made to the person entitled, at the date of the retirement or death of the officer in respect of whose service the award was made (which officer is hereafter in this Article referred to as "the pensioner"), to the payment of any award specified in paragraph (2) of this Article, but if that person is dead or, within six months or such longer period as the Secretary of State may, in any particular case, determine after the making of an award under this Order, cannot be found, payment shall be made—

- (a) to the pensioner's wife (including a dependant of the pensioner not married to him but living with him as his wife), or husband, as the case may be ; or if there is no such person,

- (b) to and among the children or grandchildren of the pensioner ; or if there are no such children or grandchildren,
- (c) to and among the parents or grandparents if then living of the pensioner, so, however, that the Secretary of State may, in any case the circumstances of which appear to him to be exceptional, whether for reasons of hardship or otherwise, make any such payment to or among any of the persons referred to in sub-paragraphs (a), (b) and (c) of this paragraph or any other person appearing to him to be or to have been a dependant of the pensioner.

(2) The awards referred to in paragraph (1) of this Article are—

- (a) additional allowances under paragraph (2) of Article 2 of the Order made on the 22nd March, 1910 ;
- (b) gratuities under Article 3 of the said last mentioned Order ;
- (c) gratuities under Article 6 of the Order made on the 1st January, 1876 ; and
- (d) compassionate gratuities under Article 1 of the Order made on the 9th March, 1933. [1442]

8.—(1) Where any person to whom this Order applies has retired and, by virtue of this Order is granted any annual superannuation, compensation or retiring allowance under the Orders, that person may not surrender any part thereof to any other person.

(2) Where any person to whom this Order applies is in receipt of any annual superannuation, compensation or retiring allowance granted to him under the Orders and has surrendered any part thereof pursuant to the provisions of the Order made on the 28th August, 1939, and where, by virtue of this Order, that person is granted any further such allowance, there shall be no adjustment of the part of the allowance so surrendered. [1443]

9.—(1) Where any person to whom this Order applies has received a compassionate gratuity under Article 1 of the Order made on the 9th March, 1933, a gratuity under Article 6 of the Order made on the 1st January, 1876, or an additional allowance under paragraph (2) of Article 2 of the Order made on the 22nd March, 1910, and, by virtue of this Order, is granted an award under the Orders, that award shall be adjusted by the deduction therefrom of the amount of the said gratuity or allowance, and no payment shall be made in respect of the said award unless and until the amount which, but for the provisions of this paragraph, would have been payable in respect of the said award exceeds the amount of the said gratuity or allowance.

(2) Where a person to whom this Order applies has been granted a compassionate gratuity under Article 1 of the Order made on the 9th March, 1933, and has subsequently re-entered upon service in an unestablished capacity and has not repaid his gratuity solely on the ground that one or more of his periods of service in an unestablished capacity would not be reckoned under Article 2 of the Metropolitan Police Staffs Superannuation (Unestablished Service) Order, 1943, for the purposes of the Orders, then, if, by virtue of this Order, any such period may now be reckoned for those purposes, that person may repay that gratuity for the purposes aforesaid. [1444]

10. Where a married woman who before her marriage was in service in an established capacity has in consequence of her marriage been transferred to service in an unestablished capacity, and no gratuity was paid to her on her marriage in respect of her service in an established capacity, then, for the purposes of Article 1 of the Order made on the 9th March, 1933 (which provides for gratuities on the retirement of persons not entitled to superannuation allowances), her said service in an established capacity shall be treated as if it were service in the capacity to which she was transferred as aforesaid. [1445]

11.—(1) Subject to the provisions of this Order, any superannuation allowance payable by virtue of this Order shall be payable from the first day of April, 1946, or from such later date as, in accordance with the provisions of this Order, the person becomes entitled thereto.

(2) Subject to the provisions of paragraph (1) of this Article, the provisions of this Order shall apply in the case of persons retiring or dying as well before as after the date of this Order, and any payment under the Orders made before the date of this Order shall be adjusted accordingly. [1446]

EXPLANATORY NOTE

(This Note is not part of the Order, but is intended to indicate its general purport.)

This Order relates to the superannuation awards which can be made to members of the civil staffs employed under the Commissioner of Police of the Metropolis and the Receiver for the Metropolitan Police District and members of the staffs of the Metropolitan Police Courts. Under the Metropolitan Police Staffs Superannuation (Unestablished Service) Order, 1943, members of these staffs who enter on continuous non-pensionable service after the date of that Order and are later made pensionable are enabled to reckon half of their non-pensionable service performed after they attain the age of eighteen years for pension purposes.

The main purposes of the Order are—

- (a) to enable half of the non-pensionable service performed after they attain the age of eighteen years by members of these staffs at any time since the thirty-first day of December, 1918, to be reckoned,*
- (b) to enable pensions to be awarded in certain circumstances to members of these staffs who were “age barred,” and*
- (c) to enable pensionable service to be reckoned for the purpose of gratuities in the case of certain women transferred in consequence of their marriage from pensionable to non-pensionable service.*

Payments of pensions (or of increased pensions) are to be made as from the first day of April, 1946, or the date of retirement, whichever is the later.

WOMEN'S AUXILIARY POLICE CORPS RULES, 1947

S. R. & O., 1947, No. 1991

September 8, 1947

In pursuance of the power conferred upon me by Regulation 40AC of the Defence (General) Regulations, 1939, as having effect by virtue of the Emergency Laws (Transitional Provisions) Act, 1946, I [i.e. the Secretary of State] hereby make the following Rules amending the Women's Auxiliary Police Corps Rules, 1945, as subsequently amended:—

1. In paragraph (1) of Rule 47 after the words “her children shall be entitled to allowances or gratuities, and such” there shall be inserted the word “pensions”. [1447]

2. In sub-paragraph (b) of paragraph (2) of Rule 47 for the figure “62s. 6d.” there shall be substituted the figure “94s.” [1448]

3.—(1) These Rules may be cited as the Women's Auxiliary Police Corps Rules, 1947.

(2) These Rules shall come into force on the 15th day of September, 1947. [1449]

* * * * *

EXPLANATORY NOTE

(This Note is not part of the Rules, but is intended to indicate their general purport.)

Rule 1 is a drafting point and is not a substantial amendment. Rule 2 increases the notional rate of pay for grants of pensions, allowance or gratuities for women in Class C of the Women's Auxiliary Police Corps.

POLICE (NO. 2) REGULATIONS, 1947

S. R. & O., 1947, No. 2005

September 17, 1947

I, the Right Honourable James Chuter Ede, one of His Majesty's Principal Secretaries of State, in pursuance of the powers conferred on me by section four of the Police Act, 1919, hereby make the following Regulations:—

1. In paragraph (1) of Regulation 20A of the Police Regulations, 1947, for the words "another serving member of the force" there shall be substituted the words "a serving member of a police force". [1450]

2. In Regulation 74 of the said Regulations for the words "Where a constable is required to perform the duties of a sergeant, or a sergeant is required to perform the duties of a station sergeant, sub-inspector or inspector, or a station sergeant or sub-inspector is required to perform the duties of an inspector" there shall be substituted the words "Where a member of a police force of a rank below that of superintendent is required to perform the duties of a member of a force holding a higher rank than his own". [1451]

3.—(1) In paragraph (b) of Regulation 94 of the said Regulations the words "Regulations 28 to 32 (which relate to promotion) and" shall be omitted.

(2) At the end of Regulation 94 of the said Regulations there shall be added the following paragraph:—

“(d) notwithstanding Regulation 27, paragraph (4) of Regulation 29, Regulations 30 and 32, promotion from constable to sergeant and from sergeant to station sergeant in the metropolitan police may be by competitive examination in accordance with provisions approved by the Secretary of State and published in the General Orders of the force, and those provisions may also lay down the number of times and frequency with which a candidate may sit for the competitive examination and the qualifying examination set out in Regulation 29.” [1452]

4.—(1) These Regulations may be cited as the Police (No. 2) Regulations, 1947.

(2) These Regulations shall come into force on the first day of October, 1947. [1453]

* * * * *

EXPLANATORY NOTE

(This Note is not part of the Regulations, but is intended to indicate their general purport.)

Regulation 1 permits a member of a police force accused of an offence against discipline to select a serving member of any police force to assist him in the disciplinary proceedings.

Regulation 2 extends the temporary duty allowance to all ranks below that of superintendent.

Regulation 3 provides for competitive examinations for promotion up to the rank of station sergeant in the metropolitan police.

POLICE (WOMEN) (NO. 2) REGULATIONS, 1947

S. R. & O., 1947, No. 2006

September 17, 1947

I, the Right Honourable James Chuter Ede, one of His Majesty's Principal Secretaries of State, in pursuance of the powers conferred on me by section four of the Police Act, 1919, hereby make the following Regulations :—

1. In paragraph (1) of Regulation 14A of the Police (Women) Regulations, 1947, for the words "another serving member of the force" there shall be substituted the words "a serving member of a police force". [1454]

2.—(1) These Regulations may be cited as the Police (Women) (No. 2) Regulations, 1947.

(2) These Regulations shall come into force on the first day of October, 1947. [1455]

* * * * *

EXPLANATORY NOTE

(This Note is not part of the Regulations, but is intended to indicate their general purport.)

Regulation 1 permits a woman member of a police force accused of an offence against discipline to select a serving member of any police force to assist her in the disciplinary proceedings.

CASES

Trespass—False imprisonment—Need to make charge known to person arrested—Arrest without warrant—Charge of unlawful possession under local Act—Charge not justifying original arrest or continuing detention under arrest—Reasonable and probable cause for suspecting felony—Dismissal of charge at police court—Re-arrest inside the court—Subsequent charge of larceny—Charge dismissed—Liverpool Corporation Act, 1921 (c. lxxiv), ss. 507, 513.

On August 31, 1942, the respondent was arrested by the appellants, who were police officers, and charged under the Liverpool Corporation Act, 1921, s. 507, with unlawful possession of a bale of cloth. Admittedly, the arrest was not authorised by the section, but the police bona fide and on reasonable grounds believed that he had stolen the cloth. He was detained in custody until the following day when he was brought before the magistrate and remanded in custody until September 8. Thereafter he was remanded on bail until September 15. At the hearing the respondent was discharged, it being stated that the Leicester police had decided to prosecute him for larceny, and before leaving the court he was re-arrested. Later in the day, the Leicester police, charging him with larceny, took him to Leicester with a view to his committal for trial, but the charge was dismissed by the magistrates. The respondent claimed damages for false imprisonment and trespass to the person. Although the offence of unlawful possession under the Act of 1921 was one for which in the circumstances there was no power of arrest without warrant, the appellants pleaded that their action was justified because they had reasonable and probable cause for suspecting, and in fact, suspected, that the respondent had stolen or feloniously received the bale of cloth :—

Held: (i) an arrest without warrant, either by a policeman or by a private person, can be justified only if it is an arrest on a charge which is made known to the person arrested unless the circumstances are such that the person arrested must know the substance of the alleged offence (e.g. where the alleged wrongdoer is caught red-handed), or where he forcibly resists arrest; the circumstances of the present case were not covered by any such qualification; and, therefore, the initial arrest and imprisonment were unlawful and constituted false imprisonment.

(ii) as regards the re-arrest on September 15, the respondent knew what was the alleged felony in respect of which he was being detained, and so, although it took place inside the court, this arrest was lawful.—CHRISTIE v. LEACHINSKY, [1947] A. C. 573; [1947] 1 All E. R. 567; [1947] L. J. R. 757; 176 L. T. 443; 111 J. P. 224; 63 T. L. R. 231; 45 L. G. R. 201, H. L. [1456]

Limitation of actions—Public authority—Commissioner of Metropolitan Police—Dismissal of police officer—Claim by officer that dismissal illegal—Limitation Act, 1939 (c. 21), s. 21.

In September, 1942, the plaintiff, an inspector in the Metropolitan Police Force, pleaded guilty to three charges of stealing and was sentenced to a month's imprisonment. He was forthwith dismissed from the Force by the Commissioner of Police without being informed in writing on a misconduct form of the charge against him, without being supplied with copies of the reports on which the charge was founded, without being invited to give his explanation in writing or being given an opportunity of putting forward his explanation personally, and without a disciplinary board. He was subsequently allowed to appeal out of time against his dismissal to the Home Secretary, by whose order, made in March, 1943, he was reinstated in the Force with the rank of constable. In March, 1946, he brought an action for a declaration that he held the rank of inspector and had been entitled to the privileges and emoluments attaching thereto since he was dismissed, on the grounds, inter alia, that the statutory requirements of the Police Act, 1919, and of regulations made under s. 4 of that Act had not been complied with in relation to his dismissal :—

Held: (i) the Commissioner had power under the Metropolitan Police Act, 1829, s. 5, and the General Orders of the Metropolitan Police Force, s. 5 (9), without following the ordinary disciplinary procedure to dismiss the plaintiff on the ground that he was unfit to hold office by reason of his conviction and imprisonment, and that power was properly exercised.

(ii) the plaintiff had waived his right to succeed in the proceedings by appealing to the Home Secretary in 1943 and accepting and acting on his decision for three years.

(iii) the action was barred by the Limitation Act, 1939, s. 21, it being brought against a public authority charged with a public duty in respect of something done in the discharge of that public duty more than a year before the issue of the writ.—*Hogg v. For some months before September, 1939, a police officer was working very long hours and was subjected to exceptional worry in the course of his duty. He contracted a duodenal ulcer caused, according to medical evidence, by his conditions of work and the consequent irregular meals and rest. He applied for a special pension under the Police Pensions Act, 1921:—

Held: (i) the duodenal ulcer was “an injury received in the execution of his duty” by the officer, within s. 2 (1) (c) of the Act of 1921, and he was, therefore, entitled to a special pension.

(ii) the Divisional Court was bound to follow its own decision in Garvin’s case. Where, as in matters arising under s. 17 (2) of the Police Pensions Act, 1921, the Divisional Court was made the final court of appeal, it must, as a general rule, follow a previous decision of the court and so avoid a conflict of authority and lack of finality.

STATUTES

POLISH RESETTLEMENT ACT, 1947

(10 & 11 Geo. 6, c. 19)

PRELIMINARY NOTE

This Act, which received the Royal Assent on March 27, 1947, was passed primarily to enable government departments to take over certain functions previously performed by the Interim Treasury Committee for Polish Questions, which was set up when the British Government withdrew its recognition of the London Polish Government on July 5, 1945, and which was composed of British civil servants under whom worked a body of Poles. Three particular provisions of the Act may conveniently be considered in this title.

First, s. 2 of the Act, in conjunction with Part I of the Schedule thereto, provides for the grant on certain conditions of allowances by the Assistance Board to persons of the categories specified in s. 2 (2). Allowances were paid to Polish nationals by the Interim Treasury Committee at a rather higher rate than those paid by the Assistance Board to British subjects, owing to the destitute condition of the majority of the beneficiaries when they arrived in the United Kingdom, but this distinction will no longer apply. Certain Poles may, however, receive assistance under this section who would not have qualified for assistance under the Unemployment Assistance Act, 1934 (27 Halsbury's Statutes 786), had they been British subjects; this was pointed out by the Parliamentary Secretary to the Ministry of Labour in the debate on the Second Reading of the Bill in the House of Commons when he said, on February 12, 1947 :—

“ . . . The condition which we apply to British people is that they must be available for and able to work. In this case it has been widened so as to take into account and to enable the Assistance Board to pay unemployment assistance to Poles who are too old to work, or who are sick and have not acquired National Health Insurance rights ” (493 H. of C. Official Report 471).

Secondly, the provision of accommodation in camps and otherwise for Poles of specified categories is dealt with in s. 3 and Part II of the Schedule. A number of such camps existed in Great Britain before the passing of the Act, but their organisation is now placed on a more satisfactory basis by being made the responsibility of the Assistance Board, and the position of persons living in the camps, which are distinct from the military camps in which the Resettlement Corps is housed, is more clearly defined. An important point to note is that the Board may, with the approval of the Treasury, fix a scale of charges for benefits provided under this section, require payment therefor (s. 3 (6) and Sched., Part II), and if need be recover in a civil court the amounts due (Sched., Part II, paragraph 5).

Lastly, the Minister of Health assumes responsibility under s. 4 of the Act for the fairly elaborate health services, including convalescent homes and medical dispensaries, set up by the London Polish Government and later administered by the Interim Treasury Committee. Expansion of these services, and in particular the establishment of one or more general hospitals for Polish nationals, is under consideration.

The provision of educational services by the Minister of Education under the Act is dealt with in the title EDUCATION, ante. [1459]

2. Allowances from the Assistance Board.—(1) An allowance may be granted by the Assistance Board (in this and the next succeeding section referred to as "the Board") to a person in the United Kingdom of any of the categories specified in subsection (2) of this section, being a person who has attained the age of sixteen years, if he proves in accordance with rules made under the Unemployment Assistance Act, 1934,—

- (a) that he is in need of an allowance ;
- (b) that he has no work, or only such part-time or intermittent work as not to enable him to earn sufficient for his needs ; and
- (c) that he is, if required by the Board so to be, registered for employment in the prescribed manner ; and if he has made application for an allowance in the prescribed manner.

(2) The said categories are—

- (a) Poles whose registration under the Aliens Order, 1920, took place on or after the first day of September, nineteen hundred and thirty-nine, and who have been permitted to enter, or to remain in, the United Kingdom in view of circumstances attributable to war, as to which, in case of doubt, a certificate of the Secretary of State shall be conclusive ;
- (b) former members of any of the forces mentioned in subsection (1) of section one of this Act (including the naval detachment therein mentioned), and members of any of those forces relegated from service therewith ;
- (c) wives of men of categories (a) and (b), and any woman who, having been the wife of a man of either of those categories, has ceased so to be, and has not re-married ;
- (d) persons who have been permitted to enter the United Kingdom on or after the first day of September, nineteen hundred and thirty-nine, as being followers of a body of Polish forces entering the United Kingdom and dependent thereon or on members thereof, as to which, in case of doubt, a certificate of the Secretary of State shall be conclusive. [1462]

(3) This section shall be construed with, and treated for all purposes as forming part of, the Unemployment Assistance Act, 1934, and the enactments therein contained shall apply accordingly, subject to the modifications set out in Part I of the Schedule to this Act, and the provisions of any rules or regulations for the time being in force under that Act shall apply accordingly. [1463]

(4) There shall be defrayed out of moneys provided by Parliament any increase attributable to the passing of this section in the sums payable out of such moneys under section forty-seven of the Unemployment Assistance Act, 1934, or section six of the Determination of Needs Act, 1941 and any sums received by the Board under the Unemployment Assistance Act, 1934, as applied for the purposes of this section shall be paid into the Exchequer. [1464]

Effect of section.—See the Preliminary Note, ante.

Assistance Board.—This was formerly the Unemployment Assistance Board, constituted under s. 35 of the Unemployment Act, 1934 (27 Halsbury's Statutes 786). Its name was changed and its functions enlarged by s. 10 of the Old Age and Widows' Pensions Act, 1940 (33 Halsbury's Statutes 517). Since the present Act received the Royal Assent a Bill has been presented in Parliament under which it is proposed that the name of the Board shall be further changed to the National Assistance Board.

United Kingdom.—Great Britain and Northern Ireland (Royal and Parliamentary Titles Act, 1927, s. 2 (2) ; 3 Halsbury's Statutes 191).

Unemployment Assistance Act, 1934.—27 Halsbury's Statutes 786. This Act comprises Part II of the Unemployment Act, 1934. By s. 57 (2) of the Act (27 Halsbury's Statutes 804), the said Part II may be cited separately as the Unemployment Assistance Act, 1934.

For s. 47 thereof, see 27 Halsbury's Statutes 797.

In the prescribed manner. In the manner prescribed by rules made under the 1934 Act (see s. 54 (1) thereof ; 27 Halsbury's Statutes 801). See also note on "Construed with," infra.

Polas.—S. 10 (1) of the present Act defines " Pole " for the purposes of the Act, unless the context should otherwise require, as " a person registered under the Aliens Order, 1920, as being a Pole."

Aliens Order, 1920.—S. R. & O., 1920, No. 448, now amended by various Orders, the most important of which is the Aliens Order, 1939 (S. R. & O., 1939, No. 994).

By s. 10 (2) of the present Act, references in the Act to the Aliens Order, 1920, are to be construed as references to that order as for the time being in force and to any order substituted therefor.

Circumstances attributable to war.—In the course of discussion of this phrase at the Committee Stage of the Bill in the House of Commons on February 20, 1947, the Secretary of State for the Home Department said :—

" It is not my intention to widen admission to the benefits of this Clause to others than the persons employed as civilians by the London Polish Government, or their relatives. . . . I can assure my hon. Friend that, generally, admission of displaced persons who have no connection with the London Polish Government will not come within the categories that will receive my certificate as arriving here through causes attributable to the war, in the meaning that is to be attached to it in this Clause " (433 H. of C. Official Report 1523).

Case of doubt.—I.e. doubt in the minds of the Assistance Board (433 H. of C. Official Report 1525).

S. 1 (1) of this Act.—The forces mentioned in this subsection are :—

" (a) the Polish naval detachment mentioned in the agreement made between His Majesty's Government in the United Kingdom and the Government of Poland on the eighteenth day of November, nineteen hundred and thirty-nine,

" (b) the Polish armed forces organised and employed under British command in pursuance of the agreement made as aforesaid on the fifth day of August, nineteen hundred and forty,

" (c) the Polish resettlement forces."

Unless the context otherwise requires, " Polish resettlement forces " means " the Polish Re-Settlement Corps, the Polish Re-Settlement Corps (Royal Air Force), the Polish Re-Settlement Section of the Auxiliary Territorial Service, and the Polish Re-Settlement Section of the Women's Auxiliary Air Force " (s. 10 (1) of the Act).

Followers, etc.—This expression is to be interpreted widely, and covers, inter alia, all civil administrative staff in this country and all people who were connected with the London Polish Government (433 H. of C. Official Report 375, 376).

The phrase as originally drafted read " . . . followers of and dependent on a body of Polish forces entering the United Kingdom ", but it was amended to its present form at the Recommittal Stage in the House of Commons on March 4, 1947, in order to bring within the scope of the present section persons dependent on individual members of such forces (434 H. of C. Official Report 447).

Construed with.—Accordingly this section is to be construed as if it were contained in the Unemployment Assistance Act, 1934 (27 Halsbury's Statutes 786), unless there is any manifest discrepancy showing that this section has modified something to be found in the earlier Act (Canada Southern Rly. Co. v. International Bridge Co. (1883), 8 App. Cas. at p. 727; Hart v. Hudson Brothers, Ltd., [1928] 2 K. B. 629, 634; Phillips v. Parnaby, [1934] 2 K. B. 299). Thus words defined in the earlier Act will bear the like meaning in this section, unless it is clear from the context that their construction in this section is different.

Determination of Needs Act, 1941, s. 6.—34 Halsbury's Statutes 437. Under this section expenses of the Assistance Board are to be defrayed out of moneys provided by Parliament subject to a " ceiling figure " in respect of moneys to be defrayed for the purposes of the Unemployment Assistance Act, 1934 (see note on that Act, ante).

3. Provision by the Assistance Board of accommodation in camps.—

(1) The Board may provide accommodation in camps, hostels or other establishments for persons in Great Britain being of any of the categories specified in subsection (2) of the last preceding section, or dependants of persons of any of those categories or of members of any of the Polish resettlement forces serving therewith, or persons formerly dependent on a person who was of any of those categories, or was such a member of any of those forces, at that former time. [1465]

(2) The Board may make provision for meeting the needs (other than medical needs as defined in the Unemployment Assistance Act, 1934, or needs as to education), and for promoting the welfare, of persons for whom accommodation is provided under this section, and may make such provision in such manner as appears to them most convenient, whether by themselves providing goods or services, by making payments to others for the provision thereof, by making payments to persons for whom accommodation is provided, or partly in one of those ways and partly in another. [1466]

(3) The Board may make arrangements with any government department or other authority or person for the provision of benefits under this section, on behalf and at the expense of the Board, by that authority or person. [1467]

(4) The Board may make rules for the well-ordering of camps, hostels or other establishments in which accommodation is provided under this section, and any person who contravenes or fails to comply with a rule so made shall be liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding twenty-five pounds or to imprisonment for a term not exceeding three months, or to both such fine and such imprisonment. [1468]

(5) The provision of benefits under this section for any person shall be at the discretion of the Board, and, without prejudice to the generality of this subsection, the Board may render the provision of any benefits thereunder for a person conditional on his being registered for employment in the manner prescribed by rules made under the Unemployment Assistance Act, 1934, if required by the Board so to be, and may render the provision for a person of accommodation, or of accommodation in any particular camp or other establishment, conditional on his observing rules made under the last preceding subsection. [1469]

(6) The Board may from time to time fix for benefits provided under this section such scales of charges applicable in different circumstances as may appear to the Board, with the approval of the Treasury, to be appropriate, and may from time to time require payments for such benefits to be made in accordance with the provisions of Part II of the Schedule to this Act. [1470]

(7) Section forty-eight of the Unemployment Assistance Act, 1934 (which provides for the prosecution of persons obtaining allowances fraudulently and for the recovery of sums procured by non-disclosure or misrepresentation by way of allowance in excess of allowance that would otherwise have been made) shall apply as respects benefits under this section with the substitution, for references in the said section forty-eight to such allowances and to the amount of any such excess of allowance, of references to such benefits and to the amount or value of any excess of benefit over what would have been provided but for the non-disclosure or misrepresentation. [1471]

(8) The Board shall have, in relation to a person for whom they have power to provide accommodation under this section the like right to complain to a petty sessional court as is conferred by section nineteen of the Poor Law Act, 1930, on a council therein mentioned in relation to a married woman requiring relief and a person whose relief would be chargeable to the council, and the powers of the court under that section shall be exercisable on such complaint. [1472]

(9) The provisions of subsection (3) of section forty-eight of the Unemployment Assistance Act, 1934, as to proceedings on behalf of the Board shall apply to any such proceedings under this section or under Part II of the Schedule to this Act. [1473]

(10) In proceedings under subsection (4) of this section prima facie evidence of rules therein mentioned may be given by production of a document certified by an officer of the Board to be a true copy thereof and a document purporting to be so certified shall be deemed to be such a document unless the contrary is proved. [1474]

(11) There shall be defrayed out of moneys provided by Parliament any increase attributable to the passing of this section in the sums payable out of such moneys under section forty-seven of the Unemployment Assistance Act, 1934, or section six of the Determination of Needs Act, 1941, and any sums received by the Board under this section or under section forty-eight of the Unemployment Assistance Act, 1934, as applied by this section, shall be paid into the Exchequer. [1475]

Effect of section.—See the Preliminary Note, ante.

The Board.—The Assistance Board (s. 2 (1), ante).

Other establishments.—Accommodation to be provided is limited to the various establishments run by the Board or its agents. The Secretary of State for the Home Department gave the following assurance to the House of Commons at the Committee Stage of the Bill:—

“The Assistance Board do not intend in any circumstances to billet Polish civilians in private houses” (433 H. of C. Official Report 1550).

Dependants, etc.—See note to s. 2, ante, on the phrase “Followers, etc.”

Polish resettlement forces.—See note to s. 2, ante.

Medical needs.—S. 54 (1) of the Unemployment Assistance Act, 1934 (27 Halsbury's Statutes 801), defines “medical needs” as “the need of medical or surgical assistance, including any need of drugs, medical or surgical appliances or of nursing or similar services.” The medical needs of persons for whom the Board has power to provide accommodation under the present section are provided for by s. 4, infra.

Needs as to education.—These are dealt with by s. 6 of the Act; see title EDUCATION, ante.

Any government department or other authority or person.—This would include local authorities and such bodies as the Y.M.C.A., the Y.W.C.A. and the Hostels Corporation.

The bodies or persons concerned need not be British. Note that the Board remains responsible for the operation of this section.

Unemployment Assistance Act, 1934.—27 Halsbury's Statutes 786 (see note to s. 2, ante). For ss. 47 and 48 thereof, see 27 Halsbury's Statutes 797. S. 48 (3) provides that proceedings under that section before a court of summary jurisdiction “may be instituted, prosecuted or conducted on behalf of the Board by any officer authorised in that behalf by a special or general direction of the Board, notwithstanding that he is not of counsel or a solicitor.”

Poor Law Act, 1930, s. 19.—12 Halsbury's Statutes 979. This is the section that gives county and county borough councils power to obtain maintenance orders on complaint to petty sessional courts, inter alia, where married women require relief without their husbands.

Determination of Needs Act, 1941, s. 6.—34 Halsbury's Statutes 437. See note to s. 2, ante.

4. Provision by the Minister of Health of health services.—(1) The Minister of Health may provide such services and do such things as appear to him to be requisite for meeting the medical needs as defined in the Unemployment Assistance Act, 1934, or other needs as to mental or bodily health, of persons of any description for whom the Assistance Board have power to provide accommodation under section three of this Act, including any such services and things as are specified in the National Health Service Act, 1946, as services or things which, on or after the appointed day for the purposes of that Act, the Minister of Health, local health authorities, executive councils or other persons is or are authorised or required to provide or do, or may be authorised or required to provide or do, by or under that Act, and any services and things the provision or doing of which is within the duties of local health authorities under the Lunacy and Mental Treatment Acts, 1890 to 1930, or the Mental Deficiency Acts, 1913 to 1938. [1476]

(2) The Minister of Health may make arrangements with any other government department or other authority or person for the provision of services or the doing of things under this section, on his behalf and at his expense, by that authority or person. [1477]

(3) The expenses of the Minister of Health under this section shall be defrayed out of moneys provided by Parliament. [1478]

Effect of section.—See the Preliminary Note, ante.

Medical needs.—S. 54 (1) of the Unemployment Assistance Act, 1934 (27 Halsbury's Statutes 801), defines “medical needs” as “the need of medical or surgical assistance, including any need of drugs, medical or surgical appliances or of nursing or similar services.”

National Health Service Act, 1946.—39 Halsbury's Statutes 515. This Act provides for the establishment of a comprehensive health service for England and Wales. Broadly, this service will consist of hospital and specialist services, which are the responsibility of the Minister of Health; health services provided by local health authorities, and general medical and dental services, etc., provided by medical, dental and other practitioners.

Lunacy and Mental Treatment Acts, 1890 to 1930.—These are the Lunacy Act, 1890 (11 Halsbury's Statutes 17); the Lunacy Act 1891 (11 Halsbury's Statutes 144); the Lunacy Act, 1908 (11 Halsbury's Statutes 151); the Lunacy Act, 1922 (11 Halsbury's Statutes 198); and the Mental Treatment Act, 1930 (23 Halsbury's Statutes 154).

Mental Deficiency Acts, 1913 to 1938.—These are the Mental Deficiency Act, 1913 (11 Halsbury's Statutes 160); the Mental Deficiency and Lunacy (Amendment) Act, 1919 (9 & 10 Geo. 5, c. 85); the Mental Deficiency (Amendment) Act, 1925 (11 Halsbury's Statutes 199); the Mental Deficiency Act, 1927 (11 Halsbury's Statutes 200); and the Mental Deficiency Act, 1938 (31 Halsbury's Statutes 421).

Government department or other authority or person.—This empowers arrangements with local authorities.

The bodies or persons concerned need not be British, but the Minister of Health remains responsible for action taken under this section.

13. Short title. This Act may be cited as the Polish Resettlement Act, 1947. [1479]

Sections 2 and 3

SCHEDULE

SUBSIDIARY PROVISIONS AS TO ALLOWANCES FROM THE ASSISTANCE BOARD, AND AS TO CHARGES FOR ACCOMMODATION, ETC., PROVIDED BY THEM

PART I

Modifications of the Unemployment Assistance Act, 1934, in its application by virtue of section two of this Act

1.—(1) Persons falling within subsection (1) of section two of this Act shall be included in the class of persons to whom the Unemployment Assistance Act, 1934 (in this Schedule referred to as “the Act of 1934”), applies, notwithstanding that the qualifications set out in subsection (1) of section thirty-six of that Act are not fulfilled.

(2) Any question whether a person is or is not a person to whom the Act of 1934 applies by virtue of this paragraph shall be determined in accordance with the provisions of section thirty-six of that Act, with the substitution, for references therein to the qualifications set out in subsection (1) thereof, of references to a person's falling within subsection (1) of section two of this Act, and without regard to the provisions of subsection (2) of the said section thirty-six or to the proviso to subsection (3) thereof (which relate only to the qualifications set out in subsection (1) thereof).

2. On an application for the grant of an allowance by virtue of section two of this Act, subsection (1) thereof shall apply in substitution for subsection (1) of section thirty-eight of the Act of 1934 (which specifies matters to be proved as conditions for the grant of allowances) [1480]

PART II

Provisions as to charges for accommodation etc. provided under section three of this Act

3. Payments for benefits provided for any person under section three of this Act may be required under subsection (6) of that section from that person, or, in the case of a married person, from his wife or her husband, or, in the case of a person who is under the age of sixteen years and has parents or a parent living (including in that expression the step-father of such a person who is deemed to be part of the step-father's family for the purposes of the Poor Law Act, 1930), from the parents or either of them.

4. The amounts of the payments which may be required shall be such amounts, not exceeding what appears to the Assistance Board (in this Part of this Schedule referred to as “the Board”) to be the appropriate scale charge fixed under the said subsection (6), as may appear to the Board to be reasonable having regard to all the circumstances affecting the person on whom the requirement is made:

Provided that the appeal tribunal constituted under the Act of 1934 shall have power, on reference to them of such a requirement in the manner and within the time prescribed for appeals under subsection (5) of section thirty-nine of the Act of 1934, to determine what scale charge is appropriate and whether the amounts required to be paid are reasonable having regard to the circumstances aforesaid, and if they think fit, to vary those amounts.

5. Sums required to be paid in accordance with the preceding provisions of this Part of this Schedule shall, without prejudice to any other remedy be recoverable summarily as a civil debt, and proceedings for such recovery may, notwithstanding anything in any Act to the contrary, be brought at any time within one year from the time when the matter complained of arose.

6. In any proceedings for recovery of sums required to be paid as aforesaid a document signed by an officer of the Board stating the making and particulars of the requirement, whether there was any reference to the appeal tribunal duly made and, if there was, the determination of the tribunal, shall be evidence of the facts stated, and a document which purports to be so signed shall, unless the contrary is proved, be deemed to be so signed.

7. Any person who, in connection with the ascertainment of amounts which he may be reasonably required to pay under subsection (6) of section three of this Act, knowingly makes any false statement or false representation as to the circumstances affecting him shall be liable on summary conviction to imprisonment for a term not exceeding three months.

8. If it is found at any time that a person required to pay amounts under subsection (6) of section three of this Act, has, whether fraudulently or otherwise, procured by the non-disclosure or misrepresentation of a material fact that the amounts required to be paid should be less than they would otherwise have been, a further requirement may be made upon him under the said subsection in respect of the benefits in question, and the preceding provisions of this Part of this Schedule shall apply thereto with requisite modifications. Unemployment Assistance Act, 1934.—27 Halsbury's Statutes 786. For ss. 36, 38 and 39 thereof, see 27 Halsbury's Statutes 787, 789, 790.

The qualifications set out in s. 36 (1) of that Act (see supra) are as follows:—

“(a) that he has attained the age of sixteen years and has not attained the age of sixty-five years; and

“(b) that he is either—

“(i) a person whose normal occupation is employment in respect of which contributions are payable under the Widows', Orphans' and Old Age Contributory Pensions Acts, 1925 to 1932; or

“(ii) a person who, not having normally been engaged in any remunerative occupation since attaining the age of sixteen years, might reasonably have expected that his normal occupation would have been such employment as aforesaid but for the industrial circumstances of the district in which he resides; and

“(c) that he is capable of and available for work:

“Provided that during any period during which a person is disqualified for receiving benefit under the Unemployment Insurance Acts owing to his having lost employment by reason of a stoppage of work which was due to a trade dispute, or during which he would have been so disqualified as aforesaid if he had been an insured contributor under those Acts, he shall, notwithstanding that the foregoing qualifications are fulfilled in his case, be deemed not to be a person to whom this Part of this Act applies.”

Poor Law Act, 1930.—12 Halsbury's Statutes 968. S. 14 (3) of this Act reads as follows:—

“A man who marries a woman having a child (whether legitimate or illegitimate) at the time of the marriage shall be liable to maintain the child as part of his family, and shall be chargeable with all relief granted to or on account of the child until the child attains the age of sixteen, or until the death of the mother of the child, and the child shall, for the purposes of this Act, be deemed to be part of the husband's family accordingly.”

Appeal tribunals constituted under the Act of 1934.—“The Act of 1934” means the Unemployment Assistance Act, 1934 (see paragraph 1 (1), ante), s. 39 (4) and Sched. VII, of which provide for the establishment, constitution and proceedings of appeal tribunals (27 Halsbury's Statutes 791, 820).

Under the said Sched. VII each tribunal consists of a chairman and two other members, the chairman being appointed by the Minister of Health and the other members by the Unemployment Assistance Board (now the Assistance Board); one of these members is selected by the Board from a panel of persons nominated by the Minister to represent work-people, and the other represents the Board.

TRANSFER OF FUNCTIONS (RELIEF OF CHILDREN) ORDER, 1947

S. R. & O., 1947, No. 1644

July 25, 1947

Whereas it is provided by the Ministers of the Crown (Transfer of Functions) Act, 1946, that it shall be lawful for His Majesty by Order in Council to transfer to any Minister of the Crown any functions theretofore exercisable by another Minister of the Crown :

And whereas by the Poor Law Act, 1930, certain functions relating to the relief of the poor are conferred on the Minister of Health :

And whereas it appears to His Majesty to be expedient that certain of the said functions, in so far as they relate to the relief of children, should be transferred to the Secretary of State :

Now, therefore, His Majesty is pleased, by and with the advice of His Privy Council, to order, and it is hereby ordered, as follows :—

1.—(1) This Order may be cited as the Transfer of Functions (Relief of Children) Order, 1947, and shall come into operation on the first day of September, 1947.

(2) In this Order the expression “ children ” means—

(a) persons who have not attained the age of eighteen years and in respect of whom the rights and duties of a parent or parents are for the time being vested by virtue of a resolution of a council of a county or county borough under section 52 of the Poor Law Act, 1930, in that council ; and

(b) other persons who have not attained the age of sixteen years.

(3) The Interpretation Act, 1889, shall apply to the interpretation of this Order as it applies to the interpretation of an Act of Parliament. [1482]

2. There shall be transferred to the Secretary of State the functions of the Minister of Health exercisable by him under the Poor Law Act, 1930, and the rules, orders and regulations made thereunder in so far as those functions relate to the relief of children :

Provided that nothing in this Article shall operate so as to transfer any functions of the Minister of Health relating to—

- (a) any child in receipt of relief who is in the same premises as his parent ;
- (b) any patient in a hospital or other premises, not being a children's home as defined in the Public Assistance Order, 1930, for the purpose of receiving medical or surgical treatment or of convalescence therein ;
- (c) any child accommodated under an evacuation plan who is in receipt of relief by reason only of the supply of pocket money or clothing ; and
- (d) any matter common to the relief of children and other persons with respect to which by reason of this Article functions would, but for this paragraph, be exercisable by the Secretary of State as well as by the Minister of Health, or any functions of the Minister of Health under section 161 of the said Act (which empowers county and county borough councils to refer to that Minister disputes as to settlement, removal or chargeability). [1483]

3.—(1) In the construction and for the purposes of any enactment, rule, order, regulation or other document passed or made before the date of the coming into operation of this Order, any reference to the Minister of Health shall, so far only as may be necessary for the purpose of or in consequence of the transfer of functions under this Order, be construed as a reference to the Secretary of State.

(2) This Order shall not prejudice the operation of any rule, order, regulation, appointment, direction, approval, notice or consent made or given or other thing done by the Minister of Health before the date of the coming into operation of this Order in relation to functions thereby transferred, but any such matter, if then in force, shall continue in force to the like extent and subject to the like provisions as if it had been duly made, given or done by the Secretary of State. Mines—Coal mine—Seams passing under sanitary works—Notice of intention to work—Particular seams not specified—Validity of notice—Waterworks Clauses Act, 1847 (c. 17), s. 22—Public Health Act, 1875 (Support of Sewers) Amendment Act, 1883 (c. 37).

A colliery company owned mines under, or within 40 yards from, sanitary works owned and controlled by a local authority. By a notice given to the authority under the Waterworks Clauses Act, 1847, and the Public Health Act, 1875 (Support of Sewers) Amendment Act, 1883, the company stated that, "as owners, lessees and licensees entitled to work and get seams of coal under or within the prescribed distance of" the authority's sanitary works (described as being situated within three named parishes), they gave notice "that we are desirous of working the said seams of coal and that it is our intention to work the same on the expiration of thirty days after the service upon you of this notice." In due course the company worked some of the seams. The local authority contended that the notice was bad (a) because the company had not specified which particular seams they desired to work, and (b) because the notice covered too large an area :—

Held: it was not necessary for the company to particularise the seams of coal which it intended to work, and the notice did not cover too large an area, and the notice was, therefore, valid.

Public health—Dustbin—Provision—Owner of building required by local authority to provide—Right of appeal to justices—Public Health Act, 1936 (c. 49), s. 75.

The owner of a building may appeal against a requirement of a local authority that he shall provide a dustbin under s. 75 of the Public Health Act, 1936, on the ground that the burden of providing the dustbin should be thrown on the tenant and not on the owner, and the justices have an unrestricted discretion in dealing with such an appeal.—CROYDON CORPN. v. THOMAS, [1947] K. B. 386 ; [1947] 1 All E. R. 239 ; [1947] L. J. R. 484 ; 111 J. P. 157 ; 45 L. G. R. 114, D. C. [1486]

Public health—Drainage—New building—Satisfactory provision for drainage of building—Drains of particular building—Public Health Act, 1936 (c. 49), s. 37 (1).

S. 37 (1) of the Public Health Act, 1936, provides : "Where plans of a building . . . are . . . deposited with a local authority, the authority shall reject the plans unless . . . the plans show that satisfactory provision will be made for the drainage of the building. . . ."

The words "drainage of the building" in the subsection refer to the drains of the individual building or buildings the plans of which are deposited, and not to the system of drainage for that building or buildings and other buildings. Consequently, if the plans of a building show that satisfactory provision will be made for the drainage of that particular building, the local authority are not entitled to reject them on the ground that the sewer designed to take that drainage leads to an inefficient septic tank with the result that a nuisance may be caused by the failure of the tank adequately to deal with the sewage.—CHESTERTON RURAL DISTRICT COUNCIL v. RALPH THOMPSON, LTD., [1947] K. B. 301; [1947] 1 All E. R. 273; [1947] L. J. R. 178; 177 L. T. 501; 111 J. P. 127; 45 L. G. R. 31, D. C. [1487]

Landlord and tenant—Rent restriction—Recovery of possession—Premises not in reasonable state of repair—Certificate of sanitary authority—Whether ipso facto bar to landlord's right of possession—Rent and Mortgage Interest Restrictions (Amendment) Act, 1933 (c. 32), s. 12, Sched. I (b).

Landlord and tenant—Rent Restriction—Rent—Premises not in reasonable state of repair—Certificate of sanitary authority—Whether obligation to pay suspended in toto—Rent Restrictions (Notices of Increase) Act, 1923 (c. 13), s. 3 (3).

A certificate issued by a sanitary authority under the Rent and Mortgage Interest Restrictions (Amendment) Act, 1933, s. 12, that a dwelling-house to which the principal Acts apply is not in a reasonable state of repair is not, of itself, ipso facto, a bar to the landlord's right of possession. Under s. 3 of, and Sched. I (b) to, the Act, the court must consider whether it is reasonable to make an order for possession. The contractual obligation to pay rent is not suspended in toto by reason of the failure of the landlord to comply with such a certificate, for s. 3 (3) of the Rent Restrictions (Notices of Increase) Act, 1923, only suspends the right to recover, and consequential remedies for non-payment of, permitted increases in the rent.—PEACH v. ### EMERGENCY POWERS (DEFENCE) ROAD VEHICLES AND DRIVERS (AMENDMENT) ORDER, 1947

S. R. & O., 1947, No. 1405

July 3, 1947

The Minister of Transport in exercise of the powers conferred upon him by Regulations 72 and 87 of the Defence (General) Regulations, 1939, as having effect by virtue of the Supplies and Services (Transitional Powers) Act, 1945, and of all other powers enabling him in that behalf, hereby makes the following Order :—

1. The Emergency Powers (Defence) Road Vehicles and Drivers Order, 1943, as amended by the Emergency Powers (Defence) Road Vehicles and Drivers (Amendment) Order, 1944, the Emergency Powers (Defence) Road Vehicles and Drivers (Amendment) Order, 1945, the Emergency Powers (Defence) Road Vehicles and Drivers (Amendment) (No. 2) Order, 1945, the Emergency Powers (Defence) Road Vehicles and Drivers (Amendment) Order, 1946, the Emergency Powers (Defence) Road Vehicles and Drivers (Amendment) (No. 2) Order, 1946, and the Emergency Powers (Defence) Road Vehicles and Drivers (Amendment) (No. 3) Order, 1946, shall have effect as though :—

- (1) the date “ 31st July, 1947 ”, and the date “ 31st July, 1948 ”, were respectively substituted for the date “ 31st July, 1946 ”, and the date “ 31st July, 1947 ”, wherever either of them occurs in paragraphs 2, 8, 14 and 15 thereof ;
- (2) the date “ 30th November, 1947 ”, were substituted for the date “ 30th November, 1946 ”, in sub-paragraph (c) of paragraph 13 thereof ; and
- (3) the following paragraphs were added immediately after paragraph 20 thereof :—

“ 20A. Every authorisation given under paragraph 2 of this Order to drive or to act as conductor of a public service vehicle shall cease to have effect in relation to the holder thereof on the date on which he is licensed to drive or to act as conductor, as the case may be, of a public service vehicle under the provisions of section 77 of the Road Traffic Act, 1930.

20B. Every authorisation to drive a tram, a trolley vehicle or a hackney carriage or to act as a conductor of a tram or a trolley vehicle given under paragraph 2 of this Order shall cease to have effect as regards the person so authorised on the date on which a licence to drive a tram, a trolley vehicle or a hackney carriage or to act as a conductor of a tram or a trolley vehicle issued under the provisions of the Metropolitan Public Carriage Act, 1869, comes into effect in relation to that person ”. [1489]

2. This Order shall come into force on the 31st day of July, 1947, and may be cited as “ The Emergency Powers (Defence) Road Vehicles and Drivers (Amendment) Order, 1947 ”. [1490]

EXPLANATORY NOTE

(This Note is not part of the Order, but is intended to indicate its general purport.)

This Order (1) extends for 12 months from the date when it would otherwise have expired any authorisation in force on the 31st July, 1946, to :—

- (i) act as a driver or conductor of a public service vehicle ;
- (ii) act as a driver or conductor of a tram or trolley vehicle or as a driver of a hackney carriage in the metropolitan police district ;
- (iii) use a public service vehicle ;
- (iv) operate a road passenger service under a permit ;
- (v) use a goods vehicle under A, B or C carrier's licence or permit ;

(2) provides that a goods vehicle, notwithstanding any conditions attached to its licence or permit, may be used for any purpose in connection with harvesting work until 30th November, 1947 ; and

(3) provides further that any authorisation to act as driver or conductor of a public service vehicle, or of a tram or trolley vehicle in the metropolitan police district or to act as driver of a hackney carriage in that district, shall cease to have effect when a corresponding licence comes into force under section 77 of the Road Traffic Act 1930 or section 8 of the Metropolitan Public Carriage Act 1869, as the case may be.

CASES

Street and aerial traffic—Omnibus undertaking—Local authority operating omnibus undertaking under local Act—Revenue to be applied “in maintaining” omnibuses, garages, etc.—New omnibuses required for replacement or as additions—Purchase out of capital or revenue—Mynyddislwyn Urban District Council Act, 1926 (c. lxxv), ss. 90, 91.

An omnibus board was established under the Mynyddislwyn Urban District Council Act, 1926, to provide, maintain and run omnibuses on routes within certain specified areas, and by virtue of agreements confirmed by the Act, acquired certain omnibus undertakings which had been operating in the areas concerned. It was provided by s. 91 of the Act that the board should apply “all money from time to time received by them in respect of their undertaking except money received on capital account,” inter alia, “in maintaining the omnibuses, garages and other buildings and plant and appliances belonging to or leased by the board”—

Held: the word “maintaining” when used in relation to a fleet of omnibuses, meant maintaining not merely in quality or efficiency but in numbers, but it did not include the conception of increase and extend to additions to the fleet. Accordingly the board might properly apply the revenue of its undertaking in maintaining and replacing its existing omnibuses, garages and other buildings and plant, but it had no power to apply the revenue to adding to the numbers of its omnibuses or in purchasing garages and other buildings or plant rendered necessary by the acquisition of such additional omnibuses.—A.-G. v. WEST MONMOUTHSHIRE OMNIBUS BOARD, [1947] 1 All E. R. 248; [1947] L. J. R. 456; 176 L. T. 131; 111 J. P. 146; 45 L. G. R. 134. [1491]

Street and aerial traffic—Public service vehicle—Negligence of transport board—Limitation of liability—“Contract for conveyance of passenger”—Free travelling pass granted to employee of board—Condition excluding liability for damage by negligence—Employee injured while boarding omnibus—Road Traffic Act, 1930 (c. 43), s. 97.

The plaintiff was an employee of the defendant board and as such held a pass enabling him to travel free on the board's omnibuses. By cl. 6 of the pass, the pass was stated to be issued and accepted “on condition that neither the [board] nor their servants are to be liable to the holder . . . for loss of life, injury or delay . . . however caused.” Owing to the negligence of the conductress, a servant of the board, the plaintiff was thrown off and injured while attempting to board an omnibus. In an action brought by the plaintiff against the board for negligence, it was argued on his behalf that in the circumstances this condition had no application, and that, in any case, it was excluded by the Road Traffic Act, 1930, s. 97, which provides: “Any contract for the conveyance of a passenger in a public service vehicle shall, so far as it purports to negative or to restrict the liability of any person in respect of any claim which may be made against that person in respect of the death of, or bodily injury to, the passenger while being carried in, entering or alighting from the vehicle . . . be void”—

Held: (i) the plaintiff, when the injury occurred, was acting in a way which the pass entitled him to and was taking the benefit of a right which the pass gave him, and, therefore, the condition in cl. 6 operated.
